FACES THEFT CHARGE

PROVINCIAL SECRETARY MACNICHOLL OUTLINES WORK OF LEGION ON LOCAL VISIT

Charged with the theft of a horse from the Sellers ranch Sunday, Roy Carl Maydole faces proceedings which carry a maximum of fourteen years imprisonment if guilt is established.

Maydole appeared before Magistrate Waterman in police court Wednesday but a remand was granted until Friday morning, when the preliminary hearing will proceed.

The animal in question is a horse, the property of Wendell Sellers, rancher, of Five Mile, which was reported stolen Sunday. Maydole's arrest followed.

At tomorrow's preliminary hearing Magistrate Waterman will ascertain whether there is sufficient evidence of guilt to warrant sending the accused for trial by higher court. In the event of insufficient evidence being found, he will be freed, but should there be sufficient evidence to warrant a trial, he will have the option of electing before a county court judge or a jury at the assizes

CHANGED MIND

The fire of anger flamed and assuaged when two local men engaged in a difference which was aired in police court this week. A charge of assault was laid. Meanwhile the gladiators came together and found out each wasn't such a bad fellow after all. They patched matters up amicably but the charge could not be withdrawn. In police court the plaintiff urged that the minimum fine be assessed, and the judge levied a nominal fine of $1.00.

JULIAN TAKES "CHICKEN FEED"; IS INDICTED

C. C. Julian, well known financier and oil operator and formerly interested in mining projects in the Tulameen district, has been indicted in Texas court on an extortion charge. Julian spoke lightly of the charge and referred to the $50,000 he is accused of taking from a San Antonio man as "chicken feed."

BIRTHS

SILLOVICH—To Mr. and Mrs. Sillovich of Copper Mt. at Princeton General Hospital on Friday, April 17, a daughter.

SOLDIER'S PROBLEMS ARE PROBLEMS OF A NATION

The efforts of the Canadian Legion, British Empire Service League, on behalf of Canada's war veterans are chiefly to ensure that the great sacrific of '14-'18 is not forgotten, and that the problems of reconstruction following demobolization are fairly and satisfactorily dealt with.

So Major Robert Macnicholl, provincial secretary of the Legion, told a large gathering of returned men and local citizens in the Scandinavian Hall oMnday evening on the occasion of his first official visit to Princeton.

The public memory, explained Major Macnicholl, is short lived. It is a dangerous thing to forget the war, for it is only by keeping before us the horrible experiences of the past campaign that we can insure against future wars.

Undoubtedly the problems of demobilization and civil re-establishment are tedious and many sided, It is therefore essential that a competent organization be maintained to present the views of the returned men in a fair and logical way.

During the heyday of war promises were easily made The politician told the Tommy the world was his if he won the war. Sincere enough at the time of their origin, these statements were made without realization of the difficulties of post-war conditions. The consequence was that the returned army of Canadians, as of every other nation, was a disappointed lot.

The problems were such that they could be settled at one stroke. The individual cases of the war will be strewn over a generation.

BIRTH OF THE LEGION

Immediately after the war there was no unanimity of interests among the returned men. They were disappointed victors, and indeed it would have been dangerous had they maintained their unity for they would have been so powerful that they, in the heat of the moment would have found it difficult to act with true judgement.

Thanks chiefly to the work of the late Earl Haig the most important ex-service organizations throughout the empire were gathered together under a vast affiliation, the British Empire Service League. It is the greatest organization of its kind Prior to the great war there had never been occasion for such an organization.

In Canada today the Canadian Legion includes the vast bulk of Canada's returned men. Co-existant are four or five minor organizations, the most important of which is the Army and Navy Veterans Association.

In 1927 at the first convention in Winnipeg the Canadian Legion came into being by the amalgamation of certain national organizations of which the largest was the Great War Veterans' Association. At the time of organization there were 400 branches with 20 000 members, whereas today the membership is 80,000 in 900 branches.

Even in the United States returned Canadian veterans have of their own free will banded together under the auspices of the Legion for their own protection. The Legion makes no effort to organize Canadians in the U.S., but assists when requested. Only recently a branch was formed in Bellingham. There are now 17 branches in the United States.

The Legion, however, performs services for all returned men whether members of the organization or not Notable among these is the pension adjustment.

PENSION BUREAU

A separate pension bureau has been established at aVncouver in connection with the Legion's work, where interviews are granted at the rate of over 300 monthly, including 673 cases at Shaughnessy. In one case the Legion was successful in securing for a disabled veteran a 25% pension and $2,300 in arrears, in another an increase from ten per cent disability to 100 per cent.

CANTEENS

Certain monies are available for distress from what is known as the canteen fund being proceeds from operation of canteens overseas and in Canada The returned overseas man may benefit from the overseas fund the Canadian man from the Canadian fund.

No provision can be made from the Canteen fund for unemployment distress, however. This is, the Legion considers, purely a matter for the government, municipal, provincial and federal.

Outstanding gains had been made for the returned man from the federal and provincial governments through the efforts of the Legion Its policy was to proceed slowly and forcefully rather than to look for rash adjustments.

The Legion tried to be fair in its demands, but once it took a stand it declined to compromise. It would brook no whittling down of estimates The conditions of the country had to be respected, however.

The speaker showed how good use had been made of pre-election psychology both in provincial and federal politics. Both the Bennett and King leaderships were in full sympathy with the desires of the Legion prior to the June election, while before the last provincial election practically an identical promise was obtained from both Dr. Tolmie and Dr McLean re the Essondale Home.

The result of this psychology was evident during the recent estimates at Ottawa, when the largest budget in history for returned men's needs passed Commons unanimously Moreover, the Senate, which had previously blocked a similar move, also gave unanimous accord.

SOLDIER SETTLEMENT

A matter that had given the Legion more than usual concern was that of the soldier-farmer The land had a strong appeal to the man returning from overseas, but there were many sad mistakes in connection with the Soldier Settlement plan with the consequence that whereas 23,000 farms were taken out a recent survey showed hat only 11,000 were still tenanted.

In many cases the farmer-failure suffered a real hardship. He had invested his gratuity money of $500, and in many cases as much else as he could gather together. When he decided to leave, a failure, he left everything. One of the important concessions obtained through the Legion was a revaluation of property, and an agreement whereby the indebtedness of the farms as at October 1929 was reduced by one third.

WAR WIDOWS

The protection of the dependents of the returned man was a more complex care than those of the veteran himself. The Legion had successfully contested what it considered an unfair discrimination in the case of after-war marriages. Formerly the widow of a post war marriage received no pension, though the dependents received an allowance. Now however, more than sixty post-war widows in Canada were receiving $30.00 or more monthly.

INSURANCE

An important concession has been obtained in the matter of insurance for veterans, an extension being arranged to August 31, 1933, except where there was a short expectancy of life. The Legion did not see the justice of this provision and was contesting it.

Another point the Legion was working on was the widows' pension. The present arrangement is that where the deceased had been receiving a pension of 80 per cent or more for less than ten years the widow received life pension But where pension had been drawn for less than ten years there was no left pension except where death was proven to be due to a war disability.

Free medical treatment for veterans is another of the Legion's points It is aimed to extend treatment to all

HONOR FOR HONOR'S SAKE

An example of the respect for honor held by the Legion was outlined by Robert Macnicholl, provincial secretary of the Legion, when he outlined the fight made by the organization in B.C. on behalf of a handful of valiant Japanese who fought for Canada during the World War.

During the early war days a number of Japanese of their own accord organized and planned to go to France as a unit. Due to obvious difficulties with regard to their small number, Ottawa had to reluctantly turn down their wish to form a unit, However some 208 refused to be daunted and entered as a unit in the regular service. They played a valiant part. One was recommended for the V.C. and four received military medals.

Of their number some eighty remained in Canada. The Legion thought these men were entitled to a franchise. They were allowed to vote in 1916, and what was good enough for them should be good enough now, held the speaker. Moreover, Ontario gave a universal franchise to veterans regardless of nationality.

The matter divided the legislature at the last session. On the vote the matter was lost. 19-13. The Legion immediately got in touch with one of its branches and appealed to it to convert its local member. This succeeded and the Legion was also successful in having another vote granting which this time favored the measure 19-1[illegible] [illegible] giving the vote to this valiant handful of yellow skinned warriors.

In this connection the speaker paid tribute to the honor of the members of the legislature who overrode party lines to support the rights of the soldier. Thus though the cabinet turned down the Jap vote, certain members voted in favor. Notable, however, was the action of A. M. Manson, who backed the motion of his acknowledged antagonist, H. Despard Twigg, Victoria.

TALE OF ACCIDENTS

Autos

The fates were with John Walker of Blakeburn, but he nevertheless had an unforgettable experience when his car hurtled through the railings of the Tulameen River bridge just outside qCalmont in the dawn Monday morning landed on its end on the boulders, and finished up in the river right side up.

Though Mr. Walker required several stitches in a head wound, neither he nor the passenger who was with him was seriously hurt, as if by marvel. Neither did the car sustain damage commensurate with the occasion. The rear body was badly wrecked, the windshield shattered and the steering wheel wrenched off but when a new wheel was put on the car was driven out under its own power.

* * * *

Rev. Father A. F. Carlyle suffered a slight accident while visiting Coalmont in the interest of the work of the Catholic church. His car collided with the Collieries' Company's truck [illegible] were about event, the truck suffering a bent axle while the lighter car had a damaged fender and running board.

* * * *

Albin Nelson of Coalmont had a nasty experience late Friday night when driving home from Princeton His car went off the road near the water trough, but a passing car easily towed him out and he was able to proceed.

B.C. TELEPHON LINE MAKES GOOD HEADWAY

Construction of the B.C. Telephone Company's tran-scontinental line is proceeding rapidly and has reached a point near Bromley's, some twelve miles from Princeton. Because of the proximity of the high voltage line of the West Kootenay Power Company on the north side which is skirted by the highway, it has been found advisable to cross the river to the south side.

Into Princeton the route following the Kettle Valley railroad has been chosen in preference to a more direct route through the Tulameen country and along Pierce Creek, where a survey was made. The telephone line follows the new route of the Kettle Valley, which will shortly be rebuilt in places to avoid slides, bad curves and the like. (See photos page 5.)

J. H. Sykes, George A Scott and J. C. Clarke were elected trustees at the annual meeting of the newly formed Keremeos Irrigation District. Mr. Sykes topped the poll.

Costs during the past year, the first under the control of the new organization, totalled $10.28 per acre. Financial and other reports were tabled.

Exception was taken to award of a work contract to an outside bidder. Wehn it was shown, however, that the party in question, a Penticton man, submitted a tender that was half the amount of the lowest local tender, the award was vindicated.

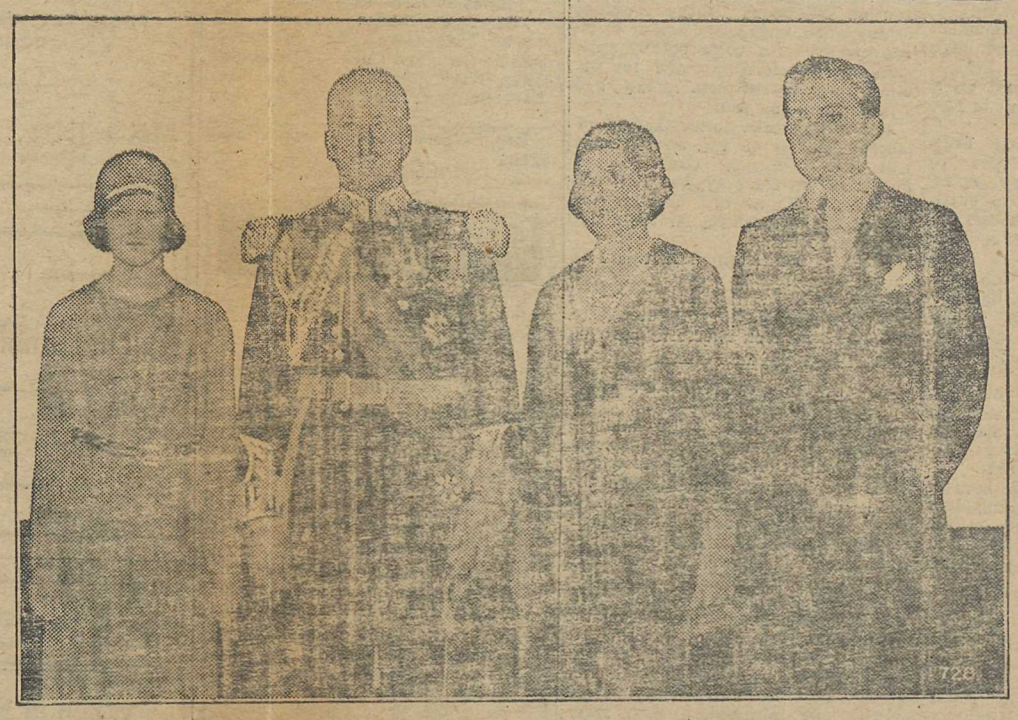
LIQUIDATION SALE

We are informed Mr. Geo. A. Wood, retail stock appraiser and liquidator has taken charge of the old established business of C. V. Prosser, Princeton, and closed the store for inventory and appraisal of stock.

In conversation with Mr. Wood, he informed us that many store throughout B.C. find themselves unable to meet their obligations and in consequence are faced with the necessity of using very drastic measures.

In the case of the Prosser store, Mr. Wood will open a liquidation sale Saturday, April 26, and we are creditably informed that he has marked very low prices indeed on this select stock of boots and shoes and men's wear.

THE VICE-REGAL FAMILY



Before they stepped ashore from the Canadian Pacific liner Duchess of Bedford at Halifax on Saturday April 4th, Their Excellencies and their children posed for their first Canadian photograph.

Fellow passengers on the liner said the Vice-regal party took part very democratically in the ordinary shipboard life, His Excellency presiding at the concert in aid of Seamen's Charities and Viscount Duncannon and his 13 year old sister, Lady Moyra, taking their parts on the programme as elocutionist and pianist respectively.

Looking In Over

(Our own and other people's views.)

COWS AND HOGS

Sweet April is here again with its tender sunshine, its wistful showers its blaze of green and other hyperbolated bunkum that makes poetic licence Moreover, it is the open season for cows and cars and bicycles.

No wonder spring got the poets enthusiastic. Isn't it grand to open thine eyes to the slanting sun and feel the little breezelets tickling your morning's growth, and listen to nature's alarm—the raucous cowbell?

And isn't it thrilling to have a screech and a bellow at your unsuspecting back, hear the scream of brakes and nose the burning rubber as some young fool pulls up behind you without any further warning?

The sidewalks are in demand in the spring time. If the cows have not made good use of them, there is sure to be an urchin fly past on a bicycle built for one, and you can just get off, if you please.

They're great, these small town privileges. It certainly is nice to have your nocturnal visions splattered and be hauled back to earth by a contented cow, even though the said cow is nibbling away at your best rose bush.

The community hog and the community cow go together. In any small town you'll find them. Where the strict limb of the law does not fall heavily and often, then you may do as you please, whether it be letting your cow run around the main drag or honking your horn in front of your sweetie's door for half an hour. It suits YOU. Then why worry about the other fellow?

And so, while the sage fathers of the village drum and dote and dear old Princeton goes creepingly on, the auto horn in Z flat and the contented cow (fed on rosebuds) will be always with us.

SCIENTIFIC INTOXICATION

To beer or not to beer is the eternal question for Ole Bill. And the cup that cheers does have its problems. Today however, intoxication is just a matter of science. The romance has all went.

And now comes a very wise and more than very bold medico from Vancouver and tells us that intoxication for the average persons results from three ounces of whisky, or, if you prefer to be ill about it, six tablespoonstul, nurse.

The whole matter came to light in court the other day. And they all seemed to know something about it. The doc agreed that drinking on an empty stomach just about doubled the effects (our charge for this money saver is ten dollars, please) and the same doc also said that it is bad business to mix drinks, which might also be true.

An average drink is an ounce. The judge agreed on this point. "It all depends on who is buying the drinks," rejoined the counsel for the plaintiff. And that boy knew something too.

LETTING THE CAT OUT

And while we are on the subject, science has come to the rescue in another way. It is only too bad that this wasn't thought of a few years back when it WAS the case for the HUBBY to come in at 3 a.m. and find the WIFE keeping vigil.

Now this is good (and handy). Science has come to the aid of wifes (yeh?) and traffic policemen (no doubt) by announcing the perfection of a chemical breath detector which they say never fails (now that's nothing to be proud about).

A doctor of the University of Indiana, who on that qualification really ought to know better, recently told the American Chemical Society of a device which will make possible "unerring detection of intoxication by takng a sample of the human breath and subjecting it to simple chemical tests."

So if one of these days you see friend copper running around with a supply of toy balloons, don't think he's been drinking. It's probably you. And if he insists that you inflate one of them for him, well, just accommodate. And if friend wife accosts you with a test tube and demands a sample of your breath she's not necessarily suspecting halitosis. Just remember that you promised to love, honor and obey.

There is a new auto driver on the road who dodges around trees, hits rocks and piles of timber, and has had no serious accident yet. John says he will not ride with him, but the driver is born to be hung, not to be killed by a common auto. He is still buying on shoes in case he has to walk.

SPRING COMPETITION PASSES FIRST ROUND SUNDAY WITH FEW SURPRISES; MRS. SORENSON WINS

The spring competition, first regular event of the local golf season is now well under way, with second round games scheduled to be finished this week. Play opened on Sunday when twelve players were engaged.

Meanwhile Mrs Sorenson has taken the first honors of the season winning a hidden hole event staged by the ladies on Sunday. She had plenty of rivalry, however, four players having the same score, four on the first draw for holes.

On the second draw, however, Mrs. Sorenson had a six, which was good enough to win. She made a four on the first hole and a six on the fourth.

Handicaps played their share in the men's event, the notable upset being the defeat of Hooper by Shorthouse. Most of the fancied ones survived the initial round however.

Two of the second round ties have already been played, the players having received a bye in the first round. Sorenson, one of the club's most consistent players, made a good start to the season when he defeated Coles senior, a steady player. He again meets formidable opposition in the semi-final in Ewart.

RESULTS

First round—Hazzard beat Caldwell; MacDonald beat Forsyth; Shorthouse beat Hooper; Gray beat Coles Jr.; Coles Sr., Sorenson, Ewart, and Harris a bye.

Second round — Sorenson beat Coles Sr; Ewart beat Harris; Hazzard vs. MacDonald; Shorthouse vs Gray.

Varsity Enters Canadian Final

PI CAMPBELL STILL STARRING AS U.B.C. CLIMBS NEARER DOMINION TITULAR HONORS

Though new colors are representing [illegible] far west [illegible] province, British Columbia is again expected to be wearing the championship crown when Canadian basketball honors are decided at Vancouver April 29 and May 1.

Varsity, standing as successors to the Canadian champion Adanacs whom they defeated in their spectacular climb to provincial honors disposed of the much talked of Winnipeg Toilers in somewhat easy fashion [illegible] the week-end and will now meet St. Catherines, who have taken Eastern Canadian honors.

The championship series this year is full of interest for the Similkameen fans in that one of the principal cogs in the Varsity machine is Harry "Pi" Campbell, who played last year in Princeton's colors.

Campbell was again the outstanding player of the Toilers-Varsity semi-final when he ran in eight points to give Varsity a magnificent victory in the first game, and added a useful five in the second, when Varsity was content to hold their lead.

Several applications for membership were forward when Kamloops Tennis Club held its annual meeting last week The Slazenger ball was adopted as officials, and it was decided that no "part time" subscriptions be accepted.

KAMLOOPS POLO

With thirty three successful years behind it, Kamloops Polo Club launched its 1931 season at the annual meeting Saturday. The playing season has already started. A fine will be imposed on players who are late [illegible] engagements.

GROCERY PRICES BACK TO PRE-WAR RANGE

For the first time since the war grocery prices have gone back to what they were in 1914 and because of the steady decline, people are buying from hand to mouth instead of in quantities as they used to some years ago, says a local wholesaler.

Further the average citizen has not the ready money to spend on extra groceries or they are confident that the present low prices will continue and the thought of stocking up for a future famine seems unnecessary to them.

Canned goods are moving freely and are in great demand by the buying public as is butter, which is practically all Canadian, and many business men do not think Australian and New Zealand butter a serious competitor for the Canadian.

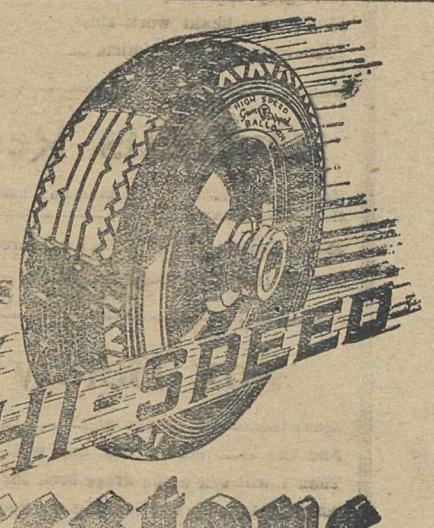
Two Extra Features in the NEW HI-SPEED Firestone GUM-DIPPED TIRES



FIRESTONE, pioneers of balloon tires, announces a new tire which surpasses in strength, in safety and in wear-resisting qualities, any tire that has ever been built. This new tire, at no extra cost, incorporates two new added features—

Balanced Construction—which eliminates "tramp" or "shimmy" and is the only way of holding tires on the road at high speeds.

The Double-cord Breaker—which increases adhesion between the tire body and tread by 69%. It insures that absolutely no road shocks can reach the body of the tire and cause a blowout, and, no matter what the speed or the usage, the tread simply cannot be torn off—The tire is safe at any speed!

Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires have won and held all official records for mileage and endurance. You cannot afford to do without the extra strength and safety that only Firestone can give you. See your nearest Firestone Dealer today—he serves you better and saves you money.

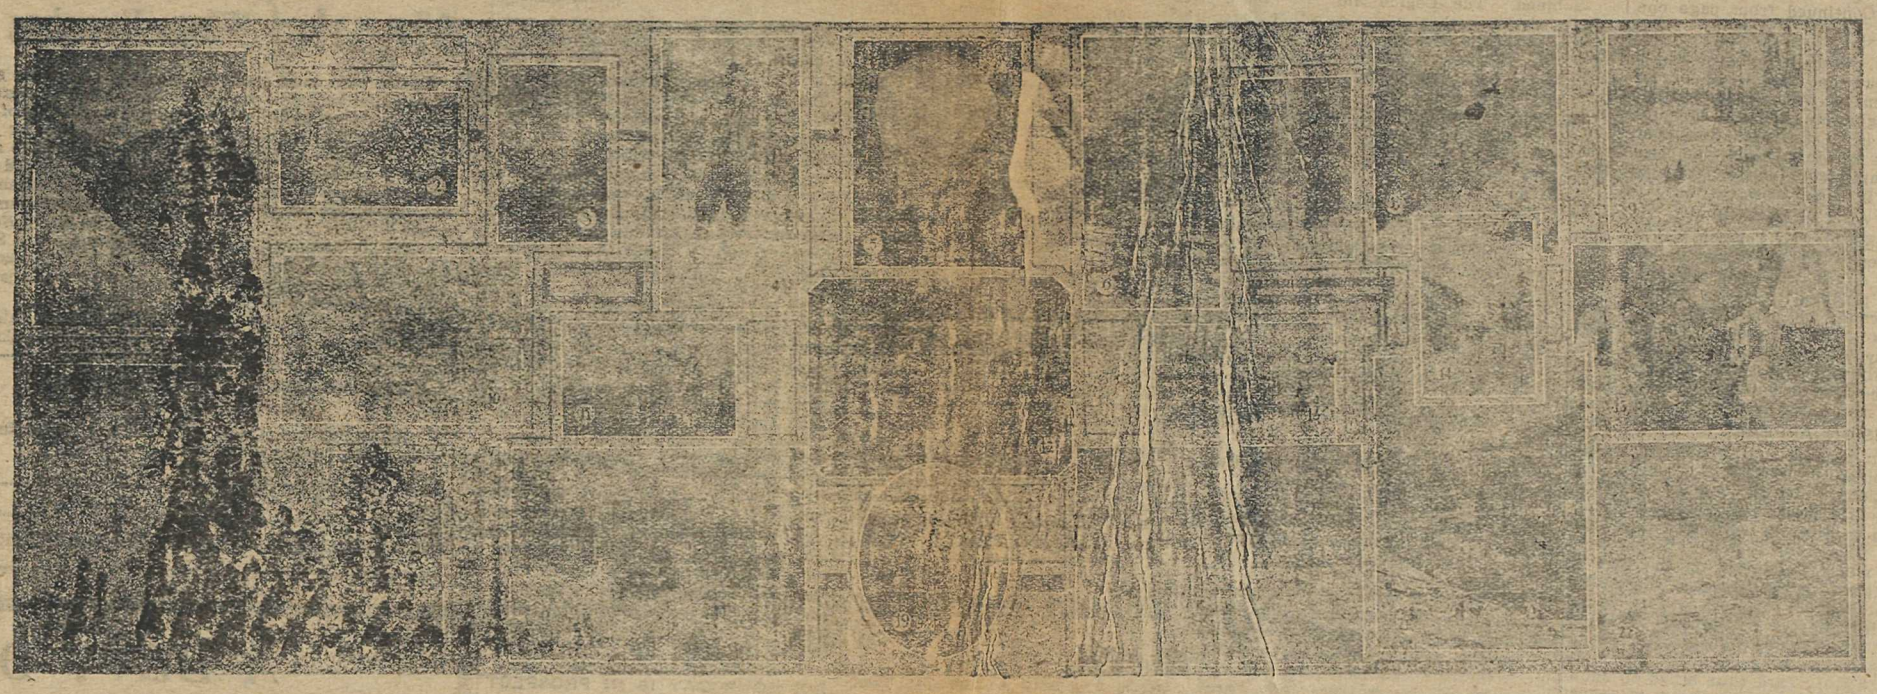
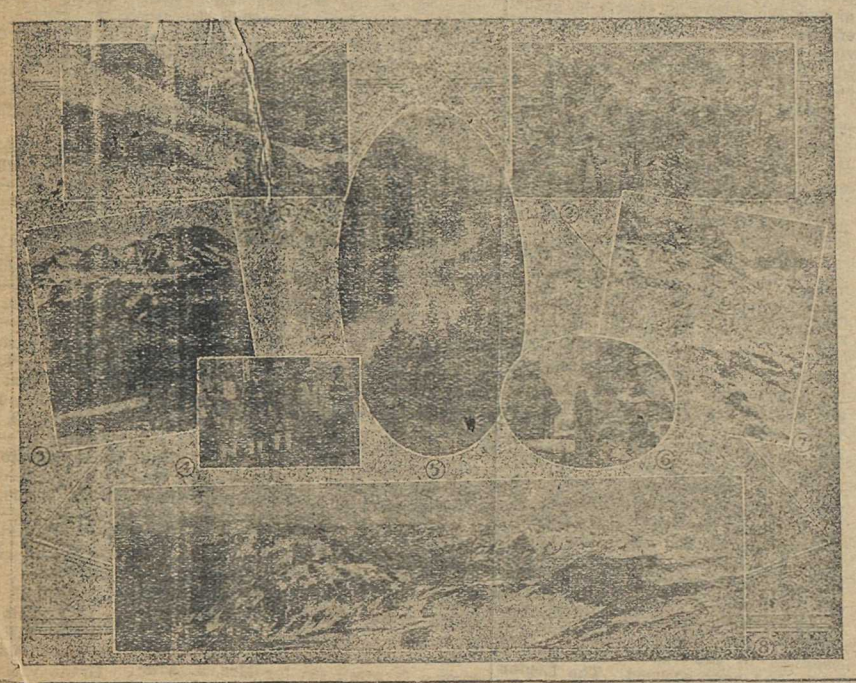
Cameras Click As Beautiful Similkameen Is Bridged By Telephone





The beauties of the Similkameen have often been extolled, but seldom has a better representation been obtained than by the camerman of the B.C. Telephone Company when the party recently made surveys in connection with the routing of the trans-Canada line through the district.

Engineering the trans-Canada line. 1) A scene between Romeo and Iago. (2) Richter Mountain (3) The Richter home. (4) A. Dalgleish at Coquihalla Pass. (5) Looking out of Tunnel No. 3 in the Coquihalla section. (6) On the track at Portia. (7) A. Dalgleish driving the last stake on the Coquihalla job. (8) R. A. He acted as a guide for W. R. Fleming's party. (12) Lunch time near Brodie Left to right: R. A. Story, Frank Wolokoff and Hubert Hawley. (13) The outfit cars of Story's party at Coquihalla Station. (14) A snow shed. (15) A. Dalgleish, R. A. Story, H. Hawley and F. Wolokoff in their bunk car. (16) Erecting a "train" pole at Coquihalla Pass. (17) A typical snow scene. (18) Jessica Siding. (21) Lower Coquihalla Lake (22) A view southwest from the summit of "Mount Wolokoff." Telephone Talk is indebted A. Dalgleish, R. A. Story and W R. Fleming for the above pictures.

Engineers and construction men walked some 200 miles over country like the above in the preliminary surveying work for the trans-Canada line. Lundy by their campfire. (7) A. H. Lemmon George McCartney and J. Lundy on the top of Bedded Range, with the Coquihalla Mountain in the background. (8) Looking south from the top of Bedded Range. R. A. Story contributed these pictures.

Speaking on the subject of publicity for a chain of retail stores serving many smaller cities and towns, the store director of the company describes the local newspaper as "our best clerk." He explains that it sees more people, gets more of their individual time, works longer hours, and tells its story with more accuracy than any other clerk they can employ. These papers are going into the homes of the people, and are assured of their friendly attention. This is proved by the tremendous growth in importance of the press in the last few years, according to this authority, who declares that today the newspaper is the newspaper is the backbone of any constructive sales effort.

cases, whether proof of war disability can be established or not. At present treatement is allowed at Shaughnessy military hospital, but this is a discrimination against interor residents, and the Legion is attempting to have transportation paid in such cases.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

The Old Age Pension was another matter which had given the returned man a great deal of dissatisfaction. The previous provision was that no allowance be made under 70 years. Thus many worn-out men were actually wishing their lives away. Now an allowance is made at the age of 60, being $40.00 monthly for a married man and $20.00 for a single man.

PENSION APPEAL

But perhaps most important of the unsolved problems of veterans' legislation is the pension appeal. The present appeal machinery which has been established at a gret cost, has not proven a success. There was too much inclination on the part of the government to regard the purely legal aspect.

Often a soldier foolishly failed to report an illness which was later to have serious consequences. His medical history card thus failed to show any evidence why he should be granted war disability, though it was obvious from a medical standpoint that his disability was drectly due to war causes.

Appeal is generally a last resource, for in any event whether appeal is upheld or not there is an automatic cut of 50 per cent., with no opportunity to go back to the pension board. In British Columbia the appeal council was very satisfactory, thanks to the liberal interpretation of the statutes made by Col. Cy Peck. Above the local councils, however, is the final tribunal of three man, which interprets the law in its full literal sense, with the result that of sixty claims successfully appealed in British Columbia 36 had been carried by the government to the appeal board and had been reversed, while another 11 had been referred back. The board had no opportunity to obtain evidence, ubt could overturn the decision of a tribunal which had. The Legion considered the tribunal's decision should be final.

Provision for the education of the more unfortunate of veterans' children had been made in the form of scholarships, eight-five such bursaries being granted last year. A humane provision for those returned men confined to the Essondale mental home had been secured. The Legion wished to do something or these unfortunate men and could not single them out for better treatment in a public ward. A $200,000 building would be opened in connection with the provincial convention May 27.

AMALGAMATION

A move now being made chiefly by the Army and Navy veterans for co-ordination did not appeal to the speaker. Whereas the Lagion had over 900 branches in Canada, the Veterans had 48, and other organizations in favor of amalgamation were far smaller. Thus if the union of the five materialized on a council of ten the Legion would have two votes, though they represented 80,000 men far more than all the others combined. The Legion did not likely consider such a union on other than a representative basis.

In closing the speaker paid tribute to the branches of the interior as the real backbone of the Legion's work. He was now completing a persona survey of the work throughout the province, and had visited every branch except three in the Peace River.

President W. A. Wagenhauser who occupied the chair warmly thanked the speaker for his address. A. E. Howse spoke in support of the returned man's rights, and other speakers were also heard. Several musical numbe. were given. Refreshments were served.

LOCAL ARTISTS IN PLEASING EVENT

(Unavoidably held over.)

Local artists and artistes were well erceived Tuesday evening when Rev. A. W. Robinson presented in the Parish Hall his second cafe chantant. The room appeared as a salon, tastefully decorated. There was a good attendance.

Rev Robinson opened with a piano selection, followed by a Scottish recitation by Mrs. Humphreys. Mr Allan Clark favored with a violin solo. This was followed by a song by Mrs. Meher and a trombone solo by Mr. Ed Hughes. Mr. Robinson gave a rollicking sea song, while a beautiful violin solo by Mr. W. Francis brought the first part of the program to a close. Mrs. Meher, Mr Clark, Mr. Robinson and Mr. Francis all contributed items to the second part. A delightful evening closed with "The King."

Assisting artists and artistes were Mesdmaes Meher, Humphreys, and Messrs. Waterman, Clark, Francis Hughes and Robinson. Mrs. R. M Irwin accompanied all performers.

Assisting with refreshments were Mesdames C. Bernard, H. Timms, F. Bromfield, E. Miller, Miss P. Dodd and Mrs. J. L. Lundy.

LEGION WAS BEHIND WATT INVESTIGATION

Explanation by Major R. Macnicholl of how the Canadian Legion used its influence for the Watt dismissal case, in defense of a principle, gave the now famous case a new significnace. The explanation was made by the provincial organizer in an address here.

The Legion learned that Mr. Watt had been dismissed and ascertained that there were no good grounds for alleging active political partisanship. It then approached the government and asked for a full explanation. Then Finance Minister Shelly refused access to the file. Col. Cooper, provincial president of the Legion then undertook to secure access to the file, and was similarly refused.

Thereupon the Legion demanded an official investigation and chose of necessity to work through the opposition. It was successful in having a full enquiry made, whereupon it was found that the charges of partisanship were absolutely unfounded. The man who filed the complaints later refused to appear to establish them. The Legion acknowledged the fair attitude taken by Justice W. A. McDonald at the hearing.

The Legion had thus fought an important principle. It was not so much interested in the Watt case as what lay behind it. As one of its members the Legion was entitled to insist that Mr. Watt received justice. It used its full authority to do so and was powerful enough to bring justice about.

"We fought a principle," Mr. Macnicholl held. No one henceforth whether a member of the Legion or not, need have any fears of dismissal without cause, once this precedent has been established. We took the stand that the word of a common man was as good as that of a cabinet minster."

SIX HOUR DAY IS IN PROSPECT

A six hour day for British Columbia is actually being talked on the floor of the house. A motion by Col. Nelson Spencer (Conservative), supported by Geo. S. Pearson (Liberal) was seriously considered until Premier Tolmie suggested a withdrawal of the motion in view of the premier's proposal to take up the whole matter of unemployment at the next conference with the federal ministers.

The motion, which called for a conference instituted by the Dominion government to propose a six-hour day in certain trades and industries in Canada and the United States shows how actually near the shorter day is at hand. The proposers agreed that the labor situation is becoming worse and believed that British Columbia should take the lead in finding ways to alleviate conditions.

Mr. A. D. Broomfield who recently underwent an operation in a coast hospital is reported to be making isfactory progress.
