FRIDAY, JUNE 17, 1910

Are you boosting for Abbotsford these days or are you simply saying nothing, but endeavoring to make "a stake" There are many ways boosting... just as there are ways of knocking. and the main and proper way is to keep Abbotsford be-the eye's of the public as much as possible.

We have nothing to be ashamed of in boosting for Abbotsford. We have a fine little town—the making of a very much larger one. It is a railway centre of importance but many of us do not realize what what it means to us to have a rail way junction of three, perhaps four trancontinental railways, together with a tram line to the coast cities It is up to us to get wise right away, and write about it, talk about it, sing about it and ring its praises far and near. You have a town well worthy all the praises that you can bestow upon it, and when you speak or write of Abbotsford to your friends you are conferring a favor on them.

—o—

Always have a kind word for a citizen in your own town. Don't knock if you know he is trying, to do the best he can.

—o—

We publish in this issue a letter from a resident of Abbotsford re the organizing for a fall exhibition. That would indeed be the one event that would advertise the town and dsitrict to good advantage.

Just to start the ball a-rolling the editor will subscribe $10.00 for a starter. Who will double that?

THE MARKET.

New Westminster, June 10.—The first strawberries of the season appeared on the market for sale to-day and were quickly snapped up. Some fine gooseberries also made their appearance, being rather earlier than last year. The market was fairly well attended both by farmers and citizens and business was comparatively brisk Potatoes still remained at a low price for this season of the year. Meats, particularly veal and pork advanced slightly inprice owing to the slight shortage in the supply ,while fowls of all kinds, which were plentiful, dropped in price appreciably.

The supply of beef was not quite so plentiful as usual and the demand was brisk throughout the morning, farmers and stockraisers being able to sell quickly at satisfactory prices. Lamb and mutton maintained the same level and was in fair supply with equal demand Veal was plentiful resulting in a reduction in the price to from 12 to 18 cents per pound. The demand for medium stock in pork was good and the prevailing price advanced one cent per pound over that of last week, selling at from 14 to 15 cents top notch price.

Eggs were plentiful and no changes in price were recorded Butter showed signs of a weakening and wholesale price dropped from 30 to 27 cents per pound, due to the increased supply usual at this season of the year. Fowl of all kinds was plentiful and broilers sold readily at a wide range in price according to size. The supply of ducks was fair and the price lowered about $2 per dozen.

Potatoes sold on the market at about $12 per ton, although a number of cases were reported during the week where a much lower price was accepted by producers who are overstocked. There are no signs of an increase in price in the near future. Last year at this season potatoes were becoming scarce and were selling at from $16 to $18 per ton.

The first strawberries of the season appeared on the market today price being from $2.00 to $2.75 per crate.The berries on sale were all fresh and good and sold readily. Some of the first gooseberries of the season sold at six sents per lb. Both strawberries and gooseberries are a week or so earlier than last year, the first strawberries being sold on the market in 1909 on June 19, and the first gooseberries on June 26th.

Lettuce and other green were plentiful with fair demand and abundance of fresh rhubarb.

THE HOME.

"Be it ever so humble,
There's no place like home."

If love is there.

Love can be cultivated and seeks expression. The husband leaving home in the morning for his day's labor will toil better and live better if he receives a loving word of farewell and a good wish from his partner in life and she will sing a happy song all the day long, if before his departure he gives not only a kind look but a loving word and the lover's kiss. 'Tis love that makes the world go round; 'Tis love that makes the world look bright.

"Birds in their little nests agree,
And 'tis a shameful sight,
When children of one family,
Fall out, and chide, and fight."

The house may be small but if it is neat and tidy, the floor free from dust, and the stove bright, and all the dishes clean, it will be an attractive place to the husband and he will not want to go out to spend the evening elsewhere.

If the children are neat and clean faces spotless and hair combed, the husband will be glad to spend the evenings by his own fireside. Pretty pictures on the walls and beautiful flowers on the table may be had by all thoughtful house wives and will help much to make the home attractive.

Home may be a paradise -but both husband and wife must plan together to make it such. A Paradise Lost may -become a Paradise Restored but great will be the effort and long the patience; but they are worth while.

Big boys and big girls have much to do in making home happy. Selfishness and thoughtlessness which too often characterise the grown-up members of the family destroy the prosperity and peace of home.

"Where sisters dwell and brothers meet,
Quarrels should never come."

Be ambitious. Every man worthy of the name has an ambition. If a farmer, he ought to be ambitious to have the best farm in the neighborhood. If a merchant, he ough to be ambitious to have the most prosperous and most popular store in the place. If a baker, or a banker, or a saddler, or a butcher, or a shoemaker or a barber, or a blacksmith, or an hotel keeper, or a preacher, or a printer; he ought to be ambitious to make the most of his business and stand at the head, and be an example to others. A young man without a noble ambition, or a high aim in life is not likely to amount to much.

FALL EXHIBITION FOR ABBOTSFORD.

Editor Post,
Dear Sir.

Now that Abbotsford has got a "boom" on I venture to tresspass on your space in order to make a suggestion which I think only requires mentioning to commend itself to enterprising residents,

Mission Junction, Chilliwack and Langley, all boast of a fall exhibition, yet Abbotsford, which in no way lags behind it neighbors, as far as business enterprise is concerned, is in the lamentable position of not having an annual affair of this kind. Surely it is plain to all that a fall exhibition would be of inestimable benefit to all whose work and interests centre at Abbotsford, and I hope that some of its citizens will have public spirit enough to set about organizing an event which is the one thing required to give Abbotsford as important a standing in the eyes of the outside world as it undoubtedly possess in the estimation of those people who are acquainted with its immense capacity for expansion. Hoping Mr. Editor, that these few lines may have the effect of inspiring some residents with the courage necessary to tackle one of the greatest pressing needs of Abbotsford.

Yours etc.

AN INDIGNATION MEETING

To hold an indignation meeting and form a progressive society at the same time, is the feat accomplished by the residents of Aldergrove on Tuesday night. The residents there have been complaining bitterly of the service given on the Great Northern line to Huntingdon and it was finally decided to call a meeting to discuss the matter. Publicity Commissioner Wade was asked to be present at the meeting and he gave a short address pointing out the steps the board of trade at Westminster was taking to have the conditions remedied.

The meeting was charged with indignation against the Great Northern, and several forcible speeches were made denouncing the company for the treatment meted out to the patrons of the line. One of the most serious charges against the railway company was tha tit was in the habit of running construction trains at night without providing them without lights. As a result there have been several narrow escapes from death. It was also alleged that the trains were late nearly all the time and one coul dnever be sure what time a train might be along.

The absence of an agent at Aldergrove also came in for criticism. The freight is thrown off and there is no onq to take care of it. It was state dat the meeting that the supplied for way freight were unsuitable, sometimes meat and furniture having to be shipped in dirty coal cars.

It was decided that it was necessary for the citizens to band together in some way to protest against the treatment and a progressive society was formed, J. Jones, being elected first president This association will act with the Langley and Westminster boards of trade in efforts to have the condition of things bettered.—News

A board of trade meeting was hel dat New Westminster and the matters which concerned the people of Aldergrove and put them out so much was made light of at the board. So far as is learned no definite action was taken to relieve the people's present complaint. They should write direct.—Ed.
