Rich Priuceton Placers Produce Platinum and Gold.

SIMILKAMEEN STAR

Look beyond the clouds: Gloom is only bad digestion.

Placer Mining in Princeton District has been almost continuously carried on for past forty years by whites and Chinamen, during which time thousands of miners won the ever alluring gold: It is still here awaiting modern machinery and the railway to transport it.

MONEY IN HEN FRUIT

Wise Man in East Tells how 125 per cent. Profit is Made.

If Henpecked Husbands, or Bachelors, would Prospect Hens, Might Find Gold Mine.

There is so much room for expansion in the egg producing industry in this district, and this being a slack time for mining news, the following will prove of interest and perchance profit to farmers and all who consume eggs. It is estimated that only one half the eggs consumed here are produced in this section, the other half being imported as cade eggs. With fresh eggs selling at 50 cents per dozen for eight months in the year, the balance at 40 cents, and good locations for 'chicken ranching' near town, it would seem that Princeton offers fine inducements for anyone wishing to engage in this profitable business. Let us see what A. S. Zimmerman, of Harrisburg, Pa, has to say about hens and eggs:

"From figures compiled in a year's record of 14 hens, housed in a coop 9x 15 feet, Mr. Zimmerman, of 15, North Eighteenth street, says the Monitor, declares there is 125 per cent. profit in selling the eggs laid by this flock, even at the average price of 30 cents a dozen

Zimmerman has no patent appliance for 'making hens lay' He maintains simply that the fowls will produce eggs as well when kept in close quarters in the city, if they have proper attention and feed. Here are some of the results of his year's observations offered as proof of the statement that his 14 hens have been 'making good:'

In the year the hens laid 1456 eggs, an average of 28 eggs a week for the year, or four each day from the flock. At the price of 30 cents a dozen, this output netted approximately $36 40.

And for this profit Mr. Zimmerman's computation shows that he spent for feed only $16.12. 'Those hens were not walking skeletons, either,' explained Zimmer-

FIVE-MILE PARAGRAPHED.

Fred Wampole paid us a flying visit on his way to Princeton last week. He is feeding cattle at Gibson's lake this winter and did not know anything about the 'cold wave' until he came out and heard everyone talking about it. He says fishing through the ice is great sport —there are no mosquitoes to bother now.

Mr. Perkins is making his home this winter at Gibson's lake and is having good luck trapping, catching seven lynx during the cold snap. He froze his nose but doesn't mind a little mishap like that so long as the present price of lynx holds up.

C. Schisler is hauling hay from the Tilton ranch to Jerry Frame's and was sadly missed at the dance Friday night. Business before pleasure, of course, but it is hoped Jerry won't eat another overload of bannocks before the next dance and keep Mr. Schisler away again.

Walter Martin is busy hauling hay from Al Johnson's place on the creek.

Since J. C. Budd had his eyes treated last fall in Spokane he is able to see the wigglers in the lake on his ranch and fishing for wigglers has become quite a pastime with Jack.

Wesley Gibson has become quite intensely interested in the 'matrimonial wave' that has struck Princeton and is living in hope that it will strike Five-Mile before spring. Cheer up, Wes., the worst is yet to come.

Mr. and Mrs. Len. Huston, and little daughter Ida, visited Grandview ranch last Sunday, which was enjoyed very much by all concerned. Mr. Huston is an expert 'Pit' player. One would think he had been recently operating on Wall Street.

Day Bros. of Princeton, ordered some good weather a few days ago from the weather bureau man down south. We hope the subscribers of this paper will not think that rumbling, shaking noise they heard last Saturday morning was an earthquake sent in mistake; it was only Luke Gibson falling on the ice at his place, 'Grandview.'

WEDDING BELLS.

Another of those pleasing events which have recently stirred the social strata of life in Princeton took place today at 2 o'clock at the residence of the bride's parents, a few miles from here. It was the marriage of Richard John Edmond, to Miss Eliza A. Bromley, both of whom are popular and have a host of friends throughout the valley. The nuptial knot was tied by the Rev. J. Thurburn-Conn in the presence of a large number of friends after which a bountiful repast was provided for the assembled guests. The groom was for several years engaged with T. Ellis (Lord O'Kanagin) as his chief factor and advisory employee, in those capacities becoming acquainted with the large floating population of which the writer was one, and enjoying the confidence and respect of a wide circle of acquaintances. The bride is the only daughter and is held in much esteem by many near friends. Miss Schisler was bridesmaid and with the bride formed the center of a charming scene. The Star extends hearty congratulations.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

Road to Copper Mountain Requires Improvement and Extension.

Marriage Licenses in Demand—Board of Trade to Urge A.-Y.-P. Mineral Exhibit.

Next on the tapis is a grand ball by the bachelors.

Mrs. A. J. Marlow is expected on today's stage, having been on a visit to relatives at Kamloops for the past month.

Some talk of improving and extending Copper Mountain road is heard but as yet no action taken. The usual procedure is by petition or resolution to the government. The road is in need of the things suggested and the government will only appropriate money on proper and urgent representation—mere talk will not accomplish much.

Board of Trade meeting next Monday night at 8 o'clock in the court house. Members particularly requested to attend to consider question of mineral display from this section at the A.-Y.-P. Exposition at Seattle.

Three marriage licenses for the month of January show that Princeton is progressive and is doing her share in building up the great human family.

When last heard from Bill Scruby was reported to be heading this way, having put in most of the winter in the Boundary.

H. M. V. Adams, of Kamloops, is visiting with Manager Marlow of Bank Commerce.

O. Bargeson arrived from Prince Rupert last week where he had been looking after some railway contracts. He says it is almost continuous wet weather in that country and outdoor work anything but pleasant. The wet belt extends for about 100 miles inwards. Mr. Bargeson is glad to be back to Princeton with its lovely climate and handsome prospects

Broomfield & Garrison have hauled to town several tons of United Empire coal which is of the same good quality as that found in other parts of the basin.

Public worship next Sunday in court house at 7:30 p.m. Rev. Mr. Conn.

AN ENJOYABLE DANCE.

The social dance held in the I.O.O.F. hall last Friday night was enjoyed by all attending. Circumstances over which no one had control prevented a number from being present. The dances will be given regularly during the long nights and as a means of social amusement are expected to be well patronized. Excellent music was furnished by Prof. Simmonds and Wm. Garrison, Ernest Thomas very acceptably taking the arduous role of floor manager. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Coulthard, Mr. and Mrs. Waterman, Mr. and Mrs. W. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Garrison, Mesdames Swanson and Gauthier; the Misses King, La Valet, Pearl Byers, Vivian Gauthier, Frances Gauthier, Schon and Allison; Messrs. Gibson, Davis, Campbell, La Valet, Summers, H. Allison, La Valet, C. Day, D. Day, N. Huston, E. Thomas, Cowan, Johnson, Willarson, French and Graham. W. Garrison made his debut as first violinist, giving everyone a pleasant surprise. Princeton can now boast of another good violinist.—COM.

LOCAL NEWS WANTED.

The Star respectfully reminds its local readers that it is in constant need of newsy items from all parts of the district. Mining items are valuable and of absorbing interest to capitalists and investors and any contributions from owners, miners and prospectors will well repay them. The Star aims to be wholly local for the reason that world news is distributed through the daily and weekly outside press days before this paper could print it—it has no more relish for stale news than stale eggs. Most of the Star subscribers live on the outside and they crave the local news it contains, in fact it is all they take it for. There are thousands of investors in this section who want to know the latest about it. The Star must have local news. If the people do not supply it with localets then it will as a final resort publish lifelike biographies of them. Our new Five-Mile correspondent illustrates what can be done by loyalty to one's own particular section and the country generally. Kindly take the hint, correspondents.

GRADING TO BEGIN HERE.

Engineer Kennedy's staff are cross sectioning the railway line in and near town preparatory to contractors moving up from portions already finished. It is expected that the dirt which was predicted to fly some seven years ago will soon fly in real earnest within the borders of the town. The occasion of the first shovelful of flying dirt alighting on the grade in town should be marked by some appropriate demonstration after so many years of tedious waiting. Perhaps an old fashioned barbecue accompanied by musical strains from the lyre and the tom-jon, closing with a sun dance and the singing of "Waiting, Yes, Waiting," would be as appropriate as anything. Did some one suggest also the burning of the effigies of those politicians who were responsible for the delay, and the erection of an illuminated statue of Uncle Jim with eulogy of him at the unveiling? Let the dirt fly, and swiftly, too!

THE RETROGRESSIVE "U."

This is a transitory world. It is a decree of Nature that all things must change, and without change there cannot be any progress. The old darkey uttered more philosophy than he knew when he said: "The world do move." Even our language changes in form and pronounciation. It is believed that the phonograph records recently safe-deposited to be used again two centuries hence will be unintelligible in pronounciation to the listeners of that day. Words are born or 'coined' every day and philologists are busy burying others at every revision of the dictionaries. So, what reasonable ground is there for retaining dying or dead word forms which the usage of the American continent and the much larger majority of English speaking people condemned long ago.

Around the letter "u" storm clouds have arisen in the east because some fogey in the last stage of mental decrepitude has ordered the old country adaptation of this letter in "honor," "labor," etc., in school books. To disturb the vogue that has obtained in our public schools and the custom of the country for generations is an act of folly, especially when the results must be reactionary and serve no good purpose for literature or education. The English language is clumsy enough without retaining cumbersome and superfluous letters. Spelling reform is needed, if only for the sake of the thousands of foreigners who come to our shores yearly and are scattered from Princeton to Paspebiac. Any educationist who endeavo(u)rs to simplify our language, instead of muddle and confuse, will at least earn the gratitude of those immigrants struggling to master their adopted language. Where a letter has no earthly significance in sound or meaning as in "governo(u)r," "ardour," "humo(u)r," &c., cut it out. This is a practical, logical age, in which things are not done without reason, and good reason at that. Because our grandaddies, and relatives in the old land make "labor" more "laborio[u]s and clumsy is that sufficient reason to perpetuate a lack of symmetrical form in Canada? Toadyism in any form has no place in the free and independent west.

One class that will not be moved by any order to adopt the objectionable "u" is the printer. Many recent reforms are already traceable to him. He delights in lopping off anything that is worn out or useless and positively refuses to spell "program" "programme" or "catalog" "catalogue." He has eliminated the hyphen from today, tomorrow, tonight and so on, until there are few hyphenated words left, and he divides wherever it is handiest, which saves much tedious spacing. Mr. and Esq. are no longer in general use in up-to-date journals. All this and more means economy of space and time. From the purely mechanical standpoint there is, therefore, much in favor of our spelling reform as compared with that of Britain.

A correspondent writing to the Star has this to say about the offending "u": "Sir: There is absolutely nothing to say for "labour" and "honour," except that they are 'so Henglish, ye know.' How these barbarous spellings got into the English language is somewhat thus: About 850 years ago a bunch of French ruffians conquered England and divided up the country among them. Their descendants are today the richest, proudest and most useless of the English. They brought with them a language which was as different from the good French of today as it was from the good English of any time. Most of it the English people have got rid of, but some remains, just to remind them that their ancestors were conquered by a bunch of freebooters who did not know how to spell. Labor, honor, humor, are all good Latin words, which no one need be ashamed to use. Labeur, honneur, humeur, are the modern French words, and are all right for those who speak that language. Labour, honour, humour, are not Latin; they are bad French, and, in our opinion, worse English."

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Sand is such a common and simple thing that until recently no one thought of it as a remedial agent for certain stomach troubles. On the authority of those who have tried it and proved its efficacy it can be recommended for disorders of that organ and intestinal derangement. A patient in Princeton, suffering for years, has found it valuable where all other remedies failed. Sterilized sand in doses of a tablespoonful taken once daily or as the patient deems necessary, swallowed with water, does all that is claimed for it. All that is required is the 'sand' to take it. The theory of the cure is borrowed from the habit of beasts to lick the dust of the ground and the consequent rarity of stomach complaint among them. Back to the simple life, the simple remedies: ice, charcoal, sand, and never say 'die!'

man.

At that rate the fourteen hens cost about $1.34 a month, and a bit more than four cents a day. Each hen cost approximately $1.15 a year, and less than .003 cents a day. Throughout the year the largest number of eggs laid in a day was 11 and the smallest number two.

"I have been able to reap larger profits from the marketing of eggs," said Zimmerman, "because I feed the hens so they lay in the winter months when eggs are worth more money My ration is a mixture of fifteen pounds of oat and rye chop, five pounds of middling and five pounds of bran, fed warm.

"For several years I have been raising Wyandottes with success, but I believe I will swing to the Minorca breed next year for the simple reason that they do not spend so much time hatching and preparing to hatch.

"Every two years I change stock completely, and whenever I start a new flock I buy young pullets from good stock. I scatter their feed in a pen, the floor of which is covered several inches deep with chaff. They work for all they get. I keep them healthy by whitewashing the coop inside and outside twice a week.

"When I hear a farmer complaining that there is no money in raising chickens for the eggs they produce I feel like remarking: "Well, aren't you ashamed of yourself for admitting it?'
