Conservative Convention.

On the 22nd of this month a Conservative Convention will be held in Vancouver. The object is to form, or rather re-establish a Provincial Conservative Association. Nominally the one over whose destinies Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper is supposed to preside has subsided into quietude, and now that its President has transformed his political interest to a constituency four thousand miles away, he can hardly be expected to take a very active interest in B. C. affairs. A Provincial Association is a necessity although its activity may be recurrent and not continuous. In a Province so sparsely populated and with the centre of population far removed it would not be reasonable to expect the members of an organization who gather over an area of two hundred and fifty thousand square miles to meet often. Their interest is chiefly absorbed in local matters, but when the time for a federal election draws near, there is every reason why they should get together, and voice their requirements and agree upon matters of importance which affect wider issues than those which are chiefly local. There are special reasons why at the next federal elections British Columbians should present a united front. There are some things which they want and want badly. The present representation has either failed to gauge public opinion or has been unwilling to hoist it. Of the seven members, only one, Mr. Kennedy of New Westminster, voted against the disallowance of the Natal Act; the others did not even raise a protest. The Liberal party is trying to cover its tracks in this matter by consorting with the Socialists in the formation of Asiatic Exclusion Leagues. The Conservatives adhere to the constitutional methods, and will undoubtedly reiterate it in the form of a resolution at their convention. Then, unless The Week is greatly mistaken, and unless the result of the Provincial election in February last was entirely without significance, the Province is almost a unit in its support of Premier McBride and his 'Better Terms" campaign. The Liberal leaders have done their best to side-track this, but as far as the Conservatives are concerned it will remain a live issue until it is satisfactorily settled. The Convention will endorse this as the foremost plank in the party platform. There is a third matter of hardly less importance with which the prosperity of the Province is bound up—the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. The Honourable William Templeman will not be able to rush the Province a second time with specious promises of early construction, nor if the Conservatives can have their way, will Sir Wilfrid Laurier be permitted to grant an extension of time which should indefinitely postpone construction. The Convention should pass a strong resolution insisting a compliance with the terms of the original contract. There may be other matters and questions of domestic economy to discuss, but these are the important issues which demand a serious attention of the Convention, and upon which it should speak with no uncertain tongue.

The Stormy Petrel.

Mr. Joseph Martin is no believer in pacific methods. Serenity has no charms for his rugged nature. In the piping times of peace he yearns for the sound of the toscin, and it is only when he hears the rattle of the war drum that contentment begins to reign in his breast. Things have been rather monotonous of late with this stormy petrel of Canadian politics. During the last Provincial election he did not once stand in the limelight. At the Bowser bye election he twittered very feebly and was snowed under. More recently he has cultivated the congenial society of the gentlemen who are expending their superfluous energy on the platform of the Asiatic Exclusion League. The uncertainty of Mr. Martin has always been his greatest charm. When his manner has been the most seductive, he has been inwardly seething with the most revolutionary ideas, and according to the Liberal papers, which in this matter may not unreasonably be expected to have a tender spot for their erstwhile apostle, he has literally thrown a bomb into the camp of the Asiatic Leaguers by emulating the example of Balaam of sacred memory, and prophesying in opposition to the wishes of those who had engaged him as star actor. At the meeting of the League held in Vancouver on Tuesday last he turned on his fellow leaguers and literally rended them. He told them that their action was farcical, that all their methods for excluding Orientals were wrong, that Sir Wilfred Laurier was justified in his course on this question, that he has been guided by the representatives of British Columbia of whom six out of seven had raised no objection to his policy. He scored Mr. McPherson for saying one thing in Vancouver and another in Ottawa. He declared that the Trades and Labour Council, whose members largely made up the League, were wrong in opposing the immigration of white labour in an effort to keep up the excessive price of labour in British Columbia, and he finally declared that the blame lies with the electors and that the elections show that they are not in earnest in this demand for exclusion. Nearly everything that Mr. Martin said is true, but unfortunately it will carry little weight coming from him. His public record has been so marred by eccentricity that people have long ceased to take him seriously. As a star actor he will always be a draw because he can be counted on to be entertaining, but as a serious leader he has become a negligible quantity because you can never be sure that he means what he says, or whether he is simply fooling to the top of his bent. It is possible that after his latest performance his engagement at the Victoria Theatre will be cancelled by the local branch of the League, but the members can cheer up; they still have W. W. B. McInnis who will be able to dance the exclusion jig to the popular tune of "Waltz me around again, Willie." And this is the style in which an organization which wishes to be taken seriously deals with a great national and Imperial question!

Comstock To The Rescue.

Some months ago The Week directed attention to the character of an American publication bearing the harmless title of 'Physical Culture." This precious pamphlet was then circulating in Canada to the extent of many thousands per issue. The attention of the Postmaster General had previously been called to the matter, and he had forbidden the use of the mails unless a certain class of objectionable photographs of the nude were discontinued. There was a colourable compliance with this order, but the photos were produced with a very faint impression stamped upon the reading matter. The pretext of the publisher and editor, one Bernard McFadden, was that the pamphlet was published exclusively in the interests of physical training and health culture; and the word "purity" was conspicuous on nearly every page. The whole thing was a palpable bluff, the real object being to sell the magazine, and to advertise it by means of illustrations decidedly risque, and descriptions of a salacious character. The pamphlet still circulates, unfortunately, although its wings have been clipped, and the Canadian edition is far less objectionable than the American. But all things come to an end and McFadden's insidious productions enjoy no exemption from this natural law. The redoubtable Antony Comstock of New York has laid him by the heels, and it is to be hoped that the precious scoundrel will receive his deserts. Comstock achieved his greatest notoriety more than ten years ago by suppressing D'Annunzio's masterpiece, "Il Triompho del Morte." Where one copy of this Italian exotic was sold probably a million copies of Physical Culture have been distributed, and the latter is infinitely more baneful since it appeals to the eye. The most remarkable feature of the case is that McFadden is defended by the Free Speech League as the advocate of "purity." They contended that the cause of real purity demanded plain speaking, and they sought to establish this right in the Courts. They failed, and McFadden has been fined; he should have been imprisoned. His offence was very similar to that of Mr. Bradlaugh and Mrs. Besant, who were convicted and sentenced nearly thirty years ago by Chief Justice Cockburn for publishing "The Fruits of Philosophy." The plea for the defence was precisely the same, but the Chief Justice in one of the most scathing arraignments ever heard from the Bench declared that he could not believe in the bona fides of the transaction, and characterized the publication as "indecent and immoral." The anxiety on the part of certain people to obtrude the discussion of so-called purity on the public platform and in our schools, is one of the most degenerate signs of the times. Such people would strongly resent being classed with Bernard McFadden, but they assuredly fail to realize that if they could have their way, they would be contributing to the same result, the demoralization of youth.

A New President.

G. G. S. Lindsay, K.C., who has been general manager of the Crow's Nest Coal Company for six years, has been appointed President in place of Senator Cox, who has held that position ever since the formation of the company. Mr. Lindsay's regime has not been a successful one from the public standpoint, whatever it may have been from the Company's. There has been a strike almost every year. The relations between the Company and its workmen have always been strained, and unless all the Boards of Trade in Kootenay and all the newspapers juggle with the truth the supply of fuel, especially for smelting purposes, has been erratic, so much so that a long-suffering public finally drove the Government to take action under the provisions of the Company's charter. Much of this, and especially the trouble with the workmen, has been laid at the door of Mr. Lindsay. Those who reside in the Kootenay and who have the best opportunities of judging have arrived at this conclusion and have publicly said so. To criticize the chief executive officer of a great corporation, especially on matters which affect the public interest is the undoubted privilege of the press. No one has said one word against Mr. Lindsay's personal character or private conduct. His acts as General Manager of the C. N. P. Co. are public property, and to criticize them is not, as one ignorant editor declares, to traduce him. According to Chambers, who is a great authority, traduce means "to calumniate, to defame." Under this category might be classed the conduct of a creature who, lacking the courage to criticize a man before his face, goes behind his back to "calumniate and defame," and in the privacy of the editorial sanctum, with closed doors and drawn blinds, retails scandal. Of course, this is only a suppositious case. Meanwhile the important matter for the Kootenays is that a man who by temperament and training is unfitted to deal with workmen, has been superseded by a practical Mining Engineer, and Mr. Lindsay will occupy a position which may be more ornamental and officially more important, but one in which he will not be able to reproduce the mischief which has kept Fernie in hot water for six years.

Cherchez La Femme.

The word has gone forth that August Heinze, the financial Napoleon of the West, has come a cropper on Wall Street and now only has a beggarly two million dollars left of the twenty-five million dollars which he cleaned up out of United Copper. Nothing is more interesting and startling than the rise and fall of American millionaires. Heinze is still under forty; it is little more than ten years since he came to Rossland "dead broke," and built the Red Mountain Railway, and the Trail smelter "on a shoe-string." Six years ago he sold his interest to the C.P.R. for about one million dollars, and got the best of them in the deal. Then he increased his holdings in Butte Copper Mines, and thrived on litigation which he almost always managed to win. Of his methods little need be said because, unless report sadly belies him, his cases were won before he went into Court. His great victory was said to have been achieved with the assistance of a beautiful woman who hypnotized the Judge, and now the Wall Street disaster which has overtaken him is reported to be due to another woman in whom he placed too much confidence and who could not resist the temptation to babble. This is probably true. Heinze is a man whose career was bound to be smashed by a woman. He will recover; he can do more with two millions than most men, if not than any man, and he is still young enough to make his mark even among the giants of Wall Street. But for his susceptibility he might have won this time, and success would have meant at least doubling, if not quadrupling his capital. There is something splendid in the conscious power of man who can make and lose, and again make millions by the sheer force of his own ability and skill. The sad feature of the case is that Heinze and men of his type are absolutely unscrupulous, and thrive by a practical exemplification of the proverb, "The end justifies the means."

Now that the rainy season makes us extra wet, we would call your attention to the excellent seasonableness of G. H. Mumm & Co.'s "Extra Dry"—the Champagne that kings demand and Connoisseurs call for, because it is the choicest product of the age. As many are suffering from illness caused by the dampness, we would also bring to your mind the fact that Mumm's Extra Dry (universally recommended by leading physicians), can be procured from your Dealer in splits or half-pints, a size extremely convenient for home or hospital use.

G. D. Preller & Co.'s matchless Claret and Sauterne may also be had in splits. These famous brands are on the wine-lists of all first-class hotels, clubs, cafes and bars.

Music and The Drama.

The Week is advised that Prof. F. H. Torrington, musical director of the Toronto College of Music, will shortly visit the Coast, bringing with him Miss Alma Clarke, formerly of this city, who has made a wonderful success of her musical studies at the college. Recently Miss Clarke won the Mason & Risch and the Heintzman's scholarships, and the Toronto press gave her great words of praise on her performance at the annual concert at Massey Hall on the 24th ult. of the Toronto College of Music. Miss Clarke was down on the programme for Chopin's "Allegro molto," "Meno mosso" (Polonaise in E. flat), which she rendered most acceptably and received a hearty encore. It is the intention of Dr. Torrington to give a concert on the coast in which Victorian's young musician will be one of the stars.

"The Sunny Side of Broadway."

As the title of the attraction suggests, "The Sunny Side of Broadway," in which those famous originals, Murray and Mack, are starring this year, the stage settings are of Metropolitan scenery and said to be most elaborate. The first act shows the Battery, in lower New York, the boats moving to and fro on the East River and the second act is at the Circle at 59th Street with beautiful Central Park in the background. The scenic effects will prove very elaborate to local theatregoers who have never visited the Metropolis and very realistic to ones that have.

The scenic equipment of "The Sunny Side of Broadway" comes from the largest studio in New York city and while scenery of many spots of the "big town" have been used season after season, it is the first time that the above places have been used for stage settings.

In addition to the beautiful stage pictures, new electrical effects will be used for the first time and during the twenty-two musical numbers in which the famous beauty chorus are seen, the radiant ray of every color are used with success.

Murray and Mack and their singing and dancing contingent in the season's sensational musical production, "The Sunny Side of Broadway" will be the attraction at the Victoria Theatre next Thursday, Nov. 14th.

The Alaskan.

Young Mr. Blethen, who wrote the book and lyrics of the opera, comes to his graces naturally. The son of a Western editor of note, he is himself a writer with an international reputation as a magazine contributor. He long ago cut his name in the records of stage achievement with "The Chinook," a play of Western life that is still regaling audiences west of the Mississippi with its charm of drama and poetry. His hundred or so published magazine stories all manifest a mind not given to tolerating the commonplace. Mr. Girard, equally young and equally happy in an early place in life pregnant with possibilities for development creativeness, brought to his musical work in the score of "The Alaskan" an experience of about eight years before the footlights as a comic opera leading baritone. He will be recalled as the principal singer of the engagement of "San Toy" at Daly's, and later as the leading singer of Lulu Glaser's "Dolly Varden" company, from which he retired to devote himself to composition. Combined with his native gift and his practical stage training, he brought to his work in "The Alaskan" score also nine years' study under Horatio Parker, the distinguished incumbent of the music chair at Yale. For years, under the name of Victor Kemp, young Mr. Girard revealed a comprehensive knowledge of music and musicians in articles printed in the leading musical periodicals of the country. Max Figman, who collaborated with Messrs. Blethen and Girard in the final editions of their libretto and score and also staged the opera made assurance of their radicalism triply sure, for, young as he is, Mr. Gigman has left in all his work for the stage the imprint of a mind conduced that as the world moves the stage that would reflect it must move with it.—Morning Telegraph.

Agnes Brown, Prima Donna, in "A laskan."

This has been a full week at the Victoria Theatre and on the whole the offerings have been a success. The best show was undoubtedly "The Girl Who Had Everything," in which Miss Isabel Irving's dainty work was thoroughly enjoyable. She excels in pure comedy, has a light touch, a pleasing manner, and a good stage presence. I believe she can play a higher type of roles than any in which she has yet been seen. If I were a manager I should not be afraid to try her in "Beatrice" in "Much Ado About Nothing." I have always considered this Miss Ellen Terry's best part, and was reminded of her very much by Miss Irving. The supporting company in "The Girl Who Had Everything" was indifferent, and it is hard to overlook the incongruity of a leading man who is obviously not a gentleman playing up to the leading woman who obviously is a lady.

Louis James essayed "The Comedy of Errors" on Thursday night, and succeeded in amusing a large house. Physically he is ill adapted for such roles and is undoubtedly better suited in heroic characters such as Virginius or Coriolanus, still the performance was enjoyable to those who have never seen the two Dromios played by the brothers Webb of hallowed memory. Apart from Mr. James, none of the Company seemed to have read Shakespeare's advice to the players, and they furnished another illustration of the unacquaintance of modern companies with the traditions of Shakespearean acting.

It is astonishing how well Manager Jamieson succeeds in maintaining the standard of excellence which he has set the New Grand. Company succeeds Company, but with rare exceptions there is no falling off in the quality of the entertainment. Excellent turns this week have been given by Wilbur Amos, one of the most dexterous of manipulators, and the American Trio in "The Bell Boy."

Those who thought there was not room in Victoria for a second vaudeville house made a great mistake. Pantage's Theatre is packed at every performance, and the quality of the show justifies its popularity. I have never seen a better slack rope performance. Kelter's work is skilful and finished; his final backwards somersault on the wire with the balancing pole in his hands is thrilling. Al Watson & Co. are extremely amusing in "The Dog Catcher." Miss Hardie Langden looks and sings well, much above the average vaudeville performer. The final act by Her Jansen, the magical marvel, is extremely; his manipulations are perfect and his vanishing trick has never been better performed.

Next week's bill reaches the top notch in point of expense, since the New Grand was opened and if the quality of the show is to be judged by its cost it should prove one of the special treats of the season so far. The Nelson-Farnum Troupe of comedy acrobats head the bill, which also includes Herbert Brennan and Helen Downing in a comedy sketch entitled "One Christmas Eve," Felix Adler, dialect singing comedian, Howard & DeLeon, novelty equilibrists, Gloria Dare, singing comedienne; Thomas J. Price, in a new illustrated ballad, and New Moving Pictures.

Catholic Priest Advises Girls to See "The Christian Pilgrim."

At a meeting of the young ladies' sodality at St. Elizabeth's Roman Catholic Church, in Baltimore last week, the pastor, Reverend John J. Murray, gave a discourse on Henrietta Crosman's play, "The Christian Pilgrim," which was being presented at Ford's Opera House, and which is the dramatization of Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress." Father Murray advised the girls to witness a performance of "The Christian Pilgrim," assuring them of the good influence it would exert. That a Catholic Priest should advise the young ladies of his parish to attend a theatrical performance is somewhat unusual, and speaks volumes for James Macarthur's dramatization of John Bunyan's immortal book.

[This is inserted for the benefit of Mr. Hunter, of Crossley and Hunter, who on Sunday night last told his audience in the Metropolitan Methodist Church, Victoria, that one of the marks of a "bad" man is that he goes to the theatre.—Ed. Week.]

At The Street Corner

By THE LOUNGER

It has been my good fortune to haunt the purlieus of Johnson street at all hours, seasonable and unseasonable, for the last two years. I might have chosen my habitation on Nob Hill but for the fact that I am an ardent student of human nature, and there is much more to be learnt on Johnson street than on Rockland Avenue. My neighbours do not so carefully immure themselves within the four walls of their houses; they do not confine their sociable moments to the fixed hours when my lady entertains at afternoon teas or bridge, and her lord and master at poker and billiards. Down Johnson street we are merry folk, taking life as it comes, and leading a careless, haphazard existence.

We do not always dress for dinner; the reason is obvious, indeed at times a little too obvious; it may depend upon the dinner, too often conspicuous by its absence. I know it does sometimes depend upon the temporary absence of the glad-rags. On such occasions our dinner is both small and early, yet it suffices, thanks largely to the fact that what the cuisine lacks in delectable solids, it generally makes up in delicious fluids.

Many of our dinners remind me of the surprise parties of which I read, but about which I always think there is an element of uncertainty. When our cupboard is bare, the casual looker-on might observe several of us stealing in from different quarters with small paper bags or mysterious parcels. There is a common rallying ground where the treasures are unearthed, with a general invitation to all and sundry on our corridor to partake. When funds fall below the modest requirements of an "al fresco" paper-bag dinner, we saunter out. There are sometimes African heroes, at other times crushed tragedians, and almost always a tenderfoot from the Old Country, still bubbling over with the enthusiasm and the prejudices which he acquired there. Anyhow that kind Providence which undoubtedly presides over the destiny of children, and—others, usually sends relief in one form or another, and so on the whole we make a decent, if rather Bohemian showing.

The only time when it really goes badly with us is on Fast Days and a few such we are obliged to observe, not, I beg to assure you, on the usual grounds which are taken to justify temporary lunacy, but because we are driven willy nilly to "assume a virtue though we have it not." Then we fal back on our classical reminiscences among which Lethe occupies a conspicuous and oft recurring place and by the aid of artificial means, well known among the comrades but not to be told in Gath or published in the streets of Askelon, we sink into the arms of Morpheus through the waters of forgetfulness.

Some people have said that our district would be properly designated as "the under-world"; I beg to differ. It may be that the hygienic conditions are not ideal, impecunious landlords may have loaded up their premises with "monkeys," negligent sanitary inspectors may have allowed the garbage of the fifties and sixties to accumulate and the rodent to burrow amid unsavoury rubbish heaps. The air may not be of the purest, but what it lacks in oxygen it more than makes up in ammonia, which is far more stimulating. Then it must not be forgotten that the aforesaid "monkeys" belong to wealthy and reputable citizens, some of whom do live on Nob Hill and not to any mere plebeian of the common herd.

In spite of this attractive environment I believe I have retained my natural modesty; at any rate I have not degenerated into blatant egotism, otherwise I might be tempted to emulate the example of the editor of a great family journal who attributes the unearthing of all evils and the remedying of all abuses to his benign initiative. I do not remember, however, that the daily press has had anything to say about the unsanitary conditions of Johnson, Douglas and Cormorant streets and their purlieus. All I know is that I have time and again dipped my artist's brush in Titian colours to depict its true features. Sapient officials when reading my paragraphs have said "Rats, Rats," and now it is a case of "rats" indeed, for what the feeble Lounger could not effect, the rodents have done, and fear of the Bubonic plague has not only set the sanitary inspectors to work overtime, but has disturbed the judicial serenity of Paulus Aemilius Irving, one of His Majesty's Judges of the Supreme Court, who takes up half a page in each of the daily papers to notify the public of the intention of the Court to order the destruction, burning and removal of sundry rotten, pestilent and unsanitary buildings, unless the impecunious owners or their patrician mortgagors can show good and sufficient reason why the long-suffering residents of the condemned area should not continue to live and move and have their being in the midst of the same salubrious conditions which have prevailed for half a century.

More power to the arm of Paulus Aemilius Irving; I must confess that greatly as I shall miss the familiar garbage heap over which I have stumbled time and again in the small hours, and the friendly patter of thousands of little feet scurrying round the corridors and between the partitions, I could even reconcile myself to the change if it were only within the power of the Court to make an order that instead of removing and suppressing the conditions complained of, the patrician owners and mortgagors should be compelled to change places with the "Loungers" and "Bohemians" whose impecuniosity has determined their environment for so long.

In the name of the Bubonic plague, rats!

Lounger.

The musician was visibly annoyed.

"But hang it all," he said, "I told your reporter three or four times over that the violin I used was a genuine Stradivarius, and here in his report this morning there's not a word, not a word!"

With a scornful laugh the editor replied:

"That is as it should be, sir. When Mr. Stradivarius gets his fiddles advertised in this paper under two dollars a line, you come around and let me know.

To Satisfy a Grudge.

Sir Thomas Lipton, apropos of bachelorhood and farriage, said in an after-dinner speech in Chicago:

"Bachelors, I admit, are villains; but it is a shame to play such tricks on them as it is customary everywhere to do. A nasty trick was played on a bachelor friend of mine at a dance. A woman was reproaching him for never having married, when her husband, a little bored, perhaps, said gruffly:

"'He says he could have cut me out and married you if he had wanted to.'

"The woman started.

"'Indeed!' she cried. 'Why didn't he do it, then?'

"'He says he owed me a grudge,' the husband explained, with a chuckle."

A Bit of England on The Pacific.

The heading of this article was coined by the late secretary of the Victoria Tourist Association to describe the beautiful city which he has done so much to popularize. I have nothing to say about its natural beauty, its scenic attraction or its climate; they are all superlatively good, and the fame of the city as a tourist resort and as a residential Mecca is widely established. I do, however, want to say something about other English features of Victoria which are hardly less in evidence, but which there is some reason to fear are less obvious to Victorians themselves than to visitors and new settlers.

As an Englishman who retains most of the prejudices and who has sloughed few of the peculiarities of his countrymen, I should be the last to regret that Victoria is in many respects the most English city in Canada. I am, however, prepared to admit that it is possible to be too English in a new country, and there are several respects in which the people of weight and influence in Victoria are too English.

Let me illustrate: A family consisting of father, mother, and several grown-up daughters came here a year ago. They are, what for lack of a better word, must be called, respectable. They have plenty of money; they moved in the best social circles in a British city of half a million inhabitants before moving to the Pacific Coast; they bought a fine home and settled down with the expectation of remaining in Victoria permanently. The man acquired extensive interests in business propositions in the Province, and was prepared to fall into his proper place as a capable and useful citizen. Today the family is so discouraged that they are contemplating an early move, and all because after a year's residence they have practically no friends in the city, and people of their own class have not called upon them.

Mrs. Grundy has not even a fashionable excuse for her neglect; it has usually been considered that money was the "open sesame" to society; this case proves that there are exceptions, and conspicuous ones.

I have known other people with a small endowment of this world's goods, but with splendid personal and social attainments who have experienced the same difficulty. I have no doubt that all these people might have been in society if they had pushed themselves, but everyone has not the self-assurance of the parvenu, and it is carrying English exclusiveness a little too far to practise methods in Victoria which would be more suited to Belgravia.

I quite recognize the necessity for social sets; it is only natural that people with kindred interests and kindred inclinations should drift into the same circles, but if Victoria is to grow, and not to remain in the rut in which it has been for many years, there will have to be a little more of the breadth which should characterize a new country.

Indifference to newcomers is not confined to social circles; it applies with scarcely less force to public life. It is quite right that there should be a reasonable amount of conservatism in dealing with public affairs, and in selecting men for public positions, but Victoria has been very slow to recognize that the newcomers who have invested their money and established their homes here are entitled to recognition. One never hears a newcomer suggested for a public position but the suggestion meets with general disfavour and is invariably snowed under. I know of three instances this year where men who have rendered conspicuous service in other cities were nominated on committees where they would have been extremely useful, but in each case they received an insignificant vote. Just how valuable the services of a newcomer may be is well illustrated in the splendid success which has been achieved by the President of the Canadian Club. The fact that he was almost a stranger to the city has not handicapped him in the slightest degree, and the position of the Club today is an eloquent testimony, not only to patriotic sentiment, but to the skill and energy of the president. Victoria is like every other city in one respect; it needs an occasional infusion of new blood, and the fossilized attitude of resistance to new methods which characterizes many of those who have hitherto controlled its affairs has been one of the greatest hindrances to its development.

There is another condition prevailing here which I fear may also be traced to English influence, at any rate I am sure it is largely due to false ideas. A reference to the vital statistics comprising births, deaths and marriages will show that the percentage of marriages in Victoria is abnormally low. This is not because there is any lack of attractive young ladies; from observation in every part of Canada I am prepared to declare that no city has a larger proportion of good looking, attractive girls, but the trouble is that through bad training a majority of them seem more anxious to marry well connected Englishmen than hard working Canadians. Now the type of Englishman who spends most of his time at "Pink Teas," golf links and dances, all of which are admirable in their way, is not the best type, at any rate in a pioneer country; least of all when he tries to play the part of a gentleman of leisure on an income barely sufficient to pay his tailor's bills. Yet no sooner does a young fellow of this type strike Victoria than he becomes the "darling of society" and is escorted hither and thither by girls who are wasting their time on him and who might with advantage to themselves spare a little for fellows who really mean business. Any man of experience knows whither this leads; it explains the rows of wall-flowers which decorate the ballroom, and also explains why newcomers are beginning to tire of Victoria in spite of its glorious climate and natural attractions.

This "bit of England upon the Pacific" can stand all the true English sentiment that common sense, correct training and fine tradition can contribute to its social life, but exclusiveness, ultra-conservatism and prostration at the shrine of the "Jeuness Doree" are not only sadly out of place, but an anachornism in a new country in the year of grace, 1907. At least that is the opinion of Bohemian.

Correspondence.

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 4, 1907.

Dear Mr. Editor:

I am very glad to be in a position to enlighten you as to the gentleman with the spyglass in the Times Cartoon. You might forward me the Two Bits by the next canal boat crossing Government Street, as I do not expect to be able to cross again this winter.

You possibly thought you had fathomed the depths of the winds (vast as space) of our worthy Mayor and his board of helpers, in regard to the question of providing sufficient water with which the sterner section of this charming city may dilute their Scotch. I may be mistaken, but I understand that is what water is wanted for.

You have talked some, if my memory does not deceive me, of water, so I presume you also need water. Why do you not try soda? Oh! well, every man to his taste.

I have heard of Elk Lake, where special trains are run to, Highlands, Sooke Lake, Shawnigan Lake, Cowichan Lake, Great Central Lake, Headwaters of the Yukon River with the St. Lawrence as a last resort, but I have not heard mention of His Worship's real destination, or starting point, whichever you wish, for his pipe line.

You probably know that on the planet Mars there is a first class up-to-date system of canals. Now canal spells water. Oh! You grasp the point. Nothing so simple; you run a pipe line and the water runs down by gravitation during the night time. I do not know how he will do during the daytime. Perhaps he will be able to hold Mars overhead day and night.

The gentleman with the peep-glass is looking into the matter with the idea of acquiring the exclusive franchise first and getting in on the ground floor.

Yours truly,

W. C.

A Childish Definition.

Boy and Baby are two small tots living on Dallas Road. Boy is of an inquiring disposition and Baby generally manages to impart the information required. The other day Daddy was reading of a comet which would approach to within a paltry 35,000,000 miles of the earth.

"What's a comet daddy?" inquired Boy.

"Huh! I know," spoke up Baby, "It's one of those things you have to get up at three o'clock in the morning to see."

Took Him Literally.

"I can't keep the visitors from coming up," said the office boy, dejectedly. "When I say you're out they don't believe me. They say they must see you."

"Well," said the editor, "just tell them that's what they all say. I don't care if you cheek them, but I must have quietness."

That afternoon there called at the office a lady with hard features and an acid expression. She wanted to see the editor, and the boy assured her that it was impossible.

"But I must see him!' she protested. "I'm his wife!"

"That's what they all say," replied the boy.

That is why he found himself on the floor, with the lady sitting on his neck and smacking his head with a ruler, and that is why there is a new boy wanted there.

"She slowly raised her arm, that white as snow, Gleamed like a rising meteor through the air."

Bracelets

Beautiful arms nowadays are a powerful weapon in the armory of beauty but most women recognize the necessity of beautiful Bracelets to show off their round, dimpled symmetry. We are well supplied for Dame Fashion's decree of a Bracelet Season, and would especially emphasize our extremely charming line of gold Bracelets in the new platinum setting with Diamonds and Pearls, Diamonds and Rubies, etc. Many of these designs are exquisitely lovely. Almost every conceivable idea in Bracelets from the most expensive kind down to those of very modest figure. Amongst the latter we have Extension Bracelets, Snake Bracelets, Garnet Bracelets, Pearl Set Gold Bracelets, the "Olga Nethersole" Bangle, etc. An immense variety, indeed. Bracelets to suit all pocketbooks.

Time now to consider the question of Xmas Gifts.

Could anything be better than a beautiful Bracelet?

"Two men met in front of the Blank Hotel the other day and fell into a political argument. They were ordinary, every-day sort of men, but one of them had an extraordinary flow of polysyllabic language. He talked half an hour, and his companion listened in a daze.

"'And now,' the speaker pompously concluded, 'perhaps you will coincide with me?"

"The other's face brightened up.

"'Why, yes; thanks, old man,' he answered heartily, moving toward the barroom door, 'I don't care if I do."

"Oh George! now that we are married there is only one thing I regret, and that is that I have to give up my fine position.

The fond young husband stroked the silken tresses of the young wifey's hair and soothingly replied:

"Now, darling, don't worry. You needn't give up your position. I'll give up mine."

Sporting Comment

The best soccer match that has been seen this season was witnessed at Oak Bay on Saturday last when the Shearwater team met defeat at the hands of the players from across the Bay, but at the same time gave the leaders in the race for the championship the hardest game they have had this season. It was a first class exhibition of the grand old game and those who are prone to criticize the style of the players in this league have no objection to make regarding this match. The sailor lads who make up the Shearwater team are a credit to the Navy. The team is the fastest navy team that has been seen here for some years and once they get going there will be many hard games and it is safe to predict that at the end of the season the Shearwater team will finish very close to the top. The showing they made on Saturday was in keeping with the reputation that preceded them and they will certainly make any team in the league sit up and take notice. Their style of play is very effective and they had by far the best of the game but were unable to finish, when it came to close quarters, and missed several chances that looked like goals. Every man is on the move all the time and follow the ball closely. There is not a weak spot in the make-up of the team and in addition to this there are one or two players who are head and shoulders above many local exponents. We are pleased to see a Navy team in the league that is capable of making the local players hustle and it is expected that many more games will be seen in which the Shearwater team is participating and it is a certainty that many of them will fall victories to their playing. The Bays played a very steady game and early in the match they realized that they had to exert all their effectiveness if they expected to win and every man played as if his life depended on the result. The changes in their line-up from the previous Saturday did not, however, tend to improve their play, especially in the forward line. This department was much weaker than on previous occasions and can be strengthened. Although there was a change in goal, it did not weaken their defence as several hard shots which were dead on the goal were handled nicely. The Bays possess the makings of the best forward line in the league, (if the players would only play all the time), but some are inclined to be lazy which seriously affects the play of their partners. In this department especially the players should have it impressed on their minds that they must score to win and this cannot be done by loafing. Although the game finished without any serious mix-up, there was a time that for a few moments it appeared as if the game would be given to the Shearwater team. The trouble arose over a decision of the referee in awarding a goal to the Shearwater team, which the Bays claimed did not go through the goal. The writer was not in a position to see whether or not the ball did go through the goal, but from supporters of both teams who were standing immediately behind the goal as well as from some not interested in either it is ascertained that the ball did not go through the goal, but went behind. This decision riled the Bays and for a few moments it appeared as if they would refuse to continue the game, but their better sense controlled and they were successful in winning out. The first goal secured by the Bays was made off one of the Navy backs who inadvertently headed the ball through his own goal. The first goal for the Navy was the one complained of by the Bays. The second for the winners was from a free kick, while the third was from a dribble which came very near being offside. The result of the game was 3—1 in favor of the Bays. While the Bays and Shearwater were contesting for supremacy on the lower grounds, the Y.M.C.A. and Esquimalt were busily engaged on the upper grounds and the game resulted in a win for the players from the Navy villiage. The Esquimalt players had the best of the game at all stages and after securing their first goal were never in trouble. The Y.M.C.A. players have suffered a serious set-back and are not improving in their play, and unless they take a brace they will find themselves hopelessly in the rear. The Garrison is coming along nicely and gave the Esquimalt players a big surprise on Thanksgiving Day by winning by 3 to 1. Like the regulars of the Fifth Regiment also had something to be thankful for, by playing a draw against the Y.M.C.A. Both these results were entirely unlooked for and from the several reversals that have taken place lately more surprises are expected before the close of the season.

The official referees appointed by the League again failed to appear at the appointed time and others had to be substituted. This is getting to be a very serious question and one that should be dealt with by the League in a very severe manner. There is absolutely no reason whatever, why the referees should not be on hand. If they are unable to be on the grounds at the time advertised, the officers of the League should be notified in sufficient time so that a substitute can be secured. The referees for last Saturday put the blame on the street car, but that is no excuse whatever. They should give themselves sufficient time to get to the grounds and have a little time to spare. If this had been done on Saturday there would be no reason to blame the cars. The referee is the person who is supposed to set a precedent and if they fail to do so, it is hardly possible to expect the players to be on time. If the game is to be made popular, the League officials must see that every game is started at the advertised time. There is nothing so disheartening as waiting around waiting for the game to start, and every effort should be taken to try and avert this drawback. The appointment of the referees this season does not appear to be working as well as last and should be rectified. The League should have a list of official referees and in case of the appointed one not appearing on time another from the list should be taken.

Although it was a decision of the referee that threatened to cause trouble last week, it cannot be said that he is to blame, as the blame certainly rests with the League management in not living up to their constitutions. It distinctly states that goal nets must be used in all League fixtures and why this is not put in force cannot be understood. If the goal nets had been in position on Saturday, there would have been no cause to grumble for then the referee would have been able to see the ball in the net, but under the present conditions the referee must not be blamed if a goal is given when the ball does not go through the goal. It is hoped that the nets that are at Oak Bay will be placed in position.

Every player in the League should learn to take the decision of the referee as being final. There is very little use kicking over the decision on a point of play and the sooner the players realize this the better it will be for the game. It is acknowledged that there are times when mistakes are made by the referee. There is not an official who is absolutly above making a mistake and some latitude should be given. It was a hard pill for the Bays to swallow on Saturday when the goal was given against them, but these occurrences are unavoidable and the players should try and take the decisions of the referee in good grace.

The lady hockey players have set a precedent in good management by offering to amalgamate with the men's team and it is hoped that the players in the Victoria College will follow the example and assist the Victoria club to put a winning team in the field. There are several players in the College who would materially strengthen the senior organization, but they will not join because some of their chums will be left off. This is a very short-sighted policy and it is hoped that the girls will see their way clear to assist the parent club. It is only by the addition of new players that any club can hope to exist and if the younger players refuse to take the places of those who are annually dropping out it will not be long until there is no senior team representing Victoria. This policy has been tried too often in other branches of sport in this city and it is hoped that the girls will not allow it to be said that the senior club is unable to get a team owing to the non-support of the younger players.

The South Park girls added two points to their tally on Saturday by defeating the North Ward girls and incidentally placed themselves at the top of the race for the Colonist Cup. It is very pleasing to see the girls at play, but it is rather disappointing that the competing teams do not receive better support from their schools.

The Dawson City Basketball team will play its first game this evening at the Drill Hall, when the Fifth Regiment players will try their mettle. Having several old Victoria players on the team will naturally occasion considerable interest and it is expected that a good crowd will witness the struggle. An intermediate match will also be played and in addition the Regimental Band will provide a suitable programme.

Cricket.

Although the cricket championship did not come to Victoria this season, the showing that has been made by the individual members of the two local teams and the Garrison is very gratifying. In every instance the playing has been above the average, while in many cases some exceptionally fine work has been done. A careful perusal of the batting and bowling analysis will convince the most skeptical that the cricketers of this city have much to be proud of and the success which has attained the efforts of the clubs should encourage them to greater results next year. At the commencement of the season The Week announced that a bat and ball would be donated to each of the three clubs for competition among the members; the bat to go to the player making the highest batting average and the ball to the bowler with the best analysis, and we are now pleased to announce the winners. In the Victoria club the bat was won by A. F. R. Martin with an average of 40 runs for every time he went to bat. The ball goes to W. P. Gooch, the clow bowler of the club, who took 28 wickets for 210 runs or an average cost of 7.5 per wicket. A. Francis was the successful batter in the Oak Bay club, playing nine innings for an average of 39.7 The ball for the Oak Bay club was won by G. Barraclough, who took 21 wickets for 105 runs or an average of 5 runs per wicket. In the Garrison club Major R. L. Muspratt Williams succeeded in winning both the bat and ball. In the batting he made an average of 48.85 runs for 8 innings and in the bowling his wickets cost him an average of 9.12 runs. The batters in the Victoria club are fairly well bunched. Although Mr. Martin heads the list he is closely followed by Meredith, the latter, by the way, being credited with the best single innings with 147 runs, although it will be noticed that Baker, the club's pro, is not given the 149 runs which he compiled at Vancouver, owing to the fixture not being a regular schedule match. The performance of both Meredith and Baker are highly commendable and reflect great credit on the batsmen. In the bowling Gooch deserves great credit for his work. In this department Capt. Barnacle has also come to the front and has developed into a first class bowler. The bowler on the Victoria team that has done the most work is W. York, who bowled no less than 129 overs. He has not such a high average as last season, but it is one that will take considerable beating. It will be noticed that the average cost per wicket of H. A. Goward is less than that of Gooch, but when it is taken into consideration that the latter bowled three and one-half times as much as the former he is certainly entitled to the palm. On the whole the best showing of the season has been made by Barnacle. In the batting he has good right to third place and second in bowling gives him an enviable position, and entitles him to the position of captain. On the Oak Bay team Francis stands in a class by himself and no other can be compared with him. He is a remarkable steady bat and can always be counted on to make runs. In the bowling Barraclough has shown greatly improved form and has bowled extremely well. It will be noticed that Shelton occupies practically the same position in the Oak Bay club as Barnacle in the Victoria, being second in batting and bowling, while in his two innings with the Victoria club he has also done well. In the Garrison club Major Williams has made a fine showing. Although he has made a higher batting average than any other player, it must be considered that he did not take part in as many games. In this connection we have to announce that although Major Williams won the bat in his club he has very kindly requested that it be presented to Sergt Robertson, who follows him. On the whole the result of the past season's work is very high and there is a bright outlook for the coming season. The following is the complete list of averages:—

Evening Song.

(By Walla Sibert Cather.)

Dear Love, what thing of all the things that be
Is ever worth one thought from you or me,
Save only Love,
Save only Love?

The days so short, the nights so quick to flee,
The world so wide, so deep and dark the sea,
So dark the sea.

So far the suns and every listless star,
Beyond their light—Ah, dear! who knows how far,
Who knows how far?

One thing of all dim things I know is true,
The heart within me knows, and tells it you,
And tells it you.

So blind is life, so long at last is sleep,
And none but Love to bid us laugh or weep.
And none but Love,
And none but Love.

Vancouver Notes.

On the 22nd and 23rd inst. there ill be held in this city a convention f the Conservatives of British Co-mbia with the object of forming Provincial Association. During e recent visit of Mr. R. L. Borden o the Coast he met representatives f the executives of the Conserva-ve Associations from Victoria, Van-ouver, New Westminster, North Vancouver and Nanaimo. At that me a committee composed of Pre-ier McBride, G. H. Barnard, presi-ent of the Conservative Association f Victoria; C. M. Woodward, presi-ent of the Vancouver Association, nd J. D. Lee, president of the New Westminster Association, was ap-ointed to take up the question of olding the Convention. A circular tter has been sent out to the various onservative organizations through-ut the Province informing them of e basis of the convention repre-entation as follows: The delegates be elected by the organized Con-ervative Clubs or Associations in ch constituency, or where no clubs associations is in existence to be ected at a public meeting convened r that purpose. Every Conserva-ve member of the Legislature is en-tled to a seat, and each Provincial onstituency is entitled to send ten elegates in respect of each member ected by it to the legislature. A mber of prominent speakers have en asked to address the convention, cluding Premier McBride, Premier oblin of Manitoba and the Hon. F. Haultain of Regina.

Pender Hall has been the magnet attract thousands of sightseers the st week to the Pure Food Show, ld under the auspices of the Retail rocers Association. The show was revelation to many in regard to the mber of products classed under the ad of "pure foods." Not the least teresting part of the fair was the aby show."

The Week has it on excellent auth-ity that plans are in process for rmation for another big financial stitution, backed by Victoria and ancouver capitalists, which will ortly be announced to the public. The solution offered by Mr. Rud-rd Kipling for the Asiatic question "pump the whites in" is being for-bly brought into evidence, judging om the hundreds of strangers that rive here each day from the Prairie rovinces. Already the cry has gone that the labour market is "gutted," d Mayor Bethune has been at his ts end to provide work for the new-mers. Besides those coming from e plains the city's population has en considerably augmented by many om the mining camps from the uthern Interior. There should be question of supplying white labour r railroad construction at the pre-nt time—if active operations on a ge scale would only commence.

A Successful Opera Singer.

Victorians will be delighted to hear of the success of Miss Spencer in Australia, where she is siging in Grand Opera. The following criticism of her work in Loengrin is taken from the Wellington Times:

"The part of Gretel was taken by Miss Spencer. She possesses a very pretty mezzo-soprano voice and a peculiarly sprightly manner, which is exactly suited to the character, and seems to inspire all the other occupants of the stage with a similar geniality, the result being that every scene goes right merrily. The opera was sung throughout in English, which made the part more agreeable to this talented young artist.

When Mr. T. Benjamin Bogg
Arrived on the wharf in a fog,
He said: "Will you tell
Me the best Hotel?"
They all answered "THE POODLE DOG."

This most popular of Victoria's hostelries presents all the varied attractions and comforts that go to make up a complete and modern resort hotel. Its proprietors have well studied the desires of their patrons and have gradually added to the attractions of the house until they feel that nothing now remains undone that would tend to add to the pleasure and comfort of the guests.

The Poodle Dog cuisine has been universally lauded by transient visitors from coast to coast.
