S. A. CAWLEY GETS CHILLIWACK NOMINATION

The Conservative convention for Chilliwack riding was held on Saturday last in the Alexandria Hall, there being delegates present from all parts of the riding.

The result of the ballot showed that Mr. Cawley received 22 Percy Wilson 15 and Chas. Bell 5 votes of the delegates. The decision of the meeting was that the nomination be made unanimous, which was done on motion of Mr. Wilson and seconded by Mr. Bell, and carried unanimouslywith an enthusiasm which showed that there was not a dissenting voice.

On being called Mr. Cawley thanked the delegates for having given him the unanimous nomination. He stated there was no "ill-feeling on my part because a man lets his name go in to the convention. I can get in and work just as hard as ever for the community." There would be opportunities for political speeches in the future as far as he was concerned, as he intended to hold meetings all through the riding. He knew the audience would rather listen to Dr. Young.

"We have a fight ahead of us. We have got to get in and fight if we are to win. The policy of development and the carrying out that development just as fast as the government can. Our government has been criticised for giving large tracts of land to so-called speculators The government have disposed of large tracts of crown land to people who might be called speculators. The result is that $31,000,000 have been secured for public works throughout the province for roads trails and bridges and public schools. If we had not disposed of the land we would never have gotten the money to spend. The only other way would have been to tax the farmers, which would have come heavy on them. A great deal of that land will come back to the province of B. C. The speculators are anxious to get it off their hands, or they will get the money. $12,500,000 was due the government for the land which has been purchased by the speculators. Now either the land or the money will come back to the government, were some ofthe remarks of the speaker.

It was not yet decided whom the Liberal candidate would be but it was expected that it would be Mr. Barrow. He was going to be a strong man in Chilliwack district. He was perfectly satisfied that they would have a grand fight as far as Mr. Barrow was concerned. He would talk straight politics and we will have a clean campaign throughout. It was up to the Conservatives however to roll up a big majority.

Dr. Young was then called upon, He offered his congratulations to Mr. Cawley and also to the convention on their choice. He had known Mr. Cawlye since he entered public life He knew the interest Mr. Cawley had taken in his constituency. He has been consistent in getting things from me (the speaker) He has the respect of the members of the government He did not think any mistake had been made in choosing Mr. Cawley. We are a democratic people and evrybody has a right to come in the convention to receive the nomination. It was a credit to these two men to make it unanimous.

Those in power are the trustees of the estate of the people and the opinion of the people on that administration can only be registered at the polls. In 1903 when I entered public life we had decided and declared for development for borrowed loans. Our country was bankrupt. The banks refused to loan money and there was not enough to pay the civil servants. We increased the taxes. Issued a loan of a million dollars and carried on the government We paid the loan in two years. We increased the revenue to twelve and fourteen millions. Fifty million have been spent on the roads and other public works since that time. Three million is now held in the bank today. Mr. Cawley referred to the public works.

There is an election now pending and we are going to the country. No new policy, just carrying out the old policy. We have tried to develop the country and each department of the government. We have tried to do right and deserve to be called a business administration. We have conserved the natural resources and developed the country. The greatest heritage in Canada is British Columbia We have had to exercise the greatest care so that no abuses would creep in to criple future governments of the province. I would ask the electors of B. C. now that we have been in power since 1913, there are no suggestions of a destructive policy. Two-thirds of this provvince is on reserve and a man can go and preempt. I know what transportation means and we are carrying out a policy of better trasportation just as fast as we can.

BARROW THE LIBERAL CANDIDATE FOR RIDING

At one of the most successful conventions ever held in the riding of Chilliwack Mr. E. D. Barrow of Chilliwack was unanimously chosen by a nominating convention of Chilliwack Riding Liberals on Thursday of this week to run for Chilliwack as the official Liberal candidate There were some forty-five delegates present, District President Capt. Ramsay presiding over the meeting which was held in the Alexandria Hall.

The name of Mr. Barrow was the only one put forward. The nomination was moved by Messrs A. Cruickshank of Matsqui, and J. A. McLeod of Chilliwack The new candidate received a most rousing reception from the the meeting which shows that all hailed with delight the coming of a man who seemingly carried victory in his footsteps

During the meeting the candidate with Honest John Oliver and Mr. M. A. Macdonald Liberal Leaders, spoke on current political topics while campaign business was transacted.

In the evening a well attended public meeting was held in the hall when trenchant speeches were made.

The candidate received a rousing reception.

(Owing to our being unable to know soon enough ahead we are unable to giveas good a report of this meeting as we desire, but it trusted that our representative will be able to attend the next meeting when Mr Barrow speaks.)

ROAD TO CHILLIWACK IN GOOD SHAPE NOW

The road across Sumas prairie is now in good shape and in fine condition for autoing to the flower garden of Chilliwack. STUMPING FOR PARLIAMENT IN THE GOOD OLD DAYS

Difficulties of Travel For Political Candidates in the Seventies as Experienced by an old Provincial Member of Pitt Meadows.

One of the most interesting students of modern provincial politics is Mr. W. J. Harris, of Pitt Meadows, who sat in the legislature as member for New Westminster district from 1878 to 1882. Mr Harris, who is greatly interested in the coming election, was in the house at Victoria in the days when there were but 24 members. Mr. George Walkem was the premier He was a lawyer and came from Ontario, the birthplace of many wise men of the east Forty years ago party politics and party machines were unknown, members' indemnities were small and the ridings represented were large. In Mr Harris time as M. P., the members received as a recompense for out-of-pocket expenses and in reward for legislalative labor for the province the sum of four hundred dollars a pear In the good old days of long ago, whose traditions are cherished by the new generations, it was no easy matter to get a seat in the House. As Mr. Harris reminiscently informed a Review representative all the country east of the Booth ranch at Maillardville was in 1878 one huge block of dense timber extending for miles east with only the village of Mission, to break the sameness and monotony of th landscape along the North Fraser Valley. There was no C. P. R to carry one in comfort from place to place. Where Port Coquitlam now stands Donald McLean, George Black "Ned" Adkins and Colonel Scott, father of Mr. Loftus Scott were among the very few settlers who had hewn a home out of the black masses of forest and lived hard pioneering lives. Travelling, too, was far from easy. When Mr. Harris and Mr. Donald McGillivray "stumped" the country politically of course, there was no Dewdney Riding Dewdney was a small part of an immense electoral district which embraced Vancouver, Howe Sound, Delta, Chilliwack, Sumas Municipality, and an extensive tract of the North Fraser Valley extending from Vancouver and New Westminster up to borders of Yale In this huge territory there were 300 voters In 1878 M. J. Harris and Donald McGillivray together "stumped" the widely scattered voters in opposition to W. Matthews and James Orr whom they eventually defeated, by fifty odd votes Even in those days the people demanded to have an opportunity of "sizing up" their prospective member and audiences of five or six or possibly twenty persons were addressed on the live topics of the day Roads were novelties, trails were rough, lonely, and dangerous owing to the presence of wolves and other wild animals that infested the forests. Sometimes the aspiring politicians tramped the trails for mile after mile until they were well nigh exhausted. At times they went on horseback, and often they journeyed from Hope to the coast in canoes paddled by Siwashes. The old Yale road even unfit for driving cattle to the markets. As regards the deliberations that passed in the old parliament House at Victoria the legislation was conducted fairly amiably, says Mr. Harris, "but we used to have some lively times in caucus meetings although the total revenuue of the country which we had to expend was not more than two hundred thousand dollars" Mr. Harris can relate some interesting anecdotes One concerns the late Dr McInnes, father of Judge McInnes The doctor, he says, was inflamed by several trenchant articles written by J. R. Suter, editor of the Mainland Guardian, in a series of attacks on the Walkem government. In a fit of violent temper he punched the editor's head The editor's head and dignity hurt so much he had McInnes taken before Magistrate Armstrong to obtain redress. Suter got the conviction all right but unfortunately for him the magistrate was a close friend of the accused. The result of the court case was that Suter's only satisfaction for a "punched head" was to see his assailant fined the sum of—25 cents

A college professor, describing the effect of wind in a western forest, wrote: "In travelling along the road, I even sometimes found the logs bound and twisted to such an extent that a mule couldn't climb over them so I went around."

SPREADING THE WHITE PLAGUE

Victoria, B.C., March 8, 1915

To Editors of Newspapers,

Sir,

An article appeared in the editorial columns of the Vancouver Evening Journal entitled "Spreading the White Plague," which, owing to the misleading statements contained therein and the false impression which it is apt to convey, calls for an explanation as to the work which has been carried out during the past few years by the Provincial Government towards eradicating Bovine Tuberculosis from our dairy herds and thus mitigating the spread of tuberculosis in this Province.

The leading scientists of the world, men who have made a life study of the subject, are all agreed that milk from cows affected with Bovine Tuberculosis is one of the principal causes of Pthisis in children. The report of the Commission appointed last year by the Government of Great Britain to investigate the matter clearly shows this to be the case.

The following is taken from the British Medical Journal of January 17th, 1914:

"In recent years the results of the investigations on tuberculosis conducted by the British Royal Commission, the German Imperial Commission, and by many individual workers proved beyond doubt the communicability of the bovine virus from animal to man."

Experimental work conducted in the city of Edinburgh, amongst children affected with tuberculosis, proved that out of seventy-two cases investigated, sixty-five were of the bovine type, and seven of the human type, thus proving the communicability of this disease to children in drinking affected milk.

The findings of the British Royal Commission are as follows:—

"Bovine Tuberculosis can therefore no longer be considered a negligible factor in respect to the spead of tuberculosis amongst children, more especially since unsterilized cows' milk in this country is a vehicle by which tubercle bacilli must most frequently be introduced into the bodies of children. The powers at present vested in our local authorities are grossly inadequate, and it seems to me to be our special duty to endeavor to prevent this enormous and entirely preventable amount of tuberculosis amongst children. It is a national problem and the earlier it is faced, the more easily it will be solved. That measures for the protection of children against infection with the bovine virus are indispensable, is an undisputable fact. Whatever powers may be given to the local authorities, they must, to be effective, be so framed that their application throughout the United Kingdom will be uniformly compulsory.

Five years ago the fight against bovine tuberculosis was started in this province, at the request of the stockmen and dairymen of British Columbia. Testing was undertaken free of charge, but was not compulsory. An amendment to the Contagious Diseases Act was therefore brought into force during the session of the Provincial Legislature in 1913, whereby testing was made compulsory. Then commenced an earnest and systematic fight against bovine tuberculosis. Mark what has been accomplished since this work was first taken in hand.

When the work was first begun the percentage of reactors to the tuberculin test in the principal dairy districts of the province was as follows:

Gulf Islands, 7 per cent.

Vancouver Island, 10 per cent.

Lower Mainland, 15 per cent.

The last test was made when every dairy cow on the Gulf Islands, Vancouver Island and practically in all districts of the Lower Mainland, was tested, shows the following decrease in reactors:—

Gulf Islands, no reactors; Vancouver Island, 1 per cent; Lower Mainland, 5½ per cent.

No province of Canada, no State of the Union or country of the world can make such a satisfactory showing.

Hundreds of affected dairy cattle have been killed whose milk had, previous to this work being taken in hand, been drunk by our children, and who can say what mortality was caused thereby? Does this look as if the Provincial Government had been spreading the disease? No, rather give credit where it is due, and should not our Provincial Government receive hearty commendation for the good results which have been accomplished.

Now, about the sale of cows that have reacted to the tuberculin test. Previous to this work being taken in hand, hundreds of cows affected with bovine tuberculosis were sold for human consumption without any inspection. Since this work has been taken in hand, however, a rigid inspection takes place, and only those cows which are perfectly fit for human food are allowed to be sold. Others are condemned for tanking purposes. If there are no tubercular lesions on the meat of the animal it is perfectly fit for human food, and is sold as such in every country of the world.

I wish emphatically to state that no animal which has been condemned for bovine tuberculosis has been allowed to be sold for human consumption without a most careful examination by either Dominion or by Provincial inspectors, and in the case of those condemned for tanking purposes, our departmental qualified veterinarians see that they are so disposed of.

Statements were made during the present session of the Provincial legislature that the Swift Canadian Company have been making a fat thing out of the Provincial Government by buying reactors under market value.

The total number of cattle handled by this company was eighty-five, forty-three of which were condemned for tanking purposes, and forty-two passed for beef. The price received for these cows was nearly double what was statd.

Milking cows naturally have very little value as beef, owing to their condition, and world not be worth half as much as a fat dry cow.

The tuberculin used in testing by officials of this department is secured from the very best sources, and is guaranteed pure.

THE MARCH TO THE BATTLEFIELDS; OR CANADA'S MEN ON THE WAY

The above is the title given to a picture that will for many years to come be a highly prized treasure. It is a photographic repoduction showing the 32,000 men of Canada's first contingent breaking camp and on te march to join the Continental forces. t shows miles and miles of the white tents and the marching men. It is a most inspiring sight. The sizr is 20 x 46 inches, all ready for framing. This picture is sure to be a popular souvenir of the war as far as Canada is concerned, and will be in great demand. It is owned by the Family Herald and Werkly Star of Montreal, and a clpy is being presented to all subscribers to that great national weekly newspaper, The Family Herald Montreal, whose subscription of one dollar a year is received from this date for a limited prriod.

LIFE'S MIRROR

There are loyal hearts, there are spirits brave,
There are souls that are pure and true;
Then give to the world the best you have
And the best shall come back to you.

Give love, and love to your heart will flow,
A strength in your utmost need;
Have faith, and a score of hearts will show
Their faith, and a score of hearts will show
Their faith in your word and deed.

For life is the mirror of king and slave.
'Tis just what you are and do;
Then give to the world the best you have,
And the best will come back ti you

Bank of Vancouver to Be Wound Up

Petitions for directions re the winding up of the affairs of the Bank of Vancouver have been heard in Vancouver. Mr. Adam S. Johnston, on behalf of Mr. J. B. D. McDonald has filed a petition with the court of registrar and another case on the list is a similar application filed by Mr. Norman Lidster on behalf or Mr. A. S. Johnston.

Later a large number of similar petitions were filed and there was quite a rush of applicants when the registrar's doors opened there. Every petitioner who files application will have a voice in the selection of a liquidator and the matter will be heard before a supreme court judge in Vaanvouver this week.

OIL MAY BE FOUND AT HEAD OF PITT LAKE

Another Company Putting in Machinery for Drilling at Territory Showing Good Indications.

A company of oil prospectors, other than the Paterson syndicate, is now assembling boring machinery on certain lands at the head of Pitt Lake land recently staked and tested by an expert. This expert, who was engaged at the Paterson well at Sturgeon Slough, was induced to examine the strata and geographical conditions at the place in reference and gave out as his opinion, after full investigation and practical tests, that there are excellent possibilities of oil being struck there at two hundred feet if the claim is properly worked One important advantage which the land has over the district drilled by the Paterson syndicate is that the water problem should not be encountered at any rate to such an extent as that at the slough. As all who have visited the scene of the drilling carried out by Paterson's men were aware there is oil to be had, but the great difficulty so far has been to obtain the oil apart from the water. Until this obstacle has been surmounted by successful casing of the well and luck in drilling without mishap to a further depth than sixteen hundred feet to which the hole is sunk it cannot be ascertained whether oil exists in commercially paying quantities. According to a settler who lives not far from the lake, there is a good deal of activity among prospectors at the head of the lake. At one point some distance north of the northern bank in the direction of the first canyon, which is fifteen miles from the most northern point of the lake, and close to the south bank of the canyon, excellent gold has been found. While details of the find are difficult to procure owing to the secrecy with which the prospecting is being carried out there seems to be no question but that an assayer's report on the specimens is highly satisfactory.

"Injun Bones and Huskies" by J. R. Fraser in March Rod and Gun is no lap-dog story but an account of a desperate encounter which two adventurers in the far north had with a band of ferocious huskies from which they narrowly escaped with their lives. "That Cub of Patrick's" is a somewhat amusing tale—though Pat himself found the experience very provoking—of a captured bear cub that proved one too mucr for his captor. "A Visit to the Nakimu Caves of Glacier Park, B. C.," "Windobin's Cabin," "The Passing of the Buffalo" and other stories and articles, along with the regular departments, go to make up a fine March iumber. This sportsmen's publication is issued at Woodstock, Ont., by W. J. Taylor, Limited.

HUMORIST HAS FUN OUT OF FAILURE TO SELL APPLES

Last fall L. Burkhart induced a Okanagan friend who, by the way, is a merchant and postmaster of a thriving little burg of that part, to take home with him a car of apples to sell in his town, says an exchange The man was here a month, considered buying an orchard and laid plans for spending the balance of his days in this valley.

Mr. Burkhart was interested to know the outcome of his friend's apple deal, and this week received a letter which explained something of the reasons why sales there and in the east were not satisfactory to the growers. To begin with, the car consisted of well selected varieties, carefully packed, and in the old days would hav netted the grower $2.00 or $2.50 per box. Selling agents however, did not take kindly to the idea of another dealer coming into the territory and taking out apples and disposing of them in a private way As soon as it became known that his apples were in transit, two agencies immediately diverted cars to this point and priced apples so low that the dealer was forced to sell far below his guarantee. Instead of cursing the valley and lamenting his fate, the dealer took the matter philosophically and makes a joke of the whole affair in the following letter to Mr. Burkhart.

"The undersigned, intending to commit suicide by reason of his failure in apple shipping business, will sell at public auction at his farm at ——on the ——road, a short distance from the barn, all his belongings:

Viz: 1 Poland China Bull good as new; 7 milch cows, 2 of which are bulls; 2 fall cows and 3 that never fell; 1 Plymouth Rock calf, will have peepies by day of sale if weather permits; Brown Leghorn pigs with their golden hair hanging down their backs; 1 old-fashioned wood saw with directions for use; 1 triple expansion patent lever bicycle with full jeweled mud guards; 1 sky pink sulky plow will be fresh by time of sale 7 forks, 3 of which are equipped with fly net attachments; a lot broad and narrow horses; 1 Berkshire wheelbarrow geared 120, can trot pace or gallop; 27 dappled grey chickens with high water breed; 1 Jagger wagon with the jaggers broken off; 2 falling top buggies and 1 on which the top has fell; 1 large Oliver Chilled hand roller with Valentine flanges; 1 fine cherry back Jassak with open-faced countenance and a splendid boxer; 1 double breasted cupboard, fleece lined; 1 stationary bake oven; 2 fine hand painted hand bobsleds patent automatic cut-off; 1 patent adjustable cross-eyed fountain pen, just the thing for a left handed man; 1 collared dog constructed on the grasshopped style, and rather heavy set; 5 fine goats, 2 of which do excellent work, 2 are willies with red whiskers, and they are all very strong.

Oil Refining Industries Penetrated

Mysteries in the production of gasoline, coal oil, fuel oil, naptha, benzine and other products of the crude oil are readily penetrated by visitors to Ioco, the site on the North shore of Burrard Inlet of the great plant of the Imperial Oil Company, Port Moody's latest industry.

The clearing of the site which is 83 acres in area, and the construction of the plant up to the present stage, have cost approximately one million and a quarter dollars, having occupied practically all of the past year. An additional plant for manufacturing of lubricating oils, is now under way. The crude oil is brought from Peru in tank steamers having a capacity of over two million gallons Three of these steamers may berth simultaneously at the wharf, where there is a minimum draft of over thirty feet. Pumped from the ships the oil passes through a 12-inch pipe line to the dock pump house where it is forced up the hill by two electric pumps of a capacity of 25,000 gallons per minute. from the storage tanks one of which is the largest in Canada being 115 feet in diameter by 35 feet high with a capacity of 2 1-4 million gallons, the crude oil is passed through a battery of stills, where it is subjected to heat and the vapors driven off. The various grades of oil are then run into the agitator where they are tested with acid. The finished products are stored in large shipping tanks where they can be shipped in bulk by steamers or in tank cars by the C. P. R. which has a track running round the upper end of the inlet from its main line on the south shore.

CAWLEY GETS NOMINATION

When the government decided to go on a policy of development we went to the people and they endorsed us. There were two Socialists in the house and not a Liberal in sight. We are asking for endorsation again.

My department—the Education department, just look how it is conducted. No matter to what place you go in the province the best building in that place is the public school. Look at my two normal schools, and my university. Money has been spent for the purpose of building up and developing a good country to make it worth while for the Anglo-Saxon race to live in. Soon a boy will be able to start in the public school and end his education in the university of the province. We wont then have to send outside for experts.

He was glad that Mr. Cawley would again be the member of the house. He then passed out a, well——He stated he had been to Cloverdale a few days previous and he was proud of the class of men who were the delegates there for the Conservative party. The men behind the party are intelligent men who appear to have the country's welfare at heart. He saw the same class of men in the convention here to-day. Was it a compliment he wanted to give the delegates?

If you will take the legislation we have passed this year you will see we are trying to develop the country. and we as a government should merit your support on the day of election.

He closed with a strong appeal to the delegates to do everything honorable to elect the candidate for the riding thus supporting the government in their great policy of development.

After votes of thanks and the singing of "God Save the King" the convention was closed, being a most harmonious and successful convention.

PAINTING PROTECTS YOUR HOUSE!

It's the repeated changes from heat to cold, from dampness to drought, from rain to snow, that makes wood rot and crumble and eventually turn to dust.

To preserve your house INDEFINITELY from the elements, you ought to paint it at regular intervals with

Bapco Pure Paint

It covers your house with an impenetrable coating of PUREST white lead, linseed oil and zinc, and shuts out the destructive elements for years to come.

We sell and recommend BAPCO Pure Paint to our customers, because we have their best interests at heart.
