GLASS CAUSE FIRE.

State Forester Welty, of Washington, is investigating the possibility that broken bottles are sometimes the cause of forest fires. He says in a letter to various forest fire protective associations:

"May the mysterious origin of fires in forest material be attributed to broken bottle glass?

"Many fires are reported each season by fire wardens, originating from causes unknown, along travelled roads and trails. No doubt, many of these fires can be attributed to the carelessness of travellers along the highways. A cigar stub, cigarette or match carelessly thrown away and left to smoulder is the cause of many fires.

"A Tacoma correspondent says: 'Eight years ago, while living at Grays Harbor, my duties caused me to cover a good deal of territory in and through the woods. One day at noon I was crossing an unused trail up the Wishkah river, when I discovered a little smoke coming from among a few leaves. I looked about, saw no one, and after carefuly investigating, I discovered a broken beer bottle—the bottom reflecting squarely on the sun's rays, making it act, as it did, a burning glass. I believe if glass found in the woods, especially in open dry places, was kicked or buried under earth, the glass could not do the work I saw the glass trying to do. Of course, I kicked this bottle under ground and put out the fire just beginning.'" Milk bottles should never be left around after a day's picnic in the woods.

KAMLOOPS.

The meeting on Saturday afternoon of interested property owners and of members of the City Council to consider the grading of St. Paul Street, established very definitely the fact that the owners are strongly averse from the continuation of the present project. No compromise, however, was arrived at. The Mayor had no hesitation in saying that he attached no importance to petitions, and he threatened to resign his office if a petition then presented were persisted in; yet the property owners did not display any alarm at this, nor did they retreat from their opposition to the grading proposals. Instead they told his worship pretty plainly that it was the duty of the Mayor and the Council to carry out the wishes of the people, and that the present attitude of contemptuous disregard of an expression of public opinion contrasted very strangely with promises made by the civic fathers when they sought re-election a few weeks ago.

Two tons of butter were condemned recently in Saskatoon. "Raw material for soap" was the way the Commissioner expressed his opinion of one sample. "It is on the basis of palm oil, only not half so clean." You never hear anyone making remarks about our butter. They butter not.

Some of our merchants were very busy Tuesday purchasing new straw "lids" of the masculine gender for the coming season from eastern salesmen. You're right, brother, there will be some class to our head gear this year.

THE CONSERVATIVES HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

A Large Number Assemble to Elect Association Officers for Coming Year

A meeting of the Abbotsford Conservative Association was held in the Masonic Hall on Monday last. This being the annual meeting for the election of officers, a large number turned out, with the result that a very enthusiastic meeting was held.

President McGowan presided.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by Secretary Clark and approved, as was also Treasurer Morley's report.

The election of officers for the ensuing year then took place, resulting as follows:

Hon. Presidents: Hon. R. L. Borden and Sir Richard McBride.

Hon. Vice-presidents: Messrs. J. D. Taylor, M.P., and S. Cawley, M.L.A.

Mr. J. A. McGowan was unanimously re-elected president.

Secretary: Mr. G. C. Clark.

Treasurer: Mr. S. A. Morley.

The next was the executive committee to be composed of six members. Ten names were proposed, resulting in the following being elected:— Messrs. Dr. Swift, F. Munro, J. J. Sparrow, W. J. Ware, R. A. Trethewey and H. McKinnon.

A vote of confidence was passed to the Ottawa government, as was also one to the local member, Mr. Cawley, and the McBride government.

Prof. Hill Tout made a couple of interesting speeches on the ways and means of improving the agricultural facilities and the aid the government should give the farmers in regard to small loans. The meeting then adjourned.

Old Timers Cut it Out.

Articles were signed yesterday between Thos. Haney and James Best, two well known pioneers of the district, for a chopping contest to take place within a few days for a side bet of $100.

Considerable good-natured rivalry has existed between these gentlemen as to who was the better axeman, the controversy finally ending in the above challenge by Mr. Haney, which was promptly accepted by Mr. Best. Mr. Haney is now seventy-two years of age, his opponent being some sixty years his junior, and each gentleman has a host of backers, their prowess with the axe being widely known all through the district.

By the terms of the agreement one cut will be made in a log not less than fifteen inches in diameter, both to chop on the same stick—Haney to cut ten feet nearer the top of the tree selected than Best. The one making the fastest time to capture the money.

The contest is exciting no little excitement in the town, and the result will be awaited with interest.

Mr. and Mrs. Currie returned on Monday from their honeymoon jaunt.

IMPORTANT CHANGES IN LAND REGULATIONS

Important changes in provincial lands and forest legislation are proposed in the ministerial measures brought before the Provincial Legislature, the former rejecting the system of the past in charging for pre-empted Crown lands, and offering instead free holdings for settlers, who will be required to pay merely the $2 record fee and $10 for Crown grant. The standard size of a holding will continue to be 160 acres, although power is retained in the minister of lands to decide as to the size of any individual pre-emption, or to reject an application entirely, if such action appears to him in the public interest, an explanation of this provision being found possible in the fact that many Orientals have heretofore sought to take advantage of the pre-emption law in securing possession of provincial lands.

The minister is also empowered to allot pre-emptions, if it is deemed in the public interest, even in such reserve localities as provincial parks.

As against the loss of revenue involved in this new policy, the amendment to the Forests Act provides for an increase of the royalty collected on timber cut on Crown lands from 50 cents to one dollar per thousand feet, board measurement, such increase, however, not taking effect until three years hence. There are also found in the Forests Act Amendment Bill provisions extending the time for timber holdings surveys, upon recommendation of the surveyor-general, enlarging the prohibition of export of unscaled timber by making such timber and the tugs towing it both liable to seizure and confiscation; prescribing reforms in timber markings, and increasing the annual collections for forest protection service from timber licenses, leases and owners of timber lands.

Whereas this impost has been one cent per acre per annum under the forestry legislation of 1912, it will be one and one half cent in future, the government continuing to contribute dollar for dollar.

An important step forward in the direction of good roads was taken by the Municipality of Maple Ridge at their Council meeting on Saturday last, when it was decided to purchase a steam roller and two road graders. The councillors were present in full force, and all seemed anxious to meet the wishes of the people, as expressed on nomination day, for a forward policy in road construction. The new roller is to be delivered at the Municipal Hall in abobut ten days.

Because of representations made to Hon. W. J. Bowser, Attorney-General, by stockholders in the People's Trust Company, now in liquidation, the Minister announced that he had appointed Mr. Herbert Lockwood, accountant, of Vancouver, as receiver in connection with the affairs of the company. Stockholders of the company in New Westminster, Chilliwack, Kamloops, Eburne and other places have been for some time in communication with the Attorney-General regarding the appointment of a receiver.

SHOWS CONFIDENCE IN FUTURE OF THE TOWN

Well Known Hardware Man will Rebuild Magnificent Premises

Mr. A. Alanson, whose hardware store was destroyed in the recent fire which wiped out the Gazley block and who has recently purchased the stock of the Abbotsford Hardware Co., has decided to remodel his present warehouse into an up-to-date hardware and furniture store. The plans call for a building 30x100 feet, covered with metal sheeting throughout, two large plate glass windows in front. The second storey, which will be used as the furniture department, will have a floor space of 30x60 feet. Operations were commenced on the new building on Thursday and the work will be rushed to completion as fast as possible.

Mr. Alanson is one who believes in the bright future assured for Abbotsford, and deserves the hearty support of the community for his energetic efforts in erecting such a structure.

AFTER THE HADDAD CUP

A meeting of the Abbotsford Football Club was held on Saturday last with President Hill Tout in the chair.

It was decided that the team should resume regular practices for the closing matches of the season. These will include games for the Chapman cup, at present held by the Langley club, and a final game with the Mission City team for the Haddad cup, providing the latter accept the challenge recently sent them. If Mission City does not defend the cup then the silverware will come to Abbotsford, but if they do accept, the cup will come to our own burg just the same. The secretary was instructed to have the Hill Tout cup placed on display in Mr. Campbell's (the local jeweller) window.

CUMBERLAND.

Field Engineer Bartlett, of the C. N. R., arrived in town on Sunday. He is here in connection with the bringing in of that line to Cumberland.

It is claimed that $60,000 has been sent into Cumberland and Ladysmith by the U. M. W. of A. during the strike.

EDITORIAL.

Stumps and speculation are two of the retarding influences that have prevented the settlement of the lands of the Fraser Valley. If the land settlement in the Fraser Valley is to keep pace with the great cities that are springing up on Burrard Inlet and the Fraser River, then these two forces of stumps and speculation must be eliminated from the land and the settler permitted to cultivate our rich and fertile soil.

Of the two deterrent elements in the Fraser Valley, the stumps with the trees are the worst. In other parts of the province irrigation has made an otherwise barren soil productive of bumper crops. The settler of the Okanagan would not reside long were it not for the modern method of irrigation. However, up to the present but little, and aside from desultory discussion, nothing but individual efforts have been applied to the clearing of the land of the Fraser Valley, and that at such expense as to be discouraging to the man of small means—"the man behind the hoe." Taxes are high in the Fraser Valley, but not high enough to build our roads as they should be to make country life the pleasure desired, yet the taxes for the upkeep and building of roads comes heavily upon the man of small means—the man upon whom the Valley is depending to till the soil. Labor is expensive and after the products are grown the markets are limited and not easily accessible. Over poor roads the cost of taking the products to market costs the farmer extra expense. Figuring a man and his team worth $6.00 per day, there is considerable to be added to the cost of raising and marketing the products. Growing for the market is an expensive proposition, even after the initial cost of clearing the land has been met.

The life of the man who clears the land and tills the soil must be made easier if the fertile land of the Fraser Valley is to be put under a high state of cultivation. It is estimated that but one acre in fifteen in the Valley is at the present time producing for the Coast and other markets. Yet the demand of the Coast cities are such that vegetables of all kinds, eggs, butter, etc., have to be imported. On the basis of supporting home industry, there appears to be a problem to solve for the Valley.

Taxation is high, even burdensome, so it would seem that the government with its surplus of eight or ten millions, should devise some scheme of assisting the farmer. Cheap money for the farmer, having the land for security, might assist, should this money be loaned at a low rate of interest on long time periods. This would encourage the wage-earner and the man of small means to own and cultivate a piece of land. Working along special lines it takes but little land to return to its owner a living.

It would seem worth while to have the land under cultivation. The day is coming when the surplus of the province will be reduced, and unless all or nearly all the land that is capable of being under cultivation is producing, where is the government to get its money to pay the expenses incurred during these days of high financing and the bonusing of railways? The present government has done much towards raising the financial standing and credit of this the largest province in the Dominion, but the individual settler now requires, that if in future years this credit is to be maintained, some very deep consideration from the government. Cheap money, cheap powder and stump eliminating machines, with good roads, would do much.

Mayor Baxter would appear to have struck a key-note that should meet with the approval of all right thinking citizens of Vancouver. The cost of selling goods in the large departmental stores is no doubt reduced on account of the low wages paid employees. How can a Christian, believing in the uplifting of humanity, take pride in purchasing goods from a store where the clerks do not receive enough remuneration to keep body and soul together? "Man's inhumanity to man" was probably never better demonstrated.

The other day an exchange was picked up and the following was noticed: "Nearly everybody gambles in this city. There are private clubs that keep open until 4 a.m. for this purpose." What a bad city Vancouver, B. C., must be. Many of us have friends in that city whom we know are not gamblers. Of course it is the duty of the minister of the gospel to tell us of our failings. That is his duty, but a sweeping statement like the above would lead one to believe that never was it demonstrated more fully that "The pulpit is the coward's castle."

LOGANBERRY POSSIBILITIES

It is well known that the growing of Loganberries is in its experimental stage, yet there are a large number of fruit growers throughout the district who are raising this luscious fruit with profit—and the following article taken from an American exchange might be of interest:

"Few of us realize what this industry means to the northwest. The Loganberry may be said to be confined strictly to the northwest and only certain parts of this region are favorable. The Logan is subject to winter-killing and for this reason cannot be grown in the East or in any region subject to heavy snowfall and freezes. As the Logan can only be grown commercially within a comparatively small area it is certain that it is not likely to be overdone and that it will prove a very profitable industry.

"The number of ways which the Logan can be marketed at an economic advantage, must not be lost sight of. Not only can the Logan be shipped fresh, but it is a berry which will dry and so can be shipped in the dry state. It can be canned and made into jellies and jams. It can be put up in the crushed form and sold to the confectionery trade. The juice of the Logan is as good and by many is considered better than the grape juice, which has become so popular. We must not forget that the Logan is a comparatively new fruit. Its many good qualities are just becoming known. Try to think what it means if any one of the above forms of marketing should become firmly established. If all these forms of marketing should gain a foothold, we might not find ready acreage to supply the trade. Even now there are not enough Logans in the northwest to supply the canneries alone. Almost the entire output of Oregon was sent to the canneries the past season. Many berries were shipped fresh and a few were dried. In the near future we may look to see a considerable portion of our Loganberries shipped to Eastern markets in the dry state. Pre-cooling and fast train service is already making this possible.

"Last year, 22 cents per pound was offered for the dried product and this season the price has jumped to 28 cents, but, as said before, the bulk of the crop was canned. The output is far from equal to the demand, even as it is, and so far no attempt has been made to market the Logan in the juice form, in the manner of grape juice. We may not expect this form of marketing until the output is much greater. Logan juice factories will take care of any surplus which may occur, and it would not be surprising if the juice would prove more profitable than all other forms of marketing combined, as is the case in the pineapple industry, today. It is very improbable that we ever will see an over-production of Loganberries.

"It must be remembered that this industry is new. Many people are doubting, as they did in the case of the apples a few years ago, whether the Loganberry will prove a profitable industry and whether it will be overdone. If one, however, would look into the real conditions, it would be found that an over-production of the Loganberry is not to be feared. Even if the apple should be overdone, and such is very improbable, then considering the limited range to which the Logan is adapted, it is still more improbable to think that the output will exceed the demand. The apple can be grown very successfully in the East. The East is beginning to wake up to its possibilities for apple growing. They have studied Western methods and are beginning to put them into practice. With a short rail haul to the great masses of our population, with small freight charge, the Eastern grower may well compete with the Western product. The Western Loganberry grower will have no such competition."

Mr. Murray Rhodes, the genial dispenser of the cup that cheers at the Commercial Hotel, was the lucky winner of the pool tournament concluded at Joe Saunderson's pool rooms on Saturday last.

LOCALS.

Mr. H. A. Park, of Winnipeg, was an Abbotsford visitor this week, and expressed himself as highly delighted with the climatic conditions which we have been enjoying.

Mr. B. B. Smith was a business visitor to Vancouver this week.

Mr. J. A. Blair, the former "Mayor" of Abbotsford, but who is now residing in Vancouver, paid Abbotsford a friendly call on Tuesday last.

Several real estate agents from Vancouver were in town this week sizing up several prospective buys.

Carpenters are busily engaged erecting a new blacksmith shop for S. Kravoski, adjoining the present premises.

It is said that "Opportunity" knocks but once at your door, but, believe us, Tim is willing to give it the glad hand any time it or they appear on the scene.

Mr. A. J. Henderson, under whose able management the Abbotsford Hotel is conducted, is busily engaged drafting plans for the remodelling of this well known hostelry. The new inovations will be greatly appreciated by the travelling public.

The Fire Committee of the Board of Trade desire to extend their sincere thanks to the trustees of the Masonic Hall for their kindness in allowing them the use of the hall for the recent basket social.

In glancing over the Dominion estimates, recently brought down, it is noticed that Mission City, Chilliwack and other small towns throughout the province are well taken care of, but sad to relate Abbotsford does not appear on the list. What is the matter with our local Conservative Association, or have we everything that is needed?

It makes no difference whether the price of rice takes the aviation route or a sudden drop, wedding bells will always ring joyously throughout the land. Cupid is putting in a new set for Peardonville; they will likely be installed about the 28th.

Who is the next to win a ton of orange blossoms?

The Fraser Valley Publicity Bureau must be getting in its work all right. It is noticed that some of the up country papers are now publishing as a speciality items headed the "Fraser Valley."

"Some men are already looking for the tall timber. The Easter hat is about to compete with the scenery in every community—Ledge." That may be, but it does not apply to "Silvertips."

"Rube" is organizing a company for the manufacturing of electric lights from the current magazines.

Mr. J. Scotsvold has returned alone from an extended trip through Southern California. In this case the Abbotsford Post is an unmitigated falsifier, as it was distinctly stated in a recent issue that he would purchase two tickets.

Don't forget the big dance to be given by the football boys on the 21st next. This is an event where you can come and dance till morn, but you musn't "kick" or get "off side."

A number of the elite of Abbotsford visited Sumas last week to attend one of the club dances there. They were disappointed in the way the dance was conducted. "Ragging" is strictly tabooed on this side of the line.

A company known as the Hammond Syndicate has been formed at Hammond for the purpose of investing in Graham Island acreage. The syndicate has now some 1,500 acres and intend to purchase 1,280 more of valuable land in B. C.
