WHEN PAPER WAS SCARCE

Those of you who think the Printer's Devil has a hard row to hoe in these days when he is both cook and bottle washer may comfort yourselves that things are possibly improving—even in the printing business—or "perfession."

We cite just one instance, pro exemplia.

The literary giant does not like to see his efforts diverted to the noble mission of becoming wrapping paper; but on 12 May, 1900, wrapping paper became literature.

The long and short of it is that the supply of paper was held up at the depot at Spence's Bridge, and the then editor, refusing to be beaten, commandeered the town's supply of wrapping paper. And a tidy job he made of it, though one wonders how the wives talked of him as they carried home their fish and steaks, minus wrappings.

And what Jimmy didn't call the C. P.R. makes us believe it was Mrs. Jimmy.

LIBERTY AND LAW

Nonchalantly disembarking from the luxury of the tender, seven men of travel found the local constable both alert and unsympathetic when they indicated they were coming up town to "rai e a meal". Instead they raised themselves in police court, and Magistrate Waterman gave them suspended sentence, with twelve hours to get out of town. They did.

Section 238A of the Criminal Code (vagrancy) formed the vehicle for the charge.

NICKEL PLATE SALE NEAR?

Two very well known Eastern American capitalists are expected here at any time to inspect the mine and mill of the Hedley Gold Mines, Ltd., in connection with negotiations for the sale of the plant which the Star reported last week. It is confidently expected that the deal will go through.

Greetings From The Land Of The Dollar

Senator Horace Smith of Omak carried greetings and goodwill from across the boundary. He spoke of the peaceful neighborhod of the two countries and expressed the opinion that there was still room for mutually helpful co-operation, especially in the matter of trade reciprocity.

President Eric Johnson of the Spokane Chamber of Commerce and President J. W. Johnston of the Oroville chamber both hoped for the time when the highway systems would be linked by the building of the Hope-Princeton road and the Nighthawk cut-off.

Fire of unknown origin swept unexpectedly on the Taylor family, old Allison townsite shortly before eleven o'clock Wednesday morning, while the mother stood helplessly by with her young child.

Mrs. Taylor had gone out to care for the cattle. Her husband was at work, and all the children except the baby were at school, there being no one in the house. She suddenly saw flames. There was no opportunity to secure help, and the family lost everything.

A forestry pump was sent down, and willing hands soon gathered, but there was little that could be done.

The building was one of the oldest and most familiar of local landmarks. It was a largebuilding, comprising two storeys and attic, and was formerly known as the Avery place, the property having been taken over by Mr. Jack Taylor some two years ago. It is understood that the building at least was covered by insurance, but the family's loss is nevertheless heavy.

MURRAY AFTER THE MINISTER

IF MR. GREGORY mixed soda with salt and pepper before leting loose the full charge, George Murray trained Big Bertha on the ministers from the first order to fire. His was the indignant eloquence of the wronged orphan who cannot be taken back, and would not if he could:the matter being the infamous redistribution bill.

MURRAY IS NEW PRESIDENT

George Murray of Blakeburn was the unanimous choice for President of the Associated Boards of Trade of the Similkameen for the coming year when the council held its annual meeting in Princeton prior to the banquet on Friday.

Mr. Murray succeeds Mr. W. A. Wagenhauser of Princeton, who has been handicapped this year by the weight president since the inception of the organization, and an indefatiguable worker, though his efforts have been of his own business duties.

Mr. Muray's electon was a clear expression of the opinion of the Similkameen with regard to the recent redistribution of the riding, which lifted Coalmont, Blakeburn and Tulameen out of the Smilkameen, and transferred them to Yale.

On taking the chair Mr. Murray expressed his opinion of this step as unfortunate, and stated that in his view the two communities were inseparable, though a greater meed of practical co-operation was doubtless required.

He hoped that his feelings with regard to the treatment his end of the riding had received would not work to the disadvantage of the Similkameen, but stated that should this ever be the case he would gladly step down in favor of someone who could do the valley a greater service.

Dave Taylor of Princeton was elected secretary.

The meeting was hurried, and there was so little time left for the discussion of mutual problems that it was agreed to call another meeting in thevery near future.

Mr. Wagenhauser was in the chair with Mr. Gregory recording. Present as delegates were Messrs. Lang and McKenzie (Cawston); Caulfield, Freeman, Lucas, and Murray (Coalmont-Blakeburn-Tulameen). Heeney, (Hedley); Innis (Keremeos) and Burr (Princeton).

Princeton Plays Host To Visitors From Many Points

Speakers Wax Warm In Candid Criticism When Problems of the Similkameen Are Discussed Around Festive Board

SIMILKAMEEN hospitality was in much in evidence Friday when Princeton paid host to scores of visitors from adjacent points and centers considerably farther afield

From Keremeos and Cawston, Hedley and Coalmont, Allenby and Copper Mountain—until Princeton began to take on the well-filled and prosperous appearance of the good old pre-depression days.

From all familiar Washington points, from Merritt and Penticton, Vancouver and Victoria, until one imagined oneself on Granville instead of Bridge street. But many of the faces were familiar. They were all friends of the sunny valley, drawn together by a common purpose and they all looked forward to sampling the renowned hospitality of Princeton, and few were disappointed. It was a great day for everyone.

PRESIDENT IN FORM

It was indeed a vigorous, somewhat strenuous hospitality, typically Princetonian and thev visitors for the first time survived the thrill of the appreciation of that term; while the old stagers renewed their initiation with a zeal that indicated they had learned their lesson.

STRENUOUS HOSPITALITY

The official reception committee set to work at five a.m. to attend the arrival of the morning train—and timepieces—those that were not celebrating—had made their rounds twice before, like the Arabs, their owners folded their tents and silently stole away—and the reason was—there was nothing more to say. Then they went home to read what it was all about in the morning papers—but, alas—they had been celebrating too.

The day was well spent, and Daddy Similkameen was on his best behavior, serving up a real well-cooked day. Cars took the visitors to various points of local interest, with the Hope-Princeton road naturally the head-line attraction; they marvelled at the scenic grandeur and the thrills of mountain driving; they played golf and they accepted other forms of solid hospitality, and some that was not so solid, until it was no wonder that when toast master Wagenhauser opened the flood-gates of oratory, it was no wonder that some of the visitors' poor headswere in a bit of a whirl. But they alllived '

But for the Similkameen it was a case of business combined with pleasure —or pleasure being business— or what have you.

MILLIONS OF WORDS

When the big guns of political economy loomed on the leeward the snipers of the Tulameen opened fire, and a running gorilla warfare was maintained while the dismayed visitors simply marveled—and the Similkameen appeared more of a conundrum than ever.

President-elect George Murray may have realized his duties as premier host—but he interpreted them in a style of hospitality that was typical of himself, putting honesty before cajolery.

PROVOKING PEONIES

President Wagenhauser did his best to balance the giddy affair, but after getting his peonies frightfully mixed, he gave up the ghost, and admitted the task of giving all the deserving orators a hearing beyond even his ingenuous capabilities.

So they finished it in the hotel, we are told.

There was so much to absorb that eating was really a side-issue; but for the hard headed sons of Khan there were plenty of victuals, if you preferred them to eloquence.

And of course there was music—what without music? The orchestra did a lot to make four hours of speech-taking tolerable, and the vocal numbers of Mrs. G. Willis of Keremeos and Mrs. J.A. Brown of Princeton were as usual, delightful.

Floral decorations were provided by Mr. Bolingbroke.

While there was doubtless a certain amount said that would have been better left unsaid, there was likewise a good deal of constructive speaking.

Of the financial aspects we have nothing to report at present, but if the balance was considerably on the wrong side, the banquet was still a success.

Bruhn Defends Work

A DEFIANT DEFENCE of his road policy, and a challenge to anyone to improve on the public works record of his government formed the burden of a spirited address by Hon. R. W. Bruhn, minister of public works, delivered in his usual sincere, straight from the shoulder style.

Mr. Bruhn

The magnitude of the task of any government to provide so large and so sparsely populated a province with an adequate highway system was the chief basis of his defence. When this was considered, his government had made a good job of its public works program.

He cited the need for strict economy at the present time, and the necessity to provide relief work. It was on this basis that much of the present road work was being done.

Lack of finances was handicapping the government, and forcing a curtailment of the relief program. The Minister hoped that it would not be found necessary to discontinue work on the Hope-Princeton road, but he would give no guarantee, for this was one of the government's most criticized undertakings.

In the last year and a half the government had spent ten and a half millions on roads. It was impossible to do everything. The government had a clean-cut and well considered highway policy, and was doing the best job possible.

ADMIRES SIMILKAMEEN

Mr. Mayne D. Hamilton, superintendent of the branches of the Bank of Commerce in British Columbia, and a past president of the Vancouver Board of Trade, did not promise to build a new bank here, or to loan the chairman a thousand dollars, but he did express himself as enamoured of what he saw of the Similkameen.

He noted especially the excellence of the ranges, and foresaw a future for the cattle industry in this section of the province.

Mr. Gregory Asks For Better Roads Here

Opening the barrage of the evening's oratory, P. W. Gregory, president of the Princeton Board of Trade ran the gamut between welcome of the guests and candid criticism.

He extended an official welcome, in his best style of hospitality; then lowered his sights and peppered away.

He offered a constructive criticism of the Placer act, which he said was in need of revision, and especially ambigous with regard to creek leases, where the channel varied with the seasons of the year.

At the next step the salt-and-pepper was abandoned, and the full force of buck-shot was levelled at the government for the state of the roads in this riding. Mr. Gregory unequivocally termed them the worst in the province.

Cawston Lands Delay Irksome

Fifty years since the Hope-Princeton road was talked; and it is still only an issue. Will the road find a parallel in the Cawston land case?

Thus W. D. Lang searchingly put the question that meaans everything to the Cawston district, of which board of trade he is president.

He spared the gathering the gruesome details, and only hoped for a greater display of sympathy on the part of the government in the future.

Hedly President In Optimistic Mood

Mere localisms meant nothing to genial Tom Heeney, the live-wire president of the Hedley board of trade, and he indulged in a light but well prepared enquiry into present economic conditions, and ended up on a keynote of optimism.

There was only one man who made a shorter speech than Mr. Dave Innis, the president of the Keremeos Board of Trade; and that man did not speak at all.

MC KENZIE SAYS HE HAS DONE BEST HE COULD

Minister Replies to Charges of Local Speakers at Banquet

Spurred to fighting trim by the criticisms of previous speakers, Hon. W. A. McKenzie, Minisetr of Mines and member for the Similkameen at Victoria, entered a vigorous defence of his own record and that of the Tolmie government when he figured in one of the highlights of the evening's addresses at the Associated Trades banquet.

Mr. McKenzie held that the critics of the day, both here and elsewhere, had better open their eyes before giving vent to their opinions.

Everywhere the talk was thata B. C. roads suffered by comparison with those Washington. But against the $675,000 gas tax collected in this province Washington had $10,000,000. Considering population and revenue, no country could show better road values than B.C

Responding to a criticism of the

Hon W. A. McKENZIE

Placer Act by Mr. Gregory, Mr. Mc Kenzie promised an investigation..

HAS KEPT FAITH

Though there were ceaseless complaints about the lack of adequate public works i nthe Similkameen, the Tolmie government had spent more than a million dollars in this riding since 1928. It was true they had not even scratched the surface, but the reason was that when they started, absolutely nothing had been done by their Liberal predecessors. Expenditure in this end o fthe riding was twice as great as in the Penticton end

It was true that a road to Coalmont is urgently needed, but there are so many things just as badly needed in this riding, and the cost of this work would be so great that it would be folish to undertake construction at present. Mr. McKenzie, however, had been responsible for having the first survey made.

HELPED NICOLA INDUSTRY

In the Tulameen end of the riding, however, the Government had spent $40,000 in the building of a road to the Bear Creek timber area. This was chiefly to aid unemployment, and while the work was at the request of the Liberal member of the Yale riding, Mr. Mc Kenzie had given the matter full support. The Ashnola bridge had been repaired in the Keremeos district, a matter vital to the irrigating of that section., and the government had advanced $32,000 as a loan to revive the irrigation system.

Coming to coal mining, he had succeeded in placing many valuable coal contracts in the hands of the local mines, to the extent of $70,000 last year, and $30,000 this year. A mine rescue station had been established at Princeton.

The Cawston land question was being hung about the necks of the present government, said Mr. McKenzie. But this question existed long before 1928 Mr. McKenzie outlined his personal efforts to effect a compromise between the Lowe estate and the unfortunate settlers. The mortgagee had, however, entered into an agreement with the Similkameen Land Co., and the agreement contained a rider which was unfortunately overlooked by the purchasers of small parcels of land; namely, that in the event of the failure of the land company, title remained with the mortgagee until all indebtedness had been settled. This was a private agreement, and the government was powerless to interfere.

A HARD TASK

The speaker traced the alarming increase infuel oil imports into this province, and showed how the government had tried to combat it by the imposition of taxes. Fuel oil imports deprived 2,500 miners of work, he said. Imports of coal into Canada are half a milion tons in excess of the production in this country.

Mr. Waterman In Typical Address

The spice of the evening's sheer toasting was contributed by the usually—in his capacity as magistrate—one would think at any rate—sober Mr. Waterman—E.W., to do him the honors he so justly deserves as the evening's best strictly banquet speaker.

Mr. Waterman said a lot about a little, and said it very well. His language was nice, his points designed to please, and his wit was at one time typically banquetish, tiypically English and typically Waterman-ish.

The toast was to the Americans and Mr. Waterman handled it so facily that one was sure he enjoyed it as much as his audience did.

Though he had a bag of oratorical tricks, he got by very nicely without ascending the statue of Liberty, or descending the Volstead act, though he did-and excusably-refer to the latter in vague innuendo.

And his moral was as apt as if he had invoked the wisdom of Solomon or the seriousness of the Gettysburg address. It was that a spirit of sane compromise would do more for both nations than either tariff walls or corkscrews, though he didn't put it that way.

MR. MURRAY PUTS MINISTERS ON THE SPOT

George did start out by welcoming the visitors to his admittedly wonderful mine at Blakeburn; but it was only a trick of oratory, for he told them in the next breath they would never get there.

George admitted from the start that he and his ilk were known as "the kickers of the Similkameen," and he proceeded to prove both right to the title and reason for it. After paying one and three quarter millions into the provincial treasury, and getting nothing back, they had began to kick; and had been kicked out into Yale. There was only one thing worse than being kicked out, he said. That would be to be taken back in again.

In Yale or in Similkameen, Blakeburn wants a better road to Princeton, said Mr. Murray, and he pointed out that it was as much up to Princeton as to Coalmont to see that they got it. Merritt was impractical as their center. Of the $120,000monthly payroll only 12 per cent. came back through the Company's store. Princeton should be interested in the rest of it.

When PAIN Comes

WHAT many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes the acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali in water neutralizes instantly many times that much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

Obituary

DAY

Death occurred Sunday of Thomas Melanchthon Day, one of Princeton's old time residents. He was found dead in his cabin by friends who went to investigate his disappearance. He had been in ill health for some time.

Born in Eugene, Oregon, on January 7, 1860, the late Mr. Day first followed railroading in his native state. He came to Princeton from (Fort) Colville, Washington.

He was very well known in these parts, and in turn prospected on Copper Mountain, served as road foreman under the Shatford government, and as clerk with the Willarson store.

He owned considerable property in Princeton. The cabin where he died was built in 1900 and he had lived theer ever since.

Besides his brother Charles of Princeton he is survived by a sister, Bertha, who is here to attend the funeral services, which are beingheld to-day.

MORRISSY

Reporting the death of Charles J. Morrissy of Newcastle, the North Shore (N.B.) Leader, says—

"Newcastle is mourning one of her gifted sons in the person of Charles J. Morrissy, who passed away at his home last Friday. Like his illustrious father, the late Hon. John Morrissy, Charlie was a born politician and a man of ability, who had occupied a position of distinction in his native town and country, and his death removes the second generation of a family prominent in Dominion and Provincial political politics.

Besides his qualifications as a gifted platform speaker, he had a wide circle of friends who admired him for his wonderful personality, and friendly feeling towards his fellow men, and every where throughout and beyond the province of New Brunswick, his death is learned of with regret and sorrow.

He is survived by his widow, family, a sister and brother.

Mr. E. A. Morrissy of Keremeos is an uncle.

..: ; MINING IN BRITISH COLUMBIA : :..

IN 1930, among the Canadian Provinces, BRITISH COLUMBIA was the leading producer of Silver, Lead and Zinc.

IN THIS PROVINCE 45 per cent of Canada's silver, 97 per cent of the Lead, and 93 per cent of the Zinc were produced.

BRITISH COLUMBIA has produced over $1,260,000,000 worth of mineral products.

Abou 200, 000 squatre miles of unexplored mineral-bearing lands are open for prospecting.

Practically Every Mineral Known To Be Found On The Continent Exists To Some Extent In British Columbia.

A special report on Placer Mining in British Columbia is available, and may be obtained, together with copies of the Annual Reports and Bulletins (one of which contains a SYNOPSIS OF THE MINING LAWS) upon application to.

A Tale of Two Sisters

ABOUT twenty-three years ago, two sisters each bought an Endowment Policy in the Confederation Life Association . . . one for eight, the other for ten thousand dollars.

The policies matured within six months of each other in 1928. The sister with the eight thousand dollar policy decided to take the proceeds in cash with dividends. The other sister decided to let the policy remain with the Confederation Life and draw the proceeds of it in the form of a monthly income for life, which the Confederation Life is paying to her at this time.

The sister with the eight thousand dollars put part of it into property which she still has: but she herself told us that she speculated, not only with the balance, but with some other savings. The result has been a loss of about fifty-five hundred dollars. This tale of two sisters might be told of hundreds of beneficiaries of life insurance.

The modern method of purchasing life insurance is not only to provide money for dependants, but to provide, as well, a dependable income, so that, no matter what happens, this income cannot be dissipated, or in any other way be endangered.

We strongly recommend all those experienced, as well as inexperienced, in the management of investments to buy Confederation Life Monthly Income Insurance or Pension Bonds.

Write for the interesting particulars of these types of policies. You will be astonished to learn how much protection you can buy for so modest a premium.

Restless CHILDREN

CHILDREN will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always Castoria! Harmless as the recipe on the wrapper; mild and bland as it tastes. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than a more powerful medicine.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given the tiniest infant—as often as there is need. In cases of colic, diarrhea or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. A coated tongue calls for just a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed.

Fletcher's CASTORIA
