Round About

The Printer's Devil

George Harmon said the midnight fiesta after the telephone cut-over was an awful experience, but the thrill of turning down his fellow officers in the first conversation over the new line was worth it. The after effects were doubtless responsible for his absence the following evening.

* * * *

Commissioner Humes said they plan road work in Washington two years in advance. Well, they have about the same idea in B.C., only it's the money they spend two years in advance.

* * * *

A visitor intimated that John Mc Cormack's picture at the Capitol this week end would prove the finest ever seen in Princeton.

Local Origins

THE PRINCETON SCHOOL.

The Princeton school is nearly as old as the Twentieth Century. In the year 1900 Miss Murray accepted the position of teacher of Princeton's temporary school which opened on Sept. 3rd of that year, or was scheduled to. The school which had already been begun at Allison, was closed on October 3rd of the same year, Princeton becoming the school center.

THOUSANDS OF CONNECTIONS CHANGED IN AN INSTANT

Princeton Becomes Strategic Point on Canada's 'Phone Map

With the pulling of two switches and the snipping of a few temporary wires, one hundred and thirty telephones in Princeton and Coalmont, and connections with the entire outside world changed to a new control at the stroke of midnight, Sunday, October 25.

But not one of those telephones or connections knew anything about it, nor, from point of service did any of users; and indeed the whole event, the consumation of months of labor, would have passed off without anyone suspecting it, had not there been an unusual display of energy by an augmented telephone staff since the first sod was turned in the building of Princeton's new telephone exchange early in the summer.

But if the little army of telephones and connections could have realized what was happening, they would have swelled with pride as they felt the tickle of a new current, for they were changing their headquarters to a new address, and one they can swank about, too, if you please.

Princeton's new telephone exchange was formally and practically opened and pressed into service at midnight Sunday, giving Princeton quarters and equipment which cannot be surpassed by any town, in proportion to size.

In addition to the acquisition of fine new quarters and apparatus, Princeton made no uncertain gain by Sunday's cut-over, for the installation in the new building included besides local apparatus, a stepping-up unit for the trans-Canada line, thus giving this point considerable importance.

The task of changing al this delicate equipment to a new keyboard in a location several hundred feet away impresses the layman as a stupendous task, but the amount of time absorbed in making the actual cut-over was no greater than required by Annie to drop her powder puff when your disc drops as you put in a call; and Annie has been on the job a long time now.

Yet though the change was so insignificant a thing from a service point of view, it did not pass without ceremony. A smal but representative group looked on as Mr. Reuben Brighton, installation chief, snipped the wires, and officials in Vancouver were listening in on the line.

The entire installation and splicing crews, were on hand for some minutes before twelve, and work became acceleratd as the zero-hour approached.

Operator Miss Jessie Adamson went to her usual seat on the night shift, and agent and chief operator Miss Annie Cunningham was seated at the board in the new office.

The visitors watched as the last connections were slugged in, aand on schedule superintendent E.J. Davis gave the signal. A switch was pulled in the old office immediately cutting off that control, while the puling of a similar master switch in the new office brought everything under its control. The group watcded, wrapped in a tense silence. Nothing happened, and there was an air of suppressed disapointment. But nothing was supposed to happen.There was not even a pop. It was just like that..

MAKE FIRST CALL

President P.W. Gregory of the Princeton board of trade made the first call throug the medium of the new board speaking to G.M. Harman as vice-president and also secretary of the Associated. Dave Taylor, secretary of the board, and editor of the Star, took up the conversation from Mr. Gregory, but was no more sluccessful than his chief in the attempt to borrow a cool half million. Mr. Gregory also put through calls to W.A. Wagenhauser, president the Associated, and to Mr. A.E. Howse

The first outside call was registered by Friday, the popular Chinese night clerk at the Princeton hotel, but he did not show the emotion he did when he met that bear.

These preliminaries over, the campaign was on, and the routine business calls began to come through, as the new office and equipment was dedicated to the service of the community.

The new telephone office is something may wel be proud of. It is of ample size to acomodate local demands for a good many years, and is well and atractively built in every respect. The equipment throughout is of the very latest From the operators' point of view the change is a blessing, for the quarters are much more commodious, comfortable, wel heated and well lighted.

AND THEN. .

It was only right that an event of this sort should be duly celebrated, and no one was surprised when Mr. Davis invited the whole crowd for a bite to eat. But it was a very different matter when they found themslves sitting down to a full course dinner at one ante meridian. But despite their protests, al made a very good job of it.

Rising to congratulate Mr. Davis on the successful consummation of the telephone company's local construction efforts this summer, Mr. Gregory remarked on the magnitude of the feat just performed, and yet the ease with which the big change was made, and paid a compliment to the company's efficiency, also acknowledging the very many favors Mr. Davis had performed.

Mr. Davis took very little or the credfor the success of the undertaking. It was just an every-day event in the life of a telephone company, though hardly so in his district, and he was very proud of the accomodation now provided here. He extended thanks to the various brancehs of the company's service which had co-operated in the local undertaking, and also to the local maintenance man, and the switchboard staff. He also acknowledged the fine spirit of this community, and assured th gathering that it was the desire of

NIGHTHAWK CUTOFF SEEMS AS GOO DAS ACCOMPLISHED

ALL HALLOW'S

Saturday is Hallowe'en, the night when elves and goblins walk, and gates have a habit of trotting off too. Appearance of divers hideous masks in the streets betray the intntions of small boys, and give warning of a deluge of soaped windows. Last year was an epic event in Princeton, but present appearances indicate all quiet on the western front.

Roads Commissioner of State Endorses Road Project

Pressing still further thebuilding of theOroville-Nighthawk cutoff, to link with the Hope-Princetonton road, a group of Washington chamber of commerce and good roads association representatives visited the Similkameen this week, travelling over the route of the proposed road, and meeting with Similkameen delegates at Princeton ann Keremeos; ann bringing with them State Roads Commissioner Sam B. Humes and several of his engineers...

The party numbered seventeen. They combined business with pleasur and enjoyed the thrill of pheasant hunting in the lower valley.

As a result of Monday's visit, Similkameen trade board officials feel that the cut-off is as good as built, providing through the valley the most direct and the acepted route for north-central and eastern Washington traffic through to the coast. It will be a shorter route than any through American territory.

Commisioner Humes left no doubt as to his own enthusiasm for the cut-off, and as Mr. Humes, recommendatationsc carry considerable weight, it is considered likely that his promise to ask for $15,000 for a survey, andsufficient to launch considerable construction will become an established fact after the 1933 sesion of the State legislature at Olympia.

Mr. Humes stated that he and his engineers had considered the problem, and that he approved of it. He accorded it his suport some months ago, but by a clerical error inclusion of this item was overlooked when the roads budget was brought in early this year.

Mr. Humes outlined the roads policy of the state, stating that politics were completely alienated, and all work planned two years in advance. All work is done by contract.. Th state had built 1700 miles of dustless highway in the lsat three years, and would shortly have every county seat in the state connected by dustless road. Completion of another state road into Curlew left the way open to concentrate on this Canadian connection. At Oroville the system will link up with the federal hikghway system. Road construction and maintenance costs the state a million dollars each month, and at the present time the state has under construction $10,000 000 of new road.

Hon. W.A. McKenzie, minister of mines and Similkameen representative in the B.C. legislature had, at the recent roads confrence at Olympia, at which he was present, assured the Washington officials that he was heartily in favor of the project, and would do all he could to secure the improvement of the Canadian section of the new road. This was attested to also by Chas. Mc Ginty, former county highway commissioner for Chelalis county, woo also said that Washington raod associations and the public generally were beginning to become enthusiastic for the road.

Mr. Lund of Tonasket held that the Nighthawk cutoff was the next step in the logical sequence of Washington's highway construction program. They have completed the Curlew construction and were asking wher from here? The Cariboo trail was not inviting. The new Hope-Princeton highway would give them the short alternative route they were looking for.

Mr. Silver of Tonasket and Mr.Johnson, president of the Oroville chamber of comerce, were also speakers at Princeton, where a special meeting of the council of the board of trade was held.

President P.W. Gregory assured the visitors that Similkameen boards were enthusiastically in favor of the project, and would insist on the improvement of the short connecting link on the Canadian side. E.E. Burr, chairman of the roads committee,Dave Taylor,board secretatary, W.A. Wagenhauser, chairman of the Associated Boards of the Similkameen, H.C. Mc Guffie, N.B. Mc Fadden,Rev. J.C. Goodfellow, and J.G. Biggs, and J.A. Brown and Chas. H. Armstrong were also speakers.

The visitors were entertained at dinner prior to the business session.

Princeton sent a full contingent of teachers to the Okanagan teachers convention, which was, according to reports, a record event.

Dr. G.G. Sedgwick, head of the Departmnt of English of the University of British Columbia, delivered the feature address, depicting the modern trend in poetry, music and art.

DEPARTMENT STORE ENTERED

Register and Safe Unopened By Burglar Who Got $29.00

Another local store was entered last week and a small loot obtained The matter was not reported to the police.

Burglary, so uncommon in Princeton, was committed early Sunday morning when the Princeton Departmental Store and got away with $29.00 in cash and several articles of men's clothing. No arrests have been made to date

The thief or thieves evidently were well acquainted with the premises. After gaining an entrance to the warehouse at the back of the store by forcing the door, he whittled a hole in the door leading to the store, put his hand through, and drew back the latch.

The cash obtained was easily gotten. It was change, and had been left on the ledge of the cash register after it had been counted. Apparently no attempt was made to open the safe, or even the cash register, on which the silver was found, indicating that the job was the work of an amateur.

The plunder comprised ten dolars in twenty-five cent pieces, ninteen dollars in five and ten cent pieces.

A pair of boots, several pairs of socks, and other articles of men's apparel were also taken.

There are living quarters immediately above the store, in which Mr. and Mrs. Wagenhauser were asleep at the time. They heard no disturbance. The store is at the principal corner in the town, and a pilot light is always left burning The streets are as a rule occupied until very late Saturday night, and this week was even more lively than usual. Const. T.MacAndrew passed the premises about 4 a.m. and everything seemed in order.

This is one of the few burglaries in Princeton in recent years. The last occured early this year, when the office of th Princeton Light and Power Company was broken into from the rear, just after it had been left in the evening and a smal quantity of cash taken. Prior to that the last burglary was that perpetrated by a well known criminal, who, with an accomplice, opened the stfe of Burns and Co. They were arrested but one man made a sensational escape, only to be caught again near Juliet after a thrilling chase. Police are continuing to work on the present case. The trifling loss in no way affects the establishment.

ABOUT two hours after eating many people suffer from sour stomachs. They call it indigestion. It means that the stomach nerves have been over-stimulated. There is excess acid. The way to correct it is with an alkali, which neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

WALLACE WINS FROM STUBBS

Vancouver Battler Forces Local Man to Quit In Ninth

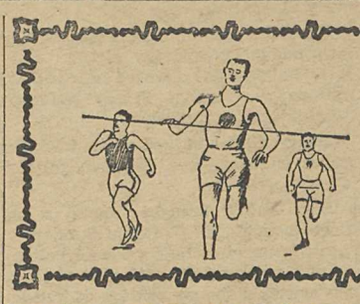
Gordon Wallace, clever Cavalry Club boxer, made a chopping block of Kid Stubbs Saturday night, and forced the local man to concede the verdict in the ninth round of their scheduled ten-round fight, the main event of an atractive card in Ed. McLenan's fistic emporium.

Stubbs was the victim of mistaken tactics against a decidedly cleverer man. His only hope lay in crowding the elusive coast youngster in the early rounds, and so upsetting him, but instead, he tried to box him ,and this was easy for Wallace. As Stubbs, a target for stinging lefts, began to weaken, Walace crowded on al lthe harder, and put the local man through a gruelling time. Stubbs lived up to his reputation for gamenes, and took a lot of punishment until, reeling on his feet and with no chance for victory, he gave up near the end.

Wallace showed some very nice form. He was fast, hard to get at, and he knew how to make the most of an opening.

As for Stubbs, he was clearly out-boxed, and at no time looked like wining, though in the opening rounds he provided plenty of opposition. His punches ccaused the nimble coaster to respect him, but he lost chance after chance by failure to follow up at the opportune moment.

Walace showed real class, and his showing here will be joyously hailed. He was considered a short-distance fighter only, not having risked more than there or four rounds, and Jack Alan, manager of Billy Townsend, had a bet with him that he could not stay the ten rounds of this engagement He was not required to, but he was laying on hard when he forced Stubbs to quit, and seemed to have plenty in reserve.



SPORT

Babe Belanger, nimble and funny, may not be a good enough fighter to stop Johnny Foster, but he made a big hit with the fans by his sportsmanship Belanger was shifty, and though he did not deal out much punishment to Foster, he man aged to keepj pretty well out of the way of the serious-minded Foster. Foster's heavy punches were felt, however, and Belanger began to look the worse for wear. In the third round of their scheduled four round bout, Fosteer, over-eager for a knock-out, hit before Belanger was properly up after a knock-down, and Referee Jim Norman, having previously warned him, awarded the bout to Belanger on a foul. The smiling one, however, was not badly hurt, and declined to take advantage of the ruling. The fight accordingly continued, and Foster received the decision.

In the other preliminary, Gab. Schulli and Harry Cunliffe fought a whirl wind draw.

The crowd was not as large as the calibre of the card merited

Princeton is due for another rattling ood fight card soon, and the bright spot may be Joe Townsend, brother of the flashy Billy.Ed. McLennen, whogained the confidence of t hefans at the first attempt Saturday, is angling for Joe, and believes he can get him.

If Joe comes, he will be matched against Johnny Foster, who has shown himeslf worthy of the best of opposition. Fight cards are promised every fortnight, and Mac is planning to keep them up to Saturday's high calibre.

TELEPHONE STORY

himself and of the company to be of maximum service.

Mr. Al. Miller, construction superindendend spoke of the magnitude of the company's program this year, and told of the progress of the trans-Canada line.

MR. C. C. (HIMSELF) BOULIER, local maintenance man, was given his chance, and made good use of it. He was in great form all evening and he speaks pretty nearly as well as he eats Clarence admitted that one or two others besides himself may have had some thing to do with the local construction workThis is to remind Mr. Bolier that Mr. Miller said he had to take those old poles down.

The only disappointment of the evening came whenMiss Annie Cuningham refused to speak, which everyone considered very odd for a tlephone girl,and especially for Annie. And so, there being no more excitement to garner,, and Annie being as firm as Gibraltar (not physically), and eating being now entirely out of the question, the select spectators of this ephoc in Princeton's telephone history decided to call it a day and went home to leave the telephone service operating as usual, but in fine new quarters of which the town may well be proud.
