FAMOUS DANCERS TO GIVE EXHIBITION HERE

Local dance enthusiasts, and in fact all those interested in genuine art will have an unusual opportnity to see an exhibition of the finest classical dancing possibe today when the internationally famous dancing pair, "Cortez and Peggy" entertain at the Hospital Auxiliary ball Tuesday with three exhibition numbers.

Mr. Cortez and Miss Malone, who are leading lights in New York classical dancing circles, and need no introduction, are in Princeton visiting Miss Malone's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Malone, during the course of a vacation tour and graciously agreed to accommodate the local public.

WILL GIVE THREE NUMBERS

Three artistic and entertaining numbers, offering ample variety and fair scope for exercise of their talent will be given.

The first will be a waltz number, to the theme of "The Desert Song," with Mrs. J. A. Brown well known to all local lovers of music, supplying the vocal accompaniment.

The second is a Spanish dance, entitled "O ya-ya," while the third is a whirlwind novelty after the one-step type.

For the special accommodation of the theatre going public, it has been arranged that the exhibition dances will take place commencing 10:30.

These celebrated artists are doing Princeton a real honor by condescending to appear locally, and the best patronage of the local public is bespoken for them. Their services have been donated gratis.

REECE IN SEATTLE

Joe Reece, well known heavyweight boxer who made his abode in Princeton for some months past, is doing bigger fighting in Seattle. He is billed to appear at Seattle Ice Arena Friday night and also next Thursday, the latter being a preliminary to the skirmish between Wildcat Carter and Tod Morgan, former junior welter champ.

TO MOVE LAND MARK

Ambrose Tree is building a new garage and service station in Hedley. To make way for it the old log hotel, built before the town was laid out, and said to be the first building in Hedley, will be torn down. It is quite a landmark. Hedley now has three gas stations.

FIRST FRUITS

The boys were telling how they made their first jack among other things. L. A. Dodd earned his first nickel selling fruit for Mr. Holmes. Bert Irwin went one better. He was offered a shiny nickle to shoot an arrow through a new sign at Granite Creek. From subsequent events Bert knows he earned that nickel.

SNOW IN SOUTH AFRICA

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, July 28.—(U.P.)—Several inches of snow fell here today, bringing a sudden change in one of the warmest winters on record.

Obituary

LIKELY

A colorful old timer, known to Similkameen pioneers, died recently at the Old People's Home, Vanocuver. He was John Likely, one of the best known of the early Cariboo miners. When the town of Quesnel Dam was incorporated in 1923 the name was changed to Likely in his honor. He was made mayor, and it was understood he would retain the position for the rest of his life. He died at the age of 88.

GARTRELL

James Gartrell, who came to Summerland before there was a settlement, and planted the first orchard, died there last week at the age of 88.

BROWN

The death occurred in Vancouver of Mrs. Brown, mother of Mrs. A. Appleton of Hedley and well known to Similkameen oldtimers.

NEW SERVICE POPULAR

A record volume of outgoing westbound mail was the way Princeton said "thank you" in getting the new Monday first class mail service for Coalmont, Vancouver and Victoria. This new service will prove a great accommodation especially to the local business public.

Similkameen Pioneers Honored At Notable Function

EARLY DAYS OF B.C. RECALLED AT COLORFUL GATHERING TO HONOR MR. AND MRS. W. H. HOLMES

The halcyon days of Granite Creek in '85, and of the lower Cariboo almost a generation before that, were lived all over again when pioneers from a wide radius gathered Sunday afternoon at the picturesque home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Holmes near Blakeburn, to honor the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary.

There was Pete Marquard, now of Nicola, who was charged with the safe carriage of mail and human lives between Merritt and Princeton in the days before the gasoline digester or the iron steed. There was L. A. Dodd now gold commissioner at Princeton, who was almost nursed into this world by Mrs. Holmes ever so many years ago, at Yale. There was Mrs. E. P. Cook, widow of the late Fenimore Cook, perhaps the most illustrious of all Granite's citizens. There was Perley Russell, coy and bashful, just as he was when he first sauntered into these parts, seeking fame and fortune, nearly forty years ago. There were many others, old in years and experience, but still young and vigorous in spirit.

The affair was an extremely pleasant one, and though the attendance no doubt suffered from the fact that the original date had to be changed, no apology was necessary for the size of the gathering, and it is only to the credit of those in charge of arrangements that the number was so cheerfully and easily accommodated.

Mr. and Mrs. Holmes, as one would expect, were the center of attraction, and Mr. George Murray, manager of the Coalmont Collieries, voiced the sentiments of one and all when he aptly paid tribute to them as pioneers and friends of all who came, from the day they first arrived, to the present. Though he had been in B.C. twenty years, Mr. Murray felt like a tenderfoot at such a gathering. All honor was due to the hardy pioneers who hewed out a province for future generations. Such a gathering was distinctly laudable. Acquaintances had been renewed that it had never been considered possible. Mr. Murray presented the honored couple with a beautiful silver tea service, on behalf of their many friends.

WALTER'S STORY

Mr. Holmes response would normally have occurred at tihs point, but quite contrarily he anticipated the demand, and was on his feet even before Mr. Murray had time to declare the session formally opened. His story will become history.

"It was at New Westminster just over fifty years ago that I caught sight of the most charming girl I had ever seen. She weighed not over ninety pounds, and I followed her like a bee follows honey. The steamer Irvine was pulling out for Yale. We were both passengers. I tried to talk to her, but was snubbed and I overheard Uriah Nelson say 'That's right Lucy, don't have anything to do with these young bloods." But love finds a way. And at Chilliwack, for the excuse to talk rather than from point of inofrmation, I enquired if she could tell me what place this was. She replied with finality, 'Chilliwack'.

"But I negotiated a seat near her at the supper table and I asked her about everything on the table.

"At Yale—I had come from Oroville—I got a position with the C.P.R. I spotted her house, and asked her if she knew where I could find accommodation. She did not. But I found three feet of floor space in another house. Strolling past I heard the piano playing at her house and went in to ask about the music. I often went in after that and eventually I put the question.

"Matrimony was no easy matter in those days. Bishop Sillitou was the only man of God available. They decided to wait until the seventeenth of June, and it was awful hard for me. The Bishop was on a trip, and returning his stage broke down. He arrived after 11 p.m., and we rushed the ceremony.

"The knot was tide. One Brookes was our best man, and he had a very prominent nose. When it was over we stood sheepishlike, "Why don't you kiss her?' Brookes asked. I did. Then Brookes kissed her sister, and he had an awful job, with that nose of his. I wanted him to kiss the Bishop's wife, to make everybody happy, but he drew the line.

"At Yale I had charge of the iron yard. At Spuzzum the wagon road was on the other side of the river, and a ferry was run. No one would take the job as ferryman, because there was a great whirlpool in forty feet of water. When I say I took the job I mean we did, for she was with me in everything I did after our marriage.

"She was the better half, though, and did the talking. For a while Mr. Dodd's father and I were constables at Yale. One night there was a dance on, and we were attracted by the music and went in. I had never been to a dance in Yale before, and I played till 2 a.m. When I got home my wife was in a rage, and she tore the pants clean off me. And she weighed only ninety pounds, remember.

"We later went to Camp 13 and stayed three years there, where we kept a saloon. Mrs. Holmes was the barker for the camp.

"Below 13 there was a dangerous raft, and boats had to be pulled back by rope. No one had ever gone down them. This time five men rowing and I was steering. The rope got away, and away we were headed through the Blue Canyon, which no one had ever negotiated. Thousands lined the banks to watch our peril, and shouted 'good byes.'

"Bishop Sillitou came after us in his stocking feet, but his wife fairly outstripped him, holding up her dress to give her clearance.

"I hung on. In the middle of the canyon I manged to steer into the bank and moored the craft. A Mr Rumoll kept a boat house, and when I went there he held up his hands thinking I was a ghost, for I had been given up.

"When I got home I found Mrs Holmes prostrate with grief, and a host of friends weeping with her. Matters were soon set right, however.

"Then I started the steamer "Scuzzy" to run through Hell's Gate Canyon as far as Lytton. We made one trip only. After that we ran a cable across the river, and buoys were used for hauling. I later had another steamer on Kamloops Lake, and though I suspended when the railway came in, I kept the craft on hand should the company raise its rates.

"Then I headed off for the Granite Creek excitement; got acquainted with Alec. Coutenay, Pete Charters etc., on the way in. They roasted three chickens for us to eat on the way. The first we tried was terrible. It was black and tough, and we found it to be a hawk.

AT GRANITE

"I'll never forget the sight, coming into Granite Creek. It was full of life, and every hundred feet on the river was a wooden water wheel and every wheel turned to the accompaniment of a differently pitched groan. It was the most excrutiating sight I ever viewed.

I started a store for Mr. Thompson (backed by A. E. Howse), and natuarlly I was mixed up in all kinds of mines. There were many later anecdotes I could tell, but they must wait for another time."

"I thank you all for the splendid way you have shown your respect for the Similkameen pioneers," said Mrs Holmes. I hope we shall have many more gatherings such as this. Our house is always open, and all are welcome."

L. A. Dodd, looking prosperous in the carriage of his office as gold commissioner and government agent at Princeton, claimed priority in the matter acquaintance with Mrs Holmes. "In fact I knew her before Walter did," he said.

"I was born in New Westminster and brought to Yale on a stern-wheeler when three weeks old. And many's the good 'skelp' I have to remember her by."

J. J. Malone, one of the most respected men in the interior, who knew Mr. and Mrs. Holmes at Granite in '85, and was later first mayor of Nelson, could not be prevailed upon to speak.

Neither could old Pete Marquard looking as tough as when he steered the powerful horses along the winding mountain roads while the rugged canyons echoed back defiance. But it was our good fortune to be seated near him, and he has plenty to say, though not to broadcast.

It was 48 years ago that Pete hit the country, and needless to say there was no C.P.R. He came from Tacoma by boat, and proceeded up the Fraser. The boat was stuck in a sand bar. Pete raved about the old wagons, with their wooden wheels and axles, and the potent lubricant used, which it would not be polite to talk about here.

The affair made local history, and great praise is due Wes Rossiter and his helpers not only for the happy conception, but also for the manner in which the idea was carred out. Nearly two hundred attended. Among them were:

Mr. and Mrs. G. Murray; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh J. Holmes; Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Thynne; Mr. and Mrs. A. I. Irwin; Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Fraser; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Holmes; Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Brown; Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Thompson; Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Holm; Mr. and Mrs. J. Smart; Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Vallance; Mr. and Mrs. F. Taylor; Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Rabbitt; Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Dodd; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Malone; Mr. and Mrs. W. Rossiter; Mrs. J. Kidd, Mrs. E. Hill, Mrs. J. Dunn, Mrs. E. Rabbitt, Mrs. E. J. Rossiter; Miss Peggy Malone, Miss Peggy Whitelaw, Miss Ethel Smart, Miss Molly Batstom, Miss Edna Ramsay; Messrs. Geo. Fraser, M. C. Baillie, Peter Marquart, Ed. Cook, Alex McPhail, Al Angstadt, McTavish, P. Russell, T. B. Rabbitt, Geo. Mitchell, Esteban Cortez, D. Prendergast, L. J. Marcotte, etc., etc.

STAR-OLOGY

W. H. Holmes remembered the time Jimmy Anderson made his rounds prior to launching the Star. That was in 1900 and Walter paid up the required $5.00 cheerfully. He has been a subscriber ever since.

We ran across another oldtimer this week who also remembered when Jimmy started his fireworks. But oddly enough Jimmy overlooked him, and so disappointed was he that he had never taken the Star until your present devil straightened matters out.

Church Notes

PROF. HIDY AT ST. PAUL'S

Application of the golden rule as an elixer of international ills was advocated by Ralph Willard Hidy, youtuful professor of Harvard University, occupying the pulpit at St. Paul's Church Sunday and speaking on the subject of "International Tolerance."

In Christ himself will be found the supreme example of tolerance, sympathetic appreciation of others, which is essential to world peace just as it is to family of community unity.

Goaded by suspicion and nurtured in ignorance intolerance in the past has spelt war and destruction. In more recent times it has bred commercial rivalry and resultant economic distress, with the great spectre of the last war standing an awful monument to international intolerance.

The secret of world peace lies in the individual. It demands a full appreciation of our own psychology and that of our neighbors. It demands patience, sympathy, kindness, three great human virtues. Always ahead of us, a guiding idea, stands the personality of Christ himself.

Looking It Over

[Our own and other people's views.]

MADE TO ORDER

The big election—it was a more auspicious occasion than most of us imagined it would be—is over, and the country is simmering back to normalcy. There is the light and the serious side to this after-election chaff; serious indeed in the true sense; but life is just the way you look at it.

The usual cry of "time for a change" was strangely lacking in the past campaign, but the electors evidently got the impression anyway, for never was there so enthusiastic an embracing of unorthodoxy.

Of course the great joke is Vancouver and the wise men of the hinterlands never fail to rub it in. No one will ever forget how the big city, the example of brains and brilliance—and minor considerations such as loyalty—to the rest of B.C. listened to a plea of a certain Mr. McKenzie King now a mere M.P., for more support in Vancouver, that he might put something Vancouver's way; and how Vancouver, after sitting on the Tory side of the fence for twenty years, and waiting ten years to get a government behind it, ducked ostrich like. Really, it is humorous and you can't blame the hinterland for laughing.

And laughing they are. The sentiment is not isolated and is quite spontaneous in many sections. There is and has been a feeling that Vancouver is the big "I am" of B.C. It wants to build up B.C., but all it sees of B.C. is Vancouver. You have your highways and your P.G.E.'s and your Peace River, and your Stewart lands, and a host of other points of friction.

And now that Vancouver, Canada's political candy kid, has fallen so gracefully, there is a certain gloating amongst those who rightfully feel whether their major premises is substantial or not, that in B.C. it should be one for all and all for one. "It serves them right" sums up the sentiment.

But Vancouver is not to suffer after all, and a perefctly good interior riding is coming to the rescue, and now that D. M. McLean has been softening the Liberal rock of East Kootenay, old Harry Stevens can be depended on to break it. And then he no doubt will forget all about East Kootenay, and proceed to hand out the plums to Vancouver, and my children as the fairy tale ends, it has always been so, because it has always been so.

That sums up a strong view in the interior. Whether the premises is right or wrong, the stand is at fault. If and when Vancouver becomes the leader of B.C. in thought and in commerce, B.C. will be the better for it. There is no denying Vancouver's logical leadership; and certainly such leadership need not be forced at the expense of the hinterland it professes to lead. If Vancouver wants leadership, it must give leadership. Whether this has been or not is no matter. The way is clear, and to argue the past will do no good. Let Harry Stevens work for Vancouver if he will, but let Vancouver work for B.C. and the interior's sacrifice is well rewarded.

So much for the serious. Now for the humorous: humorous especially for its serious intent. Vancouver admits its error. It would fain have Monday the 28th back again. And of course if the matter had been reversed, if Canada had gone Liberal and Vancouver Conservative, then Vancouver would no doubt still be wanting to do it over. And a serious minded Vancouver gentleman has actually hinted as much. At least he suggests that if Hanbury or McKenzie are really serious about serving Vancouver, the best thing they could do is resign and make way for men who would be on the government side.

And that is the stuff our forefathers fought for. That is the incarnation of Magna Carta! Political morals have become identical with party doles, for the individual and for the constituency.

In Skeena, too, they lost hard. One reads with some disappointment the aftermath editorial of the Stewart News, which so admirably restrained its opinions during the campaign and presented a model of journalistic fairness in its editorial of the week before, on the eve of the election. It hints hopefully that suspected irregularities being carefully forced by the losing party in Skeena will bring exposures, that Skeena may have another chance, and this time use it right. Surely there is a depraved sense that hopes a crime has been committed that it may selfishly benefit. And in Skeena, too, as the News admits, the battle was one a man would desire; and the successful candidate is a real man, to Grit and Tory alike.

In Yale thank heaven or not, there never is anything of this sort. Yale may be called the most glaring example of partisan dumbfoozleness in Canada. Year after year, whether Laurier or MacDonald holds the flag Yale continues to send back a Tory with a majority that almost makes a contest a joke. Perhaps Yale is just dense enough that it cannot be made to see reason, but anyway, it expresses itself solidly, and it never cries about what it has gone and done. There is something satisfying about that, anyway.

And to conclude. The five-cent speech is now famous as the chief instrument of Mr. McKenzie King's downfall. But there is one Liberal in Powell River who has a sense of humor. The bet was just ten dollars and when the result was known, they met in front of a bank to settle. The Grit pulled out a crisp ten dollar bill, but hesitated, and darted into the bank. In a minute he returned with a considerable bulk of currency, which he bundled into the arm of his successful rival. McKenzie King said he wouldn't give a Tory a five-cent piece, but here's one Liberal who will give a Conservative one. And he handed over two hundred!

Rev. J. C. Goodfellow hopped back to Princeton from Hope Sunday morning and left for the coast by train the same afternoon, after a very pleasant trip over the Hope trail and its many offshoots, in the course of which 88 photographs were taken for publicity work.

A short time ago a man was looking for a good bookkeeper who had to be a Canadian, but failed to find one in this town and had to send to England. Another man wanted a good electrical engineer and had to send to Scotland. Another man wanted some pick and shovel men and there were three Canadians and two Irishmen hurt trying to get the job.

Ocean flyer " dates " fiancee by telephone

For 55 minutes on the night of June 27, Captain Charles Kingsford Smith, ocean flyer, talked from his hote' room in New York with his fiancee, Miss Mary Powell, 15,000 miles away in Australia. The conversation was carried on by radio telephone.

He said that he was going back home "as fast as train and boat will carry me—and that date for September stands good. Oh, I'll teach you to fly oceans."

Youngsters At Olympiad

Other Interior Towns Also Send Strong Teams to Coast

Four Princeton school athletes are competing in the B.C. High Schools Olympiad, which is being held today and tomorrow at Vancouver. They include Cora Long, entered in the 50 and 100 yard dashes for girls; Andy Vaydo, 220 yard and broad jump; Ellsworth Hanson, high jump and broad jump; and Bill Garrison, 100 and 220 yards. Vic Long also made the trip but will not compete because of a foot injury. A number of supporters went along.

FUND FOR CORA

To defray the expenses of Cora Long, the only one of the party who had to pay her own way, $26.00 was subscribed locally as follows:

MERRITT SENDS FIVE

Merritt has five candidates at the Olympiad, as follows: Nellie Dorman and Marguerite Corbett, 50 and 100 yards; Wilf Carrington, 100 and 220 yards; D. Deccer and James Nisbet, 440 yards. The Merritt athletes have been training faithfully under Bob Hogg.

CRANBROOK STRONG

Cranbrook has a strong representation at the Olympiad. The famous Katie Mar in will compete in the 100 and 50 yard sprints, and is running at her best. Garnet Blaine is a promising half miler; while Fred Larges one of the outstanding young athletes of B.C. today. His shot putting, a revelation last year, has improved and he is also expected to do well with the javelin. He is also entered in the 100 and 220 yards events.

VERNON HAS BIG ENTRY

Vernon will be well represented numerically at least. Vernon has five boys and four girls competing, entering two relay teams.

STARLIGHT

Close-ups With Ye Sports Ed.

Penticton is looking for new fields to conquer; or should we say, someone to beat them. There is an old adage which says that it's easy to be a good winner, but Penticton is beginning to doubt it. To just win, and win, and win grows tiresome. So they pine regretfully for the Copper Mountain of Princeton of yore. The obvious crack is that if baseball was alive in these parts, Penticton's worries about winning too often would be over. But then, while that may be perfectly true, its just a theory, and the fact remains that the artificial edifice of Similkameen ball built up a couple of years back, while Penticton's home brews, nurtured along by old Tom Daly, are a very much improved lot.

Princeton is making a bid for junior athletic honors at Vancouver. We are pleased to damn pessimism, but we can't see any laurel wreaths, if they still use 'em, coming our way. We'd like to see it otherwise, but we can't see our entry cutting much ice. It takes more than material, more than just confidence. It takes skilled training, and our youngsters didn't get it. But if they can turn the trick, so much more credit to them.

* * * *

Westminster Royals are steering westward again increasing our already copious silver resources by the addition of the F.A. cup, which as we all know but seldom bother about, replaced the more famous Connaught trophy a couple of years back. If you will recall, we warned you we wouldn't be surprised if they blew themselves just that far, when the shindad started, and here we are folks. The old Royals were buffeted about pretty badly this season, but there is no doubt they are our dourest lot when it comes to picking a representative that will go places and bring back things. And right now, be warned that the Royals intend to cut more swath next year.

It is interesting to know—as some of our fans may not—that Jackie d'Easum, star outside left of the Royal champions, and perhaps the most talked of player in the series is the brother of Dr. L. G. C. d'Easum of Hedley. Len himself is no mean representative of a famous athletic family.

SOLD THE WRONG HORSE

A good story is told about the "sale" of Hans Richter's fine pacer, "Tiger Jim," which, after appearing at Princeton July 1, later ran at Okanogan, Wash., a couple of weeks ago.

Hans places a fair price on his attractive runner, and was in Okanogan with the intention of selling him if his price was met. When he returned to the stables after a short absence he was told Jim had been bought, loaded and taken away in a truck. Two young men drove up and claimed their property.

Then it developed that a mistake had been made. Someone had bought a horse, to be shipped, and had asked to have the animal brought to mthe stable. Tiger was the only horse at the stable, and the youths, not knowing horse flesh, promptly claimed him. He was restored intact.

Caws on beat Keremeos 10-9 in the tightest game of the season. The Star's pen photographer caught Sinclair unsuccessfully negotiating a slide home. (P.S.—The tear in Sinc's pants in concealed.)

GOLF

Monthly medal play will be the order for the male members of Princeton Golf Club Sunday. The ladies have postponed their competition until cooler weather. Sunday was officially an idle day.

Cawston Trims Keremeos Men

Inclusion of Star Players Fails to Stop Cawston Sluggers

Even the inclusion of Jimmy Sykes, star newcomer from Swift Current, and Pete Hamilton, former Vancouver senior B twirler, was not enough to stop the rampant Cawston squad, and because the southerners simply clouted the ball over the lot, Keremeos was forced to accept an unwelcome defeat, 10-9, in a game that was as thrilling as the score indicates, and it is generally conceded it was the best played game of the local season.

Keremeos heavy artillery promised trouble when Hamilton and Sykes clouted in two runs in the first. A screaming double put Sinclair on third in Cawston's half, but he was run down between third and home, and a great chance was gone. For the next two innings it was shut out ball.

Cawston broke the spell in the fourth, however, when five successive hits were poled out, and four runs came in. Keremeos got another back in the fifth, and sent Jimmy Sykes into the box. He signalled his appearance by whiffing the first three men who faced him. Two more tight innings followed, but Keremeos grabbed three runs to take the lead. Cawston were out for blood, however, and tied the score. Lang then took the mound for Cawston, but was given a bad start by his mates, and errors let Keremeos get back a two run lead. Three successive errors let Lang get to third in the eighth, and started Keremeos downhill. Three hits and a walk gave four runs ,and the best Keremeos could do in the ninth was to push over one run, and fall one short of victory.

Score by innings:

Keremeos	2	0	0	0	1	0	3	2	1	—9
Cawston	0	0	0	4	0	0	2	4	x	—10

ALEMITE

scientific lubricating service will do just this for you

READ WHY

To ensure economical operation the car manufacturers have equipped your car with the Alemite push type high pressure lubricating system. Its purpose is obvious, but results depend entirely on the correct use of this system.

Ordinary "greasing" where cheap greases and inadequate equipment are used, actually defeats the purpose and causes additional trouble and expense. Cheap greases are full of soap, harsh fillers, and fatty acids that burn up under heat, break down under pressure or "gum" up and ruin bearings.

There is only one RIGHT way to lubricate your car and you can depend upon us to give you this service, for we use only scientific Alemite equipment. Furthermore, the Alemite lubricant we use is a pure solidified oil (specifically adapted to the Alemite system) that stands up under 3000 pounds pressure, resists heat and lubricates properly at 30 degrees below zero.

FOR YOUR SERVICE

Our new fireproof garage centrally located and most modernly equipped offers you the utmost in service.

Alemite Lubricating Gun
Developing 3000 lbs. pressure positively insures perfect lubrication of even the most hard to get at parts.

Alemite spray gun for spring oiling, etc.

Hydraulic Hoist
A wonderful convenience. Will lift any passenger model sufficiently clear to enable the workman to stand under it at his ease. Clearance underneath car making every part accessible. Can pick up any car regardless of make. We recommend this lift for all round general service, due to the fact that all working mechanism is left free for attention. Especially recommended for lubrication, tire changing, car washing, brake adjustment, painting, axle repairs, general service.

MARKET NEWS LETTER
(Department of Agriculture, Victoria)

Issued twice a week from the Markets Branch.

ON AGRICULTCRAL PRODUCTS

Victoria, August 4.—The warm dry weather prevailing suits harvesting operations now in full swing. Loganberries are now at their peak with wineries taking all the available supply. Olivet cherries are also being harvested and sold under contract to the canneries in Vancouver and Victoria. Yellow Transparent and Duchess apples are supplying the local market. At present there is no commodity being shipped to prairie markets from Victoria.

Conditions on the Mainland. Weather is warm and raspberries are about over. A car heavy to blackberries rolled to prairie points Saturday. Blackberries are selling at $2.50 delivered at prairie points. This season has been exceptional. Fine weather during shipping time and prices and condition of arrival have been good. The associated small fruit growers organization shipped seventeen cars of strawberries including part cars from Haney, twenty-five cars of raspberries and expect five or six cars of blackberries. In all fifty-six cars of strawberries from B.C. were sold in the prairies and about forty-three cars of raspberries. This volume is less than three quarters normal. There have been few if any complaints on pack and quality and raspberries gave more general satisfaction than strawberries.

Visitors to the Vancouver Exhibition, now in progress, will see on exhibition two new features in berries. One is the cultivated Blueberry from Mr. Johnston's gardens near Brighouse, showing the prolific nature of the cluster of fruit, thereby assuring a heavy yield. The other is a new unnamed blackberry or dewberry from Mr. Dann's orchard at Hatzic. This berry has great prospects. It is large in size, about two inches long and one inch in diameter, soft seeded and sweet. It should prove an ideal berry for wine making as well as superior for canning and should equal or surpass the British Bramble for preserving.

COTS CLEARED

Apricots have been practically cleaned up locally. Peach-plums are also moving praidly and are just past the peak. Triumph and Victor peaches ar ealso past the peak. Transparents apples are being shipped.

EMBRACE POOLING

Fruit pooling will be ni effect in the territory under the Committee of Direction this year, following a decision at a meeting of the Federation of Growers and Shippers at Kelowna. Celery will be exempt. Pooling was favored by four big shippers, including the Associated Growers, with a 4,010 car representation and opposed by sixteen smaller growers with a 1,698 vote.

ORCHARD FACTS

There could be no more useful or complete handbook of modern orchard practices than is afforded in the bulle in of that title, prepared by horticultural experts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, and just off the press.

OKANOGAN DOWN

Estimates of the fruit crop in Okanogan county, Washington, show a five per cent decrease as compared to the 1929 crop. Apples will be 2,970 cars as compared with 3,151 cars.

Oroville, 234 in 1929, 300 estimate, 30 per cent. increase; Tonasket, 340 cars in 1929, 310 estimate for this year, 10 per cent. decrease; Omak, (including Riverside), 827 cars in 1930, 350 this year's estimate, 55 per cent. decrease; Okanogan, 400 cars in 1929, 330 this year's estimate, 20 per cent. decrease; Malott, 228 in 1929, 280 cars this year's estimate 25 per cent. increase Brewster, 457 cars in 1929, 570 this year's estimate, 25 per cent. increase; Pateros and Methow, 855 last year 820 this year's estimate, 25 per cent increase.

OKANAGAN TENNIS

P. G. Dodwell, veteran Summerland man, who despite the fact that he has been competing in Okanagan tennis for the past twenty years, has had one of his best seasons ever, came through to participate in three titles when the Okanagan tennis championships were played at Penticton.

Superior generalship gave him a clean-cut victory over young Howard Routh, 6-0, 6-1. Paired with Cadiz, Dodwell took the men's doubles, beating Hill and Lewis of Kelowna though not so easily. Dodwell and Mrs. Gardner took the mixed doubles at the expense of Miss Pease and Lewis of Kelowna, 6-4, 6-0. In an all Kelowna final Miss Pease disposed of Miss Tailour after a real struggle. Mrs. Tailour and Mrs. Gardner won the ladies' doubles from Miss Pease and Mrs. Lewis. Steward and Fitzpatrick of Oliver almost ousted Smith and Cadiz from the veterans' doubles but the latter finally won out. Mrs. Horsfield of Penticton and Richards of Salmon Arm respectively won the ladies' and men's singles. Richards and Mrs. Richards of Salmon Arm took the mixed doubles' handicap.

From Absent Friends

REV. H. E. D. ASHFORD

Dear Friend Peg:

Just got the letter from Tim Guinan and I asure you that I was glad to hear from old friend Peg. I thought that you had forgotten all about me by this time and I was glad to know that it was not true. If we all live to 1934 when I get home you and I are going on a good trip. There will be no way out of it. You will have to go.

We like our work out here fine. If I only had the boys around it would be fine. I miss the gang an awful lot. One cannot mix with these people the way that one can mix with the boys at home. Of course this is a hard old place on the wife and the family. The cold weather is not bad but the warm is a brute. Last year Ray was sick nearly all the hot weather and we hope that we can hold it off this year. The young one that you have never seen is very much like me. He is dark and a very healthy chap until now. He has not been sick as yet and seems very tough.

At present we are on tour. We left our house about two months ago and we move on from place to place with our tent. Any place is our home. Wherever we pitch our tent that is home and then we move on again. We try to reach the people in this way and tell them about Christ. We are working hard and mean to until we go home and then with our present plans we will stay in Canada.

Our work is very varied here. I have a leper asylum and an an orphanage home going since I came out. The leper work is very fine. At first I could not get near the leper folk at all but now they take me very much to themselves. Their's is a tough old road. You see them day by day and parts of their bodies are falling off. At Christmas we had them all to our house and gave them a big feed and new clothes. They were the happiest people that you ever saw. When I am at Dhar I make it a practice to go to the place where I have them twice a week and sit down with them and sing and talk. I try to take them a little fruit or some little treat and they certainly do enjoy that. They always tell me that they are my children although some of them are nearly old enough to be my father.

I would love to walk into old Princeton again. It seems quite a long time since I first hit there. Since the day that Big Gus and I went to Copper Mt. When we got near the big hill Gus stopped and asked me if I cared for a drink and when I told him that I was the new parson he nearly had a fit. After that I had many good times at the hill. I suppose that since you left the hill is not the same. How do you like Princeton?

I get the Star occasionally. I hear that the new editor is a very fine chap. Of course Joe was a good old scout. I wonder how Joe likes his new business?

Mrs. Ashford says that she has not forgotten you or all the nice chocolates that you used to give her. She will never get sick on the chocolates that she gets in India. They are rather a scarce article here. Mrs. Ashford, like me, was very glad to get the letter. She read it over and told the missionary who is on tour with us all about you. So you can see your name is known even in far away India.

I suppose that you are having a fine time in hockey again this year. I wish that I was there for that. I hope Princeton will have a good team this year. I believe that last year they had a very fine team.

Well old pal do not be so long in writing the next time. Remember that I will be expecting a letter from you real soon. Every good wish and God's blessing from us all.

Sincerely yours,
H. E. D. ASHFORD.

Dhar, C.I., Jan. 14, 1929.

J. A. McLAUGHLIN

Dear Ned:

Ever since I left the Mountain I have been intending to write you a long letter, but have been hoping to find a typewriter. I have not been able to locate one so far and will have to get along without.

We had a wonderful trip across and enjoyed Germany very much. I don't wonder that Germans everywhere are proud and loyal to the fatherland. From Berlin to Moscow, 38 hours by rail or 14 by air, we took the railroad but hope to return by air, if ever. The Russian first class coaches are very good, really more comfortable and roomier than in America, although they lack some of the refinements that are found in our lines.

Moscow is a wonderful city or will be when the work of restoration is complete. It is under way now and will take some time. They tell us there are over 3,000,000 people in Moscow now, whereas there was a population of 1,800,000 a few years ago. The city is very much overcrowded and a lot of building is being done.

From Moscow to Sverdlosk (or Kahevinberg as it used to be called) is about 15 hours on the transcontinental. Sverdlosk is a large city 200,000 or over and is going to be an industrial center, iron, coal copper, etc. It is full of American specialists of various kinds, mostly mining and metallurgy. From Sverdlosk to Uraluredstran takes a night on a branch line which runs right into town. Uraluredstron is a town in the making. The population is veriously estimated from 18,000 to one half that number, nearer the later I think. There are two copper mines under development and only one idle. A 2000 ton concentrator is under construction and will be ready this fall. It is a beautiful concrete structure with very modern equipment including a Symour cone crusher. A smelter is also being built. The machine shop for the mine and smelter is the finest I have ever seen and is just about ready. All of the shop equipment is of German manufacture. Other activities here are a sawmill and brickyard. The town is almost entirely built of logs and very well done and imposing in looks. The interiors are not very well finished, but they are built for warmth. The stoves are new to me. They are built into the chimneys and are of brick with a metal top. It is very cold in winter and the winters are long, but everybody tell us that the winters are very fine and enjoyable.

Every foreigner is called an American engineer here and I have given up the job of explaining that I belong to a different and a better breed. They are very good to us as far as they are able to be and we get plenty of everything that is available. We have to do without a good many things that we had in B.C. but it won't hurt us any.

We got here on June 10th and I have not had much to do. Yesterday I was told what my duties would be—I am to have charge of the mines department as manager of mines. This means in addition to the two copper mines that I will have to look after a rock quarry 11 kilometers from here and another layout 14 kilometres distant, where lime and quartz will be mined for flux when the smelter is in operation. The copper mines are three miles apart and as there are no cars travel is by droskky. This whole country is covered with clay to a depth of 30 feet or more. The ground is dead level and the Ural Mountains do not exist except in name. We are in Asia and about as far north as Sitka, Alaska.

John Swanson is superintendent of the Kompaneis, the larger of the two, and Elmer is foreman at the Nova Levinsky mine, a man from Lo Touthe is superintendent. He is an American of Chinese extraction and a fine chap. Probably Lorain would Preserving is no longer a drudgery. What could be nicer for a hurry-up out of season meal than a jar of preserved fruit? How much could you save by using your own jam? What is more delicious than an appetizer of your own pickles.

Preserving season is now at its height. Apricots are still available and peaches will be here in a week or so. Other fruits will follow according to schedule. Better figure out your requirements and place your order now. And don't overlook CERTO, the fruit pectin that ensures perfect results.

IN B.C.

Forest fires throughout the province are ocntrolled. During the week 167 were extinguished, with some 90 still burning. Dangerous hazards continue in Kamloops and the southern interior districts.

PROSECUTE

A reward of $250 for information on incendiarism in connection with forest fires has been announced by the B.C. government.

TREE AT $50

Value of B.C.'s forests was hinted at in a recent court decision when for destruction of ten trees the offender was forced to pay over $500, thereby placing the value of a tree at $50.00.

Improvements have been made to the L.D. Cafe. The lot adjoining has also been graded.

know him.

I have not seen Howard McDonald yet, as he was away when we were in Moscow. We met Mrs. McDonald and she was very good to us and helped us out in many ways. Howard has made quite a name for himself in Russia and has done very good work for the Soviet government. I expect to have a call from him before long.

We are living in an apartment of four rooms, but expect to move in a few days to a private house. Later a house is to be built for us near the general office. The general office is a three storey brick building that covers as much ground as the Princeton Hotel, probably more. It will be ready for occupation in a few weeks and my office will be located there.

I am afraid I will have to get along without a Chevrolet or an airedale for a while. We saw a few Fords in Moscow and some of other makes, but not many. I understand that both Ford and General Motors have plants under construction but don't know whether this is correct or not.

Tinky has been busy since we landed here. She "tied the can" on her maid yesterday and hired another who seems to be a very great improvement on the first. You can hire maids at from 15 to 30 roubles per month (a rouble is valued at about 50c), but all other luxuries are expensive. We are going to buy a cow as soon as we move and will also buy chickens I think.

My watch still keeps good time and I think is the best in Russia. At times we get a little homesick, but are too busy to let anything bother us.

I am sorry I didn't bring a portable typewriter and a camera. I would have had no trouble to bring them in with me, so I was told.

We have not had a word from Copper Mt. since leaving. Have received some Stars.

Best to all,

MR. AND MRS. McLAUGHLIN.

Charity . . .

Says the

is greater than faith, or hope. Someone else has said that charity begins at home. Charity, in its strict entomological sense, is the back bone of public spiritedness. Not mere benevolence to the penurious, but a general observance of the golden rule; a sympathy with one's fellow men, and a willingness to go a step more than half way.

to be good hearted towards others. In the more obvious sense, they are very charitable. They have a reputation for being soft hearted. Real charity goes deeper than mere doling out pittances to the needy. It includes patriotism, philanthropy; love of one's fellows. It is most to be cherished. It signifies a deep rooted love of one's home land. It is the essence of human kindness.

Love your valley. Live for it. It is more important even than your own welfare. You will never regret true charity. One of the best ways you can help is to z
