A QUOTATION FOR THE WEEK

THE WEEK'S WEATHER

Cold nights prove that the little groundhog knew his business. The mercury this week has more than once come near zero.

LOOKING IT OVER AND OVERLOOKING PLENTY

TECHNOCRACY

The price of stocks was falling fast,
As through the great depression passed
A youth who bore, 'mid howl and whine,
A banner with the magic line, Technocracy!
His brow was high (an all-time height);
His eye was burning Tiger-bright;
Of energy, per cap, he sang
And ended with the grand old bang—Technocracy!
"Try not the peak ,the old man said;
"It isn't here—we're in the red!"
The youth held up a staggered chart
And uttered from his lion heart Technocracy!
"Oh, stay," the maiden said, "and rest
Thy weary head upon this breast
The young man read the market's range,
And sought another social change,
Technocracy!
A traveller by the faithful hound
(Who fed on ticker tape) was found,
Buried beneath a giant graph ,
But managed at the last to laugh Technocracy!

—Exchange.

And now the only question is, who was responsible for this crazy state of affairs? Did Technocracy bring on the jig-saw puzzle craze, or was the jig-saw the origin of Technocracy?

Little Texas Guinan, who has "it" and capitalizes on it, got a big hand the other night, but it wasn't the kind she looks for. Four Chicago bad men greeted her in front of her Chicago hotel and relieved her of $40,000 in jewellery and her $2700 fur coat.

Obituary

KENNEDY

Death occurred recently at Vancouver of Hugh Kennedy, the well known Ashnola old timer. He had been ailing for some time and had been in Vancouver. However ,his death in an ambulance was a shock. He was being taken to hospital after an attack in the Balmoral Hotel. He was in his eightieth year.

Born 1853 at Ashford, Canterbury, New Zealand, he used to relate with pride that he came of a long-lived stock, his father having worked behind the plow at the age of 98.

In 1871—just about the time British Columbia entered the Confederation, he came to Canada, and worked in the Monarch mine at or near Field. He then moved on to the United States. He first appeard in the Similkameen in 1890, and settled at Ashnola in the days when that now barren spot threatened to outdo Princeton. He was a prospector.

Last fall after a series of illnesses he was prevailed to leave his lonely cabin and moved to Vancouver.

A keen observer and a lover of naure, he was an eager collector, and a myriad of butterflies, fossils, etc., made his cabin a unique spot indeed. Some months ago he donated a number of fossils to the Native Daughters of British Columbia.

LACY MUST STAY OUT OF PRINCETON

Given Suspended Sentence As Agitator; Will Appeal

JAMES LACY, alias Patrick S. Driscoll, alleged agitator, was to-day ordered to leave Princeton within 24 hours ,on suspended sentence, on a charge of vagrancy.

Arthur H. Evans, himself on bail on a more serious charge of advocating governmental change by use of force, defended Lacy, and immediately announced intention to appeal.

According to the terms of the sentence imposed by Magistrate Dodd, Lacy is subject to summary arrest and sentence if he appears in Princeton within the next six months.

Though he pleaded not guilty and is appealing the case, Lacy condemned himself in his own evidence when he admitted in cross-examination that at the time of his arrest he was without visible means of support and refused to answer the questions of police officers.

This was precisely the charge laid against him under section 238A of the Criminal Code. In handing down judgment the Magistrate said he based his conviction on this point and there could be no other finding. He considered it more just to suspend sentence, and advised Lacy to register for relief elsewhere under the name of Driscoll, which he said was his correct name.

CROWN CASE

The crown case ,presented by Constables Thomson and Miller, and conducted by Sergeant G. J. Duncan, was briefly that these officers accosted Lacy on Vermilion avenue on the night of 28th February, and that he did not satisfy them as to his presence. The officers stated that in answer to their question as to what he was doing in Princeton Lacy said that he was here for the hearing of an appeal of his conviction in December. Const. Thomson retorted that an application to withdraw the appeal had been made by Lacy's lawyer two weeks before, and that if Lacy could not give a more satisfactory reason for his presence he would be arrested on a charge of vagrancy. Lacy said he was staying with Blind Bill (Nicholson) but did not account for his presence in Princeton to the satisfaction of the police, and was arrested, charged with vagrancy and taken to the court house. There he was searched, and all that was found on his person was a piece of cloth, some papers, and an unused Young Communist stamp. He had no visible means of support. Lacy told the officers that he was not an organizer, and had no connection with any organization here.

Const. Thomson said he saw Lacy in Princeton after Lacy's release from Oakalla, and knew that he had not worked since that time. He had seen Lacy speaking in and sitting around the Workers' Center. Const. Curtis Miller added that he had seen him in the picket line during the local strike.

Cross-examined, Const. Thomson admitted that he had never seen Lacy sleeping, nor had he seen him behaving in a boisterous manner.

WELCOME

Several defense witnesses said that Lacy was welcome in their homes, but their was no evidence that he had means of supporting himself.

W. Nicholson, blind, said that Lacy had told him he had been cut off relief, and that he had invited Lacy to his house. Lacy had offered to go to a slave camp. Nicholson said that Lacy had never told him he was an organizer.

He did not know Lacy's motive in changing his name. Nicholson said that he himself lived by the support of his friends.

Mrs. Mary Palmer said that she had never seen Lacy engaged in any organizing work. She had told him he was welcome to come to her house for meals, but he had not come, though he had slept there a few times. She said her husband was on relief. She was questioned by Sergt. Duncan regarding an alleged atheist school for children she is reported to conduct.

Tillia Loski said that he had told Lacy, as a friend, that he could come to his house when he wished. He had come for meals occasiontlly but had not slept there. Loski first knew Lacy at a camp. Lacy had not worked for at least six months. The last time Lacy had a meal there was two weeks ago.

Mary Kraetor said she had told Lacy to come to her house any time he wished. He had slept there but not since coming to Princeton the last time.

Lacy said in evidence that he had registered for relief at Princeton "but was cut off because I made trouble at a camp." "My correct name is Patrick S. Driscoll. I refused to answer the Constables' questions. I had no visible means of subsistence."

Since Lacy said his correct name is Driscoll, he had not properly registered for relief, and his card under the name of Lacy had been cancelled. When he registered Lacy had only been in Princeton a day.

"MOTHER OF LOWER VALLEY' IS 81 TO-DAY

Mrs. R. L. Cawston, "the Grand old lady of the Similkameen" celebrated her eighty-first birthday to-day, Thursday, 9 March.

Mrs. Cawston came from Eastern Canada as a bride to help her pioneer husband hew out one of the first homes in the Lower Similkameen, and tells some vivid stories of those times.

KNUDSEN IS CLUB CHAMP.

IVOR KNUDSEN, popular captain of the club, won the club championship and the right to hold the Princeton Bakery cup when he came home two minutes and 22 seconds ahead of the rest of the field in the race on Sunday. Ole Johansen, recovered from the leg injury he sustained just before the tournament, was runner-up. Andy Stenvold had a run-away in the veterans', and B. Irwin in the youngsers' class.

E. Irwin was first among the tots, Helen Jacobson among the girls, Thelma Eklof among the single ladies and Mrs. Knudsen among the matrons.

Conditions were not exactly ideal, as the snow was hard and fast disappearing, but there was nevertheless no lack of interest.

A few exhibition jumps were made

COUGAR BOUNTY IS AGAIN DISCONTINUED

Cougar bounties have again been withdrawn, according to advices received by local government officials. The order is effective 7th March. Cancellation of this bounty on the most destructive of predatory animals will again be unpopular with woodsmen. The bounty was recently restored after having been cancelled two years ago.

Similkameen Sweepstakes

When Will The Ice on the Rivers Break Up?

WHEN will the ice go out on the Similkameen river? A sort of pseudo-winter lingers on with March days and February nights, and the thaw period has been protracted. Streets are gradually drying up, and the roads are semi-morasses.

The annual break-up of the ice on the Tulameen and Similkameen rivers is the subject of much interest and not a little speculation, and if ever sweepstakes become the thing to do this "Similkameen Sweepstake" will have the Calcutta draw on the retreat.

Last year the going-out of the ice was as sudden as it was spectacular. A week of warm weather in mid-February sent both rivers into a furor, and as they broke their fetters with a sudden rush of power that sent millions of tons of ice down on a raging torrent. At a series of sharp bends a few miles below the confluence at Princeton, where the river is wide and the banks low, the ice piled up over a wide area, completely covering the trans-provincial highway and putting this road out of service for nearly a month.

While there is every bit as much ice and water this year, no such spectacle is anticipated, as the thaw is gradual and slow and the river is breaking up bit by bit giving the ice time to clear.

The annual ice harvest has been under way for some time. Ice is cut and hauled away to be stored for winter use.

FEW CASES WERE HEARD AT SESSION

Most of the Business Was Done Out of Court

FRUITLESS litigation resulted from County Court Sessions in Princeton this week.

Only one of five originally scheduled cases was procedeed with, and in this the setlement was in the nature of a compromise.

Judgment was given for the defendant in a civil action, McRae versus Jennings, and this resulted in a supplementary suit, McRae versus Noble and Jennings, being settled out of court after three hours of court proceedings.

A civil suit, Prosser versus Pope, was also settled out of court.

A claim for board, Phillips versus Caruso was adjourned to the next sitting.

An appeal against a conviction against James Lacy, agitator, made by Magistrate G. F. Guernsay in December, had previously been withdrawn.

Two naturalization applications were allowed and one refused.

CONCERNED PLACER OPERATIONS

The two suits in which D. McRae of Tulameen was plaintiff arose over placer operations in the vicinity of Tulameen.

The claim against Jennings was for storage of machinery and equipment, and against Noble and Jennings for rent and wages. There were complications and counter claims in both instances ,an advance of $200 to McRae being one.

After judgment had been given for the defendant in one case, the second case was settled out of court in the evening, after the case had proceeded for three hours.

Mr. A. S. Black appeared for McRae and Mr. Milton Gonzales of Vancouver for the defendants.

The claim of C. V. Prosser against R. Pope, both of Princeton, concerned a stove. T. B. Hooper appeared for Mr. Prosser, and Mr. Pope acted on his own behalf.

James Caruso made application for an adjournment of a suit for board brought against him by C. Phillip, in order to enable him to get a new lawyer. His application was granted. Mr. A. S. Black had represented him, with Mr. T. B. Hooper appearing for the plaintiff.

This regular session of Yale County court was presided over by His Honor Judge J. R. Brown of Grand Forks.

Four constables from district detachments are in Princeton, no doubt fearing trouble with the return of Arthur H. Evans.

COPPER MOUNTAIN TO PRINCETON ON SKIS

The hardy days are coming back. Before there were autos and locomotives in the Similkameen long trips on foot were quite common. You could get from Copper Mountain to the hub town on your own resources. These days, however ,as a rule it isn't done. The exception was on Saturday, when the veteran Nels Mandelid and young Sandy Campbell made the trip on skis. Campbell took part in the boys' ski race on Sunday ,and Nels was all set on matching his skill in the annual classic against the yodelling milkman of local ski-dom, Andy Stenvold, getting grey but not conceding it. However, they take these meetings very seriously and disagreed over a technicality. As it was Sunday, a lawyer could not be found, and the match did not materialize. The two men, however, no doubt regarded the trip up the mountain in an entirely different light than the downhill journey, and were glad enough to return by car.

CHURCH AND SATAN WIN

The upset of the season was provided to-night when Allenby nosed out the crack Cosmopolitan Store team 22-20. United Church went to the head of the standings, defeating Airport 21-9.

CITY LEAGUE BASKETBALL got away to a flying start Tuesday when the first double header sent the crowd away saying very nice things about a diversified evening's entertainment in which two distinct types of basketball were served up

Hustling their opponents by effective if unorthodox stratedy, the boys from the aviation encampment gave the much favored Motor Devils an interesting 24-13 argument in a game in which nothing was barred except the strangle-hold and even that was invoked in the latter stages of the hectic battle.

In a game that was just the reverse and indeed somewhat drab after the colorful opener, United Church eked out a narrow win over Allenby, 22-19.

The first game was autrociously rough ,the second almost gentle.

The next games take place on Thursday when the strong Cosmopolitan Store team swings into action against Allenby, ,who are due to provide an upset or two before the season is over. Airport tangles with United Church in the other tilt. The Churchmen have been fortified by the inclusion of Scholefield, and will be out to take this chance to go to the head of the standings.

AVIATORS 14, DEVILS 28

When better fun is made, the Airport and the Mecho-Devils will make it. Basketball thrillers may come and go, but as far as the average fan who saw Tuesday's city league opener is concerned, there will never be another game to equal it. Had Tarzan, Ala Babi King Tut and R. B. Bennett and all the other famed characters of history been specially released, they could not have provided more color than in that battle between Technocracy and neocracy. It was an eye for an eye, a bridge for a plate, and a couple of what have you's, if any.

Fond illusions of the brains department of the Infernals that the game was to be a test of ju jit su were rudely shattered in the opening minutes .It was ju-jit-su, all night, but not the "skill versus strength" that the name applies. It was more of catch as catch can, if you get it.

The Airport boys certainly made up in energy what they lacked in experience, and their robust tactics tickled the spectators as much as they worried the Devils. The game went its merry way with little official interference, in a medley of aerial ,land and submarine attacks. The younger members of the Technocrats were crossed up by the surprising reception, and wild passes and missed sitters were the general order. The Airport boys were fast and tireless, and always dangerous.

The Airport scored first, but the Devils soon evened up, and, taking

ARTHUR EVANS IS BACK IN PRINCETON

Agitator Resumes Activities On Return From Vancouver

ARTHUR H. EVANS, alleged Communist agitator, who is facing trial on a serious charge for utterances made here on a previous campaign.

The militant organizer arrived from Vancouver Tuesday morning and lost little time again getting into action.

A multigraphed sheet labelled "an open letter to Attorney General Pooley was distributed on the streets of Princeton shortly after Evans' return, and on Wednesday evening in an address at the Workers' Center he flayed local provincial and federal men and institutions as vigorously as he has ever done here.

On Wednesday he appeared as counsel for James Lacy, on trial for vagrancy, but was unsuccessful, though he immediately announced that he would appeal the decision.

Evans' "open letter' is a typical document. It alleges tha he has been persecuted, and that the government is trying to "railroad" a charge against him, alleges that British Columbia's law officers in various stations are unscrupulous and biased "yes men" and even accuses the attorney-general of "deliberately lying." It demands that cost of Evans' defense shall be borne by the state. The circular says that this letter has been sent to the Attorney General. It asks for a reply.

In this letter Evans states that he "will further rally the workers to demand that all necessary funds for my defense be furnished at the expense of the state."

Local officials categorically denied every allegation made concerning them.

LOCALS TAKE 5 POINT LEAD

RISING to the occasion against big odds, Princeton's Senior C basketball squad went a step nearer Interior honors when they took a five point lead over Kelowna in the first game of the semi-final series. The score was 26-21.

Taking the floor without Cole and McAlpine, and playing only five men throughout, the locals came through with an enhanced reputation.

It was nip and tuck, however, and the game was even closer than the score indicates.

An early fusilade by the home team, in which they could not put a foot wrong, was all but offset by a last half rally by the visitors, who began to find their shooting eye, only to have several long shots which might easily have altered the result, roll out when they could as easily have gone in.

The opening display by the locals was as fine as anything that has been seen on the home floor for some time. Each player was on his toes, and every move counted. Against such play the visitors could only do as well as they were allowed, and Princeton soon picked up a good lead.

In the second half the team play of the locals fell off badly ,and it was well for Princeton that Gregory and Wood kept on as well as ever, for it was only their fine play that kept Princeton ahead. The result was in the balance at the finish.

As a result Princeton enters the second game at Kelowna on Saturday distinct favorites. They will be at full strength, and have the moral encouragement of having already taken a verdict on the Kelowna floor this season.

THE PLAY—

The game opened with both teams checking closely. Kelowna were the first through, but did not get in a shot. Dodd's hurried shot hit the roof. Coles opened the scoring with a surprise shot from 25 feet. Taggart converted on a foul by Wood Beech, who was a thorn in the side of the whole team all night by his uncanny shiftiness, missed from the left. Gregory got the ball unchecked, but his long shot did not connect. He opened his account a minute later however when he scorched through for a pretty basket from the right. An

PRINCETON, B. C., THURSDAY, 9TH MARCH,

Mr. Evans and Mr. Bennett

Arthur H. Evans is in Princeton, and Hon. R. B. Bennett is in Ottawa. Political firecrackers pop in the precincts of legislaton at Ottawa and at Victoria while a barrage of abuse is hurled at our laws, our institutions, our democracy, and those individuals whose sense of duty has put them on the spot. They take bitter, damaging attacks where they deserve praise and commendation. You will find a few of them in Princeton—men who are bearing the individual brunt of the nation's burden—while our modern Nero's fiddle election overtures. All over the country agents of Moscow are holding our government up to ridicule; and our governments are running true to form, and playing the part. Meanwhile individuals who have honestly and honorably pledged themselves to the defence of this democracy that is ours are suffering by the injustices of that system. Mr .Evans says there is something wrong with things in Canada. And we heartily agree with him. His very presence and his very remarks are ample proof of that.

When Mr. Evans came to Princeton he happened to drop into this office for a favor. He wanted 300 posters printed advertising a meeting at which he undertook to vindicate charges made against his character. He came in on a Wednesday night, and though we were in the middle of getting out our paper, we went right to work on his job, and gave him immediate delivery at cost. We worked till 4 a.m. to catch up, and made not one cent on the transaction. Mr. Evans was cordial. We have always professed to be at the service of this community, and as long as we are here, we will. We asked Mr. Evans for the privilege of an interview, that we might clearly represent him to this community. He never came back.

Mr. Evans returned to town the other morning and asked for copies of the Star from the outset of his campaign. He never suggested that they should be paid for. He took them up to his hall and from their truthful and honest contents he found material to malign this newspaper and the board of trade. He says the one is the mouthpiece of the other. He is not altogether right, but he is far from being altogether wrong. The board of trade and the Star are the most representative institutions in this community. They would be spineless snakes if they ignored a question so vital to the interests they serve. We frankly admit our allegiance to both, and we stand behind them and work through them to the last ditch.

Early in December when the writing was on the wall citizens rushed to us and asked that through both these mediums we do all in our power to crush Mr. Evans. We incurred their hostility by declining.

Mr. Evans had a right to a fair hearing on his own behest. And, through an affiliation—which we personally regarded as unfortunate but which was none the less genuine and entitled to recognition, Mr. Evans and his organization represented a genuine local labor problem. We were as much interested in seeing a harmonious settlement, and a fair one, that would profit all elements of the community as was any striker. Just because their methods were not our methods was no reason why we should oppose them. Instead, we proposed to offer them intelligent leadership which we believe could be found in this community—from the men themselves and from the citizens generally, interested in the welfare of this community. The board of trade and the Star were at the personal disposal of Mr. Evans, insofar as he was working for the genuine improvement of this community, and they still are.

At no time has Mr. Evans or anyone interested in his organization been refused access to either. Indeed, when any matter of a controversial nature came up during the heat of the struggle, we personally went to Mr. Evans' hall ,and interviewed the leaders of his organizations. Our attitude has been condemned as much by the extremists on the other side as they have been by those of the other. But we are not being dictated to from either. The only argument we know is honesty and justice. We have been urged to join the extremists, who goodness knows have had provocation enough, in distinctly lawless counter-attacks. We have told them bluntly that we cannot pull with them, and have given them the benefit of our views against such action. It is not enough that a thief should be set to catch a thief.

In Canada there is no call for mob methods. We have instruments of law adequate for all occasions, even the revolution that our communists friends suggest. If they can show us where they have the system we need, they can write us down as one of their staunchest supporters. But they cannot teach us with a club, and they cannot win Canada by the mob psychology they have adopted.

They have, on the contrary, quite expoosed themselves and set rational citizens on their guard—but the legislators, with the solution in their own hands, drowse on, and those of us who are alive to our responsibilities are maligned, and efforts are made to rob us of the confidence of the people our positions compel us to represent.

A delegation waits on Mr. Bennett, demanding the release eight men sentenced for violating our laws. Mr. Bennett gets excited, as the supreme defender of these laws, sufficiently to tell the leader that the leader himself is at the very moment breaking our laws in making such statements as he is——and lets him go forth to break some more laws. The Minister of Justice, co-defender with Mr. Bennett of our Canadian democracy, tells the delegates that he is well aware of the activities of thir organization ,knows its workings and its Russian inspiration. And yet, with laws on the statute books of this nation declaring the criminality of these men and their organization; on top of the voluntary opinion of both of these men, in private life both eminent lawyers, that any jury would convict them; and with unlimited power and complete confidence of the electors who sent them to Ottawa to safeguard this democracy of ours—these lions of justice turn these men loose, more determined to gain by their own methods what these politicians are of course unwilling to do for them. If they could promise them enough votes, would it alter matters any?

Mr. Bennett says the Mounted Police are going to clean up. We may expect some action about 1936. There is not enough co-operation and co-ordination between the various administrative bodies in Canada to intelligently follow the movements of one agitator, as was locally demonstrated a few weeks ago. If Mr. Bennett could spare the time from politics to give the matter his attention, the situation could be cleared up in a month.

Mr. Bennett's apathy is typical of that of a great many representative officials and institutions. The Anyox disorder is dismissed in a paragraph in Hansard, while the Beauharnois incident took volumes. The one was democracy, the other politics.

Though they are looking in the wrong direction for salvation, a good many of the insurgents are not so far wrong when they say that our present system of government is not—in practice—for the people. If a big insurance company had been menaced by statements of a malcontent, the House would have been a-bustle. But Mr Bennett says he knows that the present agitation is going on all over Canada—and says he will have so and so look into it—as if he were filing a letter.

How many newspapers would publish this article—with resources and influence in abundance? How many have refused? How many leaders of thought will, behind closed doors, use the most violent language at a meeting, and then tell their employees that they must refrain from purely vigilistic activities, because it is "bad for business."

The Star—and we think we may also say the board of trade—is going behind no closed doors. We publish the news, and the truth. We publish our opinions, in these editorials, for what they are worth. We do not masquerade them as news. We and what we represent are ready to serve at any hour of the day or night, any man who is trying to benefit this community, be he black or white, Communist or legitimist. Let them try it and see. We have no axe to grind; no intent to work any personal injury. We would do as much for Mr. Evans as a man as we would do for the King. If our methods and our interpretations do not suit either Mr. Bennett or Mr. Evans, it is simply an unfortunate fact. We can assure them, and all their followers ,that we are as sincerely anxious to do what is best for Canada and themselves as they themselves.

SORE THROAT!

Any little soreness in the throat grows rapidly worse if neglected. Crush some tablets of Aspirin in some water, and gargle at once. This gives you instant relief, and reduces danger from infection. One good gargle and you can feel safe. If all soreness is not gone promptly, repeat. There's usually a cold with the sore throat, so take two tablets to throw off your cold, headache, stiffness or other cold symptoms. Aspirin relieves neuralgia, neuritis, too. Use it freely; it does not hurt the heart.

their robustness, the Airport boys were good sports, and while tempers at points became frayed the game was generally fought out in the best of spirits.

UNITEDS 22, ALLENBY 19.

A spirited last quarter rally was not enough to get Allenby past the United Church game in an evenly contested game which was devoid of excitement. The Churchmen won 22-19. They owed, however, to a large degree their initial success to Mark Gregory, a player they forced into service from another team.

Gregory was high point man with 11, and along with Campbell, elongated rookie center, who had 7, did most of the damage for the parsons

The game opened cautiously with plenty of close checking, the reds scoring first, and carrying a small lead through the half. Wood was the rallying point for the Allenby team, and figured in every play, drifting through from guard position to make the majority of his team's baskets. As Gregory went on a rampage the Church pulled well ahead early in the second period, but Allenby rallied and with a little steadiness might well have pulled the game out of the fire. They have one of the most likely looking aggregations in the league, but their performance was very amateurish on Tuesday.

UNITED CHURCH—J. Gibson, Campbell (7) Anderson, Lindsay (2) Garrison, M. Gregory (11), Johnson (2)—22.

PRINCETON CURLERS RETAIN THE CUP

Copper Mountain curlers came and saw but failed to conquer, and Princeton retained the Wagenhauser cup after repelling their invasion Thursday.

Campbell's rink defeated Shorthouse 6-5, but Arthur had a 10-6 win over McKinnon to give the home team the victory 15-12. A return series is proposed.

Two naturalizations were granted in County Court session this week by His Honor Judge J. R. Brown of Grand Forks. A third was refused. Successful applicants were Primo Marochi of Blakeburn, a native of Italy, and Rolf Mhyr of Tulameen, a Scandinavian.

The application of John Cherkosh of Princeton was refused.
