FROM THE FRONT

Pte. Dud Bryant says: "On Thursday afternoon we were relieved by a hundred and fifty men from the 31st Division Imperial troops, a Worchestershire battalion. We left the city of Bonn on Thursday night at a quarter to six and marched through the city, crossed the bridge over the Rhine and arrived at Obercassel at seven o'clock and rejoined the battalion. Then we marched on to Romlinghoven where my company was doing outpost duty guarding the roads Friday we spent all day cleaning up our equipment and about ten o'clock in the morning we were relieved by the 31st division Imperials On Saturday morning everybody got orders to pack up and get ready to move off after dinner at a moment's notice. I was one of a party picked out to act as train guard and help to load the transports and cookwagons on the flat cars. The battalion arrived at Bu ll station at six o'clock and got aboard the train. We pulled out from Buell at 7:25 and travelled all night and arrived at the city of Namur at 12:45 Sunday afternoon thence out five kilometres to the small town of Flawinne where we are billeted in private houses. There are rumors in the air that we are going to be here for a month or six weeks till transportation can be arranged for us to go back further, so you see we have already started on the first leg of our journey homeward bound. Then again you can never tell, we might only be here a week or only a few days.

I have not had a chance to see the City of Namur yet. Namur is only a fifteen minute run from here on the street car, so I will tell you all about in my next letter.

There are two inches of snow here and it is freezing hard.

The letter was dated March 28th.

Writing from Cologne to a friend in Mission City one of our soldiers of occupation says:

"Cologne, where we are now, is a very fine city, and the officers are very comfortably fixed. It has the largest Cathedral in the world. I was in it yesterday. The town has magnificent stores. The restaurants and cafes are crowded and full of life. It is a long time since I saw a city with all the lights going and so busy. The Rhine is much wider than the Thames and has the finest bridge I ever saw. The Germans are very nice to us—they have to be—and also they have to be off the streets by nine o'clock. All males have to raise their hats to British officers, and a lot of other things which will teach them to respect the little old British Empire. All officers carry their revolvers and the men must not go out alone.

"The first night we were in Germany, as billeting officer I had the officers in a hunting lodge on the edge of a big forest, and the men in a great white chateau which was full of good things.

"Another job I had at times was to enter towns which the boche had just left, and test wells for poison, cellars of houses for booby traps. Booby traps are such things as bayonets, clocks, etc., lying around which have wires attached and which have wires attached and which blow up unless one is very careful. This was to make the place safe for infantry to stay in a day or two.

"It was strange to enter a town with not a living thing in it, but lots of deadones, and not a single solitary house which provided any cover except the cellar. No words can picture the terrible desolation of the devastated part of France. Arras Cathedral would make the angels weep. Belgian homes had not been damaged by shell fire as had the French, but I had to enter hundreds of Belgian houses looking for booby traps. The inhabitants had, of course been taken by the Germans as they retreated, and it was very pathetic to see everything in every house strewn on the floor—all the contents of drawers, everything from dolls to women's clothes.

"While I was going ahead the other day in the car, I met the 16th Canadian Scottish, and my old Commanding Officer, Col. Peck, the latest V. C., came over and shook hands with me, a prince of a fellow.

HAVE YOU SEEN THE WAR TROPHIES?

On Saturday the Dominion Government War Trophies Exhibit will be shown in Vancouver for the last time and next week will be taken to Victoria. From that city the exhibit will be sent to Ottawa, where certain trophies will be retained for the federal archives, while the remainder will be distributed to all parts of the Dominion. In this distribution it will be the aim of the government, it is understood, to send trophies to those districts in which regiments were recruited that won them on the field of battle.

Those who have not seen the exhibit yet should not miss the opportunity presented this week of journeying to Vancouver. It is doubtful if any more complete display of war photographs and trophies will ever be presented in Canada again, and no maater how much one may have read about the war, or been told about it, one cannot say that the most complete knowledge has been obtained until this exhibit has been seen. As a matter of fact those who have visited the show say that they have learned more about the actual methods employed in fighting through this medium than they have in all the years of reading during the war.

FRASER VALLEY DISTRICT

A bill is being introduced in the house at Ottawa by Mr. F. B. Stacey M. P., to change the name of this district from Westminster to Fraser Valley so as not to confuse with the district of New Westminster when used in connection with dominion politics.

ANOTHER BUSINESS FIRM FOR MISSION CITY

Two of our well known young men, having done with soldiering, have been arranging to get the agency for two of the most popular priced cars on the market, and also makes that are known all over the country for their reliability and wonderful service. This has been arranged and Messrs J. F. Stuart and J. A. Millar are now in a position to handle any business in the line of cars they represent. They have the agency for the Chevrolet and the Dodge cars; also represent the Chalmers, Hudson, Cadillac cars and Republic trucks; they are also handling farm tractors.

With a combination of cars like the above the two young men are sure to create a lot of new business in and around this district. All will wish them success in their new business.

They intend opening an office in the centre of the town where they can meet their prospective customers.

Mrs. A. E. Butler, formerly of Mission City, but now of New Westminster, has been elected regent of the I. O. D. E. at the annual meeting last week. Mrs. C. J. Loat is one of the honorary regents.

SUMAS SCHOOL BOARD

Chairman of he Sumas school boad for nearly twenty years, Mr. W. Porter at the board meeting on Saturday thought it was time someone else took the reins. He therefore nominated Mr. T. B. Straiton for the position, who has served as a school trustee almost as long.

The trustees voiced appreciation of Mr. Porter's long and devoted service to the schools, which had earned the thanks of the community.

As the new schol at Whatcom road is near completion, Chairman Straiton appointed a committee to award tenders for the clearing and plowing of the grounds, while a third committee will meet the council on the Huntingdon school site question.

The board will poin in the Fraser Valley scheme for presenting peace medals to the 1918 scholars, and Mr. W. J. Fraser will be the respresentative on the new trustees' association to be formed next month.

The trustees decided to make a circuit of all the school in the district in their meetings in order to get into closer touch with local conditions, and will start with the Upper Sumas school as the meeting place for March

PUTTING ADDITION TO THE AGRICULTURAL BUILDINGS

An addition is to be made to the Matsqui Agricultural buildings at Gifford, and construction work has been started.

The government has been asked to set aside September 17 and 18th as the date of the fall fair this year, but so far have received no answer from the department.

Arrangements are being made to have the next fall fair the best yet, and as one of the directors recently said, we are going to see that it is, if present plans all carry out.

NOT LEAVING THE CABINET

Hon. E. D. Barrow states that there is no truth in the report that he is about to leave the Oliver cabinet over a disagreement of financial matters. He said someone had been having a pipe-dream. The truth of the matter is that a lot of people do not see how Hon. Mr. Barrow can honestly identify himself with the Oliver government.

NEW LIBERAL LEADER

Mr. D. D. Mackenzie of North Cape Breton, Nova Scotia has been chosen as leader of the Liberal party at Ottawa pro tem.

He has started out well by calling the attention of the Union government to the fact that they are too slow in dealing with the returned soldier; he would also stop the order-in-councils in such wholesale form.

LANDS SUITABLE FOR SOLDIER SETTLEMENT

Maple Ridge is anxious to have a number of soldiers settle in that municipality and the municipal clerk ready to submit to the proper authority has been busy getting some figures There are 28,446 acres in the municipality excluding timber berths 15,000 acres are occupied. There are 300 acres unoccupied, partially cleared and suitable for poultry farming and fruit raising. These could be cut up in blocks of 5 or 10 acres, and as they are situated in well-settled districts in proximity to good roads and markets they are the ideal spots.

Then there are 200 acres unoccupied and partially cleared, without such manifold advantages. Another 4000 acres unoccupied could be cleared and made fit for farming. The remaining 7140 acres are more remote and are not minutely described.

JOIN THE B. C. FEDERATION

(From Fraser Valley Record)

The annual meeting of the Mission Municipality Teachers' Association was held on Saturday 22nd.

The officers elected for the year are:

President—Miss Murray.
Vice-Pres.—Mr. Stafford.
Sec.-Treas.—Miss Catherwood.

The association decided to join the B. C. Teachers' Federation.

The monthly meetings of the Association will be held on the third Saturday of each month until June.

This week we are unable to give the regular quota of locals as they are not to hand—having got somewhere but to the office. It is not often we miss but considering the snow storm and other things our reporter missed the mail. Next week however we hope to make up for it.

J. A. Bates, Editor and Proprietor

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1919.

We do not know how the co-operative association for this district is getting along. We are told that it is going ahead and that considerable capital is being subscribed. This is right and as it should be, provided the men at the head of it stay with it and do not get too discouraged. They have a hard road to hoe until some people see that it is to be a success, then all will be drawn to it. Success commands and begets success.

There is necessity for co-operation. The dairymen have organized and are making a success of it; the poultrymen are talking of co-operation, and down in Langley they had a meeting last week. In addressing this meeting Mr. J. W. Berry one of the headmen in the dairymen's association addressed the newly organized poultrymen telling them how it had been done and the benefits to its members. He said that "he eblieved that sustained co-operation would result in equal benefit to the the poultrymen.

The teachers of the province are organizing. They see the need of it. Next to some other people we know the teachers have been looked upon as the most unbusinesslike—their interests are all centred on the work of the school room. However they have seen the light and acted accordingly.

The time is not very far distant when we believe the fight between labor and capital will be extended to a further fight between labor and the producer of farm products. Who will win out? Labor will win out unless the son of the soil organizes in one big organization to include the milkmen (they are the leaders) the grain the vegetable producer, the fruit grower, and all other farm branches.

Our advice—we study these things—is for the fruit grower to jump on to this little boat that is being now built in this community to trade co-operatively. It may not be a first-class boat but when a bigger and better boat comes along you may be able to put this small one on the decks, still being able to point to it with a great deal of pride as the one little boat that helped to save the day.

But, don't rock the boat.

Hold your breath! Don't get alarmed! This paper has a good word to say for the representative of Dewdney Riding. Premier Oliver is going to introduce a Mosquito Bill at the capital on the lines of his ideas as incorporated last session in a bill which was not brought before the house, owing to its being too late in the session when he conceived the idea first. Now that the larger bill may not be brought in to cover the whole valley Premier Oliver is to bring in a bill to help out the situation in Mission and Dewdney. On behalf of the people of this part of the district we must commend the action of the premier. If he will see this little thing through for us we would not have him sent to Ottawa as leader of the Liberal party under any condition, because having once committed himself to a good piece of legislation he might get the habit and do something else for Dewdney before the next election comes around.

The Vancouver Sun is boosting the Premier of British Columbia for the position of leader of the Liberal party in Canada. We will keep the Hon. Premier a long time in B. C. if we have to keep him until he is appointed as leader of the Liberal party of Canada. However here is what the Vancouver Sun has to say:

"The despatch from Ottawa stating that the name of Hon. John Oliver is being canvassed for the party leadership will not be surprising news to the friends of the veteran premier of this province, though it appears to have been unthought of by Mr. Oliver himself, which, of course, is what might be expected from a man of Mr. Oliver's modesty.

"It must be admitted that for the national leadership Mr. Oliver possesses many qualifications of both a positive and negative character.

He is sturdily devoted to the broad principles of Liberalism and his long public record in this province will furnish all the proof of that statement which may be called for. His sterling sense of duty and the singleness of purpose with which he pursues his course, inspire the confidence of his followers.

On the negative side, he has no past party sins to answer for. He has not been identified with any of the dissensions which have shaken the party in the east. He has been too far on the outside to be saddled with the onus of any mistakes which have been made.

The Liberal party of Canada might do worse than to select the war horse of Delta for their national leader."

After the end of March the administration of the Canadian Patriotic Fund will remain in the hands of the present organization until all of the soldiers have been returned and discharged from the service. The impression that the government was to take over the administration is entirely erroneous. This was never intended. If, however, before the men are all discharged the funds of the organization should not be sufficient to meet the demands, the government will assist to the extent which may be necessary.

But after the 31st of March no contributions will be received.

There are a large number of people who have not carried outt heir obligations over their own signature in which they promised to give so much money until the war ended. There has been a great falling off in this respect in many places where the obligation has been voluntary. Now is the time to carry out these before new obligations are asked for.

The government may put on a tax of five cents a ton on coal. Coal is then sure to go up several dollars a ton (probably) to make up for the extra taxation.

Schemes for the settlement of the soldier on the land are now quite numerous in B. C. There is the Bulkley Valley and Nechaco; the Pitt Meadows, the Sumas Lake scheme and a few others. There is a tendency to get away from the idea of getting on with this by doing more for the soldier. The South African idea won't do nowadays. There must be more to it. It must be more substantial and with it go more of a guarantee that once the land is given there will be some farming done.

It used to be that Vancouver Island wanted to be separated from the rest of B. C., now it is that part of B. C. east of the Cascades. The Fraser Valley has so far remained true to the rest of the province although at times we have all felt that we were somewhat neglected. Let us cut this separation idea out for all time to come. Let us get in and make one great big magnificent province that we shall all be proud of. Within the area of British Columbia we have enough resources to make the whole world sit up and take notice of, and respect. It is our and no better heritage was ever given any people. To take from it any one part would be but folly.

There is however one thing that might be done—if we could do it with grace, and that is to take the capital out of one corner and place it more central. Some day it may be. Kamloops would be a good place. The capital more centrally located would save the people of the province many a dollar in travelling expenses.

The Hun has always been a great boaster and loved to threaten terrible things, even as they have done during the recent war—and since to some extent. Cæsar had occasion to deal with one great Hun chief, named Ariovistus, who had crossed the Rhine and turned the conquered territory into an earthly hell, as Belgium is at this the closing hour of the war, ill-using the women until they perished of disease, and enslaving the men. Cæsar cut in upon this foul conduct, and the Hun haughtily replied, "The treatment of conquered peoples rested entirely with the conquerors." When Cæsar disputed this and hinted at war with Rome, the Hun retorted "No Roman general had ever met him on the field without going to destruction, and Cæsar had only to seek him in battle to learn the mettle of the Hun, who had never tasted defeat and had been trained from infancy to arms, and for fourteen years had never slept beneath a roof." When Cæsar had finished with this man and his host, they all slept beneath the sod in one great battle, out of 60,000 Huns who went into the fray less than a thousand were left alive when the Roman pursuit ceased. Yes, old Cæsar knew how to handle the Huns so did Haig. The positon of the past war is reminiscent of the Roman attack on those barbarians. Lord Kitchener threw a handful of Britons against these people for invading Belgium; Cæsar went for the same purpose with only a few disciplined legions—and the dauntless courage of both the British and the Romans will live forever. Cæsar cowed the Hun; he did not crush them—they rose again, and from that hour to this they have cursed the world with militarism. All through the ages they have attacked someone weaker than themselves. What is wanted is the dismantling of the Hun, the utter and remorseless wiping out of the Prussian power for ever and for ever, or the world—our world—will within ten years be again deluged in blood; murder, pillage, enslavement will again be rampant.

TELEPHONE SERVICE INSURANCE

It is often a temptation to call telephone numbers from memory.

In a surprisingly great percentage of cases this results in serious losses of time, the referring of calls to special operators, and unexplainable annoyance to those called in error.

There is no better insurance on effective service than the two following practices:

FIRST—invariably to consult the directory and call by number, slowly ,one numeral at a time:

SECOND—to evidence the same consideration and politeness that is shown by the operator when difficulties arise, regardless of their origin.

THE SCHOOL PEACE MEDALS

Delegates from the school boards in the Fraser Valley held a meeting at Cloverdale recently, when the design and estimate for the proposed Peace Commemoration medal was decided upon, and an order given for 2500 medals at a cost of ten cents per medal.

Trustees attending the meeting were Matsqui, Geo. F. Pratt and Wm. Merryfield; Surrey, Wm. Hugh, Jas Loney, Jas. Johnston and S. Cunningham; Mission, A. S. Taulbut; Chilliwack, J. C. Robertson, Chairman municipal board; Sumas, W. J. Fraser and J. W. Winson.

Mr. Geo. F. Pratt was chairman of the meeting and Mr. J. W. Winson, secretary.

The medals will be for Surrey, Mission, Matsqui, Sumas and Chilliwack district schools. It was decided to submit a sample of the design to the other school boards in Fraser Valley, and to urge their approval and distribution among their pupils.

The trustes also took up the matter of forming a Fraser Valley Association of School Trustees Chairman Geo. F. Pratt very ably explained the aims and objects of such an association, and dealt with the consolidation of schools, his explanation meeting with the entire approval of those present. Trustee Wm. Hugh, chairman of the Surrey Board, also spoke endorsing Trustee Pratt's remarks. Trustee J. C. Robertson, chairman of the Chilliwack municipal school board, endorsed the plan and explained the working of consolidation of schols and undertaken in the Chilliwack district. A committee composed of Trustees Pratt, Fraser, Robertson, Berry, Hugh, Taulbut and Winson was appointed to go into the matter of organizing an association.

The association adjourned to March 12, when Trustee J. C. Robertson will give an address on "Consolidation of Schools."

GREAT BRITAIN'S WAR SAVINGS CAMPAIGN

War Saving certificates were first placed on sale in Great Britain on February 22, 1916. Between that date and January 18, 1919 inclusive 287,030,200 Certificates were sold. These represented $1,435,151,000 Of this amount the redemptions amount to probably a little over 4 per cent.

The sales by years are as follows:
1916 Certificates sold ..$ 54,094,053
1917, Certificates sold .. 82,935,263
1918 Certificates sold .. 140,761,865

As the financial year does not end until March 31, it is quite probable that the sales during the present fiscal year will exceed those of last by over 30 per cent. That the sale of Certificates is continuing strong may be seen in the fact that for the week ending January 11, 1919, sales brought in $11,500,000; while for that ending January 18 they were about $17,000,000.

It should be borne in mind that while these millions of War Savings Certificates were being sold, the sale of National War Bonds reached the huge total of $8,226,688,670. The sale of these bonds began on October 1, 1917, and ended on January 18, 1919, which means that during the 68 weeks of the issue the average weekly sales amounted to $120,000,000.

At first the sale of War Savings Certificates was attended with disappointing results, possibly because it was hedged about by cumbersome restrictions. It was not until these were removed in June 1916 that appreciable results were secured. Even though the War feeling has subsided the sale of Certificates continues to be very brisk, 3,428,191 having been sold during the week ending January 18, which average if maintained, would double the sales for 1917.

FRASER MILLS WILL BE DISINCORPORATED

Victoria, Feb. 21.—The municipality of the district of Fraser Mills is to be disincorporated and be placed directly under provincial taxation or incorporated with the municipality of the district of Coquitlam. Notice of resolution to that effect was given yesterday by Premier Oliver. The notice recites that "it is apparent that the municipality of Fraser Mills was created and exists for the purpose of evading the burden of a fair measure of taxation."

This is another part of the Dewdney riding, and a place that gave the premier a good majority at the last election. Such is gratitude.

MT. LEHMAN BENEFIT CONCERT

A very well attended benefit concert and dance was held at Mt. Lehman on Friday last, which was the means of raising some $125 for a deserving purpose. The inimitable Pete Keay acted as chairman and as usual his ready wit added greatly to the pleasure of the evening. Those who were fortunate ta attend were agreeably surprised at the quality of the musical selections offered as every number was rendered by local talent, all of whom deserve great praise.

Basket Ball

MATSQUI WINS 17 TO 13

Matsqui, Feb. 22nd—Special—The local boys won from the Mission quintette of basket ball players on Thursday evening by a score of 4 points in one of the fastest games the fans here have witnessed this season. Both teams were in good form, although Mission was handicapped by the small hall. Whillier and Crate scored for the loosers, while Hogan and Page were Matsqui's chief basket getters. After the game a social evening was enjoyed by all.

MISSION 14—MILNER 29

Combination work, combined with weight and good looks resulted in the Milner quintette coming out with the long end of the score in the return basket ball match at the rink on Saturday evening. Although the score looks one-sided the game itself was the best seen in the rink for some time, and with a little more accurate shooting on the part of the home team their score would have been somewhat larger.

$50 from the last dance was given to the Red Cross. Expenses published next week.

Mrs. Gascoigne and daughters left on Monday for the coast.
