The Carpenters' Union, after a lengthy discussion, resolved to join the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America. There was a good attendance of members and the advantages and disadvantages of the step were discussed at length. Nearly all present signed the roll of charter members and the secretary was instructed to apply to the general secretary, Philadelphia, for formal admission, which will likely be accomplished about June 1st. There will then be three societies of the order in British Columbia Vancouver, New Westminster, and Victoria. There has been for some time a branch of the Society of Carpenters and Joiners in this city.

Harbor Improvements.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Mr. Allen introduced in the Senate today a bill providing for the survey of Olympia harbor with a view to making an estimate on its permanent improvement.

HE

THE MAN OF MUSCLE, JOHN L. SULLIVAN.

Will Meet His Man in Combat Soon—Ottawa News—Parnell Sat Upon by His Colleagues—Anti-Trust Bill—Our Members of Parliament Coming Home—Telegraph Paragraphs.

NEW YORK, April 25.—John L. Sullivan, champion pugilist, will be in this city early next week, when he will forward his answer to the California Athletic Club's proposition to arrange a glove fight between he and Peter Jackson, colored fighter. John W. Barrett, Sullivan's manager, said yesterday of the proposed match: "Undoubtedly the offer of the California club will be accepted. I am free to say that much and a little more. I have been in communication with the champion right along and of course know just what he will do. I do not care to say too much, however, until John reaches this city next week, when he will make known his ideas. This much you may say positively, Sullivan will accept."

Parnell Sat Upon.

LONDON, April 25.—The Liberals are at sixes and sevens regarding the Government's Land Purchase Bill. Gladstone's speech having failed to improve their position or to encourage them to make a determined fight, as the matter now stands, the bill will not likely meet any further real opposition though it will be subjected to a number of alterations during the committee stage in respect to its concessions to landlords, which are really too numerous and extensive for many of the Government's adherents to swallow. Parnell is coming in for a great deal of hostile criticism among his followers for springing his scheme as he did—opinion being that it was not only inopportune, but that in failing to take the Irish Parliamentary party into his confidence he displayed a lack of courtesy and implied a measure of proprietorship of the Nationalist membership in the House, which his colleagues are disposed to resent. As a matter of fact, this resentment is not only on the part of members of his own party, but on that of many of his Liberal allies, and has become so pronounced that Parnell may be said to have been sat upon.

Anti-Trust Bill.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Representative Culberson, of Texas, today reported from the House Committee on Judiciary without amendment, the Senate anti Trust Bill, with report recommending its passage. The object of the bill, the report says, is two-fold, first: to protect trade and commerce among the states or foreign nations against unlawful restraints and monopolies; second: to protect trade between states and territories of the United States and District of Columbia, or between states and territories and foreign nations against unlawful restraints.

TELEGRAPH PARAGRAPHS.

The strike of Irish railway porters in the vicinity of Cork shows no signs of settlement. Great difficulty is experienced in the matter of handling mails. Among those who volunteered to assist in putting mails on board the steamer Brittanic for New York at Queenstown today were two reporters and others who worked with the facility of old hands.

A number of houses in a deserted portion of Liverpool fell with a crash today creating great though short lived excitement.

Speeches of His Holiness the Pope have lately been increasing in violence and have excited much comment in official circles in Rome. The Tribune, Government organ, calls attention to these utterances and declares that the Pontiff is the only person who regards himself at liberty to insult the laws of Italy with impunity.

The San Francisco Post says: Advices from Portland are that the first steamship of the new Union Pacific China line will leave Japan about the middle of May, and thereafter steamers will ply regularly from Portland and the Orient. The Trans-Pacific trade is in a fair way to be done to death with two lines from San Francisco, one from Vancouver, one from Portland and others projected from Tacoma and San Diego.

The Dominion House passed the bill extending the sealing season for another year. Licenses will be issued as soon as the royal assent is given.

During the trial of the St. George accident case at Toronto, the jury heard the evidence of 132 witnesses and 137 experts. Another interesting fact is that stenographer Nelson B. Butcher during the trial has filled 40 note books and transcribed 3,000 folios of typewritten evidence.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers of America will hold their annual meeting in Winnipeg this year. Over 600 delegates will be present from all parts of Canada and the Northern States.

The sergeants mess of the Royal Grenadiers, Toronto, have passed a resolution condemning clerical interference in military affairs. The reason is recent protest of Ministerial Association against Sunday parades.

Slow Sewing.

HALIFAX, April 25.—Several American vessels have been waiting here during the last five days for licenses, which the authorities at Ottawa have been slow issuing.

HALIFAX, April 25.—Jules Hamel, largest retail general merchant of St. Pierre, Miquelon, has been arrested at the instance of Murdock Nephews, dry goods merchants, who have a large claim against him and who alleged that he was about to abscond to the United States. Mr. Hamel has been in financial difficulties for some time and has been trying to arrange matters with his creditors. His liabilities are said to be about $100,000.

13-Round Scrap.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 25.—Denny Kelliher, of Boston, and Charley Turner, colored champion of Stockton, middleweights, fought for a purse of $1,000 at the Golden Gate Club this evening. The battle was pretty evenly contested up to the seventh round, after which Turner had somewhat the best of it. In the thirteenth round and last, Kelliher was taking considerable punishment, when he knocked Turner clean out with a right handed swing which caught Turner on the point of the jaw.

Bruising Bullies.

BOSTON April 25.—During a pugilistic exhibition given here last Thursday night under the auspices of the Bay State Athletic Club, James Fallon, while sparring with John Murray for a gold medal, was knocked insensible by a terrible blow on the head just above the left ear. All efforts to restore consciousness failed and he was taken to his home in the rear of 2,148, Tremont Street. Last night medical examination revealed the fact that a blood vessel in the left side of the brain had been ruptured, causing paralysis of the right side of his body. At 2 p. m. today Fallon was still unconscious. The doctor says he cannot live many hours. Murray and William Morton were arrested today and will be held to await the results of Fallon's injuries.

NEWS FROM OTTAWA.

Conflicting Railway Charters—The Sabbath Observance Bill Killed—Salmon Fishery Regulations.

OTTAWA, April 25.—There was a long discussion in the railway committee this morning over the bills to incorporate the Saskatchewan Colonization Railway Company and the Portage la Prairie & Duck Mountain Company. It is contended by Daly that the granting of these charters would interfere with the prospects of the Hudson Bay railway. He moved that the bills be thrown out. Sir John Macdonald said he was opposed to granting either of these charters upon the ground that he desired to see railways built in the west. The committee wanted to frustrate that object. The easiest way was to grant charters for competing railways covering the same districts. Parliament should lay down its will that no charter should be granted without clear and reasonable evidence of the capacity of the companies to build the railways. If he lived until next session he would try to work out a scheme to prevent this kind of dealing with charters, most of which were obtained to be sold. He was strongly against the applications in order that railways already chartered might have a fair chance in the market. The bills consequently were killed by a vote of 60 to 51.

Parrell's bill making railway companies responsible for men's pay during construction, instead of the contractors was also killed.

Ben Young, the salmon canner arrived here this morning from England. He will remain in town a day or two and co-operate with Earle in an endeavor to secure a modification of the regulations. Young says the prices in London for the coming season's output are dull and likely to remain so. Fully a dollar a case less is offered. He leaves for the coast tomorrow.

The Hudson Bay people are sanguine now that they will get the subsidy they have asked for.

Frost, Mara, and Bernard positively decided to leave for home tonight. Earle will remain until prorogation.

The Canada Atlantic fast express from Montreal ran off the track at St. Polycarp. Archbishop Duhamel, of Ottawa, had his arm broken. Desjardins and Beausoleil, members of the Commons, were seriously injured.

By the Government taking Monday Charlton's Sabbath Observance Bill has been killed for this session.

Suicided.

PITTSBURG, April 25.—Robert S. Marshall, aged 45, of Boreavists Street, Allegheny, committed suicide tonight by blowing out his brains. Mr. Marshall was a highly educated man and his home was filled with electrical apparatus on which he had been experimenting. His father always having kept him well supplied with money. It is thought over study and congestion of the brain was the cause of his suicide.

London News.

LONDON, April 25.—A German financier, named Boenigs, who recently founded a deposit bank in Paris and has since done a large business, disappeared a few days ago and his continued absence led to an examination of his accounts. Investigation disclosed the fact that he was a defaulter to the enormous sum of 250,000 francs, and detectives were put on his track. Officers have not yet been able to locate him definitely, but so clue sufficiently plain to warrant the belief that he has gone to New York, whither he is being followed.

Only For $10,000.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Captain Jake Vanderbilt's daughter-in-law, Mary Vanderbilt, today discontinued her suit against the Captain for $50,000 damages for alleged alienation of the affections of young "Jake." The matter has been settled out of court.

Timely Aid.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—The House today passed a joint resolution authorizing the Secretary of War to expend $150,000 in supplying wants of the sufferers by floods in the Mississippi Valley.

Burned to Death.

BELLEVILLE, April 24.—By the burning of their dwelling last night, Jane Arthur was burned to death, and her husband, William Arthur, was seriously burned on his arms and head. The couple were about 60 years of age.

Quebec Elections.

MONTREAL, April 24.—Active preparations are being made for the provincial elections, and the city is being besieged by politicians. A big Conservative rally was held last night, at which addresses were made by Taillon, leader of the Conservative party, Blanchett, and other prominent leaders.

Stranger Disappearance.

MONTREAL, April 24.—A young Englishman, Thomas Kimber, who came from Exeter in the Surrey about three weeks ago, and was stopping at the Grand Central Hotel, has disappeared, leaving behind a large amount of baggage. No cause can be assigned for his disappearance.

At Last.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—The World's Fair Bill has been approved by the President.

SHE

A NOTABLE LADY, nee MISS VICTORIA WOODHULL.

And Her Husband, who will Arrive in New York, will Start a Bank—Bradstreet's Interesting Weekly Budget on Trade and Finance—Supposed Suicide—Financially Embarrassed.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Lady Cook, nee Miss Tennie C. Claflin and Mr. and Mrs. Biddulph Martin, formerly Miss Victoria C. Woodhull, arrived here today on the North German Lloyd steamer Trave and are now quartered at 142 West Seventieth Street, where they will await the arrival of Sir Francis Cook, who was expected to have been a passenger on the Trave, but at the last moment was detained in London on important business. Both Lady Cook and Mrs. Martin are Americans, whose sensational career in Wall Street several years ago gave them wide, though an unenviable reputation. They went to London soon after the smash of their affairs here and now return with rich husbands. As soon as the big Bremen ship reached her dock the parties hurried into carriages and were driven to the above address. They evaded reporters and the expressmen who hauled their 34 trunks and boxes informed all curious people that the luggage would be sent at once to the Pennsylvania Railroad depot. Shortly after the two arrived at the house in West Seventieth Street they were seen by a reporter. Lady Cook said her husband had been unexpectedly detained in consequence of some political affairs which he had to attend. Mrs. Martin referred the reporter to her husband, who said their visit here was one of peace and that no suits would be brought against Inspector Byrnes as stated. The real object of the visit, he said, was to establish two banks, one in New York and one in Chicago. These establishments are intended to be used in connection with the banking house of Lord Cook and himself in London. As soon as the banks are properly established Martin intends to travel for six months and then return to England, but only for a few months, after which the party will return to America, and thereafter spend their time equally in England and the United States. The new banking venture will be nothing more than an extension of the operations of the Anglo-American Company, in which Sir Francis and Martin have much money invested. The party said they might visit Wall Street on Monday or Tuesday, but merely with the idea of looking about. Neither of the ladies would talk about their former life, saying they saw no reason for its discussion.

"Bradstreet's" Budget.

NEW YORK, April 25.—A special telegram to Bradstreet's indicates, except in lower Mississippi valley, that there has been a widespread improvement in the distribution of general merchandise. Jobbing is fairly active in dry goods, groceries, hardware, and boots and shoes throughout the East, the Central, West, Southwest and Northwest, and is backed by an increase in retail and consumptive demand. Interior roads are in better condition than they have been for a long time and mercantile collections at several Western centers are reported to be easier for the first time in some months. Special returns from Louisiana report that the Mississippi river levee is broken in thirty places in that state, that fully one-fifth of the sugar and rice lands are or will be inundated, that the country trade is cut off and public sentiment is demanding a national instead of a state system of levees. San Joaquin valley wheat crop promises to equal the average output there, but in the Sacramento valley it promises to be short. The industrial situation grows more threatening as the first of May approaches. At Chicago 20,000 packing house employees, in addition to harnessmakers, clothing workers, gasfitters, stair builders, and other trades threaten to strike. In addition to 25,000 already on strike for an eight-hour day there have been 126 strikes, involving 28,253 employees thus far in April, against 61 strikes involving 12,193 employees in April last year. Since January 1st there have been 302 strikes, involving 66,142 employees, against only 211 strikes involving 28,924 employees in the first four months of 1889. Wool, it is worth noting, has been in fairly active request for the first time in a year or more; manufacturers actually buying for future requirements but prices are as yet no higher. Dry goods demand is fair; staples and cotton and print cloths, bleached sheeting and denims are higher. Cutting of prices by jobbers is noted. Men's wear and woolen goods are quiet, while dressing goods for fall wear are in better demand. Raw cotton is 1-16 to ⅛ cents higher on good demand and light crop movement. Sugar has not varied much in prices or demand but coffee has continued its movement of last week with another drop ¼ to 2-5 cents. Pork in speculation lines has been pushed another 25 cents per barrel but lard futures have reacted fully 15 cents. Trading in hog products has been only moderately active. Wheat, with free export, fair speculative demand and short crop, and low stock, reports continues firm at ½ to 1½ cents higher. Exports of wheat (and flour as wheat) from both coasts this week equal 2,259,530 bushels against 1,304,973 bushels in like week of 1889, and 1,146,086 bushels last week. The export from 1st to date is 87,705,570 bushels against 73,191,093 bushels in a like share of 1888. Business failures reported to Bradstreet's number 174 in the United States this week against 165 last week and 181 some week last year. Canada had 38 this week against 29 last week. The total number of failures in the United States on January 1st to date is 4,005 again 4,245 in a like period of 1889.

Supposed Suicide.

MONTREAL, April 25.—A few days ago a young Englishman, Thomas Kimber, of Topsham, Devonshire, England, disappeared very mysteriously from the Grand Central Hotel and further revelations only tend to further mystify the police. Kimber came to this city on Saturday, 5th inst., in company with two companions and all put up at the Grand Central. Kimber's companions left him on Sunday evening, stating they were going to Vancouver, B. C., and that he would follow them in a few days. Kimber remained in the city spending it very hard till the following Friday, when he suddenly disappeared. Blood was found on his bed cover and walls of his room. In a corner secreted in his pocket-handkerchief was found a razor covered with blood.

Financially Troubled.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Doran & Wright, one of the largest "bucket shops" now in existence, with branches all over the country, are reported to be financially embarrassed. Nothing definite.

A Fenian in Limbo.

NEW YORK, April 25.—In the trial of O'Donovan Rossa for libelling P. S. Cassidy, the latter testified today that the first trouble he had with Rossa was in 1883 when a bill was rendered for payment of $15 to a man named Jim Brown for attempting to assassinate "Red" Jim McDonald. Before this sensational testimony had been explained the court adjourned.

THE LAST KICK.

Final Passage of the Government's Redistribution Bill.

In the Legal Legislature on Friday, Hon. Mr. Robson moved the adoption of the report of committee on the Constitution Bill.

Mr. Cunningham pointed out that in the clause relating to New Westminster the House had left out all provision for a member, and now might as well provide for two members as one. He urged that municipal improvements added to the value of the country, and if New Westminster had been credited with her expenditures under this head it would be shown that she had last year paid out at least $125,000 in this way. She proposed to spend $100,000 this year under that heading, while many other places had spent no more than they had obtained from the Province. Even influential people in Victoria had protested to him of the injustice which was being done to New Westminster, and this could easily be done by the substitution of the word "two" for "one."

Hon. Mr. Robson—It is no use.

Mr. Cunningham could not see how the people could justify the Government in this action, and how Victoria could endorse its two cabinet members in their present course. New Westminster wanted fair representation. He enumerated the sums paid out by his constituencies for the public benefit, yet the Government appeared determined to keep it back. The Government was wedded to an unfortunate prejudice of the narrowest character which would have the result of dismembering the Province. The natural sequence would be separation. Some said, however, that certain members of the Government favored it.

Hon. Mr. Davie said it had been conclusively shown that no injury was being done to New Westminster, and substantial justice would be rendered that constituency as soon as the Government had further data on which to act. The mistake which had been pointed out by the member had been caused by the mass of descriptive matter which had been tacked on to the clause as originally drafted, and would in any event have been corrected before the bill came up for sanction.

On motion the clause was corrected to provide one member for New Westminster, and having gone through committee the bill was read a third time and passed.

From Golden.

Mr. Bishop, who has a large interest in the slate quarry at Golden, is in the city. About a hundred men are now at work in the quarry and a very fine quality of slate is being got out. Mr. Bishop brings with him some samples of silver ore very rich in that precious metal. The prospects of a smelter at Golden are good.

Killed by a Fall.

TORONTO, April 24.—During a fire here this morning Thomas Everet, Scotsman, fell through an open hatchway to the concrete floor 40 feet below. He lived only half an hour.

We Don't Want Them.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—The Secretary of the Treasury on recommendation of the Secretary of State and the Attorney General, has directed that 19 Chinamen now in custody of the marshal at Port Townsend, Washington, be returned to China direct at the expense of the United States. These Chinamen came into the United States from British Columbia but if sent back fears are entertained that they might again find their way into the United States.

Mr. F. S. Matter, general agent of the Cleveland Minstrel Company, is in town. He states that he has been unable to make satisfactory arrangements to obtain the Opera House here, and the company will consequently not favor the city with a visit. They will, however, play two nights in Vancouver, and Mr. Matter hopes to arrange with the C. P. R. to run an excursion train on the second evening.

The Chinese Evolution Theory.

The rocks are the bones of the divine body, the soil is the flesh, the metals are the nerves and veins; the tide, wind, rain, clouds, frost and dew are all caused by its respirations, pulsations and exhalations. Originally the mountains rose to the firmament and the seas covered the mountains to their tops. At that time there was in the divine body no life besides the divine life. Then the waters subsided; small herbs grew, and in the lapse of cycles developed into shrubs and trees.

As the body of man, unwashed for years, breeds vermin, so the mountains, unlaved by the seas, bred worms and insects, greater creatures developing out of lower. Beetles in the course of ages became tortoises, earth worms became serpents, high flying insects became birds, some of the turtle doves became pheasants, egrets became cranes, and wildcats became tigers. The praying mantis was by degrees transformed into an ape, and some of the apes became hairless. A hairless ape made a fire by striking crystal upon a rock, and, with the spark struck out, igniting the dry grass. With the fire they cooked food, and by eating warm victuals they grew large, strong and knowing, and were changed into men.—Toledo Blade.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

There is one point, and it is a very important point, too, in which the delegation of the Mainland Association was lacking in their interview with the Government. The delegation made an objection in general terms to the Redistribution Bill. They said it was unfair and unjust. The Premier asked the spokesman in what particular he would have the bill amended. The reply was that the delegates did not consider themselves bound "to put themselves in the position of dictating to the "Government." But would it have been dictating to the Government to unfold to them a plan of redistribution which would overcome the injustice which they were complaining of? Most people will surely think not. Here was a grievance which was complained of. Surely a clear statement of the means by which that grievance might be removed would not be considered dictation as to its removal. Was it not really the duty of the delegates to clearly define how the grievance in their opinion might and should be removed? The document that was handed by the delegation to the Government should have been in the form of a bill of rights. The fact appears to be plain that the delegation rushed into the presence of the Government before they had properly considered what they were about to do. They should have been armed with every possible weapon in such a contest. They should have been prepared to say distinctly what they thought to be wrong and how the wrong could be righted. As it was, the Government's request to them to suggest something better than the bill, practically closed their mouths. The result is that the delegation accomplished as good as far as the bill was concerned—they say they did not expect to do any good—and there are those who are ready enough to say they did some harm.

The truth is that although there is no doubt most of those gentlemen who were instrumental in organizing the Mainland Association, had the very best motives in view, they rushed into it with a precipitancy that was dangerous. To that element of danger we extended a warning at the time, but the warning, as is customary in such cases, was not heeded. And the lack of prudence and foresight which characterized the initial step of organization seems to continue. It was a grave error to give the association the name it bears. Here was an organization whose first and main object was given out to be the securing of an equable representation in the Legislature for all parts of the Province—the Island as well as the Mainland—and yet with that broad object alleged to be in view, the association was given a name distinctly sectional. The people of the Province were not slow to perceive this discrepancy between the name and the alleged object, and suspicion was naturally aroused. To have called the organization an "Association to Promote Equable Representation," or some shorter name embodying the same idea, would have been to invite Island as well as Mainland electors to participate in its operations. Under the name bestowed, it could not be regarded as other wise than hostile to the Island, and that it was regarded from the very first in a spirit of hostility everyone knows. Then, the imprudence of its organizers was further manifested in seeking to include within the scope of its operations the discussion and promulgation or construction of any other issues in Provincial politics which might arise. That project carries with it the germs of new disruption, and if the association should continue to live much longer, that truth will be verified.

The Mainland Association has now subsided into a merely sectional existence, and we shall not say, if confined to the one effort of securing something further in the way of a proper proportion of representation for this district, that it may not be capable of doing some good. The Government has promised another redistribution measure after the census of 1891 is taken. The discussion by the association of the difficult question of representation in the Province will result in the education of the people on a subject now very imperfectly understood. Let the association set itself diligently to that task, and by the time the next redistribution measure is brought down the public mind will be in possession of well matured ideas on the subject. But the association must confine itself to that work. To take up other issues will be to create divisions in the ranks of an association which to be effective should be maintained in perfect harmony.

YANKEE LOCAL NAMES.

SOME OF THE ODD TITLES BY WHICH LOCALITIES ARE KNOWN.

How Kite End Was Named—Where the Hog Was Killed Down by a Train—Red Hustline's Contribution—Many Localities, Harbary Coast and Christian Shore.

"Can you direct me to the Richardson neighborhood?" said a newspaper man, tramping along a dusty country road last summer. Two farmers leaned on their rakes and looked at each other inquiringly.

"Richardson neighborhood? Never heard o' no such place. Guess you must mean the Coop. Used to a Richardson live there once."

It is just this way all over New England. Every township is subdivided into localities and neighborhoods bearing odd and distinctive names. Often they are more than odd; they are quaint and eccentric, and sometimes laughable. This same Coop was founded on the east by the Rock o' Dundee, on the north by the City, a solitary house, standing where four roads met, and on the west by Shadagee. And so it is in every town, there is an unwritten geography of New England.

THE HOG'S GREASE.

Boston may have at one time been blessed with queer subdivisions of this sort, but they have now nearly all been swallowed up in the North End, the West End, the South End, etc. Lynn, on the other hand, abounds with them. There are Rail Hill, Breed's End, Blood Swamp, New Light Hill, Pan Swamp, Vinegar Hill, Sadler's Rock and Pudding Hill. This last name came to be applied from the fact that the father of Preserved Sprague, who lived in this section, was noted for the quality of his puddings. What is now Market square was once known as Kite End. It received its name at the hands of the late Joshua C. Oliver, who published a little sheet known as The Tattler, and, out of spite, he nicknamed the locality Kite End, and its people Kite Enders.

Manchester, N. H., boasts of a section known as the Barbary Coast, a name given it by an old sailor. Here too, are found Jacob's Ladder, Pig Village and Princeton square. The city itself has been variously known as Harrytown, Tyngston, Derryfield and Nomokeag.

In the suburbs of Bangor, Me., on the line of the old Veazie railroad, is a village still known as Hogtown. Years ago, when the railroad was in full operation and trains used to drag lazily along between Bangor and Oldtown, a terrible accident occurred there one morning. A woman living near the track was the happy possessor of a very large hog, and the animal in its meanderings came upon the road in front of an advancing train. The hog had never been accustomed to turn out for anything, and did not propose to commence with a trifling thing like an engine. It therefore held its ground, and a dying hog was soon rolling down the embankment.

The train stopped, as was its custom upon all occasions, even to allow a passenger to alight and cut a twig. Out came an angry woman, brandishing her arms and wildly calling upon the conductor of the train to pay for the fatally injured porker. In those days the conductor of the line was of as much importance as the general manager, and he flatly refused to pay for the hog, saying that the owner ought to have kept him away from the track. This settled the matter, and he started his train and left her. When that train returned, however, there was sorrow on board. The woman had taken the fat from the hog, and for a long distance had greased the rails so that it was impossible to pass the place. None of the modern appliances for surmounting such obstacles were then known, and the train was hopelessly stalled. A crew was employed to help the trainmen, and it took hours to clean the grease from the rails so that the train could proceed. Since that time the place has been called Hogtown.

OTHER ODD NAMES.

To everybody in the city of Portland the neighboring town of Cape Elizabeth is known by the simpler name of Poodock. This is a contraction of its ancient Indian name of Purpoodock. Augusta has among its subdivisions Rotten Row, Slab City, Mud Mills, and Britt's Gully. Suburban Lewiston is made up of "patches." There are the Baby patch, the Strawberry patch, the Bleachery Hill patch, the Foundry patch, Water street patch, and the Gas House patch.

Portsmouth, N. H., has its oddly named localities, and these have been well described in Thomas Bailey Aldrich's "Story of a Bad Boy." One of the best known is Christian Shore. The name of the district is supposed to have come from some early settler named Christian, who lived upon and owned the land on that side of Strawberry Bank creek, as the inlet now called the North pond was named by the early colonist.

In Providence, R. I., and its vicinity there are locations known by some peculiar names that are not to be found in the maps or directories. There are Squaw Hollow, Chicken Foot alley, Bulldog square, Shoo Fly Village, Maiden's Prayer park and a variety of others less familiar to the general public.

In this state Gloucester is especially rich in these queer localities. Lobdolly cove is situated on the eastern side of the cape, and was probably the scene of an old time feast, at which "lobdolly," a dish made from Indian meal, was the bill of fare. Cat pond is probably named from the plant called "pussy willow," which grew on its margin. Dogfudging is the name applied to that strip of Squam river between the cut bridge and the old town landing. There are various derivations of this. One is that, the river being shallow near this locality, the boatmen in the olden time, who used poles to propel their crafts, were done "fudging" or propelling with their poles when the deep water in this vicinity was reached. Goose cove, on the northern side of the cape, was probably so called from the tame geese which were kept in that place.—Boston Dispatch to New York Sun.

THE LOST SONG.

I plucked a wild flower from the river's brim,
And drank awhile its faint but fragrant bright,
Then cast it forth upon the wave a swim,
And watched it, as I fancied, drift to death.
"'Tis lost," I said, but far adown the tide
A tempted maiden saw its dainty hue;
She snatched it kneeling at the water side,
And vowed: "I will be pure, sweet flower, like you."

And I, I never knew.

I plucked a song from out my heart one day,
And tossed it on the noisy stream of rhyme.
Sadly I watched it slowly float away
'Mongst thistles, weeds and sprigs of fragrant thyme.
"'Tis lost," I said, "'tis lost forever more,"
Although within my heart of hearts it grew
And yet, far down the rocky shore
It taught one soul its tones sweet and true.

And I, I never knew.

—George Horton.

Superstitions 100 Years Ago.

There is a vague notion abroad in the minds of our people and in our literature that witchcraft follies in New England came to an abrupt close in the Seventeenth century. Such, however, is not the case. The successor of the two Mathers in the Eighteenth century did not hesitate to preach from the pulpit their unwavering belief in "the work of the devil." Thus the Rev. Ebenezer Turell, a graduate of Harvard, left at his death, in 1778, a manuscript account of a case of witchcraft. Speaking of divination, he says: "Turn not the sieve, etc., to know futurities. * * * You only gratify Satan and invite him into your company to deceive you." Specially interesting is his notice of superstitious practices current in New England. He says:

"The horseshoe is a vain thing and has no natural tendency to keep off witches or evil spirits from the houses or the vessels they are nailed to. If Satan should by such means defend you from lesser dangers, 'tis to make way for greater ones and get fuller possession of your hearts! 'Tis an evil thing to hang witch papers on the neck for the cure of agues, to bind up the weapon instead of the wound, and many things of the like nature which some in the world are fond of."

What a clear insight into superstitious usages which some of our forefathers were fond of. How natural the minister's advice sounds.—The Open Court.

A Duel of Politeness.

Old Judge Fernald, of Santa Barbara, has the reputation of being the politest man in California. He never loses an opportunity to doff his hat or to offer some slight attention to wayfaring men and women. One day, as he was about to take the train for San Francisco, he reached the rear steps of the last car just as they were approached by a young priest.

"After the cloth," said the chivalric judge, stepping back with a courtly bow.

"Gray hairs have the preference," returned the priest, with a splendid wave of the hand.

"The church always has precedence," retorted the judge, taking another backward step, hat in hand.

"The church follows in the footsteps of the fathers," replied the priest, bowing low and indicating the way to the steps.

The duel of politeness was not half through, neither yielding an inch, when the train pulled out, leaving both bowing and smiling on the platform.—San Francisco Examiner.

Tattooed Algerians.

In Algeria every girl born of native parents is tattooed on her forehead between the eyebrows and just at the root of the nose with a cross formed of several straight lines of small stars running close together. These tattoo marks are a dark blue color. Algerian women are also considerably tattooed on the backs of their hands, their forearms and chests, as well as on their shoulders, their wrists being especially adorned with drawings representing bracelets and flowers strung together. As a rule, women are the operators, and it is principally on children between the ages of 7 and 8 that they have to exercise their art. They use sometimes a needle, but more frequently a Barbary fig tree thorn. They employ kohl as a coloring substance. It is a kind of fine powder made from sulphur of antimony, which is also in great request by the Algerian women for the purpose of face painting.—Chicago Herald.

About Money Making.

No one who has any experience can doubt that money is one of the great practical forces of organized society. The poor boy who resolves to "make money" is not necessarily mercenary in his spirit or low in his aims. To gain a foothold by the ownership of property is simply one step on the road to success. That gained, he has gained a great lever. Every energetic, aspiring American boy may rightly and naturally look forward to the accumulation of property. But to wish for money, to seek it, or to use it is a selfish, base spirit, to make it in itself the first and most important object of life, is contemptible and degraded manhood. Think about making money then; think about it earnestly and with a fixed determination to do it; but think quite as seriously of other and higher things to be done.—Country Gentleman.

A Game Hen.

I had a queer thing happen while exercising my setter, showing how the old instinct still lingers in our common barnyard fowls. I was passing an old corn field, very bare of any grass or weeds, when my dog made game. Thinking there might be a stray bevy of quail, I walked in. He worked up carefully and finally stood stiff, but seemed a little puzzled. I saw something in front of his nose that looked like a dead owl at first, but I soon saw it was a hen. She lay as flat as a flounder, head on the ground. As I stepped up close she went off with a mighty flurry and cackling.—Forest and Stream.

A Successful Business Man.

Country Bride (taking in the sights)—What a big printin' business this Mr. Job must do, John.

Country Bridegroom—Yes, he's got printin' offices all over the city.—Epoch.

Abraham's Oak.

The old oak at Mamre in Syria, or, as it is known everywhere, "Abraham's Oak," is one of the most famous and venerable trees in the world. It is reverenced alike by Jew, Christian and Mahometan, for it is supposed to mark the spot where the patriarch pitched his tent in the desert. There is a superstition in Jerusalem, and in all the country about, that whoever shall cut or injure this tree will lose his first born son. So for centuries it has been allowed to toss its gnarled and contorted limbs in the gales which sweep from the Mediterranean over the Syrian plains.

This tree was visited by Sir Joseph Hooker in the autumn of 1860, and in his paper upon Syrian oaks, read the following year before the Linnaean society (Transactions, xxiii), he gave a description of it and a portrait drawn by his own hand.

Abraham's Oak was found to belong to Quercus pseudo-coccifera, which, to quote from Sir Joseph's paper, "is by far the most abundant tree throughout Syria, covering the rocky hills, of Palestine especially, with a dense brushwood of trees eight to twelve feet high, branching from the base, thickly covered with small evergreen rigid leaves, and bearing acorns copiously. On Mount Carmel it forms nine-tenths of the shrubbery vegetation, and it is almost equally abundant on the west flanks of the Antilebanon and many slopes and valleys of Lebanon. Owing to the indiscriminate destruction of the forests in Syria, this oak rarely attains its full size." The circumference of the trunk of "Abraham's Oak" is given as 23 feet, and the diameter of the spread of the branches as 90 feet.

Quercus pseudo-coccifera is an evergreen species, with the general appearance of the ilex, of southern Europe, and closely related, botanically, to Quercus coccifera, a common and widely distributed scrub oak of southern Europe and of Algeria; indeed, Hooker was of the opinion that the two plants were merely geographical varieties of the same species.—Garden and Forest.

Shooting Canvasback.

"The only proper way to kill canvasback ducks is to shoot them on the wing as they fly over you. If you are a muff you will have lots of sport, and will not hurt the ducks. You will blaze away at them as they fly toward you, which is precisely what I, as a lover of the species, would beat like you to do, unless you are generous and are disposed to divide your bag. So long as you shoot them in this way only a rare accident will enable you to do any harm to the beautiful creatures. They wear a breastplate of feathers which is practically impervious to shot. If you are a sportsman you will let them fly over, and shoot them as they recede.

"The fact that the ducks fly high and are very swift of wing renders it difficult to kill them on the wing at all, and as very few men are really good shots, resort is had by the majority to such 'blind' shooting as is permitted. Batteries are, of course, forbidden, and so are sneak boxes and the like. But it is permitted to the half skilled sportsman to build blinds of reeds along the shore and to shoot from behind them when the ducks approach within range. In this sort of shooting very little harm would be done but for the fact that the canvasback is beset with a curiosity surpassing that of women.

"If he sees anything in motion on the shore which he does not understand, no consideration or prudence will restrain him from paddling at once towards it, regardless of all danger, and the duck shooters take advantage of this by training little dogs to run about in a frisky, absurd fashion in front of the 'blinds' when ducks are in sight. As soon as the ducks see what is going on the whole flock makes for the shore, and the sportsmen can shoot at what range they will.—Philadelphia Record.

A Milky Way.

I learned the other day that the big milk supply companies of the city found it necessary to exercise a surveillance over their drivers, but it has been already reduced to an elaborate system. An experienced and dishonest driver can start out with fifty gallons of milk inspected pure at the depot, and from the supply deliver sixty-five gallons, the fifteen gallons accruing to his own profit, and being secured by judicious watering at various points on the route. Before the discovery of this practice some of the drivers had a regular run of customers of whom their employers knew nothing. The companies' inspectors now go about the city at random, and, following a delivery of milk, as soon as the driver is done subject it to an inspection with the lactometer. If it has been watered that driver is discharged, and, by an agreement with the other dairy companies, he cannot enter the employ of any of them.—Interview in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

History of the Rat.

No, not the slang phrase, but the bothersome little rodent. Rats are natives of Asia and their raids westward belong to comparatively modern times. The little animal was unknown in ancient Europe. The black rat first came to Europe from Asia in the Sixteenth century, and about the beginning of the Seventeenth or the ending of the Sixteenth century he arrived in America. This black rat was the common house rat until the brown or gray rat made his appearance in 1775. The gray rat came to Europe from India by way of Russia, and is now known as the Norway rat from a mistaken tradition that it came from Norway to England, and from the latter country to America.—St. Louis Republic.

Mrs. Hobson's Choice.

Mrs. Hobson—I wish I had something to read. Did you get only one Sunday paper?

Mr. Hobson—Yes, my dear, but it is in two parts.

"Well, let me have one while you are reading the other."

"Certainly, love. Which half would you prefer, the political half or the baseball half?"—New York Weekly.

PROVINCIAL SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
Victoria, 11th April, 1890.

WHEREAS the Lieutenant-Governor in Council is empowered, under the "Public School Act," to create School Districts, in addition to those already existing, and to define the boundaries thereof, and from time to time to alter the boundaries of existing Districts; it is hereby notified that His Honor has been pleased to direct that the boundaries of Alder Grove School District be altered and redefined as follows:

CRUISE OF THE TELLIE NAYLOR.

The Reporter Hobnobs With Royalty and Pleasure—An Exciting Trip up the River Yesterday in Tenanis William's Steamer—Almost a Fatal Ending.

Early yesterday morning an official note was conveyed by special messenger to the TRUTH man that the private pleasure boat of His Excellency, William I., King of Springfish, Crown Prince of Oolachan and Heir Presumptive to the throne of Suckeye, was going on a trip up the river, and that the company of the man of items was specially solicited. The pencil pusher sent back the following acceptance:

"TO HIS ROYAL NIBS, TRUTONE: WILLIAM—Will be there on time. Thanks, awfully."

Arriving at the handsome dock, the royal steam yacht, Tellie Nayler, was found to be in readiness, and as soon as the inkslinger came aboard the order was given to cast off, and away we sped as on the wings of the wind. Lolling back in the softly cushioned tête-a-tête seats in the stern of the magnificent vessel, we complacently surveyed the soul-stirring scenery along the Chinatown front of the Royal City as we inhaled the delicious odor of a fine (5-for-a-quarter) imported havana cigar. In the course of time the main portion of the classic city was left behind, and on we sped over the pellucid water of the mighty Fraser, beneath the frowning fortress-like front of the Insane Asylum, with never a yell from an enthusiastic inmate to awake the echoes of the slumbering morning; houses of the guards, even to the very gates of the British Columbia "inferno" presided over by that prince of hotel keepers, Warden McBride. We did not see the legend that "He who enters here leaves hope behind," but took it for granted without further investigation. A sudden turn of the good ship brought into prominent view that hive of industry, the Brunette sawmills, and we glided silently but surely alongside the dock at Laidlaw's cannery. Here the vessel unloaded a somewhat cumbersome pileriver belonging to the Hon. Donald Mack, and the stranger from New York asked what that large building on the side hill was.

"It's Wright & Jamieson's brewery," said Captain Frank.

"Let's have some beer," shouted the New Yorker.

The whole crew doffed their hats and yelled "It's a shack!" and started for the malt factory. Owing to his cumbrous form, the poor knight of the quill had to bring up the rear and came near taking an involuntary bath in the river while trying to get ashore. However, he arrived at "the death" just in time to see the bottom of several huge glasses pointed skyward, and hear the soloists lost thankful grunts of satisfaction of the advance guard.

After taking a hurried look through the sawmill and the cannery, the ominous "All aboard!" was sounded and away we went. First Officer Jimmie now took the helm and steered directly up-river, past the uncanny spot where the body of old lady Ankers was found, along beside damp, dark, silent forests that gave back with chilling effect the puff! puff! of the boat, until a landing was made at the McLaren Ross mills.

Here the whole party went ashore to view the sights, and the man from New York at once commenced his inquiries for another brewery. He could not be accomodated, so he bought an Indian "curio" and was satisfied.

The mills were duly inspected and commented upon, and the homeward trip was commenced. In the meantime quite a fresh wind had sprung up from the west which made the water quite rough. The good ship rode the waves gallantly. Capt. Frank stood at the bow, where he issued orders to Lieut. Jimmie at the tiller, and Engineer Tom stood gallantly at his post, with one hand upon the throttle and the other grasping his pipe. Right in the middle of the river, when the huge waves (nearly two feet high) were striking the craft with murderous intent, all ears were startled and all countenances turned ashy pale by the cry from the engine room.

"A leak! a leak! There's half a bucket of water in her hold now!"

"Cut away the main brace!" shouted Capt. Frank. "Man the life boat, and take a lock on the jib-boom! Luff, Jimmie, luff!"

Only for these brave orders, and the cool head and daring actions of the gallant captain and his able assistant, Jimmie, the craft would have gone to the bottom and this "true true tale" would never have been written.

After fishing the reporter out of the coal-hold and reviving him with a dose of castoria oil (the only intoxicant on board), the vessel reached her berth at the foot of Begbie Street without serious accident.

They Were Successful.

Mr. A. St. George Hammersly returned from the Capital this morning, where he had been in company with Mr. L. G. McPhillips and Mr. L. P. Eckstein interviewing the Government relative to the County Court Amendment Bill. Mr. Hammersly reports that the delegation were entirely successful in their mission. He likewise reports the further, and to the Vancouver-ite professional and business community, gratifying news that the Government will appoint a registrar for the Supreme Court for Vancouver, which will thus be created into a judicial district; also, that sittings of that court will be held in Vancouver, and that a deputy sheriff will likewise be appointed for this city.—World.
