FERRY FARES WILL WILL PROBABLY BE REDUCED

Fraser Valley Record)

At a meeting held in the Council Chambers on Monday evening last the Hon. E. D. Barrow, Minister of Agriculture, met the citizens of this district to hear what they had to say in regard to reduced fares on the Mission-Matsqui ferry. There was a fair attendance.

Mr. F. J. Roche was appointed chairman, and in opening the meeting stated the case of the citizens in a very clear and able manner, outlining the reasons why the ferry rates should be reduced.

Mr. A. Alanson followed with a few figures and some suggestions as to reduction and was listened to with very great interest.

Others spoke and among these was Mr. T. Aish of Matsqui, who contended that there was no greater reason for paying on thhe ferry than there was for paying on the new Pacific Highway from Blaine to New Westminster, when completed. The people's money built both road and ferry.

Mr. Barrow on rising regreted he had not been informed as to the nature of the meeting as he would have had facts and figures regarding the cost of ferries in the province. However, the main point with the meeting was that Mr. Barrow agreed that the ferry charges were too high in the case of the Mission-Matsqui ferry; but at the same time he was very strongly of the opinion that the Rosedale-Agassiz, Mission-Matsqui and the Ladner ferry should be paid ferries and he said that the peakers had not convinced him that he was wrong.

Mr. Barrow was approached in regard to extended ferry service and he promised to take the matter up fully with the other members of the cabinet on his return to Victoria and he held out hopes that something would be done to make the ferry more serviceable to the district.

Crop Conditions in B. C.

The cherry season is about over and has been one of the most successful seasons for several years, the prices have been very staple. Some losses from rotting in transit was noticeable. Bings and Lamberts have been of very fine quality. Sours are moving and bringing good prices.

Apricots have been a good crop but more attention is needed in thinning the early varieties, as they are coming on the market very small. The extreme hot weather has hastened the picking season.

Plums are rolling freely and a good crop of this fruit is expected.

Early apples Yellow Transparents are now moving. Duchess are coming on fast, and picking should commence this week. Wealthys are already taking on color. Late apples are sizing well.

SPORTS' DAY FOR VETERANS

Great War Veterans' Sports Day at Brocton Point, Vancouver, B. C. will be held on Saturday, September 4th 1920. An excellent programme of sports have been planned out by the committee in charge—some 34 events altogether; and entries must be in the hands of the secretary not later than August 30th, at noon. Mr. A. B. Noble, secretary of the Mission branch, has the entry forms and all those wishing to take part in the sports should see him at as early a date as posible. Entries Free.

WEEK IN CALGARY

(Markets Bulletin)

The weather has been very hot for the past week.

During this hot weather wholesalers are receiving an average of two carloads of California cantelloupes and two carloads of watermelons per week.

The Chinese wholesale firm of Hon Kue & Co., Vancouver, have opened up a branch at 432 9th Ave. East, Calgary.

A car of extra fine quality Gravenstein apples arrived during the week wholesaling at $5.25 per box.

Heavy supplies of cukes are coming on the market with practically no demand, this state of affairs has lasted for over a week now and still they are not moving in any quantity the first carload to arrive by freight is expected the first of the next week

The sour cherries coming on this market are mostly poor quality and very small.

A shipment of Peach Plums from Hatzic was noted on arrival to be affected with plum rot.

There has been an over supply of B. C. Clingstone Peaches, mainly Yellow Triumph, sizes running very small, the trade demands the larger sizes to sell by the dozen, the small ones are hard to move. There is a very heavy crop of Saskatoon berries in Alberta. Men, women and children can be seen picking them in the evenings in the suburbs of Calgary. It is estimated that thousands of quarts of these berries have been preserved by Calgarians.

At Sarnia, Ont., the vessels make direct connection with the Grand Trunk special steamboat trains and all important points in Eastern Canada and the United States may be reached with comfort and expedition. The steamships of the Northern Navigation Company offer the maximum of comfort, service and safety. The flagship of this mighty fleet the "Noronic" has accommodation for 588 people, and has six decks—all of steel. Other ships of the fleet are the "Hamonic" which accommodates 332 passengers and the "Huronic" accommodating 180 passengers. POWER COMPANY MAY FURNISH BOOM LIGHTS

A committee of the Matsqui council is to ascertain how many residents living along the power line of the Canada Western Power company are prepared to have electric light and power installed on their farms and in their residences. The inquiry follows a meeting with the representatives of the Canada Western and the information is needed by the company.

An inquiry is also to be made as to the cost of poles and other matters in connection with placing the residence of the municipal clerk, Mr. LeFeuvre, in telephonic communication with the rest of the district. The company is prepared to put up the wires if the poles are erected. The distance for which poles will be required is about a quarter of a mile and there are two other residents in the vicinity, who might possibly wish to have telephones installed.

Mr. W. Yenny, formerly of the B. C. E. R., was an Abbotsford visitor today.

It is wonderful how business keeps up, says Mr. Wright of the Abbotsford garage.

About thirty members of the Abbotsford A. F. & A. M. visited Sedro-Wooley lodge on Thursday evening, and report a pleasant and profitable time.

Mayor Sumner of Vye says that town lots can still be purchased at $150 each but the price is sure to be higher shortly.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 20, 1920

There is nothing on this green old earth of ours to equal the conceit of our dear old premier, Mr. John Oliver. It has no bounds. He has just returned from a meeting or two up north and of course he has to toot his horn for himself as no one else seems to be doing it. He likes us all to think that he is the greatest man this beautiful climate of B. C. ever had the pleasure of gazing upon.

There are two points in particular in his interview with the press on his return that amply illustrates this very great pride of self. He says he had the pleasure of Mr. Bowser's presence at his (Oliver's) meetings, and "I do not think that the government suffered anything in consequence." A modest man would let others come to this conclusion, but modesty is an unknown quantity in many respects with our premier. Of course if he used the same kind of bombast as he recently used at Haney he would not know what the audience thought unless some one told him afterwards.

Then again he says, "Personally I think the Federal Government made a mistake in not acquiring the E. D. & B. C. system for inclusion in the country's own transportation services." "Personally" is a very strong word with Premier Oliver.

WHEN A SLUMP COMES

Business men are being warned to prepare for a "rainy day" and to so conduct their operations that they may not be caught with their assets tied up when the slump, that is regarded as inevitable, comes. William Moffat(general manager of the Imperial Bank of Canada, is quoted in the Financial Post as saying: "The time is coming when customers will want all the loose money they can lay their hands on. Whether that will be in six months or two years, I don't know. Business men should keep their assets as liquid as possible. If their profits are all going into buildings and equipments when the inevitable break comes they will find it difficult to finance their affairs. Every business man should try to keep independent of the banks."

Other bankers and business men are sounding similar warnings and suggesting that effective means be employed by merchants to protect their business. All of their utterances are based upon a premonition of the coming drop from present high prices to much lower levels and, in anticipation of this, banks are beginning to tighten upon credit, and before very long will begin to ask merchants to pay off some of their credits. If all of the profits are sunk in assets that cannot be liquidated, how can this be done? Merchants are counselled to watch their collections and invest their surplus in Victory bonds or something of a similar nature that may be readily liquidated. Money has been plentiful, times have been prosperous, and during the past two years there seemed to be no shadows ahead. But prices have soared higher and higher from week to week and from month to month, and the feeling is gaining ground that the peak has almost been reached and that there must be a turn in the road. When bankers begin to talk this way there must be something behind that calls for the serious consideration of everyone who is earning and spending.—St. Thomas Journal.

MR. KING'S MISTAKE

Supporting his demand for a genal election the leader of the federal opposition makes a singularly unfortunate appeal to precedent and to the record of his former leader. "Let me illustrate exactly what I mean," said Mr. King, and he went on to say that in 1908 Sir Wilfrid Laurier was returned to power and was entitled to hold office until 1913. But there arose the question of reciprocity and Mr. King gives this account of what followed: "Had Sir Wilfrid been thinking solely of power, he need never have dissolved Parliament in 1911 and appealed to the people for an expression of their will on this great question. As a true Liberal, however, he took the constitutional position that here was a great issue on which the people had not passed at the time his government was returned. He held that, quite as binding as the law of the constitution were the conventions of the constitution, and that outstanding, along with constitutional convention, is the one fact that on all great public questions where there is reason to believe a wide opinion may exist, the people should be granted the right to give expression of their will."

One would suppose from this statement that after negotiating the reciprocity treaty Sir Wilfrid Laurier dissolved Parliament before seeking conclusive ratification by Parliament This is exactlly what the governmen of which Mr. King was a distinguished member, did not do. The bill was brought before parliament elected in 1908, and from January until the end of July 1911, Sir Wilfrid, Mr. Fielding, Mr. King and the other ministers tried their best to carry the measure through Parliament. They asked the House to vote down an amendment declaring that the question had not been considered and discussed in the country, asking that action should be postponed until the people had an opportunity to examine it. They caused the House to vote down another amendment asking that the measure be deferred until the people should have opportunity to pass upon it at a general election Mr. Fielding met these and other objections by the text of the treaty itself by which the governments of Canada and the United States contracted to submit the treaty immediately for ratification by Parliament and Congress.

It was only after the government after a six months' struggle in Parliament failed to pass the measure that Parliament was dissolved. At that time there were no closure rules and a strong opposition was able to hold up the treaty resolutions as the previous opposition had held up the Manitoba remedial measure. When Sir Wilfrid found ratification by Parliament impossible he suddenly dissolved the House while Parliament was still sitting. The session of 1911 was never prorogued, and the last recorded words spoken before the motion to adjourn on Friday, July 28, were these:

Mr. Taylor—"Might I ask what business will be proceeded with on Monday?"

Mr. Fisher—"Reciprocity will be interesting, I think."

Then follows the Hansard entry: "Parliament was dissolved on Saturday, July 29.

It is a matter of history that the Laurier Government did not appeal to the people to give expression of their will before undertaking to pass the reciprocity bill through Parliament, that the government distinctly agreed with the United States to procure such legislation to give effect to the agreement, that Mr. Fielding declared in the House that postponement in order to take the opinion of the people "would be a breach of faith that would dishonor the government of Canada," and that the appeal to the country was not adopted by the government until it was found impossible to carry the treaty bill through the House.

Whatever argument there may be in favor of an immediate election, the precedent by which Mr. King illustrates exactly what he means works exactly the other way.—Province.

Look for Changes in Telephone Numbers

Start to use the new Vancouver Mainland Telephone Directory on August 22nd. Many Seymour numbers have been changed to R-F numbers, and when making a call, particular care should be taken to give the right number. Be sure and consult your directory. The change is throwing much more work temporarily on the operator, and giving the right number when calling will help much.

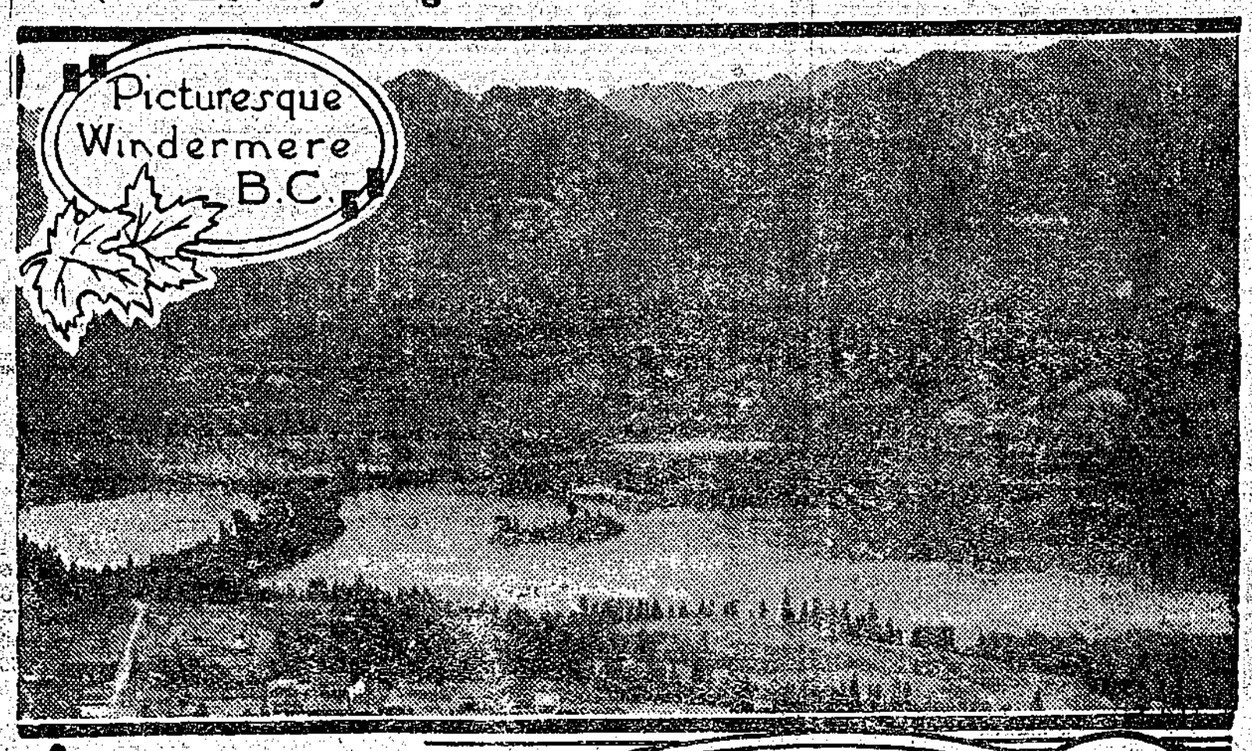
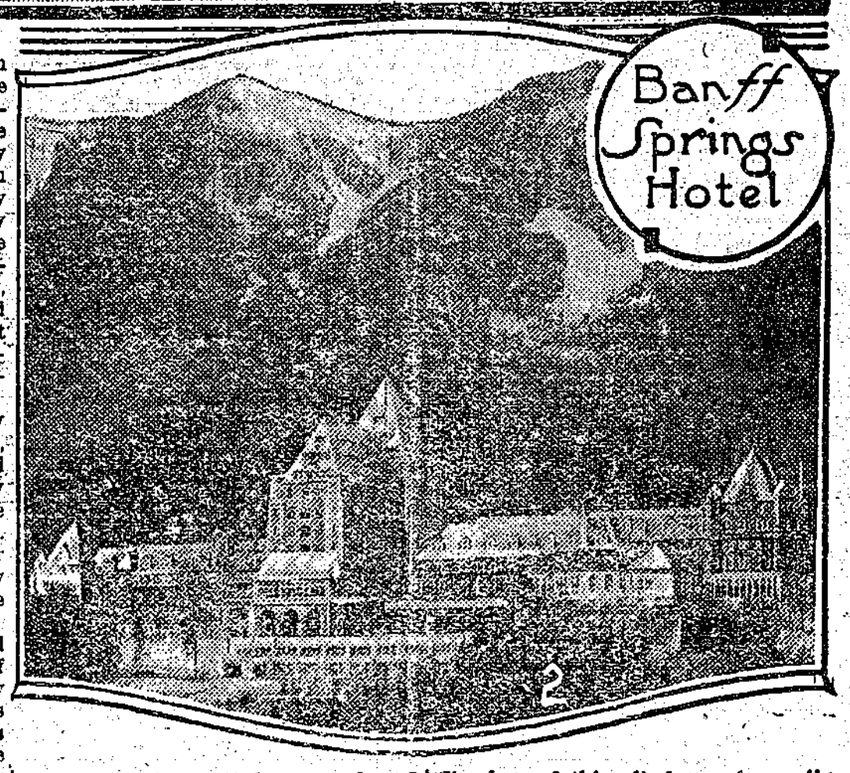
Lovely Regions in the Canadian Rockies





If the beauty of the Canadian Rocky Mountains, north of the line between the Dominion and the United States, is not the grandest in the world it is certainly lovely as any anywhere, and it is the loveliest on the American continent. The glory of the European Alps is dimmed by the towering snow clad peaks of the Rockies. Travellers on the Canadian Pacific Railway from Calgary, through Banff, Lake Louise, Field and Glacier on to the Pacific Coast view a land in which they feel themselves transferred to an earthly paradise.

The gigantic heights, the snow capped peaks, the rugged boulders, the pines growing in the sand and rock crevices up as far as the snow line are amongst the most impressive features of the Rocky Mountains. How the builders of the C.P.R. ever were able to excavate their way through this region is one of the wonders of the world.

Visitors whose time is limited should anyway explore a portion of the Rocky Mountain region and stay off at Banff and Lake Louise, points where the C.P.R. has built luxurious hotels. Besides, good roads radiate from these spots and automobiles or ponies can be engaged to bring the tourist right into the heart of the best scenic regions.

Banff is situated at an altitude of 4,521 feet in the Canadian National Park. This Park is a natural reservation of 5,732 square miles embracing part of the Bow river valley, numerous small rivers and several towering mountain ranges. Banff National Park is the largest in the world. Caskade Mountain, 9,825 feet high, looks down on Banff Springs Hotel, and the hotel looks down on the Bow river valley. Buffalo still roam in the Park, and the Zoological Garden contains many Canadian wild animals. Banff Museum possesses many valuable objects of curiosity. In the Museum there is a visitors' book in which a space is provided for remarks on Banff. Looking over the book, one is interested enough to take a note of some of the opinions on Banff. Here are a few:

"Banff is unexcelled for beauty."

"Oh, would that my tongue could utter the thoughts that arise in me."

"Almost broke, but happy. Banff to me is just the place to spend a lovely holiday. Let us be happy while we can."

"What more can anyone desire?"

"Cannot be beaten."

"Beyond description."

"If I do not go to heaven when I die, I would like to go to Banff next to heaven."

"Here one may look upon the face of God."

Seaplanes are employed to give visitors to Banff unusual thrills this year. They are being used in preference to aeroplanes because the lakes in the mountains offer landing and take-off stations for them, whereas such facilities are not available for the ordinary machines. The lake at Banff has been secured as the base of operations, and flights over the mountains and to other isolated lakes are projected.

The lake known as Lake Louise is a small sheet of water surrounded by mountains on all sides but one, and on this open side stands the Chateau Lake Louise looking out on the lake and the heigths above. The water in Lake Louise at different periods of the day puts on the most wonderful hues of green which baffle description. Some of the mountains at Lake Louise are Saddleback 7,893 feet high, Fairview 9,000; Lefroy 11,220; Victoria 11,355; Whyte 9,776; Big Beehive 7,430. Swiss guides conduct mountain climbing parties at Lake Louise. Ponies are largely used for climbing the trails on the mountain sides. From the Chateau Lake Louise it is a nice climb to the Lakes in the Clouds, and this climb can be easily done on foot by any athlete lady or gentleman. Among the Lakes in the Clouds one may enjoy tea in the comfortable log cabin erected for the comfort of the climbers.

There is opened to tourists this summer a new resort of rustic design in the Canadian Rockies on the sandy beaches of Lake Windermere, the loveliest warm water lake in British Columbia. Lake Windermere is situated about 170 miles south of the Main Line of the Canadian Pacific and is reached from the main line at Golden, or from Colwalli on the Crow's Nest, the station being Lake Windermere.

The scenery of this region combining as it does, pastoral softness with rugged mountain grandeur will attract visitors from all parts and become a favorite playground.

The summer visitor will find here everything that he could wish, bathing, boating, riding on mountain ponies to great Canyons and Glaciers, golf, automobiling, fishing and big game hunting in season.

The Canadian Pacific has erected a number of cabins fully equipped with every convenience of the modern home. An auto road from Banff is in the course of construction by the Dominion Parks Board.

PROHIBITION IN SCOTLAND

Scotland is now busy with what may by courtesy be described as a local option campaign, but the idea that the areas which vote for restriction will thereby become "dry" in the American or even the British Columbian meaning of the term, is entirely erroneous. The thirsty Scot will still have little difficulty in getting all he wants.

The most drastic of the proposals on which the country will vote, is one which proposes to abolish the grocers' licenses and the bar, but which will still permit restaurants to sell liquor at meals. Moreover the present licensing authorities, who are not generally supposed to be inimical to "the trade", will continue in office and will apparently have the fullest discretion as to the number of restaurants allowed to do business.

The only restriction on the restaurants is that they must show that not more than forty per cent. of their profits come from the sale of liquor. This provision is presumably intended to prevent a permanent sandwich from doing duty as a "meal" for patrons whose real object is to quench a thirst. There seems to be no idea of imposing any restriction on persons who wish to bring liquor into the district for their own consumption.

This is the scheme which is being, rather comically described as "absolutely dry." Nevertheless, such as it is, it is being vigorously opposed by the liquor interests. They recognize the cloven foot of prohibition, and they fear there will be no stopping the temperance movement if it once gets a start. Also they are declaiming against the injustice without compensation.

The "moderates," needless to say are against the proposal to abolish the bar. The furthest they will go, is to support the proposition to cut down the number of licenses by one-quarter, though there are many worthy citizens who regard even this limitation as a serious infringement on personal liberty.

The campaign has developed the usual amount of sympathy for the poor man in danger of being deprived of his beer. There is a feeling however, that the indignation manifested on this point may not be shared by the poor man's wife. The prohibitionists, though conceding that the measure is hardly more than an unsatisfactory beginning, are supporting it in the confident hope that if it is once adopted it will speedily lead to something better.—Sun.

GROWING EDIBLE NUTS ON THE PACIFIC COAST

(Experimental Farm Notes)

A few thousand nut trees of various varieties and types have been planted by settlers over a wide area of the coast district. No definite information was available about varieties of culture so the planting has been any trees or nuts that could be easily secured. The treatment accorded to the trees has ranged from neglect to intensive tillage, depending upon the individual in charge A few walnut and filbert trees have given excellent crops of edible nuts indicating the possibility of the industry, if the right variety is planted in the right place.

Many trees have failed owing to one or mone of a number of factors; poor soil conditions, variety unsuitable, neglect, lack of pollination, unsuitable location and drought conditions. Under favorable soil conditions the filbert varieties grow well, but instances of heavy nut production are rare. The difficulty is evidently due to the early dispersal of pollen and consequent failure in fertilization. At the Experimental station for Vancouver Island success has been obtained with the two varieties "Coutard" and "Nottingham" both early blossoming and profuse bearers. Trees planted in 1915 as four year old stocks gave in 1918 and 1919 crops varying from two to seven pounds of good nuts. A few fine specimens of productive walnut trees are to be seen in various parts of the coast district, unproductive trees are also in evidence. All the older trees are seedlings and it is of comparatively recent date that nurserymen have been disposing of grafted trees of named varieties. With the planting of grafted trees of good varieties in locations suited to the walnut, fair returns and a relatively uniform production is to be expected. The Vrooman Franquette and the Mayette are the most promising varieties obtainable for the coast district of British Columbia. Hard shell almonds of fair quality have been grown on Southern Vancouver Island, but no success has attended the efforts to produce almonds of the soft shell type. The very early flowering character of the almond will probably limit its fruiting on the coast of B. C. Pine nuts of good quality have been produced at the Experimental Station by a variety of pine known as Pinus Koraiensis. People contemplating the planting of nut trees are advised to consider well and seek advice on the following factors; location, soil, varieties and management.

THE FIGHT NOW ENDS

The long fought fight between Hammond parents and the Maple Ridge school board in respect to certain pupils being forced to attend the Maple Ridge school, ended on Saturday with a victory for the Parent-Teachers' Association. At a special meeting of the board held on Saturday, a decision was reached whereby both the junior IV. and the entrance pupils will be permitted to resume at Hammond school.

It required the casting vote of the chairman for a decision to be reached. Following the action of the board early this year, in ordering children to attend the Ridge school, the parents of the Hammond children took the unusual course of renting Fosset's Hall, and engaged a teacher to conduct a class away from the jurisdiction of the school board.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Ogle and family Kamloops, are spending their vacation here visiting old friends. Mr. Ogle's many friends will be pleased to hear he has been transferred from Kamloops to Mission City.—Hammond Gazette.

NEW SASH AND DOOR FACTORY

A new sash and door factory is to be established in Mission City and in an interview with Mr. Gallinger this week the following information regarding the company was given for publication.

The name of the company is the Canadian Western Door Company, Limited, and is organized under the Companies Act of British Columbia with a capitalization of $250,000.00. The present officers of the company are:

C. C. Pierce, President.

R. L. Gallinger, Vice-president and Manager.

R. B. W. Pirie, Secretary and Treasurer.

Mr. Pierce is Vice-president and manager of the Home Savings & Loan Association, a mutual savings Bank of Seattle, Washington, and is a man of very high standing being considered one of the most conservative bankers in Seattle.

Mr. Gallinger is throughly conversant with the sash and door business in all of its departments, having gained his experience by being employed in the woodworking industry for about twenty years, starting at the bottom and working right through to the top. He has been employed by some of the leading firms of the Pacific Northwest as a cabinet-maker, running the different woodworking machines, foreman, stock biller and detailer, draughtsman, as well as general superintendent and manager.

Mr. Pirie is a chartered accountant and is considered to be one of the best men in his particular profession in Western Caada. He was employed for a number of years as auditor for the B. C. Electric Railway Co., Ltd., at Vancouver; his offices now being located at 414-415 Credit Foncier Bldg., in that city.

The company will establish one of the most modern and up-to-the-minute stock sash and door factories in Mission City to be found on the Pacific Coast, having a capacity to start with of 1000 doors per day (or approximately 600 doors and 500 window sash)—a carload of finished product a day. The plant when completed will cost about $135.000.00 and will employ about 75 people with a pay roll amounting to approximately $10.000.00 per omnth.

The main factory building as planned will be 70x400 feet, two dry kilns with a capacity for drying of 36,000 fet of lumber per day, and a boiler room. The machinery will be electrically driven, each machine being connected up indivdually; steam being used for the dry kilns and for heating purposes only.

The site has been selected, consisting of about 5 1-2 acres, is situated on the property adjacent to the main line of the C. P. R. on one side and the Fraser River on the other, thus giving both rail and water transportations. Mission City has been selected after looking over a number of sites in British Columbia as being the most logical place to locate the factory, as there are several things to be taken into consideration: first accessibility of raw material; second transportation facilities; and third, climatic conditions.

The stock door business is getting to be one of the leading industries of the Pacific Northwest, as at the present time it has a world market for sash and doors, as the large factories in the East have had to go out of business due to the fact that the soft wood lumber has been exhausted Take it in Canada alone statistics show that over one-half of this product that is used for home consumption has been shipped in from the United States with a duty of 25 per cent. The company has been assured business enough by some of the leading exporting companies of Vancouver to take care of their total output.

The company has taken temporary offices in the Catherwood Block pending construction of their new factory and office buildings. They are at present represented by Mr. R. L. Gallinger, vice-president and manager, and Mr. G. W. Bonamy, sales manager, who will be glad to give any and all information regarding this new enterprise.

PRAIRIE MARKET COMMISSIONER IN TORONTO

This market is served by a wide range of produce from Florida to British Columbia. The local produce is of good quality and for staple trade almost takes care of it in season. Out of season here is usually out of season in British Columbia, and our part on this market must of necessity be the part of fancy fruit. In this we are up against our neighbors to the South. Their best goes afield not only in quality, but pack. We have advantages there because we have a better keeping product owing to our higher altitude and more Northern situation. As in the case of the individual Western shipper of the U. S. so it is with us, the poorer pack usually originating with them. This lessens the price offered in general, besides leaving it an open question whether with equal care can the home grown apple be made as attractive. We are on an equal footing with Washington California and Oregon as far as this market goes and if we intend to hold our own here, we must continue strict discipline in the packing houses and try and induce individual shippers to conform or quit.

All early fruit and vegetables except rasps and strawberries are sent to market either in 6 quart or 11 quart basket. We noticed one vegetable marrow in a big basket and in our opinion the basket was worth more than the marrow. Even flowers find their way to market in baskets; they are easy to carry home from market, but do not stand distant shipment. The California grapes, peaches and cantaloupes as well as plums and onions are offered in their own familiar Western containers and the fine clear spruce presents a marked contrast from the knotty local crates or boxes.

Local Astrachan and Transcendent apples are on the market for pie purposes

Badly Packed Black Currants

(Markets Bulletin)

B. C. black currants are arriving on this market in very poor shape. This is the more to be regretted since the black currant is a good shipper and should be one of the fruits to arrive here almost perfect The complaint does not lie in the condition of the fruit itself, but in the manner in which it has been picked, pickers including many leaves and small bits if the bushes among the fruit. The responsibility of course lies with the shipper
