SOMETHING PHILOSOPHICAL

By DAVID DALZIEL.

To live our life as though it be,
The length of all eternity.

To live as happy as he can,
Should be the object of each man.

To know all things that can be known
And reap alike as we have sown.

To sow that seed which grows to be
Peace, Justice, Truth and Purity.

To merit all reward and rest
That come from sowing what is best

To slay the savage, brutal part
That sticks tenacious to the heart.

To get the savage in control
And feel it parting from the soul.

To feel that every day is more
And better than the day before.

To know not of an end that brings
Its aches, and pains, and pangs, and stings.

To look on death as though it be
Beyond the great eternity.

To be astonished when we die
As though we knew it not, nor why.

To weave a web of purest dye
And leave it to posterity.

Naval Battle.

Tokio.—Admiral Togo reports May 27th as follows: —

Our combined squadrons attacked the Russian squadron today in heavy sea near O'Kinoshima, defeating it, sinking four ships and inflicting heavy damage on others; damage to our ships insignificant.

Under date of May 29th, Togo reports that the main force of our combined squadrons continued the pursuit since the 27th—attacked the Russians on the 28th near Liancourt Rocks.

Russian losses definitely known so far, nineteen vessels.

There are more than two thousand prisoners on 4 ships which surrendered, besides 2000 taken by main force. Rear Admiral Nebogatoff is among the prisoners. The personal fate of Admiral Rojestvensky is not known; some believe that he has possibly perished.

The divorce case is a chapter in a romance beginning in Paris, and ending in Clinton. He felt like 59, and she looked only 50. Meeting at the same hotel, he was enabled to render assistance in connection with a lost ticket. They met again in England She held a good position at $500.00 a year, but he had a mansion in lovely Lillooet District, and she could not always work. A pure matter of business, it was; but not well carried out. The home at Alexandria appeared to her a mere hovel ready to fall down, and he was a corker to drink. And so it goes.

The Deputy Attorney General, paid a visit to Lillooet before returning to Victoria. He took the opportunity of visiting Seton Lake, which he declares is the most beautiful view he ever saw. I venture to say he enjoyed the stage ride out, also.

British Wine Drinking.

The consumption of claret in Great Britain, which grew pretty steadily after the French commercial treaty negotiated by Mr. Cobden in 1861, would seem to have received a check. The importation of still wines from France has fallen off by 307,000 gallons. The sales of Burgundy, Sauterne and Chablis have not materially varied, and the deficit is entirely attributable to the comparative neglect of claret. In spite of war in the first five months of 1902 and high taxation, there was an increase in the consumption of champagne of nearly 20,000 gallons. The decline of claret has naturally been followed by an increase in the drinking of port. The importation of this wine has increased by 33,000 gallons, and if Dr. Johnson's dictum be true that claret is the drink for boys and port wine for men, we ought, I suppose, says a London correspondent, to rejoice at the change. All good patriots will be glad to learn that the importation of German wines has fallen off, and they will be equally delighted to hear that there has been a growth in the consumption of Australian wines of over 256,000 gallons.

Exhausted Nerves Aching Head

Three years of suffering—Health restored by seven boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Persistent headaches usually come from an exhausted condition of the nervous system, and can never be cured until nerve force is restored by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

MISS LAURINE WELLS, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "For three years I suffered agony with nervous headaches, and my nervous system was entirely run down. Though I consulted several physicians, I got but little relief. On the advice of a friend I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and it was not long until the spells of dizziness and fainting had entirely gone.

MISS WELLS

"I used altogether seven boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and now I do not know what it is to have a headache. I cannot say too much in favor of this medicine, for it has done wonders for me and saved me many dollars in doctor's bills."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great blood builder and nerve restorative, 50 cts. a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, on every box.

INDIVIDUALITY.

Making of Handmade Goods Will Cultivate It in Canadians.

In Canada, above all other countries, we have great need to encourage individuality, for our system of public education, however excellent, takes but little count of the individual, and from a certain standpoint we are educating on a system which tends to destroy anything like strong individuality. In fact, if you take the spirit which prevails in our smaller towns and villages you will find a positive resentment against the man or woman who dares to strike out in any line of his own. Go into our large stores and you will find one huge table covered with the same form of hat, reproduced a thousand times. Pass into the mantle department, and on great trees hang coats and jackets of the exact cut and make and color; and all this is influencing our people and their view of individuality and its right to assert itself in any line in life. With all our boasted freedom, as compared to the past, we fall into line like mild-eyed sheep and follow the mass. In the old days we might have been led by individuals; to-day it is the unthinking crowd that takes the lead. How many people think or care what has been the origin or inspiration of any fashion we follow so blindly? Surely there is nothing so deadening, so calculated to still the best that is in the human soul, as indifference. Can the Society for Arts and Crafts stir up the public to take an intelligent interest in the thought and virtue which are expressed in the handmade article, they will bring closer to the mass of purchasers in the Dominion the problems whi h face the men and women who design and execute the work they propose to encourage. Those great factories hide so much from us that is beautiful and worthy in human lives and the struggles of the workers to beautify their own lives by contact with beautiful things. Can we but encourage work which will not separate men and women from their homes and their children, can we but raise the taste of the richer classes in the Dominion so that they will take into consideration all that a good handmade article represents and be willing to pay for that ideal quality of human individuality, as well as for the time and labor expended on its construction, we shall have much to thank the Society of Arts and Crafts in Canada for. — Lally Bernard, in The Globe.

The Nurse's Testimony

Two distressing cases of eczema lastingly cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

MISS C. STANLEY-JONES, professional masseuse and nurse, 233 Simcoe Street, Toronto, Ont., writes: "In my occupation as a nurse I have come across many cases in which Dr. Chase's Ointment has been used with extraordinary results. One case I recall was that of a child of sixteen months who was in a very bad way with scaly head. It was a really nasty case, causing the child to suffer very much and to be very troublesome. I persuaded the mother to use Dr. Chase's Ointment, and in ten days the child was entirely cured.

MISS JONES

"Another case was that of a lady who was greatly distressed with eczema of the face. The doctor was dosing her with medicine, which was doing no good. In this case cure was effected in seven days with only one box of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Both of these cures were lasting."

The control which Dr. Chase's Ointment exerts over eczema and all itching skin diseases is a wonder to all who have tested it. 60 cts. a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

BLUE BOOK

The Annual Report of the Minister of Mines is out for 1904. Some items in regard to our District are as follows,—

The year 1904 has shown an improvement over the previous, as some properties are being developed that were idle for years. By an Order-in-Council, the Southern boundary of Lillooet Mining Division was extended to a line crossing the Fraser 4 miles below Foster's Bar.

The Anderson Lake M. & M. Co. property is bonded to J. Burley Smith, of Montreal, who has also purchased interests in the White Rose and Rosemount and other claims on the creek, and is expected to begin development work.

The Iowa-Lillooet Gold Mining Co'y Limited, commenced dredging on their lease on the Fraser on March 21st, 1904 and continued running until Dec. 21st with a force of 10 men. Soon after the dredge was put in operation, some of the parts continued breaking, resulting in great loss of time in procuring duplicate parts from the East. Not a month passed, without work being suspended for repairs, sometimes a couple of weeks being lost, waiting for renewal parts; so the output of gold, although considerable, was not so large as expected. The dredge, when working, paid very well; showing that the bed of the river holds sufficient gold to pay for dredging, and that it can be saved by the appliances used on this dredge. No doubt, with the experience gained, the wearing parts of the next dredge built here, will be made stronger.

Four creek leases for hydraulic mining were worked in partnership by Messrs. Babb, Walker, Ferguson and Swanson, on Alexander Creek. They diverted the creek, and laid 600 feet of flume, 2½ x 3 feet, and built about 1000 feet of ditch and flume to deliver water under a head of 50 feet. They reached bedrock at the end of the season, and intend putting in a sawmill, and expect to commence taking out gold when the season opens.

At Cayoosh Creek, a channel is being blasted through the falls, to lower the creek for the purpose of mining Mr. J. Jesperson's two leases to bedrock. A great deal of gold was taken out here, by Chinamen, from 1887 to 1901; but on account of water, they were unable to mine deeper than about 15 feet below the surface, which did not nearly reach bedrock. The gold of this creek is very coarse.

The old channel of the South Fork of Bridge River, which was struck in 1903, was worked again in 1904, and about $1500.00 obtained.

Last spring was not so profitable for Indians and Chinamen mining the bars of the Fraser, on account of the water rising early and covering the pay gravel; otherwise much gold would have been added to the output.

The ascertained value of gold produced in Lillooet Division for 1904 is $23,057, but undoubtedly the itinerant Chinese mining at the upper and lower boundaries of the Division, sell a good deal of their gold at Ashcroft or Lytton; which is not estimated in the above amount.

The revenue collected by Mr. Phair in 1904 was $6,483.94.

REBAGLIATI'S RIDE

The Vancouver World has half a column, on the wonders of the ride from Lytton, with a driver like George. A traveller who has staged in California, Colorado, Cariboo and the Yellowstone park, says the Lytton ride caps them all. The scenery is splendid; the trip only takes about 8 hours, which is divided square in the middle by a generous noon hour, so the trip is not tiresome. George has been doing the trip 4 years, without the slightest mishap. Quite a record.

DREDGE

The Pittsburg Dredge Co will operate at Lytton this fall. The Directors are Canadians. The startling statement is made that 100 dredges will one day exist between Lillooet and the C. P. R. Never! The leases will amalgamate, and the whole 50 miles be scooped by twenty machines.

The first attempt at dredging was made in 1891. It was simply a pump, and was too small.

Next, the dipper dredge, was all right in still water; but the Fraser would not keep still.

The Suction Dredge worked O. K. Sucked up all the gravel in fine style, and left all the gold.

Then appeared the Rattery outfit. The gold-savers were no good, and the Ubiquitous Chinaman made quintuple wages, by washing the tailings. (laundry ?)

Well, the Clam-shell machine was a Scheme— It handled those bothersome boulders, but they kept the jaws open enough to let the precious gravel out.

The New Zealand bucket rig beats them all, but must be varied to suit conditions, as is done at Lillooet by the Iowa folks.

The river is said to be leased a distance of 110 miles below here, but is open for location above, from the bridge up.

No bedrock has yet been reached in this river. Gold is found in alternate streaks. First one of pay, then a layer of chicken-feed, or decomposed rock, then sand &c until blue clay is struck at a depth of 35 or 40 feet, not reached, however, by the scoops, under ordinary conditions; but this year the water will be lower than in fifty years, and 15 feet through that clay may be worked, and bedrock tested.

There will be great doings all along the Fraser in August, and some old miners say, the output will rival 1858.

Experience would seem to indicate that leases are valuable in inverse proportion to the swiftness, and depth of the water.

The Old Bath Hotel.

For nearly 150 years the old Bath Hotel has been looked upon by generations of Londoners as one of the mysteries which only the aristocratic might penetrate. There is something forbidding in the words, painted on the Piccadilly side of the house. "Bath Hotel—for Families and Gentlemen," and millions of people must have looked upon the plain, dowdy old corner building, with its coat of dirty paint, and have fancied the interior to be, by contrast, a marvel of comfort.

But now, being doomed to destruction, the old place has been subjected daily to inspection by brokers, and the auctioneer has sold its contents. And the famous Bath Hotel stands revealed as a wretched jumble of passages and rooms, devoid of attraction, and fit only for the housebreaker. Its floors have reached the "switchback" stage. There are unsuspected little steps, some up and some down, into many of the rooms. The old portable baths—in a Piccadilly Hotel!—emphasize the change which has taken place between the era of the Bath and the era of Claridge's and the Carlton.

All over the West-end the "hotel de luxe" is springing up. In Sloane Street, the Cadogan, close by the Hans Crescent, in Mount Street, the Cobourg, in Kensington Gore, the De Vere and Royal Palace Hotels, all tell the same tale. And the middle-aged hotels in Albermarle Street and thereabout are blossoming into a new and more luxuriant existence. —London Mail.
