THE PROSPECTOR.

BY THE PROSPECTOR PUBLISHING COMPANY.

There is much that can rightly be urged against extremes, yet we may go to extremes even in condemning them. Those persons who, seeing the danger of all extremes, recomend a middle ground are seldom successful in their persuasions and not alwave quite right in their conclusions. Enthusiastic people must, to a certain extent be extremists. There are two sides to every question, but the human mind is not so constituted as to be deeply interested in both sides at once. Therefore as both sides need able presentation, it follows that we should heartily welcome the zealous adherent of each to present vividly that view which appeals strongly to his own sense of right or expediency. Could we succeed in dampening the enthusiasm of either, we should in all probability only lessen without improving his influence.

Instead of this, if we could only induce people to come under both these influences, to listen to opposite ideas, to weigh the arguments of adverse parties and to partake for a time in the feelings which each may inspire, they would probably be in a much better condirion to consider the problems thus put before them, and would doubtless often form sounder conclusions. And this result would come not so much through a process of paring down extremes as through a union with the truth and the good which reside in each. For in every subject upon which men honestly differ each side affords certain well grounded truths, or principles of equity, or sentiments of honor, upon which its adherents lay special emphasis and which its opponents ignore. Error, pure and simple and long exploded, finds no sane advocate; neither does vice nor crime as we understand them. If they did we should rightly refuse to waste our time upon the hallunciations of an unsound mind'

The subjects upon which men are divided, however, are fully entitled to a fair hearing on both sides, and every reasonable and attentive listener will discover some truths which he must accept, some thoughts which he is glad to share, some ideas from which he would not willingly part. It is only from the union of these various ideas that problems can be rigthly solved or estimates correctly made. He who refuses to listen or to weigh them must of necessity be too narrow and one-sided to form any judgment worthy of the name. It is as if a jury should render a verdict after having heard only one side of the evidence.

Yet how is it with most of us in this respect? When we view an audience listening to the arguments or appeals of an enthusiastic speaker we know beforehand that nine-tenths of them, at least, are pleasantly engaged in having their own notions fortified and their own desires justified. In another hall, perchance at the same time, antagonistic ideas are announced to another audience who sympathize equally with the speaker. Were the two assemblages exchanged who can doubt that the new standpoints and unfamiliar truths which they heard would stimulate their own thoughts to greater activity, and make them to some amall degree more competent and fair judges of the subject discussed?

In just the same way we find that men seek in their companions and in their reading chiefly those with whom they agree in the matters which interest them most. Republicans and Democrats, expansionists and anti expansion advocates, protectionists and free-traders, do not seek much for each other's thoughts on politics. The Catholic and the Protestant seldom discuss religious matters together, the allopathist and the homoeopathist seldom exchange their medical ideas, the radical and the conservative, the reformer and the anti-reformer, those who favor some new law or some new scheme and those who oppose it, are rarely found in close association.

Who can calculate the good that is thus missed in our lives, the truths which are forever hidden from our sight, the knowledge that is cast away, the opportunities that are wasted. It is not the enthsiasm of an extreme that we condemn. It is the narrowness which has only antagonism for the opposite extreme, which refuses to see anything good in the unfamiliar, which has no sympathy with other interests or other classes, and no toleration for ideas that differ from his own.

— CORRESPONDENCE —

"Rose Book"
Lillooet, B.C.
June 24·1901.

Editor, Prospector, Dear Sir: I have just read in your last issue Mr. Alex. Barclay's report on the proposed new Ashcroft-Lillooet wagon road, and I would like to give my personal experience of that trail.

Some few years ago I had occasion to go over to the vicinity of Ashcroft for some cattle. I went over by the proposed new route, thinking also to return that way with the cattle. When I left home, about the 5th. of November, we had nice balmy weather, but before we got across the divide between Fountain and Hat Creek, our horses were wading through 12 inches of snow. On the Hat-Creek side the grade is so steep an the side hill so heavily timbered that I decided the shortest way was by the old road.

As to the distance, I cannot dispute Mr. Barclay's figures, but it would be interesting to know whether he measured all these "windings" and "swingings" which he advises, or did he make a "bee" line. I say the grade would be a hard one. The climbing and the swinging referred to in Mr. Barclay's report proves it so. And Mr. Editor you know that when we encounter a foot of snow in the beginning of November, we are at a consiqerable altitude above either Lillooet or Ashcroft.

That talk of a wagon road built from Fountain up three miles is pure nonsense. The Indians themselves do not pretend to call it a wagon road. It is merely a track cut through the bush to slide down hay in the winter. A good part of it is through a swamp and can only be used when frozen hard.

The people of Lillooet should do all they can to discourage this scheme. We have a fairly good wagon rosd now through a country where the climate is moderate and equable and a vray small expenditure wou'd make it a first-class road for either summer or winter

I have only touched on a few of the main objections to this route. Much more might be said against it; but I will not further encroach on your space.

Yours truly,
Alex. Lochore.

BRIEF DESPATCHES.

The river is now open between Dawson and White Horse.

It is officially announced admitted that Germany desires to increase her claim of indemnity against China.

Wm. Waldorf Astor has contributed £5000 to the Victoria Jubilee purses.

Rear Admiral Lord Charles Beresford complains of the want of proper strength and efficiency in Great Britain's Mediterranean fleet.

It is reported that 6,000 Cape Colonists have already joined the Boers.

The Tower Lumber Co. at Dulnth has lost $150 000 by the burning of their sawmill.

Hong Kong, June 22.—A German missionary that a much greater Boxer rising in China is probable in the near future and that the present edicts in favor offoreigners are merely a blind.

The German official report denies this and says that the Chinese are helping to maintain order.

We notice in an exchange that the Steamship Hating which left Vancouver this week for northern ports had a large shipment of over 100 tons of hardware etc. from Mc. Lennan, Mc.Feely & Co.

A HOPEFUL CITIZEN.

The following composition on "Our Gold Mines" was written by a pupil of the Lillooet Public School during the recent examinations:—

We have some very good gold mines in British Columbia. In Lillooet district the best mines are the Bend'Or, the Lorne, Mc.Gillivary Creek and the Ample mines. Our mines are the best in the world. The nuggets I have seen have gold sticking all over and some of them are all gold. Last summer there were $ 98,000 taken out of the Lorne and double the amount is expected this summer. There is a dredger on the Fraser river, and it takes out nearly one thousand dollars every month.

There are nearly 4000 men employed at Bridge River and they come down to Lillooet every winter. The population of Lillooet is increasing every year and it is hoped that it soon will be as large as that of Vancouver.

The best of the season.

Here is a story of Carnegie told by himself: "One winter Mr. Carnegie and Mr. Schwab were spending a few days in Florida, ane as a lark went to a colored church. After the sermon the minister asked for a collection for whitewashing the church. When the basket was passed to Mr. Carnerie and Mr. Schwab they dropped in a couple of crisp bills of large denominations. When the basket was placed on the desk in front of the colored divine that gentleman put on his spectacles' and with astonishment written on his face, closely examined the bills, and then addressing the congregation, said: "De whitewashin' ob dis church will begin to-morrow, providnc dat dese here notes dat de gentlemen in de rear ob de chu'ch dropped in de basket am not counterfeits."

At the annual school meeting, held this morning, W. Miller was elected trustee to succeed Mr. E. S. Peters whose term of office has expired.

Note the advertisement, in this issue of Mr. John Wawn, who is setting up a shoemaker's and harness maker's shop.

NEWS OF THE MINES.

A scheme, which means much to Lillooet and will involve the spending of a very large sum of money in the town' is being advanced by Mr. J. Amess, manager of the present Dredger Co. A new company has been formed in Iowa which intends to make a great effort to raise a portion of the untold millions that lie at the bottom of the Fraser. Accordingly Mr. Amess has received instructions to build a large and thoroughly up-to-date dredge, its capacity to be 4000 cubic yards daily. The power will be electric, derived from Lake Creek.

A plant of 400 horse power will be eventually installed, which will be more than enough to supply the projected dredge and the one now in the Fraser, which will be changed to this side of the river, beneath the town, where the new dredge is to be built. The new dredge will be considerably larger than the one now at Lytton. Mr. Amess also contemplates pumping water, by means of his dynamo, from the Fraser, and working the banks on the other side of the river by hydralic power.

There is no doubt whatever, that these banks will pay well if water can be got to them. If sufficient inducements are offered a wire will be run into town, supplying light and heat.

The dredge will be commenced about the end of August and is to be finished at the end of march next Spring. Mr. Amess left last Wednesday morning for Kamloops to in- a dredge being built there on the Thompson, on the New Zealand plan. From Kamloops he will go to Vancouver to obtain estimatet for this plant.

Mr. H. S. Southard, Manager and owner of the placer mines at the Fountain, has purchased a second pipe which arrived in Lillooet this week. With this pipe and the one already on the ground, Mr. Southard will be able to make his mine pay better than ever.

The bond for the sale of the Ben d'Or mines lapses to-morrow, according to the first arrangement. It is, however, understood that the owners, have, by request agreed to a 30 days' extension for the purpose of giving the company more time. A death in the family of one principally interested in the bond has made a change in the arrangements and delayed negotiations. Province.

A WARM WELCOME

Skagway heralded the arrival of the Canadian Pacific Navigation Company's steamship Islander in its port on her first trip by the following glowing report, which appeared on the front page of the "Daily Alaskan:"

"Sunday afternoon half of the population of Skagway accepted the cordial invitation of Captain Foot to inspect the steamship Islande

Captain Foot was personally in charge and he was very solicitous to see that everybody had a chance to see the fine ship and partake of the good things. He was most ably assisted by Agent Dunn, Mr. Pumphrey and every member of the crew. They were all just as polite and attentive as though those aboard had paid their hard cash to be taken care of.

It would be difficult to give an accurate description of the vessel and her appoinments without going into the minutest details. The ship's exterior is well remembered by many Skagwayans, but the interior has been so completely changed that it was absolutely unrecognizable yesterday. The fittings are most elaborate and the decorations are all of artistic merit and present a harmony of view which is indescribably grand.

The dining saloon is exceptionally large for a ship of the proportions of the Islander. Its finish could scarcely be finer, it would seem. The furnishings of the ladies' cabin, the lounging room and other parts are ot the finest. One of the attractions which is always looked for by the sea traveller is a chance to promenade. The Islander's cabin is so located that a splendid walk can be had aronnd it.

But it is in the state rooms where the well being of the pasaenger has been zealously guarded. Every arrangement and detail which could possibly contribute to the comfort has been provided. From main truck to kielson, from stem to stern, the ship is kept scrupuously clean. As many wended their way up town after viewing the vessel and enjoying the hospitality of Captain Foot they were constrained to say she was the finest vessel with the most popular skipper on the run.

On the way up there were many musicians on board and the last night out a concert was given, at which T. R. Pumphrey presided.
