Roany Marl Deposit New Industry Here

Much has been done in recent months towards creating a new, secondary industry by making use of the extensive marl deposits in Similkameen. It is another case of the Lord helping those who help themselves. High grade marl is a blessing to the soil. Literally, there is nothing better "for the land's sake". Marl is a soil or earthy deposit consisting of clay and calcium carbonate, valuable as a fertilizer, correcting acidity and promoting nitrification.

There are a number of such deposits in Similkameen. The only one which has been worked to date is the Allison (Burns) Lake deposit, by the B.C. Marl Co. Ltd., of which E. W. Johnstone is manager. It is situated about 20 miles north of Princeton on the road to Merritt. Here the marl is loaded by a gasoline shovel into trucks, transported to a loading chute on the K.V.R. at Princeton, and thence to the Fraser Valley.

One of the best deposits yet found in B.C. is in the Roany Valley, about six miles south-east of Coalmont. Last June Ellis Freding completed a road to this property, and since then machinery has been installed to facilitate loading. One carload has already been shipped to the coast, and a newly-formed company, the B. C. Lime, Marl & Colloidal Clay Co. Ltd., is now in a position to ship a carload a day. Storage and loading facilities have been completed near the railway at Coalmont.

The Roany deposits are reached from Coalmont by a six mile road, which follows the old Rice Road to within a mile of that ranch, then breaks off to the right (south) and follows an easy grade to the deposits in the valley. The distance from the Rice cutoff is 2.8 miles.

The enterprise is sponsored by two local citizens, H. R. Knighton and W. R. Foster. Mr. Knighton spotted the deposit twenty years ago while on a placer expedition. Discussing this discovery with Mr. Foster two years ago, they decided to make a thorough investigation. Samples sent to the provincial assayer revealed high calcium content, averaging 87.8%. Subsequent assays have shown as high as 96%. The project is already in operation, and shipments will increase as the product becomes known and markets grow. There is said to be an almost unlimited demand for it in the Fraser Valley.

A visit to the Roany deposits last Monday showed how well Ellis Freding has succeeded in making easy grade roads. The deposit now being worked was formerly a lake bed. The south side is steep and heavily timbered. The opposite side is largely covered by rock slides, on which it is clearly indicated the height of the former lake water level.

The marl area in this lake bed is 1500 feet long by 160 feet wide, and stripping and ploughing were necessary before operations could begin. Test holes sunk reveal marl to a depth of 12 feet, below which is a bed of clay. Much of the area is covered with equisetum (horsetail), and in the testholes are numerous little lizzards. Small, white shells, the remains of mollusc life, can be picked up by the thousand, showing that this marl is a decomposition of mollusc life, and precipitation of limestone. It is not known how long a period has elapsed since water was in the lake, but further east is another large, dry lake deposit which may have been part of the original lake bed. It is estimated that there are 100,000 tons of high grade marl available. The present promoters hope to develop this later on.

Before initiating development work the promoters learned that there was a demand for high grade marl. Government officials described it as better than ground limestone, because of its physical state, being as fine as as talcum powder. Leguminous crops in the Fraser Valley thrive in marl treated soil. It sweetens the earth. It is literally true that there is nothing better than high grade marl "for the land's sake."

New Ration Books

The new Ration Book No. 6 has a yellow cover. The coupon design is smaller than previously used. In the new book are two sheets of sugar coupons, two sheets of butter coupons, two sheets of meat coupons and three spare sheets. In designing and producing the new ration book precautions have been taken to make counterfeiting highly dangerous, if not impossible.

For the World's Hungry

Food products of every kind are even now more urgently required than during the war years. Canadian farm girls are working on the farm front helping to harvest the crops. Too precious to be wasted coarse grains are needed to feed livestock for meat for the people of Canada and to help feed the hungry millions in other countries. Many farmers may save additional grain by raking their stubble this fall.

GIBSON BROTHERS' WAR RECORD

On Wednesday of last week on a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Gibson, Melvin Gibson arrived here from Phoenix, Arizona, and left on Tuesday, August 27th. It was his first visit here since October, 1929, when he came to attend the funeral of his sister Mary.

Few families in B.C. have a finer war record than the Gibson family. Graham, the eldest son, enlisted in the Canadian Royal Engineers in July, 1940, went overseas in December of that year, and returned in April, 1945. Following D Day he crossed over to the continent and served in France, Holland and Belgium with the motor transport till he was wounded, and invalided to England.

Melvin Robert, third eldest son (Carl, second eldest, remained in Canada during the war), left Princeton in 1928, and has had his home in Phoenix, Arizona. Following the Pearl Harbour sneak attack by Japan, Mel joined the construction engineers, and went overseas to Hawaii, where he remained 9 months. Following a brief home leave he went to Costa Rica with the engineers, and was engaged on construction of the Pan-American highway. In May, 1943, he enlisted in the U.S. Navy, and saw service in the southwest Pacific, taking part in a number of invasions. He was discharged last year following cessation of hostilities.

Kenneth was working at Hedley, with the Kelowna Exploration Co., when he enlisted in the Royal Canadian Engineers in 1942, and went overseas in 1944, and soon afterwards took part in the fighting on the continent. He was not long on active service before he was wounded and returned to England, and arrived back in Canada in April of last year.

Gordon enlisted in June, 1941, and was with the Canadian Postal Corps overseas, serving in England, and returned to Canada in December, 1945.

Joe enlisted in the R.C.A.F. (ground crew) in November, 1938, and in 1939 was one of a guard of honour to their Majesties, the King and Queen during their Canadian visit. Christmas, 1939, Joe visited his parents here, and not again till December of last year.

Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Gibson came to Similkameen on August 6, 1905, from Chilliwack, and have been respected citizens ever since. Mrs. Long, their eldest daughter, now resident in Vancouver, was only eight weeks old when she arrived here with her parents.

Labour Day

Labour problems and industrial relations have an increasing importance in Canadian life. In 1919 Canada's most important industry was agriculture, but now manufacturing holds first place. In 1919 the total net value of production in Canada was $3.3 billion. Of this amount agriculture contributed 44 percent, and manufacturing 33%. In 1943 the total was $6.3 billion, with only 24% agriculture, and 54% manufacturing. An agricultural country is becoming a manufacturing one. Some of Canada's new industrial capacity will find outlets for its products in home markets. Markets abroad, however, are necessary to keep Canadian industrial facilities operating at levels approaching their new capacity. For this reason Labour and Management must unite in maintaining markets already won.

It is natural that Labour should seek to preserve gains made during war years, and to better the position of Labour. It is also true that Labour has a responsibility towards Capital. for only by accepting responsibility can gains made be permanent. The future relationship must be Capital AND Labour; not Labour VERSUS Capital. In this way both can be mutually helpful.

The question of the public interest in industrial disputes is becoming more prominent. It must be recognized that lawlessness cannot be tolerated. Illegal mass picketing or other interference with public order cannot be allowed. The civil authority cannot temporize with lawlessness of any kind. Furthermore, it is becoming clear that the community as a whole has an interest in industrial relations, and that industrial disputes cannot be allowed to become a menace to the common safety or welfare.

When basic social values and the common welfare are placed in jeopardy by a dispute or deadlock, the public interest becomes paramount, and public authority must intervene. The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., at its meeting in May, declared that the total community has an increasing stake in labour disputes and that Management and Labour have an obligation for self-discipline on behalf of the public interest. It said further that where a strike or lockout threatened the national well-being, the Government should demand resumption of work, with safeguards for the rights of Labour, and of Management. (C.

School Days

School days are here again. Holidays have been long enough to make students quite willing to get back to their desks, and teachers will feel better equipped, physically and mentally, for their great task of moulding citizens out of boys and girls. Since the beginning of this century the emphasis in education has gradually changed from the mere "stuffing" process, to stimulating the creative faculties in students.

Both learning and teaching become more difficult with the passing years. Students have no guarantee that what they learn today in geography, or physics, will be accepted as correct a year from now. The map seems to be changing all the time. The passing parade of everyday history makes it difficult to keep abreast of the times. Yet the present can be understood only in the light of what has gone before. Perhaps the time has come when the tendency to multiply subjects must be reversed. A little of everything is useful only when it is accompanied by much of something. Otherwise we are back to the "stuffing process", and must begin all over again.

The demands of today make essential on the part of the teacher not only a longer period of preparation, but continued post-graduate work. Teaching is more than a mere job. It is a life's work, to which one must dedicate oneself, if any measure of success is to follow.

Parent-Teachers' associations can render a useful service by helping to create a bridge of understanding between pupils, teachers and parents. Adverse criticism is too often founded on a lack of understanding on the part of those who have no responsibility. Wise teachers welcome constructive criticism that is born of goodwill.

School Board members have shown both foresight and wisdom in making preparation for expansion. Very often theirs is a thankless job, but the work they do is a necessary part of building for Tomorrow.

There is no ideal system of education. It is a process, ever changing in the interests of better results. There is nothing that will help this process so much as understanding on the part of all concerned.

FACTS ABOUT PROFITS and METAL MINERS' WAGES

It has been said that miners receive 79 1-2 cents an hour in the metal mines of B. C. and that the mine operators have made profits of $224,000,000.

What are the Facts?

DIVIDENDS—Since 1897 the metal mines of British Columbia have paid approximately $255,000,000 in dividends. BUT THESE ARE FAR FROM PROFITS. A huge proportion is merely return of invested capital through dividends. Until dividends have returned the investment, mining shareholders do not begin to profit. Of the $255,000,000 in dividends, more than $134,000,000 came from one outstanding successful company, Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co. Ltd., not involved in the present metal mine strike. Few B.C. mining companies have paid out dividends as much as was invested in them. But if the industry is to survive and expand, those few properties that do win through to success must not be penalized.

WAGES — The common wage of 79 1-2 cents an hour for miners is, for more than half the miners, merely a basic wage. At most mines experienced miners are guaranteed their regular pay and in addition, on basis of their measured results, they earn from 50 cents a day to as much as $6 or $8 or more daily, on contract. At one representative mine where at least 65 per cent of underground crew were on contract, the average contract man was receiving at the time of the strike $3.04 a day bonus or total pay of almost $9.50 a day, working not more than 8 hours a day.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures on miners' earnings in B. C. show that last April the average weekly earnings in the mining industry were $41.62, which was $25 a month more than the average for workers in all industries in B.C.

Metal miners do NOT work for starvation pay in B. C. Government statistics prove that they are amongst the best paid industrial workers in Canada.

South Okanagan Baseball League

Oliver practically cinched first place in the league on Sunday last by defeating the visiting Peachland nine by 9 runs to 4. Only by the remote possibility of Osoyoos stopping them next Sunday can any of the other teams possibly tie with Oliver for the first spot. The next two positions are in doubt, and can be any of the following teams, Peachland, Penticton, Summerland or Rutland. Even Princeton might get into a tie for the third spot if the right teams should lose. Rutland and Peachland have a game to replay which may affect the final result. Here is the standing:

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Oliver	13	4	.764
Peachland	11	5	.687
Penticton	11	6	.647
Summerland	11	6	.647
Rutland	10	6	.625
Princeton	10	7	.538
Kelowna	6	11	.352
Cawston	6	11	.352
Keremeos	4	13	.235
Osoyoos	3	14	.176

Results of games Sunday, August 25th (Home team last): Rutland 6, Keremeos 10; Peach- [illegible] Oliver 9; Kelowna 6 [illegible] Penticton 7, Osoyoos 1; Cawston 2, Princeton 11.
