Correspondence

Editor, Star,
Dear Sir:

Travelling westwards across our great Canada twenty years ago on Empire Day, an English immigrant, was impressed with the ever recurring picture of some isolated home displaying the National Flag.Today in Princeton the same immigrant, a son of British Columbia for twenty years, was also impressed with the display of our National Flag, and wishes to place on record his appreciation for those flying in the forenoon: the one ever flying on the flagpole of a well-known store, and the only other three displayed by courtesy of an American oil company; also in the afternoon the one floating over the memorial to our soldier dead.

And this is Princeton of British Columbia, on Empire Day 24th May 1933.

Yours faithfully,
G. P. SLEIGH

Obituary

MORRISON

Mrs. A. Morrison, widow of the late Alexander Morrison, passed away at her residence in Vancouver, aged 89 years. Mr. D. Morrison of Keremeos, her only son, was at her bedside.

KEREMEOS ENJOYS ITS CELEBRATION

Keremeos enjoyed a splendid Empire day. There was a good attendance, and the weather, while threatening held out well.

May Queen Elizabeth Advocaat presided over the festivities.

Hedley won the baseball tournament, beating Keremeos in the final.

A run-away enlivened the broncho bucking contest, one of the animals plunging through a fence and careering down the main street until Bucko Allison did the wild-west movie stuff.

The dance was very largely attended, the refreshments coming in for special praise.

A blue and white homing pigeon with a band on the left leg bearing the following number: NRC No. 2142-33; and a white rubber band on the left leg bearing the number 901, alighted at the Bromley ranch twelve miles below Princeton on the Keremeos road, Wednesday night.

Princeton's New Airport Will Be Opened This Week-End

Citizens To Participate In Appropriate Dedicatory Programme

WITH a whirl of propellers, perhaps from opposite directions, history will be made Sunday in the consummation of a season's work, when the advent of the first planes marks the formal inauguration of Pinceton's federal airport, and this point is chalked up on Canada's official air map.

To formally induct the local airport, and to pass it under inspection, leading government officials in aviation will visit Princeton at the week-end, and, fittingly enough, will fly here, being the first men to guide down upon the splendid new landing field which has been constructed here during the past winter as a relief project.

In keeping with the importance of the event, Princeton will go en fete to welcome the visiting officials, and to celebrate the christening of the splendid local landing facilities.

An appropriate program has been arranged under the auspices of the Princeton Board of Trade and the Citizens' association.

FROM EAST AND WEST

A communication from Major E. C. G. Chambers, R.C.E., District Engineering Officer for Military District No. 11, and under whose supervision the local construction has been, addressed to the Princeton Board of Trade states that, subject to last minute emergency changes, it is the plan of the department to have Mr. Carter Guest, chief of federal aviation in British Columbia, fly in from either Victoria or Vancouver on Sunday, accompanied by Major Chambers.

Inspector K. E. Whyte, coming from the east, is also due to be in Princeton on the same day, and it is considered distinctly possible that he may fly here from Calgary.

ENTERTAINMENT PLANNED

To fittingly mark this important occasion in the history of Princeton and the Similkameen, an appropriate celebration is being arranged by the Board of Trade and the Welfare Association.

It is expected that the government officials will arrive about noon on Sunday. Officals of these organizations, and a number of citizens will be at the airport to greet them, it being arranged to make public the time of their arrival through special bulletin service.

In view of the social aspect of the construction of this camp, where a splendid esprit de corps has existed among the upwards of 125 men taken care of on a relief employment basis, nothing seems more appropriate to local and department officials than that the boys of the camp should participate in the inaugural program through the medium of athletic competitions, sport having been one of the main influences in keeping such a fine spirit at the camp.

Accordingly ,after a very brief formal ceremony in which the visiting dignitaries will figure, Airport teams will meet Princeton teams at both baseball and football, the former in an exhibition game, and the latter opening the Similkameen league and cup competition.

On Monday evening the public will have a real chance to participate in the celebration, a reception and dance to be held ,to which all will be welcome. At this event the official dedication of the field will be made, and brief addresses will be given by representatives of the department of National Defence and the local organizations. A few choice concert numbers will also be included, by talent from Princeton and the Airport.

Prior to the reception the visiting officials will be guests of the local organizations at an invitation banquet.

Everything points to this being a most memorable event.

A GREAT ACQUISITION

Dedication of this landing field is indeed a happy omen for Princeton, as it marks the establishment of Princeton as an important point in the Canadian commercial aviation network.

The field has been constructed by the federal government, one of several located across Canada under a program of unmployment relief.

Work was commenced early in December, under supervision of Maj. E. Chambers, district engineering officer, and with Mr. D. McN. Lowe as foreman.

The camp has been in some respects model. At the peak 142 men were employed.

A total of 87½ acres has been cleared. The field is ideally located and with a runway 2880 feet long and 800 feet wide makes a splendid two-way field.

There is ample provision for future expansion and improvement.

The present undertaking is not yet completed, but more than sufficient has been done to permit a number of planes to land. The progtam calls for work being completed by 30th June. Work is well up to schedule.

HOPE ROAD ACTIVITY

HON. R. W. BRUHN

Preparations are being made to launch the construction program on the Hope-Prince on road, arranged for as a relief project under the terms of an agreement made between the province and the federal government at a conference at which B. C. was represented by Hon. R.W. Bruhn, minster of public works, and Hon. W. A. McKenzie, representative of the Similkameen, and at that time minister of labor.

Unemployed men will be congregated on this project, into camps, and will be given accomodation and 30c day.

The federal government will also pay the province 25c per day for each unemployed man put to work placer mining.

JULY 1 PLANS MADE

Something novel in the line of a Dominion day celebration is promised Princeton this year. With the consent of the officials obtained, and the approval of the directors of the Racing Association practically assured, the day is being taken over by the local Track and Field club, a hustling band of youngsters who already have a program mapped out that promises many innovations in the way of the local day of days. Full details will be announced next week.

FIELD DAY AT TUAMEEN LAKE

The annual field day of the Princeton and District Ambulance and Mine Safety Association will this year be held at Tulameen Lake instead of at Princeton as in the past. This was decided at a meeting of the association held in the Mine Rescue Station, Princeton, on Sunday. The date was set for 24th June. Owing to financial limitations there will not likely be much in the nature of a mine rescue display. Full details will be discussed at another meeting at an early date.

Officers elected include:

Hon. Pres.—Hon. W. A. McKenzie, Minister of Mines

Hon. Vice Pres—Chief Inspector James Dickson, Inspector James Strang, and the managing directors of the mines in the district.

President—A. McDonald, Blakeburn.

Vice-President — J. Cartwright, Blakeburn.

Secretary-Treasurer—V. Peterson, Blakeburn.

ATTEMPT TO WRECK TRAIN HERE FAILS

Watchman Luckily Found Death-Intending Barricade

AN UNSUCCESSFUL attempt was made to wreck the Kettle Valley passenger train Monday morning of last week.

A special investigation is being conducted, and meanwhile information is being carefully guarded, so that full details from an authentic source are not available.

Only a combination of good fortune and the alertness of the watchman prevented what might have been a serious crash, with almost certain loss of life As it is, very few know a thing about it.

Patrolling the track at a point about three miles above Princeton shortly before the arrival of the westbound passenger No. 11, the railway night watchman came abruptly upon a fiendishly designed contraption intended to derail the train.

It consisted of two railway ties pointed at an angle ,and propped by a third, supported by rocks.

At this point the train gathers speed on a long straight stretch, preparing for the Peterson grade. The arrangement was well planned, and would surely have been the cause of a bad wreck.

The watchman easily tore down this device of ruin, and a few minutes later the train sped uneventfully by.

The watchman, A. Ferrence, came across the barricade about 11p.m., but did not notify officias until the next day, and it was considerably later before the police were advised.

PATTULLO AT KEREMEOS

Keremeos electors heard the Liberal platform expounded by Hon. T. D. Pattullo, leader of the opposition, at a well-attended meeting in the Victory Hall Thursday.

Mr. Pattullo expressed keen interest in the growers' problems, particularly irrigation, and reminded his audience that he had discussed this matter with them 16 years ago.

Mr. Pattullo expresed the opinion that while the Fraser Canyon was of more interest to the Coast than the Hope Princeton road, it was not likely that, in the event of his party being elected, this project would be dropped.

Mr. Pattullo reviewed at length the financial situation of the province.

He was accompanied by C. H. Tupper, Liberal candidate for the Similkameen, and Major S. M. Moodie.

Princeton detachment provincial police have received a new Ford V-8 for service use .

SERIES OF ACCIDENTS

A chapter of accidents marred Princeton's week-end When a boat overturned on a lake at relief camp 335 Harold Gusland, 17, one of the three occupants, was drowned.

Struck by flying metal when a gun misfired, Marshall Gellatly, a Princeton youth, came near to losing the sight of his right eye.

A broken axle and a subsequent collision prevented the playing of the Similkameen Football League opener at Coalmont:

FOOTBALLERS ILL-STARRED

Broken Axle and Collision All In The Day's Work

FATE DECREED that the league football opener scheduled a Coalmont Sunday was not to materialize. A chapter of accidents nearly brought on a tragedy instead.

At short notice Princeton found it difficult to raise a team, but after a lot of rustling around three cars were lined up to start a little late.

The first reached Coalmont in good time. After a while the second unloaded its cargo of soccer flesh

But the third has not got there yet.

After doing fully two hundred feet in great style the Gregory family heirloom with none other than Marcus Campbell at the spigot, sprang a leak and became waterlogged through the formality of the rear axle snapping.

The boys shoved the despised derelict back to its moorings, and piled into a brand new creation of Henry Ford's, the pride of the genus lizzie.

From then it was a case of when Ford meets Ford. They did ,at a bad spot on the road about six miles out.

A model A Ford roadster driven by E. Paulk, and with three persons riding in the one seat, came down a hill and around a curve and smack into the Burr car.

According to the report of the driver of the roadster, which was owned by Miss P. Lakeland of Tulameen, the car had been laid up in the garage for 18 months, and when he applied the brakes they did not work, so that he could not control the machine. Considerable damage resulted to the Burr car.

The Burr car turned round and came home; and with it the footballers. After waiting a couple of hours in vain their colleagues donned civies and did likewise. With less than half the Princeton team on hand, there was no game. A large crowd was keenly disappointed A previous game arranged with the Airport also had failed to materialize.

STOCKMEN ORGANIZE

Stockmen of Pike Mountain Range formed a Breeders' association at a representative meeting on Wednesday. A. G. Mathieson was elected president, E. E. M. Pierce secretary-treasurer, and he advisory board was named os follows: A. McPhaill, J. Gledson, A. Mathieson and E.E.M. Pierce. The Association, which takes the name of Pike Mountain Stock Breeders' Assn., aims to function in the interests of ucers of this range. It is securing details of permitees and number of stock.

EYE INJURED AS GUN BALKS

Marshall Gelletly Is In Vancouver General Hospital

STRUCK by flying glass when a .22 gun which he was shooting back-fired, Marshall gelletly, well known Princeton youth suffered a serious injury Sunday, which may imperil the sight of his right eye.

Reports from the Vancouver General Hospital, where Marshall is undergoing treatment, are optimistic of saving the vision.

The lad and a companion were enjoying a little ad. lib. shooting practice when the gun backfired, throwing bits of metal into the young man's face. It was at once

It was at once realized that he was seriously hurt, and he was given immediate surgical attention, later going to the coast for treatment by specialists.

When The Law Is Unjust

The Other Side of the Picture As Seen By An Officer

"Come on now; get down from there!"

The scene—the depot at the arrival of the westbound train. The time, 2 a.m., before a gray May dawn. And the principals a 'bo and a 'bull'. This is a true story. It may have happened anywhere. We'll suppose it did. But it moved the heart of a reputedly hardened officer of the law and, later, of that personification of cynicism, the newspaper man.

"Come on now. Get down!"

Policemen are accustomed to drawing ugly locks from persons of many types hat the performance of their duties brings them in contact with.

There was an eloquence of expression in the look that this knight of the rods levelled at his tormentor. There was hatred, utter hatred—that hated of a mother animal to one who carries off her offspring.

"Come on; get down!"

Slowly, dourly, he did, as other hardened rod-riders had more judiciously done before him.

There was something different about him. The alert young officer, a splendid type of fellow noted that at once. He drew him aside, and questioned him mildly but pointedly.

Chug, chug, chug. The locomotive puffed impatiently. To the dull staccato of escaping steam he told his story. It was a bitter story but, his first resentment subsided, he told it without bitterness. He was subdued, but brave.

This is his story. Perhaps he did not tell it just like this; but no raconteur could do justice to that story, and that impressive scene.

"Twelve years ago we married and settled down, very happy. A daughter was born; but she never knew her mother, who was taken away.

"Forced to do hard work in an isolated spot in the interior, the kindest thing I could do for the little girl was to put her in a home. As long as I worked I did what I could towards her upbringing, but when hard times came along I lost my job, and she had to be cared for by the government.

"One day, while at play in the grounds at the home, she fell, and injured her hip. She was given surgical attention but through some circumstance or other the bone was not properly set. Eventually decay set in. They operated, removed the decayed bone, and grafted in a bit of new bone. But it did not succeed. The child is dying.

"The matron wrote me, and said that the child could not last long; she was pining for me

"I had to go. This is the only way I could travel. I was stopped by police up the line; delay is cruel."

This is the simple narration of another version of the oldest and most beautiful of mundane dramas—the story of parental love ,be it of man or beast.

But an early morning train, a tramp and an officer are not circumstances conducive of simple, direct narration. And before the young officer understood, the impatient train had rounded the bend. It was too late.

Human sorrow is a great leveller, and by this time the feelings of the tramp and the officer were mutual—

MAN DROWNED AT CAMP 335

Harold Gusland, Relief Worker, Drowned On Sunday

THROWN into the icy water when the dug-out canoe in which he was boating with two companions capsized, Harold Gusland, 17 year old inmate of the One Mile Relief camp, and whose home is in Calgary, was drowned Sunday morning about 9 o'clock

Basing its finding chiefly on the evdence of Dr. J. R. Naden, who made a post-mortem examination, a coroner's jury sitting at Princeton on Monday afternoon brought in a verdict of death by strangulation. It was submitted that the lad died from the effects of being plunged into the icy water after a heavy breakfast. He was, it is said, a good swimmer.

Gusland had registered at the camp under the name of John Manning. His mother and sister will arrive from Calgary for the funeral, which will be held Thursday.

Gusland and two companoins of about the same age,Louis Leckie and Paul Launer, went out on a small lake at provincial government camp No. 335, about twenty six miles from Princeton one th Merritt road. They had just risen from a Sunday morning's breakfast, and it appears that Gustland had eaten particularly heartily They used a canoe dug out from a log, about eleven feet long and eighteen inches in diameter. In some manner the boat became filled with water and capsized, plunging the three youths into the water. Leckie and Launer struck out for the shore, which was only 20 feet away, but Gusland disappeared. There were several eyewitnesses on the shore and one of the men from the camp dived several times but was unable to reach the man, owing to deep water.

DRAGGED FOR BODY

Responding to a call which came in very shortly after the accident, Constables Thomson, Miller and Aikman of the provincial police, Princeton detachment, dragged the lake bottom ,and recovered the body in about fifteen feet of water, about 2 p.m.

According to evidence brought out at the inquest ,held under coroner Dr. D. McCaffrey, death was probably caused by strangulation food rushing from the stomach to cut off the respiratory functions. There was no water in the lungs.

That had the body been recovered within a few minutes, application of artificial respiration would in all probability have saved life was the theory on which the jury based a reccomendation that all camps which are close to bodies of water be supplied with dragging apparatus.

The jury, with H. H. Avery as foreman, brought in a verdict of accidental death, attaching no blame to anyone.

Evidence showed that the deceased was a strong lad, and normally a good swimmer. The food in his stomach apparently strangled him. Barr Dempster, camp foreman, testified that there was not a rope of any kind at the camp, or any apparatus with which they could start dragging operations.

The jury was H. H. Avery, foreman, F. Broderick, W. Young, G. Cornish, O. Morino and A. Pawliuk.

MORE THAN FORMALITY

A letter from a surprised newcomer to Princeton, and a conversation we engaged in on Empire day make a few remarks on patriotic obeissance pertinent.

No doubt the surge of deliberate disloyalty that we have felt locally in recent months has made orthodox good citizens a little more scrutinous, but the fact remains that there is a decided slackness in respect to the matter of ordinary loyal gestures that to the outsider is a little astonishing.

We submit that it is a matter of carelessness rather than of deliberate discourteousy. But the impression is none the less alarming.

In ninety-nine British communities out of a hundred men and women snap to attention at the sound of the opening bars of "The King" or "O Canada" or at the familiar sight of the red white and blue bunting just as a man of normal intelligence and anything more than pure bestial manners tips his hat to a lady of his acquaintance.

It has been done in British communities for centuries, and it is simply "the thing to do". In many towns to start walking out a hall while "The King" is being played would be the signal for a young riot.

Of course, the formality does not symbolize to-day what it did seven hundred years ago, and cultured people to-day do not interpret "The King" any more literally to-day than they do the book of Genesis.

These stereotyped observances are like a good many other folk-customs. They have become so inculcated into our national habits that they have become purely symbolic.

If someone were to introduce the middle stanzas of "The King" as a purely rational postulation at the average political meeting, he certainly would start fireworks. But the words are sung in their context; and no one stops to pick reason out of them. It is not the words, but the thought behind them.

In the average community these observances are just as much good manners as is keeping your spoon out of your coffee; and to the outsider, the failure to observe them leaves a very bad impression indeed.

And after all, Princeton is a comparitively small place. Suppose we brush up on our table manners?

SPORTS

LEAGUE OPENS HERE SUNDAY

DOGGED by a succession of hard luck incidents, which have twice postponed the opening league football will definitely get away in the Similkameen Sunday.

After hibernating for two years the league has found it difficult to get into stride all of a sudden ,and the unpreparedness of the teams has held back the opening.

It has been decided, however, to abandon the five-team plan, which, under existing conditions has proven too cumbersome. Accordingly, the three well equipped teams will fight it out alone in a short and sweet battle; which, if it makes for less football, will certainly make for better.

The league is faced with the necessity of running off its schedule by the end of June, by which date the Airport camp will be closed. Even with all five teams in full readiness to carry through, it would now be impossible to manage this; and the events of past weeks have shown that with five teams, at least three will require a lot of waiting on.

The schedule has therefore been re-arranged. Princeton and the Airport game goes on first, owing to the necessity of providing for the official opening of the Airport on Sunday. Otherwise it was planned to have these two teams play off their fixtures in mid-week. It had been planned to send Princeton to Coalmont this week, but this will be done next week.

The fate of the league hung in the balance this week, as it became doubtful whether Princeton could field a team. Three totally unexpected signatures however gave the old town club an entirely different outlook, and as these men had been expected to turn out for the Airport, it went a long way towards balancing the teams.

RACE WILL BE KEEN

As it is now, with each team playing only four games, each game will practically be a cup-tie, and a loss will be almost fatal to any team's chances of winning the Wagenhauser cup.

LEAGUE SCHEDULE

May 28—Princeton v Airport.
June 4—Blakeburn v Princeton
June 11—Airport v Blakeburn
June 15—Airport v Princeton.
June 18—Blakeburn v Airport
June 25—Princeton v Blakeburn.

For the first time in the history of organized football in the Similkameen, substitutes will be allowed in Sunday's league opener at Princeton. This idea has long been law in the United States, and of recent years has been gradually introduced into Canada. It is law in the Pacific Coast League, leading competition in western Canada, but is not recognized in cup games under the auspices of the Dominion Football Association.

In the Similkameen league the interpretation will be the same as in the Coast league, allowing a side to make two substitutions during a game, but not within ten minutes of half time or full time.

"I'M GLAD WE HAD A TELEPHONE WHEN NELLIE TOOK SICK."

"We used to think we could get along without a telephone, but we know better now," said Mrs. Crane to Mrs. Jones. "I'm glad we had one when Nellie took sick. She was stricken in the middle of the night. A telephone call brought the doctor in a hurry, but I hate to think of what might have happened had we been unable to telephone for him."

"You're right," replied Mrs. Jones, "we learned the same lesson when little Tommy was burned. A telephone call saved his life."

GOLDEN TEXT—"Ye are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command ye."—John 15:14.

As the little group made their way out of the city after the day's fateful events, the disciples, still unable to grasp one meanng of it for their Master, were admiring the magnificance of the Temple. Their Master, deep in other thoughts, astonished them by predicting that ere long it would be a mass of ruins. From this he went on to speak of terrible things that were to happen in the future. A time of calamity, soon to come upon them, would sorely try the faith of His people. They would be called upon to suffer for his cause. But they were never to lose their confidence in final victory. They were to think of Him as one who had gone away, but would return "with great power and glory."

THE MINERALS OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

The amount of gold produced in British Columbia shows a total value of approximately $227,000,000.

British Columbia offers excellent opportunities for profitable investment.

NOTICE: Amendments to the "Mineral" and "Placer Mining" Acts were passed at the 1933 session of the British Columbia legislature having to do with the staking and working of mineral claims and placer mining leases, effective on the 1st of July, 1933. Those interested should apply to the Department regarding same.

Copies of the Annual Reports of the Honorable the Minister of Mines and special bulletins, etc., may be obtained, free, upon application. A new PLACER MINING bulletin contains comprehensive and up-to-date information as to this phase of mining in British Columbia, together with a synopsis of the new mining laws.

LOCAL GOLFERS DO WELL AT VERNON

Led by Jack Coles, who put up one of the best displays of his young career, Princeton golfers struck a new high for interior championship displays on Empire day. While they returned empty handed, they had the satisfaction of playing, for the most part above themselves

Coles settled down to a nice game and qualified well up with an 82, only four below the low score. In the first round he disposed of Fred Irwin of Kamloops, only to lose out to the Penticton ace, Harold Nichol, who lost his title to Carlson of Vernon in a thrilling final which went to the 37th hole.

In the consolation event, a medal competition, Coles turned in another fine score, but was heavily handicapped.

Sorenson and W. B. Ewart, the other Princeton candidates, lost out in the second flight.

Kamloops entertains the championships next year.

PRINCETON GOLF IS IN FULL SWING

Princeton golfers are in the thick of an interesting fixture card. On Sunday they have a mixed foursome It is a medal play event, with half combined handicaps.

Jack Coles has been the outstanding player to date, and looks like the man to beat once more. April 30 he captured the club's Spring competition, and a week later carried off the monthly medal.

In the opening day events in the men's section President Gray's team won from vice-president Waterman, and in the ladies' section vice-president Miss Baxter captained her side to a victory over that of the president, Mrs. Pattinson .

The Mayors of One Mile, Granite Creek, and Tulameen met the other day, and they were discussing the advisibality of Princeton using more paint. They said the buildings needed it, the Klan, the Welfare League, the Board of Trade, and even the Star could stand some.

They strongly advocated using Sherwin Williams' paints, of which we have a full supply.

If you have RHEUMATISM
do this

Get some tablets of Aspirin and take them freely until you are entirely free from pain.

These tablets of Aspirin cannot hurt you. They do not depress the heart. And they have been proven twice as effective as salicylates in relief of rheumatic pain at any stage.

Don't go through another season of suffering from rheumatism, or any neuritic pain. Don't suffer needlessly from neuralgia, neuritis, or other conditions which Aspirin will relieve so surely and so swiftly.

A TRUE STORY THAT HAS AN APPEAL

even as yours are now. Words were not made to express such things.

Duty was dictated by conscience rather than by law.

"There will be a freight out in a couple of hours. I'm not sure if it goes right through, but I'll find out. Don't try to get on here; wait till it gets out of the yards. You'll be safer if——" And the young officer, though it did not dawn on him——found himself aiding and abetting a lawbreaker; but God's laws are stronger than man's.

"How are you fixed?"

"Oh, I'll get along all right."

And—to the average person—witness the strange case of a policeman forcing money—his own money, with which his job none too liberallly provides him—on a "bum."

But, perhaps, if you knew the ins and outs of police work you might say this was not so strange after all.

For the best stories are never printed, and the finest deeds and most pathetic situations are never even expressed. For what is really best in this life is neither written nor spoken—it is felt.
