DROWNED IN THE INLET.

Two Young Men Lose Their Lives at the Vancouver Mills.

As sad a fatality as has ever occurred in Vancouver took place on Tuesday afternoon at the Vancouver Saw Mill Company's mill when two promising, industrious young men lost their lives by drowning. Robert Johnston, boom man, and Joseph Ouillet, a young French Canadian of 18, were engaged in bringing logs from the boom, which was some distance from the mill, up to the gangway. As all the men were not busy within the mill, and assistance was needed, Isaac Green, a young man of 23, was directed to help those at the boom. He at once did so, but as it was new work to him he got wet several times in a few minutes. Mr. Johnston, noticing this, said he had better go back to the mill and send another in his place. Green did not do this, but went on with his work. He soon got one log separated from the others, and started with it for the gangway of the mill, closely followed by Ouillet with another. Green could not get his log brought forward to the proper place and after some futile efforts thoughtlessly jumped upon the one Ouillet was handling to get in a better position. When he did so, that log rolled throwing him into the water. Ouillet reached his hand to the struggling man, who grasped it, but in his efforts to raise himself drew his rescuer also into the water. Both went down together but when they arose they were separated. Green struggled for a few seconds and as he could not swim, before Johnston could get to his assistance he had gone down to rise no more alive. Ouillet was a good swimmer and struck out for the wharf, but the tide ebb was very strong and he failed to reach that point, sinking exhausted. The police were notified and search at once began by Sergeant Haywood and Officer McLeod for the bodies, which after some time were found. The remains of both were taken to the morgue. Dr. McGuigan was notified, and was on the scene in good time, rendering every assistance he could.

The police visited the cabins of both men to learn, if possible, the address of relatives. Nothing could be found in Ouillet's cabin, which was very poorly furnished, to show where he lived before coming to Vancouver, but some of his friends stated that he was from St. Johns, Que. Green's cabin was much more comfortable, and letters found in his trunk showed him to have been of well-to-do people in Hillsburgh, Erin Township, Wellington Co., Ont. His companions all state that he was a sober, industrious man who had come to try his fortune in the west. His papers show that he had purchased several lots in the city on the instalment plan. A despatch was sent by Chief McLaren last night to his parents informing them of the sad occurrence. No blame can be attached to the owners or officials of the mill in any way. They could not have prevented the unfortunate casualty. It was one of those sad affairs which, however, teach the danger of men in trying places.

DUNLO DIVORCE

CASE CONCLUDED AND THE NOBLE VISCOUNT

Receives a Severe Castigation at the Hands of Judge Hannen—The Defendant Greeted with Cheers by the Crowd—Gladstone Speaks at the Liberal Club.

LONDON, July 30.—The sensational Dunlo divorce case ended today in a manner which most people during the last part of the trial have expected. Viscount Dunlo has so utterly failed to make out his case that it was generally admitted he would be obliged to remain united to his fair but unwelcome bride, unless the eloquence and persuasive logic of Sir Charles Russell should prove potent to make up for the weakness of the evidence. But though Sir Charles' summing up was a masterpiece in its way it was insufficient to overcome in the minds of the jury the effects of the cold, but powerful array of facts in opposition to the Viscount's claim as presented by Lady Dunlo's counsel. Justice Hannen's address to the jury was somewhat of a surprise on account of the rather unusual leniency with which the defendants indiscretions were treated, and also because the severity with which the court animadverted upon Viscount Dunlo's course. The charge as a whole was so distinctly favorable to Lady Dunlo that it amounted almost to an instruction for a verdict in her favor, though it is doubtful if the result was in any way altered thereby. The court emphasized the dangers attending the life of an actress and pointed out that members of the profession could hardly fail to acquire less strict notions as to what constituted proper behaviour than were expected of women in the ordinary walks of life, and conduct which on the part of the latter would be proof positive of loose morals, might among the former be nothing more heinous than unconventionality. His Honor dwelt with marked disapproval upon Lord Dunlo's desertion of his wife; his proper course was either to live with and support her or obtain a divorce for causes existing at the time of separation. He practically forced her to maintain herself amid all the forces of temptation and set spies upon her in the evident hope of her having been led into wrong doing. The court also alluded to the apparent fact that Dunlo's father, Lord Cloncurry, seemed to have instigated the suit and that the trouble between the young couple would probably have been averted if they had been left to themselves. Lady Dunlo, who during the trial, had always left court through a rear exit in order to avoid the crowd, went out by the main entrance after the conclusion of the case today. She received a genuine ovation from the throng which seemed quite elated over her vindication. It is stated that she proposes to follow up her victory fully and require the Viscount to maintain her and if she can manage it, to live with her. The court ordered that Viscount Dunlo pay all costs of the action.

Gladstone speaking at the National Liberal Club tonight and there had never been a more distinct proof that the heart and mind of the nation were with the Liberals than had been afforded since the assembling of the present session of parliament. In the course of his remarks Gladstone referred to the mission of Sir Listons Sommons to the Roman court as a novelty in English history which would require attention next session, unless the expenses of the mission were not taken from the money voted by the House of Commons, parliament might not have a chance to discuss the nature of affairs. The object of the mission appeared to have been to induce the Pope to prop up the failing cause of the anti-Irish party.

ROME, July 30.—The Government has forbidden emigration to the Argentine Republic. The reason given is that the authorities have received news that the revolutionary movement is likely to continue.

Ventilating Living Rooms.

The question of ventilation is even more difficult than that of heating. If one uses a stove the oxygen in the room must supply the fire as well as the lungs of the inmates, and unless it is constantly re-enforced from the outside it will become exhausted, and the air of the room will be unfit to breathe, both from the exhaustion of the oxygen and from the exhalations from the bodies of those who live in it. A good way to ventilate is to close the doors between the living room and the one adjoining, then in the latter open all the windows until the air is entirely renewed; then close the windows and open the connecting doors. This has been used with success in the case of invalids. Another way is to raise one of the sashes a few inches, and have a strip of wood fitted snugly in below the sash. The air will then enter upward between the sashes, and will cause no draught. A hinged pane in one of the windows is an excellent thing, as is also a ventilator set in one of the panes.—Boston Herald.

A Funeral in Naples.

While traversing one of the narrow streets I was fortunate enough to see a funeral, writes a Naples correspondent. Of course, I was sorry for the deceased, but I was glad, since there was a corpse, that I was there to see the funeral procession, as it is one of the most curious of sights. The corpse is placed in a highly decorated receptacle on a raised platform, which is carried high over the heads of the sight bearers. Then come about a dozen of the Brothers of the Misericordia in their grotesque costumes of a white flowing sheet, with heads entirely concealed by the same, save the large holes cut for eyes and mouth—looking like ghosts of the past. After them came about twenty old chaps dressed in black, with huge black hats of ancient make. After these came the relatives and friends, the Brothers of the Misericordia and the solemn old chaps who are hired for the occasion. No funeral in Naples would be complete without them.

Rival Steamship Lines.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 30.—The outcome of the war between the Canadian Pacific Railroad Company and the Pacific Mail Steamship Company is waited with interest. The steamer China, which is owned by the latter company, will sail tomorrow for Hong Kong and Yokohama and will touch at Victoria, as she has freight and passengers for that port. All the China line of steamers will touch there until further notice, and the Canadian Pacific will square accounts by having its steamers come here. The steamer Abyssinia, owned by the Canadian Pacific, sailed from Hong Kong on the 26th inst., and after touching at Vancouver, B. C., will come here. The company will have six steamers on the line, making Vancouver the first port of arrival and the last of departure. All the steamers will dock here as long as the war lasts. The war between the companies will result in a reduction of freight and passenger rates and it is not yet known just how far rate-cutting will be carried. The probability is that rates will be lowered until it will almost be unprofitable for either company to carry on business, and then the usual result of such a war will follow. There will be a compromise, the companies will adjust their differences, and then business will go on just the same as before the row.

MANSLAUGHTER

WAS THE VERDICT OF THE JURY THIS MORNING

Against Two Indians Named Sam and Jim for the Murder of Sunbury at Vancouver in March Last—The Evidence Pro and Con—They Will Be Sentenced Today by Judge McCreight.

The adjourned trial of the prisoners charged with the murder of Sunbury at Vancouver last spring came up yesterday in the court house before Mr. Justice McCreight. The following jurymen were chosen, Messrs. Oliver (foreman), Hodge, McAdam, Best, Brown, Medd, Cawley, Robertson, Anderson, Hampton, Bruce and Marchmont. Mr. A. St. Hammersley of Vancouver conducted the case for the crown, while the defence was conducted by Mr. S. Perry Mills of Victoria. The first witness, Robert Chamberlain, who upon being sworn, gave evidence to the effect that he roomed with the deceased Sunbury in an hotel, and as far as he knew the deceased had a good character, and never took any drinks. Saw him at the hotel on Friday night, but never saw him again until his body was found on the beach. To Mr. Mills, deceased frequently went to the rancherie to visit a friend whom he had known in the east. Had told witness that there was a man from the east in Vancouver who had committed a murder there, also said that he saw this man in an hotel and that there was a reward offered for his arrest. He also said that he would be afraid to meet him alone; Sunbury wore boots and remembered seeing them on the beach. We had supper together Friday evening. Do not know whether he was a total abstainer or not but would not take a drink with me.

Dr. Bell-Irving performed a post mortem upon the body of Sunbury. There was a large contused wound and a smaller cut wound on the left side of his head near the vertex of the skull. Removed the scalp and found the left temporal and parietal bones crushed in. The skull cap was removed and a large effusion of clotted blood in the surface of the dura mater covering the brain. The brain was also effused with blood. The bleeding must have taken place immediately after the injury which was caused by a blow from some blunt instrument. It would cause almost instant death.

To Mr. Mills—Did not examine the hands of the body, simply took a casual glance at them.

By the court—Did not examine the stomach, the cause of death was so obvious.

Wm. Moresby sworn—Arrested Sam at Fort Rupert, Jim at a logging camp above Fort Rupert and Crazy Annie at the same place in a canoe. Annie was arrested at another logging camp about 25 miles from Fort Rupert in the month of May last. Did not search Sam until I arrived at Alert Bay. Out of his pocket I took a ring (produced).

To Mr. Mills.—Arrested Sam in a canoe, he came along side the boat, took him out of the canoe and arrested him. Then went for the others and took them all to Alert Bay. Sam was 24 hours in custody before I searched him. He was in the cabin of the steamer and slept there with several others.

Elizabeth Cartwright sworn.—My husband and myself keep the Bernard Castle Hotel at Vancouver. Remember Sunbury. Saw him the last time about 6.30 o'clock at supper. Know nothing wrong about his character. He wore a ring with a pinky white, round, flat stone on the top. Could not tell whether it was gold or silver but thought it was a composition ring (produced and fully identified by witness).

To Mr. Mills—Saw the ring seven or eight days before the disappearance of Sunbury. It was in a small box on the table in his room. Saw it on his finger several times afterwards.

James Bell sworn.—Knew Sunbury at the hotel. Saw him last on Friday evening leaving the place, and did not see him until found dead. He wore a ring and told me it was a keepsake. It was a yellow color with a bluish white stone (ring produced). Witness said that the ring was not that of Sunbury. It was not the ring he identified in the police court at Sunbury's.

Officer Hayward sworn—Remembered Sunbury and saw his body in the city hospital after it was found. Saw all the prisoners on the 29th March. Arrested Sam and Annie in the rancherie, about a quarter of a mile from where the body was found. They were drunk and received a month's imprisonment. Was present when they were arraigned up north in May.

By Mr. Mills—Know an Indian named Billy Williams who was in the police station; did not offer him any money to tell about the murder; simply asked him about it, but did not press him. He told me he knew nothing about it and don't remember speaking to him about it afterwards, neither of the reward.

By a juryman—Was well acquainted with deceased, but did not know whether he carried much money with him or not.

Billy Williams sworn—Came to Vancouver from Moodyville on Friday four months ago; went to the Indian rancherie to get his canoe and saw the prisoners fighting. The men were not very drunk, but the women were. Saw nobody with them at that time; saw a white man with them afterwards. While they were fighting Sam held the white man's hands when Jim struck him on the head; the white man then fell down dead. Before this he saw all four prisoners drinking with the white man. When the white man fell on the railroad track he never got up. After that the witness ran away.

To Mr. Mills—Came from Moodyville at 10 o'clock that morning and never went back. Saw the people fighting on the railway track about 10 o'clock at night. The two women were so drunk that they could not stand. The white man was drinking with the Indians and he got the liquor from a saloon. He thought it was the same man that was drinking with them afterwards. Witness bought whiskey himself and drank it with four Flathends, and also at another time drank whiskey with the four prisoners. He was arrested for supplying liquor to Indians and the prisoner Sam gave the information.

The court adjourned for dinner at 7.30 o'clock last evening and resumed its evening session at 8.30.

John Butler, an Indian, sworn—This witness' evidence was interpreted from his own language into Chinook and from Chinook into English. He lives at Moodyville and remembers the end of March last. Knows the four prisoners. He saw prisoner fighting with the white man. Jim took a stone and Sam picked up a stick, and killed him. When the white man was killed they pulled off his shirt and trousers; both helped. Sam took a hold of the white man by the hands and Jim hit him with the stone. The white man screamed and was rolling on the ground. When this happened the two women were very drunk and went into the house crying. When the fight was going on Annie was sitting on a log while the other walked away. Jim first started the fight. He saw them take the ring off the little finger of deceased m's r.

To Mr. Mills—The fight took place at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Was standing about 30 yards off from them on the railway track.

I. H. Hallet, sworn—Recognize the ring (produced) as the one produced at the Police Court examination.

This completed the evidence for the prosecution and His Lordship asked the jury to acquit the two women which was accordingly done.

Mr. Mills then opened the case for the defence.

The first witness called was F. Crake, a jeweller, who testified to the effect that the ring produced was a brass one, guilded over. It is worth about 50c. and nearly every jewellry peddler has them.

Cecelia Williams sworn.—Had a ring which Sam took away from her; it had a white stone on the top and was of brass; got it from an old woman about this time last year. The ring (produced) belongs to her.

To Mr. Hammersley.—Sam took the ring away about three months ago at Fort Rupert. Doesn't know where Sam was when she was at Fort Rupert. He took the ring about a week before the steamer came for him.

At this point a long argument between the counsel took place upon the question as to whether the two discharged Indian women should be placed in the dock on the ground that they were the wives of the two prisoners.

Mr. Moresby was then put in the witness box and testified to the effect that the two women were wives of the men but probably were never married.

Annie was then placed in the box and sworn.—She remembered the evidence of Butler during the afternoon. She and Crazy Annie was at Vancouver at the end of March; the evidence of Williams is all untrue; had a conversation with Williams in the jail about the case last Monday; he told her and Crazy Annie to tell lies and say that Jim and Sam had killed the white man, and if they told lies they would get off. If they did not say that Sam and Jim had killed the white man they would be put in jail. A fellow named George offered them $70 to say that Sam and Jim had killed the white man.

To Mr. Hammersly—The conversation took place about three o'clock in the afternoon. A guard named Lister was there, but did not hear them talking. She and Sam were living together in Vancouver four months ago.

Crazy Annie sworn—Heard Williams' evidence and there is no truth in it, nor is there any truth in the evidence of Butler.

This closed the case for the defence, when Mr. Mills made an eloquent plea on behalf of his clients, after which Mr. Hammersly addressed the jury on behalf of the crown. His Lordship then summed up the case in a few words, after which the jury were sent to consider their verdict.

After a deliberation of about half an hour the jury returned to the court about 1 o'clock this morning bringing in a verdict of guilty of manslaughter against the Indians Sam and Jim. The prisoners were remanded for sentence until 11:30 this morning.

From Five Points.

For really gentle, girlish grace and refinement would you be apt to look in the neighborhood of the notoriously rough and tough Five Points. Hardly. Yet here is a curiously contradictory case. A professional gambler, and ward politician, "a man of influence" in that quarter, had a pretty daughter. She was literally reared in the slums, and, although she went away for education, her social connections were with people congenial to her reprehensible sire. A year ago she made her debut as an actress. Her father had long been a butt for printed ridicule, and so, when she was announced to act at a Bowery theatre matinee, fun was anticipated. But she acquitted herself so respectably that nobody laughed at her, and the affair was not noticed by the press. Well, I went last night to see a beautiful and elaborate production of Shakespearian comedy in a fashionable Broadway theatre, and there was the Five Points girl enacting a dainty and difficult character in the nicest, neatest manner imaginable. Every word that she uttered and every movement that she made was an expression of ideal gentility. She was just the sort of girl of whom you would say, in case you believed any of the nonsense about high born aestheticism, here is a daughter of well bred generations.—Miss Lookabout's New York Letter in Boston Herald.

Discoveries on Mercury.

Some very interesting discoveries have lately been made on the planet mercury by Schiaparelli, the great Italian astronomer. Such remarkably acute eyesight has this man that he is able to discover spots on the planet where other astronomers see only a blank surface. By watching and studying these spots during a period of several years, Schiaparelli was able to determine the time of rotation of the planet on its axis and the angle which its equator makes with the plane of its orbit. Schroeter a hundred years ago, noticed a blunting of the horns of the planet when crescent, and from these observations Herchel computed that the planet revolved once in twenty-four hours. Schiaparelli's observations show this to be entirely wrong for he observed the spots repeatedly on the same day without seeing any signs of rotation. However, from day to day he noticed a slight change in the position of the spots, and finally found that the planet revolved on its axis in the same time that it rotated around the sun, i. e., in about eighty-eight days. It, therefore, always turns the same surface toward the sun, just as our moon does toward the earth.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

How to Enjoy Winter Baths.

Probably nothing is so neglected during winter time as bathing. There is a natural dislike to bathing when one gets chilled afterward. This could be avoided, writes a doctor in The London Lancet, if bathrooms were heated all the time, not just when one wants to bathe, but continually during the day and evening. The trouble of starting a fire often deters one from taking a bath. The bathrooms should be heated very warm, not merely enough to take the "chill off the air," but enough to prevent the bather receiving a chill after his bath, and to permit him to bathe without hurrying.

Daily Edition.

DAIRY FARMING.

The proceedings of the second annual convention of the Dairymen's Association of Canada, printed by order of parliament, forms a neat pamphlet of some eighty pages. It is an unobtrusive looking brochure, but for all that deserves, and will no doubt receive, and certainly will well repay the trouble of careful perusal. Professor Robertson, the Dairy Commissioner for the Dominion, spoke at the convention and his remarks, which dealt with dairy farming are reproduced in the printed proceedings. The professor regards dairy farming as something more than the production of milk and the handling of its products. The farmer should concern himself with having the soil in such a state of fertility, that he may be able to obtain plentifully, and profitably, the raw material out of which he has to obtain milk, butter, cheese, beef, and other animal products of concentrated quality and value. Professor Robertson is of the opinion that dairy farming enables any man who follows it with good judgment and skill, to get a larger quantity of food from the same number of acres than could be obtained otherwise. One great advantage of dairy farming is that it protects the soil by keeping it rich. It also gives a large population profitable occupation, and as population increases the value of property augments. Dairy farming increases the food supply "by going to plants produced by the soil, an increased life containing value by their being transformed from the vegetable state to that of an animal product." The present generation demands food of a concentrated quality. Not so long ago less nutritive, less palatable, but more bulky food took the place now occupied largely by butter, milk, eggs, cheese, etc. The consumption of milk today is, both in England and Canada, five times as great per head of the population as it was twenty years ago. And what is true of milk is true also of cheese. The true economy, Professor Robertson, holds to be the production of these foods at a cheaper rate and he is sanguine that within twenty-five years from now butter will be produced at a profit by selling at 12 cents per pound. If prices go up after the cost of production is lowered, so much the more profit. The northern temperate zone is the best part of the whole earth for the growth of cereals, but while this is undoubtedly true, it seems doubtful wisdom to sell so much grain from Canadian farms. We should be a grain growing people, selling animals and their products. Thereby we should "grow more grain, have richer fields and get more sustenance, obtaining from the soil an ever increasing supply of food from a never diminishing store. In the exportation of a million bushels of wheat there is removed from the soil fertilizers to the value (if they had to be bought) of $240,000. When, however, this country sends away $1,000,000 worth of butter or cheese, less than $1,000 worth of fertilizers leave the land. In providing remunerative occupation, dairy farming gives profitable employment the whole year round. Having demonstrated the foregoing facts by elaborated argument, the Professor then goes on to show that the farmer will work better, if he has a clear conception of the labor he has to do. A cow is a machine in a sense, and should be made to produce systematically. The good farmer settles in his own mind that he wants milk, calves at a profit and beef. A cow cannot pay her board in beef, but she can do so if she yields milk first, so that her calves may be raised with economy, and having paid her board, her beef can be sold at a profit no matter what the price is obtained for it. To secure her serving her master at intervals the cow should have a long udder, a soft skin, a large barrel, broad loins and long rumps. The possibility of reducing the cost of keeping the cow demands the attention of the dairy farmer. The possibility of changing the food from hay and turnips, to corn ensilage and clover, should be examined, as also the stabling of cattle, with due regard to the comfort of the animals. A stable with chinks in it, letting through the daylight may be a good stable in August, but a bad one in December. These and numberless details are all dealt with by Professor Robertson, whose knowledge of his subject will no doubt ensure the wide reading of his remarks.

THE TERPSICHOREAN ART.

Many of us who have lived in or even visited large cities have been delighted with the graceful evolution, the endless gyrations, the graceful posturings and the fascinating exercises of the professional dancers and her sisters of the ballet. The art of the professional dancer is one demanding constant painstaking and never ceasing labor. Taglioni has left graphic and pathetic descriptions of the terrible severity of her early training. Her father, whilst the most patient was too the most inflexible of masters. "Weariness, tears, exhaustion, nothing softened his heart while we were at rehearsal." There have been many volumes written on the ballet dancer's art. M. Blasis, at one time ballet master at Covent Garden Theatre, wrote at least a score of treatises on the subject. The position, turns, leaps, steps, the special exercises for the arms, the legs and the body; the academical, the classical, the bacchanalian and the hundred other postures—all these have been subjects for the profoundest study of scientific maitres de ballet. Of the higher branches of the art, the rank and file of the corps de ballet are never called upon to dazzle and amaze with a pas seul, yet every girl has her chance. In spite of this not one person in a hundred is born or made in a generation. Every dancer has to serve her apprenticeship, and long and laborious it is. If she has the rare dancer's genius she will have to work harder and harder the longer she remains on the boards to maintain her unique position. Stage dancing is not an art for the languid or the weak. It needs a vigorous constitution, sturdy limbs and a sound wind. It strengthens the strong, but weakens the weak. Certain physical conditions almost always attend upon the practice of the dancer's art. "Enlargement of the knee and the joints" says Dupré Cook "an excessive and unpicturesque assertion on the part of the muscles of the neck, displacement of the calf, and a certain flattening of the leg in front, form part of the price paid by the ballet dancer for professional success." Cold in the head is a chronic complaint with ballet dancers. She is subject to slips if her shoes have not been properly looked after before she makes her entree, which often means a broken or sprained ankle. There is not an art, trade, or profession in the world in which success of the absolute sort is more rarely won.

NOTICED.

We have received by the courtesy of the Rev. Father Morrissey, O. M. I., until recently of this city, but now vice-president of the University of Ottawa, the catalogue of the officers, faculty and students of that institution. The book contains 142 pp. is well printed, on good paper and contains a number of excellent engravings. The various examination papers afford ample evidence of the high course of study necessary for obtaining a degree at Ottawa. We have much pleasure in calling the attention of those interested in higher education to this book.

We have to acknowledge the receipt of the "Dairy Bulletin" and proceedings of the second annual convention of the Dairymen's Association of Canada, both interesting publications, mainly of interest to farmers.

The July number of the Canadian Law Times contains a very interesting article from the pen of Mr. J. A. Fortin, barrister, of this city, on the "Laws of British Columbia." Tracing the early history of the Province the writer shows it to have been inseparably connected with the story of the great Hudson Bay Company. Although the article is written in a law publication, it is full of interest for the lay mind. We are told that the only "early act which is transmitted in its original form to the consolidated statutes of 1888, is an act to prohibit swine and goats from running at large in the town of Victoria." The Act of 21 and 22 Vict. c. 99 gave British Columbia a constitution, and when this act was proclaimed at Fort Langley, the civil and criminal laws of England were by proclamation declared to have force in British Columbia. In 1858 occurred the great Cariboo gold excitement. A motly crowd of fortune-seekers swarmed into the country. At that time Sir James Douglas was governor, Sir Matthew Baillie Begbie, Judge, and Mr. (now Justice) Crease the only barrister in the Province. With the influx of miners came the necessity of more stringent laws, so proclamations were showered thick and fast. They served their purpose, and the promptitude of the executive judicial authorities of that day, has become proverbial. Mr. Fortin is adverse to the sending of Supreme Court judges to reside in remote districts "thus preventing, he says, in a measure, judicial intercourse and interchange of opinions on legal and legislative matters, and cannot help having a depressing tendency on the bench by isolating them from active litigation. Turning to the County Courts Mr. Fortin is somewhat severe, whether justly so or not we leave for others to discuss. He says, the procedure and constitution of this court could be simplified considerably. It is now set out in two hundred paragraphs, and is more difficult of construction than the Supreme Court Act. The only persons who claim to understand the act are the learned non-professional agents whose name is legion, and who with the conveyancers of the same ilk delude the innocent public and denounce the ignorance of the lawyers. The article is well written and readable, but of necessity more interesting to the lawyers than the public.

THE TWO VILLAGES.

Over the river on the hill
Lieth a village white and still;
All around it the forest trees
Shiver and whisper in the breeze;
Over it sailing shadows go
Of soaring hawk and screaming crow;
And mountain grasses, low and sweet,
Grow in the middle of every street.

Over the river under the hill
Another village lieth still;
There I see in the cloudy night
Twinkling stars of household light,
Fires that gleam from the smithy's door;
Mists that curl on the river's shore;
And in the roads no grasses grow,
For the wheels that hasten to and fro.

In that village on the hill
Never is sound of smithy or mill;
The houses are thatched with grass and flowers;
Never a clock to tell the hours;
The marble doors are always shut,
You may not enter at hall or hut;
All in the village lie asleep;
Never a grain to sow or reap;
Never in dreams to moan or sigh—
Silent, and idle, and low they lie.

In that village under the hill,
When the night is starry and still,
Many a weary soul in prayer
Looks to the other village there,
And weeping and sighing, longs to go
Up to that home from this below;
Longs to sleep by the forest wild,
Whither have vanished wife and child,
And heareth, praying, this answer fale
"Patience! that village shall hold you all."

The Astor's Sevres Ware.

There is a great deal of sevres ware owned in New York, though little is now sold. One of the finest sevres dinner sets in the country belongs to the Astor family. It contains 200 pieces and was bought by John Jacob Astor many years ago. It cost $5,000. Art connoisseurs say it would sell for $25,000 at the present time. The decoration is simple but very effective. It has a border of the rare turquois blue shade, edged with gold. Mrs. Hicks-Lord has some very valuable sevres, and so, seldom as he entertains, has Jay Gould.—New York Letter.

Newspapers in Japan.

Probably nothing better illustrates the great progress which Japan has made in the last quarter of a century than the 475 newspapers which are now published in the empire. Sixteen of these are now issued daily in Tokio. Each officer of the government is obliged to be a subscriber to the government organ "Kwampo." In 1868 the 403 newspapers consisted of 82 political, 2 military, 116 scientific, 85 trade, 38 governmental, 21 court, 26 religious, 26 medical and 5 literary journals.—New York Tribune.

A Triturator for Grinding Drugs.

The Electrical Engineer states that a triturator for grinding drugs has been ingeniously fitted up to work by an electric motor, to save labor in chemists' shops or for drug grinders. The mortar or mortars to the number required are made to revolve by the electric motor, and a very heavy pestle hangs inside, the necessary grinding being assured by the revolving of the heavy pestle by friction against the inside of the mortar.

A Floral Chameleon.

A novel flower has been found at the Isthmus of Tehauntepec. This floral chameleon has a faculty of changing its color during the day. In the morning it is white, when the sun is at its south it is red and at night it is blue. The red, white and blue flower grows on a tree about the size of a guava tree, and only at noon does it give out any perfume.—Chicago Times.

A Reasonable Bequest.

"I have only one last request to make," said the dying man, as he painfully raised his head from the pillow and surveyed the weeping group around his bedside.

"Then see that the newspapers don't refer to me as 'another old landmark gone.'"—Lippincott's.

A RINGER ON HIM.

A Pretty Tough Yarn of Old Times on the Great Lakes.

"Talking of life preservers," said the truthful mariner, as he knocked the ashes out of his pipe, "you remember the old steamer Roustabout that used to run from Buffalo to Chicago? I was mate on her the year before she was lost. We were about sixty miles out of Chicago when Mike Lanagan, who was doing something on the mast fell, struck his head on the roof of the cabin, and bounced clean out into the lake. Well, the captain he see him fall, and he stopped and backed that old Roustabout quickr'n you could say 'Scat!' Mike went down like a plummet, for he was knocked insensible, and I know'd there was no use to heave a life preserver for him, so I just hurried up the boys in getting the boat down, although I didn't expect it 'ud do much good. We had Jim King on board. Passenger from Chicago. You remember Jim King, don't you?"

"Can't say that I do," remarked a bystander.

"Well, Jim was the champion quoit thrower in those days. He's dead now, poor fellow, but Jim was a hoss on throwing quoits. I tell you quoits were a great game in them days. Every village had a quoit club and the boys on the farms used to throw hoss shoes. It was something like baseball in these times, although I never could see as much fun in baseball as I could in a good game of quoits."

"Oh, come off!" cried the impatient listener. "What did Jim do, or did he do anything? Did the man drown?"

"Now, don't be fly. Who's tellin' this yarn?"

"Well, you don't seem to be."

"Go on! Go on!" said the crowd.

"Well, you know, in quoits a 'ringer' was when you put the quoit around the stake. It counted double. Well, Jim he picks up the round life preserver—it's like a great big quoit, you know—and as the cap'n came running aft, Jim sings out: 'Cap'n, I'll bet you $5 I'll make a ringer on that man if he comes up within the length of this line.'

"'Bet you $20 you can't,' said the cap'n.

"'Take you,' said Jim, and just at thet minit up hobs Mike's head about sixty feet astern. Jim threw it, and I'll be durned if that life preserver didn't go plump over on Mike's head clear down on his shoulders, and there it stuck. We got down a boat and when we got to Mike he hadn't come to yet, and didn't for some time after. He'd been a goner if it hadn't bin for that ringer, although it took the skin offen his nose."

"Did the captain pay the $20?"

"Pay it! You jist bet he did. And Jim he handed it over to Mike, and Mike blew it all in when we got to Detroit."—New York Dispatch.

The "Machine's" Fascination.

At 9 o'clock yesterday morning the scholars were pouring into the Cottage Grove school, which is located on Thirty-fifth street, near Cottage Grove avenue. Just before the hand met the even hour there came the banging of gongs in the street. An alarm of fire had been turned in and the hose cart, engine and marshal's wagon tore by the school house. The tide turned. The scholars who were going in swung around and started on a run after the fire apparatus. Teachers rushed to the windows and called a halt, but in vain. Nothing could stem the tide. The principal rushed out to the door and wielded the big bell vigorously, but evidently he was not in it, as he received no attention. Every one was on the run in the wake of the firemen. It was a false alarm, as it usually is in that neighborhood, and, after seeing the boys in blue rake down their fires, the scholars strolled back to the school house. There were too many delinquents to discipline and they took their seats without a word of correction. At recess the largest one in the school yard was the boy who had talked to a friend on the hose cart. "That was my friend, Jerry Quinn," he said, loftily; and his friends envied him greatly.—Chicago Herald.

Fast Peg Footbreaks.

The author of "Trooper and Redskin" was one of the men who took a trip to Prince Albert, a settlement upon the North Saskatchewan river, in the dead of winter. The cold was, of course, intense. One day, in the middle of December, they set out upon this march through the frozen wilderness. One of the servants deposited a sack, the contents of which rattled suspiciously, in the sleigh containing the supply of "forage." "Look here," called one of the travelers, "don't put those tent pegs beside the oats. They will poke their points through the bag, knock a hole in the grain sacks, and there'll be—look." "These ain't tent pegs," said the man, rather mournfully; "they's beefsteaks." And so they were, cut and ready for use on the line of march.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Came Near Eating Human Flesh.

I was once on the point of tasting human flesh myself. Some of the natives had been helping us to build a house, and the completion of the work was celebrated with a feast. In the course of the dinner I helped myself from a dish whose contents resembled pork, and was about to taste of it when a friendly native nudged me with his elbow and whispered one suggestive and sufficient word—"Man." I needed no further explanation; but it must have been a great disappointment to the cannibals, who would have been much pleased to think that a white man had eaten human flesh.—Fiji Cor. St. Louis Republic.

Marriages Dull.

The Eastport town clerk, who is also a druggist, combines business enterprise and public spirit by offering to give a free marriage license and a pint of cologne to every bona fide applicant for a marriage certificate. He says the number of such applications has been unprecedentedly small so far.—Lewiston Journal.

Funerals in the White House.

A great deal of misinformation is afloat about the number and dates of former funerals from the White House, and especially from the East parlor. The most accurate chroniclers agree in the statement that President William Henry Harrison's was the first funeral to be held there. He died April 4, 1841, and the following day the public were admitted to view his remains.

In October, 1842, Mrs. Louisa Tyler, wife of President John Tyler, died at the mansion, and was buried from there. She was the only president's wife to die during her husband's term of office. Mrs. Millard Fillmore died at Willard's Hotel in March, 1859, a few days after vacating the White House as its mistress.

A year and five months after Mrs. Tyler's death, the first week in March, 1844, the funerals of four victims of the disaster on board the Princeton by the bursting of the gun "Peacemaker" were held in the East parlor.

President Zachary Taylor died in the mansion July 9, 1850, and his remains lay in state several days in the East room and were interred from there with great pomp. A long interregnum in the reign of death was now vouchsafed, until the funeral there of Willie Lincoln in February, 1862, followed by that of his father in April, 1865. Mrs. Grant's father was buried from the Blue parlor during President Grant's first administration.—Philadelphia Press.

Queer London Names.

Queer names certainly are found in the London general registry of births at Somerset house. For example, young scions of the families of Bath, Lamb, Jordon, Dew, Dear and Smith are christened respectively, Foot, Pascal, River, Morning, Offspring and Smith Follows. Mr. Cox called his son Arthur Wellesly Wellington Waterloo. Mr. Jewett, a noted huntsman, named his Edward Byng Tally Ho Forward. A mortal that was evidently unwelcome is recorded as "One Too Many." Another of the same sort is "Not Wanted James." Children with six to ten names are frequent, but probably the longest name in the world, longer than that of any potentate, is attached to the child of Arthur Pepper, laundryman. The name of his daughter, born 1883, is Anna Bertha Cecelia Diana Emily Fanny Gertrude Hypathia Inez Jane Kate Louis Maud Nora Ophelia Quince Rebecca Starkey Teresa Ulysis (sic) Venus Winifred Xenophon Yetty Zeus Pepper—one title precisely for every letter of the alphabet.—Chicago Times.

A Queer Sight at a Funeral.

"Well," said the undertaker, as he entered his office, placed his plug hat in a coffin box and placing his feet on a casket stool, commenced polishing a name plate with his silk handkerchief, "I have just seen one of the strangest sights that ever met my eyes. I had charge of the funeral of a woman, and as the time came when the relatives were to take a last fond look at the face of the deceased two men and a little girl approached and, bending over, kissed the lips of the dead woman. These two men had been husbands of the woman and the little girl was her daughter. The first husband was a negro and the girl was his daughter, while the second and present husband was a white man. The woman was white. I doubt if there was ever a similar case reported, at least, I never heard of one before. There is no mistake, it is a strange story."—Minneapolis Tribune.

Coining a Joke.

"Coining" jokes is a very common figure of speech, but we know of only one instance in which a joke was actually coined—that is, struck from a graven die and issued from a legal mint. The fact is historical and is as follows:

In the year 1679 the Danes advanced with a large force upon Hamburg, but after a siege of considerable duration, seeing but little hope of ultimate success, they finally withdrew and marched back.

Thereupon the Hamburgers caused a medal to be struck in commemoration of the event. On one side of the numismatic curiosity was the inscription "The King of Denmark came before Hamburg. What he gained by it will be seen on the other side."

On the other side there was a total blank.—Youth's Companion.

Decline of the Shellbark.

Not many eastern people, unless they are acquainted with the forests of the Mississippi valley, and more especially those found on the higher Alleghany mountains, know what a really large hickory tree is. The shellbarks of southern Indiana are sometimes 150 feet tall, with trunks four or five feet in diameter, and bare of limbs for seventy or eighty feet, and even larger trees can be found in the still almost untouched forests of eastern Tennessee and western North Carolina. But those large trees are doomed, and before many years have passed every hickory tree of sufficient size and proper quality will have been sacrificed to supply the ever increasing demand for the wood.—Exchange.

A Regular Stamp Market.

There exists in Paris a regular market or exchange for old stamps. It is held every Sunday afternoon in the Avenue Gabriel, Champs Elysees, and is attended by some fifty or sixty persons of all ages and social standings. Among the number can be seen such famous collectors as M. Philippe de Ferrari, son of the duchess of Galliera; the Baron Arthur de Rothschild, Dr. Legrand, Mr. Campbell, Mr. T. Tapling, Mr. Castle and M. Marco del Pont.—Paris Letter.

Alike in Nature.

Miss Clara—Patrick, did you bring me the ground pine from the florist?

Patrick (opening package)—Here it is, miss.

Miss Clara—Good gracious! This is nothing but sawdust.

Patrick—Yes, miss. An' the boy at the shtore said it wor all the ground pine he had.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

Provincial Exhibit Association of British Columbia.

The benefits which have been derived for the last two years through the results of the industries and the products of the land being exhibited in the east, should encourage people to send in samples of all kinds, especially as though the hard work of the Provincial Exhibit Association so little trouble or expense is entailed. The following notices will prove of help in directing those who intend forwarding samples:

All entries to be communicated to the secretary in writing on or before Monday, August 18th, 1890.

2. Entries intended to compete for prizes must be made separately.

3. Exhibits to be delivered in Vancouver on or before Wednesday, August 27th, with the exception of such as are of a perishable nature, which will be received till Monday, September 1st.

4. Mineral and lumber samples or wood manufactures to be delivered at Vancouver on or before Thursday, August 28th.

5. Wheat, oats, barley and other cereals must be shown in quantities of not less than ten pounds in bags. Flour etc., in bags not less than 50 pounds. Malt in quantities of not less that ten pounds in bags, and field roots, such as potatoes, turnips, carrots, mangolds, sugar beets, etc., in quantities of not less than 25 pounds each.

6. Cereals should be sent in sheaves also as in that shape they may be used in decorating the court. The ears ought to be wrapped in calico not in paper for better protection in transport, and cased.

7. Spring produce and fruit generally ought to be preserved which can easily be done if the specimens chosen are put into glass jars filled with Salicylic acid and alcohol. Formula: Salicylic acid two parts, glycerine five parts, alcohol pure twenty parts, water 1,000 parts, and hermetically sealed. Care should be taken not to let the state of maturity of fruits and vegetables advance too much before bottling.

8. Should the exhibitor find difficulty in undertaking the bottling and preserving personally, let him forward the exhibits to Vancouver and they will be attended to, but in this case allowance should be made in choosing the specimens for the time of transport to Vancouver, so that they do not arrive in too ripe a state.

9. It is especially requested that exhibitors send all the specimens in duplicate, so that exhibits can be sent to the three exhibitions in Toronto, London, Ont., and St. John, N.B.

10. All exhibits, if addressed to D. Oppenheimer, Vancouver, B.C., "Transit exhibits," will be conveyed free of charge by the railway, steamboat, express or other transport companies.

11. Exhibitors desirous of further information would communicate with the secretary, W. D. Bardin, City Hall, Vancouver.

We observe that the evening paper is adopting several second hand improvements, which came from suggestions obtained in the first place from these columns. We are glad to note that our contemporary is not above taking a pointer, although it is seemingly above making acknowledgments.

The moonlight excursion tomorrow evening promises to be largely attended, a goodly number of tickets have been disposed of to gentlemen while of course the ladies go free.

It is said that the adopted son of one of our wealthiest citizens has run away from his home—no one knows where. The boy is about 12 or 13 years of age and carried about $10 with him.

It was rumored in the city on Tuesday last that the wife of a well known and highly respected resident of the vicinity of Ladner's had committed suicide. We were unable to find out the authority for the story and sincerely trust that there is no foundation for it.

Mr. John Hilbert, Mayor of Nanaimo, is paying the Royal city a visit.

Mr. J. E. Jenkins, of Nanaimo, a genial old timer, drove over from Vancouver yesterday.

In Town.

Miss Ettie Tolmie, sister of the genial host of the Douglas House, arrived in the city from Victoria yesterday and purposes staying here some considerable time. She declares the capital to be booming but nowhere in the race with the Royal City.

An Official Visit

On Tuesday last Captain Feele, the meteorological observer of this city, was favored by an official visit from Mr. Carpenter, who is at the head of the observatory in Toronto. Mr. Carpenter examined the instruments on this station and found everything in perfect working order. He left for the north by the steamer Princess Louise and before returning will make an official visit to the meteorological station at Port Simpson.

Moonlight Excursion.

The moonlight excursion to Ladner's Landing to be given by the artillery band tomorrow night is looked forward to with much interest by "the youth and beauty" of the city. The occasion promises to all a very enjoyable time. The band has certainly become so prominent in the city and for that reason should be assisted and encouraged in its efforts.

Tickets for the excursion can be had at Lyal & Co's book store.

Notable Arrivals.

The Hon. Edgar Dewdney, minister of the interior, accompanied by his secretary, Mr. McGuire, arrived in the city last evening by train from Vancouver and is a guest at the Colonial. Mr. Dewdney comes on business in connection with the Dominion Government, and will be in the city until tomorrow. Messrs Donovan and Jaynes, engineers of the Westminster & Fairhaven Southern Railway, came over from Fairhaven last evening, and will be in the city several days on important railway business. Mr. Thornton Fell, barrister, and clerk of the legislative assembly came up from Victoria yesterday, and will return home today. Mr. Fell is in the city on business.

The Bicycle Club.

On Tuesday evening a well attended meeting of the bicycle club was held at the Colonial Hotel when some business of an important nature was transacted. It was decided that the wheelmen in Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle should be invited to attend the tournament while will be held during the exhibition celebration in September. An illuminated march will be given during the celebration in the evenings which will be of great interest to the citizens, many of whom have never seen one. It was agreed that every Tuesday evening the men should meet at Queen's Park for their regular weekly parade and that the first Tuesday in every month should be set aside for their monthly business meeting. The club is in very fair financial standing, and it is expected that a place in which to hold their meetings will soon be obtained.

The C. P. R. Land Sale Yesterday.

The long looked for sale of city lots in the C. P. R. Co's reserve in that section of Vancouver known as Fairview took place yesterday in the Sir Donald A. Smith block. A large attendance from all sections of the Province was present. The sale of this property has been on the tapis for some time. It was expected that prices would rule high and the expectation was not disappointed. Compared with the prices realized at the recent Government sale, those paid yesterday are far higher. This, however, can be accounted for by the fact that the property of the C. P. R. is much nearer the centre of the city and that all the timber thereon is to be cleared. In short, the lots will be made ready for immediate building purposes. As Cambie Street and the locality of the proposed docks were approached, prices ran high. The sale began at 11.30 a.m. and continued till 1.30 p.m., when an adjournment for luncheon was made, the proceedings being resumed later. Mr. A. M. Brotton is conducting it under the superintendence of Mr. J. M. Browning, land commissioner of the C.P.R. company in this city, to whose tact, judgement and systematic advertising is largely due the great success achieved.

Mining Camp Consumed.

News has been received that the town of Wallace, Idaho, the great mining camp of Cœur d'Alene, has been completely demolished by fire. A telegram on Sunday evening the Union Pacific train dispatcher at Tekoa, Wash., received word from the Western Union operator at Wallace that the town was doomed, and that his office, which was in the Union Pacific depot, at the lower end of the town, was beginning too hot to work in longer, and he would be compelled to remove his instruments to a safer place at once. The fire started at what was end of the town, and as the Union Pacific depot is at the other extremity, it is supposed that the entire town is swept away. It has been learned definitely, though unofficial of the Union Pacific, that the entire town has gone, with the exception of the two railway depots. The town of Wallace was situated 110 miles northeast of Spokane Falls, in a deep canyon in a spur of the Rockies, and was one of the most flourishing mining camps in the United States. No less than a dozen flourishing towns are directly tributary, among them being the famous Morning and Evening mines.

A Close Call.

About 4.30 o'clock a.m. on Sunday morning last Mr. Alex Holmes, watchman of the B. C. Canning Co's cannery, Lulu Island, heard cries of distress coming from the river and immediately ran for assistance. Messrs Williams, C. Pope, book keeper, and G. W. Brewster, bathman, were quickly with Holmes and rowed about a mile towards Ladner's Landing, where they discovered two young men, Hudson and Blackburn, from English's cannery, in mid-stream. Their frail boat had capsized, and Hudson was astride one end, while Blackburn was merely hanging on to the side. When rescued, both men were almost exhausted from their immersion and long exposure. However, they were taken to the Landing, where they received every attention. Blackburn claims to be a good swimmer, but knowing his friend could not swim, he refused to leave him, and eventually became too weak to swim. It was a very close call, and but for the timely assistance they received, Messrs. Hudson and Blackburn must have perished.—World.

Visitors From Nanaimo.

Last evening while taking our usual stroll along Columbia Street whom should we run against but Mayor Hilbert and Alderman Jenkins of the city of coals, who had come over from Vancouver by the afternoon stage. Both gentlemen had been taking in the sights in and about the city, being highly pleased with what they saw, but did not forget to put a word in for their own burgh by saying that there were as many improvements going on over there as there were here. Both gentlemen leave for home this morning.

PROVINCIAL JOTTINGS

What the Newspapers Have Been Cut from Our Exchanges.

The other morning as the Premier was going down the Sound, Capt. O'Brien spied a raft of timber with four men on it drifting out to sea. The raft was below Allen's Island and almost opposite Deception Pass, and a strong current was running at the time. When the raft was cracked up the men were in an exhausted condition. The Premier took the raft in tow and landed it at Anacortes. Capt. O'Brien is confident that had he not seen them they would soon have drifted out of the line of boats and would probably have gone out to the ocean.

Several of the members of the Victoria athletic club are preparing to go to Westminster during the exhibition there, and are training for the several events on the programme.

Mr. Robert Mee, engineer of engine number 374, was seriously scalded a few days ago by the breaking of a valve in his engine. He is about again.

The work on the North Arm road is being pushed with commendable activity. A fine gravel pit has been struck in the side of the hill and from it is being taken the material to make the road with.

W. Howard Chandler, captain of the Toronto Bicycle Club, and M. H. Irish, another member of the club, are in Victoria awaiting the departure of the Elder for Alaska, where they intend to go on a trip. Chandler is well known among the bicycle of the world, having made a European tour some years ago, and has been over almost every route in America. He intends to be at Winnipeg on the 23rd of August, the day on which the Northwest tournament is to be held, for which he has been asked to act as starter on that day.

THE FISHING LICENSES.

Editor of Truth: Sir,—Kindly permit me space in your valuable column to call attention to the systematic favoritism going on in regard to the distribution of fishing licenses by the inspector of fisheries.

Last year I was refused a license on the ground that I had no license the year before. That is true, at the same time I had a license three years ago and it served me to fish a cannery during the year before last. They will not give me any more licenses. There are many fishermen who fish cannery licenses at times, however myself and hope fished cannery licenses last year. Thinking by early application we would get one this year. I applied on the 20th of March but are yet waiting a reply. Meantime Mr. Elder, people who never saw the Fraser River and who never caught salmon within the last year or so, others who are hotel men in Vancouver, Westminster Junction, Surrey or Surrey, whose names are readily known, these people obtain one and two licenses while I and many others who have families partly dependent on the fishing for a living are refused. There are people who have a license this year who as their have sold it home, in fact know nothing about fishing. I have talked with a number of licensed fishermen and some canserymen and there is dissatisfaction every where. And if Mr. Editor the responsibility of this season's issue of licenses to this important industry can be mainly attributed to the inspector of fisheries as Colonel E. G. Prior, M.P. stated in a communication to the Victoria Colonist after returning from Ottawa, is it not pretty nearly time for the sake of those who earn their living from the Fraser River and the country generally to demand that a man of ordinary intelligence supplant the present holder of that important office. Thanking you Mr. Editor for your space, I remain yours truly,

R. C. GARVER.
