OBITUARY

ARMSTRONG

J. Lloyd Armstrong, post-master and well known resident of Keremeos, passed on Thursday, 7th January, following a long illness.

Son of one of the pioneers of the townsite settlement, Mr. Armstrong was born in Vancouver in 1898 and came to Keremeos in 1910 with his parents, who have pre-deceased him.

While attending school in Vancouver Mr. Armstrong joined the Canadian Air Force, and won a commission in the Royal Flying Corps while in France. He was well known throughout the valley.

Besides his wife he is survived by a son Robert and a sister, Mrs. G. Brown of Vancouver, and several more distant relatives.

Funeral services were conducted from the United Church on Sunday, Rev. C. H. Ballard officiating. At the grave-side the last rites of the Masonic order were performed, with members from Hedley, Princeton and Penticton assisting.

It was strange that Thursday should be set for the passing of two Similkameen post-masters of long and faithful service, R. E. Baxter, Hedley post-master, answering the call at Princeton on the same day.

WEDDINGS

Bombard-Soens

The marriage was quietly solemnized at Kamloops Monday of Asa H. Bombard of Princeton and Evelyn eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August Soens of Kamloops. Rev. Father Minard officiated, the ceremony being in the Catholic church. Witnesses were Miss Jeanette Seons and Mr. Vincent Smith. Mr. and Mrs Bombard have taken up residence in Princeton.

Mayovsky-Gulliford

A wedding of interest was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Wednesday, 23rd December, when Nellie Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Gulliford was united with Andrew Mayovsky of Blakeburn. Rev. J C. Goodfellow officiated. They have taken up residence in Blakeburn.

Warren-Brent

The marriage was quietly solemnized at Penticton Saturday of Margaret Brent and Ernest Warren, both of Hedley. After a honeymoon at the Coast Mr. and Mrs. Warren will take up residence in Hedley.

Mr. Warren is a former resident of Victoria.

On a charge of desertion, F J. Doherty, former Hope Road camp cook, was sentenced to sixty days, in Princeton police court. He was picked up in Vancouver and brought here for trial.

FINE SEQUEL TO ARGUMENT

Angelo Caruso Draws Fifty Dollar Fine; Fight At One Mile Dance

A FINE of fifty dollars was imposed on Angelo Caruso when the much postponed assault case finally came to a hearing before Magistrate Nichols and in a crowded Princeton courtroom on Monday.

Thus seriously ended the third phase of what begun as a simple dance-hall argument at the One Mile Recreation Hall on the night of Saturday, 21st November.

And there may be yet more serious repercussions, for while the injured lad's counsel talks of possible civil suit for damages, it is still uncertain to medical men whether the effects of a fractured skull may be permanent.

Gordon Freding, 22-year old Jura youth, was able only Monday to testify after Caruso, two years his junior, had been charged with committing grievous bodily harm when the seriousness of Freding's injury was ascertained a few days after the incident outside the dance hall.

Freding collapsed while working at the neighboring Trehearne ranch on the Friday following the affair.

All the evidence frankly admitted the altercation, and it was more or less accepted that the injury resulted from it, but responsibility was argued by the advocates. Whether Caruso struck Freding with a bottle was a major issue, but, as prosector Const. F. G. Hatherill pointed out, the fact of the injury was legally sufficient.

Harold McInnes, for the defense concentrated, unsuccesfully on a reduction of the charge, to the less serious one of assault. T. B. Hooper represented Freding.

Magistrate Nichols declined to reduce the charge, and also refused to waive his jurisdiction when Mr. McInnes sought to convert the summary trial to a preliminary hearing.

Constable Hatherill contended that it had been proven that grievous bodily harm had been suffered, and that Caruso was responsible under the law. The Magistrate concurred.

The injured lad said that he left his place in the orchestra and went outside for a breather. He saw a group of young men, among whom was Caruso. He asked Caruso for a bottle. An argument started. Caruso walked away with some companions, but suddenly turned round and struck him two blows. Freding said he then felt a blow on the side of the head and the next he knew two youths were picking him up. He returned to the hall but was feeling ill and his brother drove him home.

He stayed in bed until Tuesday when he tried to do some chores but could not. On Friday Mr. Tre-

Electric Pumping Seen For Waterworks Here

INSTALLATION of electric pumping equipment was foreseen by an official of the General Utilities Company of Vancouver, new owners of the Princeton waterworks, who visited here this week.

He said that important improvements would be made, probably in the Spring, to render the plant more efficient.

He discounted, however, common rumors that the inefficiency lay in the condition of the mains. These wooden mains, he said, were laid 26 years ago, but whereas the average life of wooden pipe was reckoned at 20 years, examination of the local mains showed them remarkably well preserved, probably due to climatic conditions and the freedom of the soil from injurious chemicals

The most serious threat was the condition of the tanks, he said, but in an emergency they could always pump direct. The high pressure that obtains locally, he said, punished the system, and indicated that it would probably be reduced to about 40 pounds, which he said was normal.

Present principle of pumping will be continued, he said, as a survey had shown a gravity system to be impractical here.

Will Describe South Africa, New Zealand

A VEST-POCKET VISIT — by proxy—through distant South Africa and enchanting New Zealand will be the privilege of such Similkameen folk as are able to attend Dr. G. A. Gillies' illustrated lecture under the auspices of the University Extension Adult Education Series in St. Paul's church Monday night.

This is an unusual departure in this series, and how Dr. Gillies will expound his subject is not quite certain; but he is rated as an able speaker, and brings with him moving pictures of his subject matter.

This is the second of a series of six lectures to be give here in this the second season of the work. Dr. H. V. Warren spoke in November on World Economics and Mining.

Other lectures in the series are:

18th February—Prof. I. Dilworth: "Some Aspects of Modern Music."

18th March—Prof. Robt. England: "Adult Education."

21st April—Dr. Gordon Davis: "Colonial Technique of the Great Powers, and Possible Conclusions."

Survey is under way at the Princeton Airport for the installation of a radio beacon, in anticipation of transcontinental flying service, with Princeton as a key point.

THE ANNUAL HEADACHE FOR LOCAL MOTORISTS

SIMILKAMEEN'S quota of motor vehicle plates reached the local government office Wednesday. There are six hundred, but another order will be required, government agent Nichols said.

The color scheme for 1937 is black characters on a cream back ground. There are special plates for commercial use as last year.

The new plates must be attached to operating vehicles after 1st March.

From the Princeton office plates will be distributed to Hedley, Keremeos and Coalmont through the Provincial Police.

FURTHER HOIST FOR RAILWAY

Great Northern's Time Now Set At 15th June; Mere Formality

FORMAL NOTICE of a further extension for the Great Northern Railway against resumption of its Similkameen service is announced form Ottawa by the Board of Railway Commissioners of Canada. The date no set is 1st June, 1937, but little importance is attached to it in view of the circumstances. It is more a matter of form, for the last order required the railway to restore service by 15th June last, whereas the extension order was not made until 28th December.

The order states that the extension has been applied for by the V.V.&E. Railway Co., and acquiesced in by Hedley Board of Trade, no objections being taken by other interested parties.

The extension is conditional upon service being continued between Hedley and Oroville, where connection is made with the G.N. system.

The line has not been in operation since the spring of 1934 when high water washed out a portion of the track near Norman's. The company was originally ordered to restore full service by September, 1935.

PLACER PLAN SUBSTITUTED

New Alignment Headed By Guest Reclaims 14 Leases

LAST HOPE for the realization of a projected placer operation of gigantic proportions faded this week as the first concrete move was made since the leases lapsed in November.

Ironically, a progressive step which saw fourteen of the leases reclaimed was the death-knell of the project that promised to establish here one of the biggest operations on the continent.

The new move was highly interesting, however, in that it indicated a re-alignment, and a substitution of a new project. In it, too was seen the return of John F. Guest, one of the best known—and to date least fortunate—of those who have interested themselves in the promotion of Tulameen placers. It is understood Mr. Guest has interested New York capital. Nothing is known at this time of their plans.

Some 78 leases had expired, but when this information was gained there was still a remote possibility that others might be saved.

But the foundation had gone of the huge project that last spring grouped some 115 leases under lease and option, promising a gigantic operation along the very latest scientific lines.

It seems that the Eastern capital for whom a Coast syndicate, headed by D. Jennings had grouped the holdings was not willing to proceed for another year, and this left the organizers responsible for a large expenditure in assessment work or default fees.

The fourteen leases have been redeemed at the last minute through a special provision of the Placer Act, by application to the Deputy Minister of Mines and payment of a penalty. This privilege is allowed up to 30 days after the leases have expired. Within thirty days application may be made direct to the local mining recorder.

The Essence Of Courage

EVERY now and then in the course of human affairs we are brought up with a rude shock by the tragic consequences of a simple rash act. So it was in Princeton Police Court this week, when the relentless machinery of the law ground out, in full and costly seriousness, an action that started as a hasty clash of tempers, under trifling circumstances; came very close to wrecking two lives, neither of them deserving such a cruel fate.

Of course, there is a strong representation in society that closes its eyes to the sordid, and overlooks, in gesture of kindness, the frailties of its fellows. To us, however, it seems manifestly more Christain to face the facts in kindness but in truth, remembering that it is the loftiest function of a newspaper neither to startle nor to conceal, but to present a mirror of life in which man may acknowledge alike his virtues and his frailties, his benevolences and his mistakes, in the essential faith that man is noble.

Thus in what observations we have to point we would appear as neither the pedant nor the sophist; merely suggesting a mood of thought you may profit by.

Valor is a noble trait, courage ambrosia that nurtures the gods, honor the leaven of the race. But whenas these noble impulses are not attended by the handmaiden of wisdom, and counseled by the ripeness of judgment, they become unleashed furies that bite the breast that suckles them! Duped by veiled hypocrisy, they feed the flames of war.

It is a sound tenet of psychology that in a conflict between emotion and reason, emotion always wins; but surely it is a criterion of real greatnesss in how far reason and emotion have been co-ordinated by experience, tempered by moral fibre, and become wisdom. A coward is not always a man who refuses to fight, or a fool a man who hesitates to act.

Head was made to rule hands, and with no debauchery of courage or debility of honor necessarily attendant. It is not altogether a vicious law that makes a man who accepts an illegal challenge guilty with him who provokes it.

No Liquor Control Boars

WE SUPPOSE we shouldn't talk about liquor, since so many nice people read the Star but we just have to get this in the records. It's about the Old Timer who made his own moonshine. One time an idea struck him. He could save money by feeding the mash to the pigs. He did. And the pigs got the swellest jag on you can imagine. To make matters worse the dog got into the trough too, and if the Old Timer had been smart like the Printer's Devil he'd have opened a circus. And speaking of tipsy porkers, who fed Hitler the mash?

hearne sent for him to help with some butchering. While there he collapsed, and was taken to hospital.

Freding said, which was confirmed by his brother, Carl, that he had taken two bottles of beer before the dance, and none from then until the trouble.

Dr. D McCaffrey said that, responding to a call, he found Hans Freding in a semi-conscious condition, and took him to hospital. He found a fracture at the base of the skull caused, in his opinion, by violence. There was a bruise near the right ear. The left eye was blackened. This is an artificial eye. These injuries had been suffered some days earlier. Freding was discharged from hospital 8th January

Several eye witnesses were called, and despite technical conflicts in their testimony the main thread was the same. Distance they gave as having stood from the two youths varied, for instance, from fifteen to forty feet. One witness testified that he saw Caruso throw the bottle away before the trouble; another, who was right beside Caruso, said he saw no bottle at all.

Nomads Hit High Spots At Princeton

CLASS told on Tuesday night, and a game but fallow local attack crumbled under the smooth system of the invading Adanacs of New Westminster, to drop a one-sided hoop game 58-20.

Rating among the first five at the Coast, and most probably in Canada, Adanacs looked the part more than any visiting team yet to appear here, and served up a display of picture basketball that left the large crowd feeling well rewarded despite their natural disappointment. Their plays folded into each-other with easy rhythm, their positional play was little short of uncanny.

There is no use trying to alibi the locals or to make a contest out of a display. None realize better than the home boys that on the form Adanacs showed Tuesday, they were outclassed.

Adanacs were on their mettle after absorbing a defeat from the Summerland-Penticton squads who ganged up on them, and their display was an object lesson. Play after play ran off with clock-like precision and ended in points.

An amazing bag of 28 points fell to Ross Helem, but despite the fact that it was probably an all-time record for the hall. actually it was not a great individual performance, for the Rookie was merely the conversion end of a great machine, in which the main cog was Russ Kennington, playmaker of the champion Province team, borrowed for the tour.

Though no superlatives are needed, Adanacs' showing was all the more remarkable in that they had only a shell of their regular team, with only five men in all, one of them a Coast Senior B player and another Tostenson, a Kelowna sub, pressed into service after the tourists lost one of their five men at the Orchard City through injury.

In spite of, or on account of the brilliance of the boys from the Fraser, the locals did not show well. Their initial enthusiasm stifled by the cleverness of the visitors, they tried hard, but did not congeal. They had many fine attempts, but they were sporadic, and lacked organization. Skipper Lucas had a worrysome night, but at that he topped the scorers with ten points. The whole lot tried hard but might as well have been fighting a phantom foe.

The game was remarkably clean with very few stoppages of any kind
