POOR BOSSIE'S GHOST

Four Lawsuits Follow The Demise of Cow

A. LORING ISSUES ANOTHER WRIT

Humble In Life, Bovine Has Posthumous Fame

The spirit of gentle Bossie, an old red cow, which belonged to the New England Company, still lingers on in the law courts to stir up strife. Bossie, who during her lifetime was a gentle bovine, since her death has caused one trial before the Lytton magistrate, one damage action in the supreme court, one criminal trial before a jury at the Clinton assize, and now has caused another writ to be issued in the supreme court. Incidentally, she has made one well known legal gentleman liable for a bill of costs for $942 in connection with one of the actions.

The New England Company is a wealthy English missionary society, which owns a farm near Lytton. On the farm, youthful Siwashes are taught the art of farming. Bossie, which was one of the animals on the farm, disappeared some time ago, and her dead body was later discovered in the pen of Mr. Alanzo Loring, a rancher and butcher of Lytton.

Superintendent Fitzgerald of the New England Company laid an information laid against Loring for cattle stealing, but this was dismissed, Mr. Loring showing that he had bought the animal as one of a big herd, in ignorance that it had belonged to the New England Company.

Mr. Fritzgerald on the dismissal of the police charge, had himself bound over to prosecute the case again before the grand jury at Clinton assizes. In the meantime Mr. Loring entered a damage suit in the supreme court claiming damages for malicious prosecution. Mr. Fritzgerald acted in good faith and without malice, and dismissed the claim for damages,

Since then Mr. Fritzgerald prosecuted his case before the grand jury at Clinton, and a true bill was returned against Mr. Loring. When the full facts were again brought out before the petit jury, the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty, and Mr. Loring was honorably acquited.

This week Mr. Loring through his solicitors, Messrs. Lucas & Lucas, has instituted a second claim for damages for alleged malicious prosecution, basing his claim on the second prosecution at Clinton assizes, when it is alleged Mr. Fritzgerald was in full possession of the facts of the case, as brought out at the first prosecution.

Gleanings Around The Town

News Of Men and Matters

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Sarman are visiting in Lillooet.

W. H. Heighton of Vancouver, was registered at the Victoria on Tuesday.

Arthur Noel left for the coast Wednesday morning, on a business trip.

Dr. W. E. Newcombe, physician on the line of railroad construction, was in town during the week.

S. J. McDonald, Mission City's music dealer, is in town this week, supplying the houses of Lillooet with music for the winter months.

W. K. Hislop has opened a renovatory in the annex to the Phair department store, and is prepared to turn old coats into new, and perform other sartorial miracles with Lillooet's wardrobe.

Mrs. J. M. Williams arrived from Chilliwack Wednesday and proceeded to the McGillvary Mountain mine on Friday morning where she will spend a few weeks with Mr. Williams, who is superintendent of the mines.

S. A. Macfarlane return from Vancouver today, having made the trip to the coast for the purpose of purchasing telephone instruments and equipment or new Lillooet-Lytton service. Mr. Macfarlane reports excellent progress on the work and says that the wire will be strung to within fifteen miles of Lytton tonight-

Good progress is being made with the development work at the McGillvary Creek Mountain Mines, according to the statement of J. M. Williams, superintendent of property. While in town this week Mr. Williams stated to The Prospoctor that the cross cut had been run nearly 100 feet on the 400-foot level, and was nearing completion. The character of formation is changing and is very highly mineralized, indicating the proximity of vein. In reply to a query as to whether or not it was the intention of the company to install a stamp mill, he replied that it would depend upon development as to whether a mill will be installed or some other means of ore reduction adopted. Development will continue.

Unable to Purchase Guns, Hunters And Dealers are Sufferers

The recent addition to the provincial statutes prohibiting any person from selling firearms unless the would-be purchaser has received a permit from the police, is causing some trouble in Vancouver. The act came into effect on September 1, and in consequence the dealers now demand to see the permit before they will engage to sell firearms. So far no permits have been issued. The city police and the district game warden both refer applicants to the provincial police, but the provincial police claim they have received no instructions from Victoria, and decline to take the responsibility of issuing permits.

Most of the applicants are hunters who wish to arm themselves with .45 calibre revolvers before going into the bush in search of bear.

Lillooet Lands to be Sold for Non-Payment of Taxes

On October 11 a sale of lands in the Lillooet district is to be held at the court house, Lillooet, all of them being crown granted properties upon which delinquent taxes are unpaid. Altogether some 67 lots are advertised, upon several of these, however, the required sums have been paid. These lands will, therefore, not come under the hammer, the required sums having been paid. E. W. Corkett, deputy assessor and collector, will conduct the sale, which is called for 10. a. m.

Agents wanted to sell fruit, shade and ornamental trees and small fruit plants. Apply Royal Nurseries Ltd., 710 Dominion Bldg., Vancouver, British Columbia.

When it comes to climate, Lillooet has every other place backed off the map.

NEW ROAD PROBABLE

Pavilion to Empire Valley Through High Bar

MAY LATER EXTEND TO LILLOOET

Road Superintendent More Speaks Of Season's Work

Much development work along the lines of opening up and maintaining roads and trails has been done this year throughout the Lillooet district, the heaviest portion of work having been carried out at the northern end of the territory, where new settlement has been exceptionally heavy.

Such was the statement made to The Prospector by Mr. J. K. More, road superintendent for Lillooet district.

Mr. More was in town Wednesday, en route from Ashcroft to Fort George, whither he has been called to meet Hon. Price Ellison, who is on his way through that point from Edmonton to Prince Rupert.

Speaking of new works projected, Mr. More stated that there was a possibility of development in the Pavilion district in the way of a wagon road through High Bar and Big Bar to Empire Valley, following the west side of river. While the present suggestion is that the terminal of this road shall be at Pavilion, the superintendent ventured the opinion that it will probably be found necessary to carry it througe to Lillooet.

Questioned regarding location of proposed new Pavilion bridge, he said that this had not yet been determined, only a few light surveys having been run.

"How about the North Fork road at Bridge River?"

"We will have to put in a new bridge before that can be completed, the old one will be of little use. For that we have a good location a little higher up the river, where there is a good rock foundation, and where only a span of 125 feet will be necessary," said he.

While considerable development work has been done during the year, still more energy has been spent in improvements to existing roads, changes of location and general maintenance. North of Canim lake the road has been extended to the 105 mile. From Horsefly an extension has been made to McKinley creek, and from Beaver Lake house the road has been carried on to intersect with the Quenel Forks road. This latter extension has opened up a very fine valley in which there is much good agricultural land.

Work has also been carried on in the Horse Lake country, where there has been a big rush of settlement this year, and where a thriving little community is already springing up.

ADVERTISE!

Unless a merchant has the right goods to sell at the right price, it is useless for him to advertise. If he can fill the bill in this direction it is foolish of him not to advertise. While citizens and strangers alike may search out, by much diligence or accident, the range and quality of his wares, there is always the probability that he may be passed up. In any case it is good policy, sound business and assured profit to assist the search. Newspaper advertising has now become recognized as an important department of business to such an extent that ist readers know well that merchants who have confidence in the value of their goods voice their confidence through the columns of the local press. And, knowing this, purchasers act accordingly.

CANADIAN IMPERTINENCE

Right cleverly does Editor Scott Bone, of the Seattle P.-I., reprimand the Canadian constabulary for breaking in upon that American game of poker at Coaticook the other morning. It was a bit of impertinence that the poker-playing American is not likely to forget, and, it may be depended upon that some reprisals will follow on first occassion, says the Vancouver Province, prefacing the following reprint of the article question.

The P.-I. editor-in-chief had this to say:

Just as Coaticook had arrived at the happy condition of seeing its name on the front page every day, here comes this poker incident to put a dent in the popularity earned by the Quebec village. Coaticook has received a setback in American esteem from which it may never recover. Putting William Travers Jerome in the Coaticook cooler does not harass the hairstrung American sensibilities nearly so much as to have a Canadian constable protrude his presence into an American institution and interrupt with heavy shoes the harvest on a flush or a king full.

Canada may trample on the flag and get away with it, but it would be well to point out that our brothers across the northern border can go too far. We are tolerant and good-natured people. Britishers come over here demanding their morning tub and otherwise deporting themselves in an eccentric manner without public criticism. They have even played cricket over here unmolested, if not in actual peace; but when a British subject attempts to deny an American citizen the right to take home the increment of a pat hand, the situation assumes the dimensions of a whipsaw.

The dispatches from Coaticook indicate that the game between William Travers Jerome and the newspaper correspondents was a denatured form of poker, technically known as "ten-cent limit." Doubtless it will be urged in defense of the Canadian constable that a 10-cent limit game is not the great American game wherein the roof is considered to be the proper restraint to put upon a player who holds four aces. Anyway, the telegraphic description of the game may be wrong. Western diplomatists, who are strong for the principle of the thing, will choose to look upon the incident an an affront to an American institution, until all the facts are known.

MINING REVIVAL

That "Mining is coming back to its own in British Columbia" has been the text around which has been written many editorials and news "stories" in the columns of The Prospector during the past few months. It is gratifying, therefore, to note the following article which appeared in the West Yale Review recently, which not only corroborates The Prospector's statement, but also has a good word to say for Bridge River: "Mining is coming back to its own in British Columbia. In spite of a year of financial depression which has seriously hampered activity in many other lines, the value of the mineral output of the province increased nearly 40 per cent., reaching the total of over $32,000,000.

"Most of this output, 80 per cent. of the total, is from the mining fields of Kootenay and the Boundary districts of Yale, and these districts will no doubt continue to increase their output for many years to come. Mining has been prosecuted in Kootenay continuously for nearly thirty years. No property is yet exhausted, and the many lately developed properties are reaching the producing stage. Outside of Kootenay and Boundary, at present the most important producer is the Nickle Plate in Hedley camp.

"But the most promising feature of the whole situation, although it does not figure at all in the statistics, is the development of new fields which will join the ranks of the shippers within the next year or two at most. Of these the most promising at present are the north coast of the mainland, the Bridge River district of Lillooet and the Hope-Yale district.

"For several years the attraction of quick and easy money to be made in buying and selling city lots in Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster was drawing the savings of working men from all over the province, and making it difficult to get money locally for the development of mines. The evil effects of this will not end for some time. An unfortunately large proportion of the wages of British Columbia workmen will continue to go to complete payment for properties whose fictious values have ceased to advance. But as such investment no longer offer quick returns, capital is already seeking other channels.

"This is a decided gain. Money used merely in buying and selling land already cleared and surveyed is utterly unproductive. Money spent to take ore from the grounds and convert it into a marketable commodity is increasing the wealth of the country, and in the meantime providing a payroll for skilled and unskilled labor.

"If the financial stringency has the effects of diverting the surplus money of the province from gambling in the rise of realty values to developing the natural resources, it will be a gain all round, and not least to the coast cities, whose only hope for permanent prosperity is in such development."

How Harry Keary and Daniel Hurley Shot Bear in '98

The following extract from The Prospector of Sept. 2, 1898, tells how two of Lillooet's prominent sportsmen shot bear:

"Dan Hurley and Harry Keary went out shooting near Bald mountain Thursday and were successful in bagging two hawks. It is reported that Paul Santini lost a young calf the same afternoon in that vicinity. Anyway, Harry Keary shot something for a deer and did not bring it home, and Dan Hurley says he is positive that it was the calf. During the day the boys were taking a rest, and on looking at the hillside, about two miles distant, they saw a large black bear coming towards them. They both got ready awaiting the arrival of Bruin. The bear came steadily on, and they waited until it was about fifty feet away and Dan commenced firing and wasted several shots, but the bear did not stir. Then Harry thought he could fix him. During this time the bear was getting closer. He fired a couple of shots; the bear never even winked but deliberately got up and sat on a log in front of the sportsmen. When Harry got finished firing the bear desired to get better acquainted with the sports and proceeded forward. During the whole affair Harry had kept his eye on a tree, and immediately made for it. Dan pulled his knife and wanted to make a rush a la Manson and have a hand to hand fight with the bear. Harry says when he got comfortably perched in the tree he looked for his partner, but Dan was only hitting the high places, and the bear had passed on, not taking any notice of them or their bullets. We learn that arrangements have been made to settle for the calf.

Lillooet: The Home Of Big Game

Now that the hunting season is in full swing, the mountain sheep, the many-antlered stags and the pretty coated "Billy" goats are all on the alert and bounding away to the far recesses of their mountain homes in an endeavour to escape the hunter's gun. In addition to local sportsmen, three parties have come from afar to participate in the sport. Henry Swartz. with his large pack train and assistants, has taken out two hunters from England, and intends to go to the Whitewater section and hunt the wily Big Horn. Frank Gott is the guide for another English party, whilst W. G. E. Manson has located his party, who are from Salt Lake city, at the headwaters of Tyaughton and Gunn creek. According to all reports from the district, game wardens and local trappers, the game this year is in excellent condition, and large bags are expected to be brought in this fall which will probably outclass the splendid big game trophies that have heretofore been secured, and for which the Lillooet district is so well noted. Other parties are expected shortly, and all the guides are busy with horses, saddles and outfit in preparation for their use.

Construction of Kettle Valley Line At Hope Commenced

Dirt has begun to fly on the Kettle Valley Railway at Hope. As the first spade began work a mile and a half from town, the dust was not noticeable. Nine station crews are in camp on A. F. McDonald's ranch, and more are being set to work as fast as accomodation can be provided.

MacArthur Brothers Company have set themselves the task of completing their contract in 14 months. To accomplish it, they must work all along the line at once. Fortunately, though the tunnels are numerous, none are very long, and all can be attacked at once. The transport of material and supplies will require an army of men and many horses.

Provision has already been made for medical service by Dr. Ker who will be assisted by Dr, Whitehouse. Hospitals will be established at Hope and at the Summit.

The building of the wagon road to Ladner Creek bugun this week.

Frank T. Weston arrived from Lytton this week, accompanied by his wife, and will assist Chas. Dunn in running the latters tonsorial business.

YOUTHFUL THEOLOGY

A Baptist minister had a young son whom e wished to follow in his profession. The kid being a hot number, thought it would be wise to commence young in his theological studies, and took up baptism as a starter. The family had a fine cat, the pride of the household, which also had several kittens. The kid began practising on these and managed to baptise the kittens in good shape. But, alas, the old cat proved a failure after several fruitless attempts, and the noble youngster, in a fit of anger, gave old puss a fling into the corner of the room, exclaiming as he did so: "Well, then, be a Methodist and go to hell."

SERVICES SUNDAY

Rev. S. D. Griffiths will hold divine services Monday in the English church here. This will be the pastor's last official visit to Lillooet, as he is about to change the scene of his pastorial labors. Sunday services will be as follows: Communion, 8 a. m; morning service, 11 a. m; evensong, 7:30.

Work Commences on North Thompson Bridge at Lytton

Work on the Thompson river bridge is now in full swing. The bridge is to be all of steel, and the span is 200 feet. A tower has been built on the north side of the Thompson and a two-inch cable has been laid to the south side by means of which the steel will be placed in position. A large hopper has been built for the handling of gravel and cement and tracks have been laid from the river bank to the bridge head. Approaching completion of railway construction over this section of Canadian Northern is resulting in a change of conditions here. Former big payrolls of construction days must now be replaced by other sources of revenue. Agricultural development and the heavy forwarding business to the Lillooet district will ensure a continuance of considerable business prosperity.

FINED $2.50

For carrying a gun without a license, an Italian, named Ferr, was, on Tuesday evening fined $2,50 and costs by Magistrate Saul. Accused was arrested at the Short Portage.
