THE ATLIN CLAIM.

VOL. 7. ATLIN, B. C., SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 22, 1902. NO. 175.

CALLED HENCE.

The Representative for Burrard.

George R. Maxwell, M. P., Succumbs After a Long and Painful Illness.

The sad intelligence of the death of Mr. George R. Maxwell, Member for Burrard district in the Dominion House of Commons, was received by wire from Vancouver on Tuesday last. The deceased gentleman had been ill for several weeks in the east, and came home to Vancouver about a month ago a very sick man. Since returning home he has had the very best surgical and medical attendance, but the complications in his disease proved beyond their powers and he died about midnight on Monday last.

Mr. Maxwell was a native of Lanarkshire, Scotland. He graduated as a Master of Arts from the University of Edinburgh and was ordained into the Presbyterian Church. He came to Canada several years ago and occupied an important charge in Three Rivers, P. Q. From Three Rivers he was called to assume the pastorate of the First Presbyterian Church in Vancouver in 1892. In 1896 Mr. Maxwell resigned from the Church to enter politics. In June of that year he was elected, by a very large majority, to represent the electoral district of Vancouver in the Liberal interest. He was re-elected in 1900.

As a Minister of the Gospel, Mr. Maxwell had few peers on the continent; he was a fluent and forcible speaker; liberal in his doctrine and sincere to the principles of his faith. As a politician, he worked with might and main to the interest of his constituents, and his deeds remain as a token of his zeal on their behalf; he made for himself a political record enjoyed by but few men who have followed politics as a profession. As a man, he was an exemplification of all that is noble; he enjoyed a wide popularity and his death will be mourned by many as that of a very dear friend.

He was buried on Thursday by the Masons, of which order he was an honored and respected member. He was also a member of the Knights of Pythias, in which order he held a high rank. Mr. Maxwell leaves a widow and five children to mourn him, and to them in their heavy bereavement will the sympathy of many friends go out.

Deep Diggings Threatened.

Should the Eastern Extensions to Gold Run Be Blanketed By Leaseholds?

Opinions Expressed Nearly Two Years Ago Fully Confirmed — Valuable Ground Which Will Yield Good Returns to Individual Miners.

We herewith reprint from the ATLIN CLAIM of March 9th, 1901, extracts from an article from the pen of Mr. Frank Weir, of Stevendyke, under the heading of "The Atlin District, Its Geology and Auriferous Deposits." The subject matter has a very important bearing upon an issue prominently brought before many of our readers today—the protestation of the "States" group of hydraulic lease claims on Pine creek above Gold Run:—

"From Surprise lake, westward, the pre-glacial stream appears to have followed the flank of Spruce mountain, so that the present creek which bears further to the northward, barely skirts its northern rim until it reaches the mouth of Gold Run, where the ancient stream, turning northward, is pierced by the later stream.

"The old valley gravels, where practically intact, have a depth of from 30 to 50 feet, gradually lessening as the valley descends; the width of this pre-glacial stream has yet to be definitely fixed. Neither of its rims have been reached, to my knowledge, either by tunnel or shaft. Surface indications give it a known width of two hundred yards at least, but it is more than probable that the glacial moraines lining the valley cover an additional area of these gravels equal to, if not indeed far greater, than that at present known. The depth of the deposit together with the great width of the valley at this point, two miles or more, would seem to indicate that the depositing stream was one of imposing size.

"The values contained in this vast deposit cannot be estimated with any approach to reasonable accuracy. Its gold lies in pockets throughout the mass as well as on and in bedrock. It is extremely coarse in nature and should be coarser the higher the valley is ascended. Its true "gutter" if struck should prove, in my opinion, especially rich and a drifting proposition of the most encouraging kind. As an hydraulic proposition it offers many discouragements. The head of water available at Nugget Point would not exceed 100 feet, and would so rapdly diminish as work progressed, that less than one mile in the seven could be worked, even if dump were availbale.

"Dredging is an alternative. To give this most promising field up to the dredger in its present practically unprospected condition, would, in my opinion, be against the best interests of the district.

"These observations are made that the camp may judge of the advisibility of taking steps ere it is too late, to definitely ascertain and prospect the old 'gutter.' If found, and 250 foot claims were the law, there would be both summer and winter drifting in the upper valley for years to come. That such operations should precede that of dredging, if the ground warrants it, as late developments seem to prove, is, I think, a self-evident proposition. Give the individual miner every possible show."

It is needless to recite the conditions and the results attendant upon the last eighteen months' development upon Gold Run, except that the prospects have been sufficiently encouraging to warrant the placing of machinery upon much of the ground individually held. On the outcome of this winter's development the fate of this part of Pine creek depends.

The small area of ground at present held—and that only by a concession on the part of the owners of the Ophir group of leaseholds—by individual miners is but a patch of the ground under which the ancient channel runs, and which, there need be little doubt, will ultimately be found to be of great value. This being assumed, it should be the policy of the Government to reserve as long as possible for the use of the pioneer miners ground that is likely to yield profitable returns to such miners. It would at this time be a gross injustice to individual miners to allow that promising strip of ground, extending from Gold Run to Surprise lake, on the south side of Pine, to be taken up for hydraulic leases. Again, there is every reason to believe that there will be a great influx of miners and prospectors into Atlin next season, and as there is none too great an area within the present known auriferous belt open for location, it should be the duty of the Government to reserve this portion of Pine creek for another season or, at least, give time for its prospection by miners—which is sure to follow the satisfactory outcome of developments on Gold Run—before turning it over to the hydraulic or dredging men.

WINTER WORK.

Many Scenes of Activity in the Camp.

Spruce, Pine, Willow, Gold Run and Boulder Will Add Their Quota to the Output.

A continued sign of the stability and permanence of Atlin as a profitable mining camp is amply evidenced by the fact that there is a very much larger number of men working and being employed this winter than there was last year, further proof that the rigour of the climate are not such as some persons on the outside have been led to believe, who can hardly credit the fact that many miners are able to even sluice their ground during the winter.

At so early a date after the commencement of winter operations, we have not received direct reports from the different scenes of work, but we would ask those interested to send us notes from time to time as work progresses, for their own benefit as well as in the general interest of the district.

On Spruce creek, many of the drifts of last year have been re-opened, while many new ones have been opened up on the ancient high bench channel. Some of the older drifts have been worked without intermission for the last three years with exceedingly profitable returns. In all there is estimated to be a hundred and fifty men work on Spruce creek.

At the scene of first drift operations on Pine creek, near where the high bench channel was discovered in the winter of 1900-01, Frank Lytle and partners are running a drift into the bench above Harrigan's creek claim. From their first set, report has it, they took out over $50! Dave Cochrane and Sam Smith have just begun a drift on the same ground. Many of the drifts and shafts on Pine and Willow are being cleaned out and re-opened, while Gold Run is simply a hive of industry, nearly a hundred men being empoyed in this section alone.

Boulder creek, from its drifting work, will astonish the camp from its productiveness, as in many cases the drifts are being run from bedrock in the creek, following up the exceedingly rich pay of this creek. We are unable to definitely ascertain the number of men, but it must be well over the hundred. On the Societe Miniere's ground ten men are employed, under Mr. Fall, who reports that complete arrangements are made for sluicing the dirt as it comes out of the drift. Mr. Fall brought down the first sack of gold from the drifts this week.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 22, 1902.

ALTHOUGH the output of petroleum in Canada is not of much importance, and no attempts have been made to explore for this valuable mineral deposit on an extensive scale — the Dominion Government sunk several holes with promising results in Athabasca some five years ago—a Dr. Churchill, of Vancouver, who is said to have an intimate knowledge of the petroleum deposits of North America, has expressed his conviction that the Canadian Northwest is the great oil storehouse of the Western Hemisphere. He professes to have traced the continuation of the oil-bearing shales, which have been recently tapped in Texas and California into Canadian territory which, in his opinion, is the real source of the great oil supply of the United States. According to this expert, the basin formed between the great mountain ranges of the Rockies and the coast contains a lake of petroleum of inexhaustible quantity. This space takes in the whole of British Columbia, so promoters who are inclined to attach weight to Dr. Churchill's prognostications would do well to be early in the field.

The discovery of valuable oil fields on the Alaskan coast, near the outlet of the Copper river suggests the supposition that there may be a valuable field nearer home. Oil is like gold, "where you find it." The oil in Alaska is said to be the finest illuminating oil ever discovered — surpassing even the Pennsylvania product. It is 90 per cent illuminant, and carries nearly 40 per cent of naptha. This oil, just as it comes from the well, will burn like gasoline. It is more volatile than water. A CLAIM representative has secured a bottle of the oil and has seen a scientific analysis of it. The lowest estimate that has been placed on the raw product is $6 per barrel. The Texas and California oil sells at from 40 cents to $1 a barrel. The first gusher in the Alaskan field was struck a few months ago at a depth of less than 800 feet, by an English syndicate, which has secured large holdings in the oil field. The oil when struck spouted 150 feet high, and since being capped the oil has been escaping through the ground, outside the pipe, at the rate of 15 barrels daily.

Capitalists have already entered this field and it is estimated that fully 125,000 acres of the land have been taken up. Many drills will be at work next spring, and it is certain that the new discovery will in a few years work a revolution in the kerosene problem of the Northwest.

THE NEW SMELTER

One of the Finest of its Kind on the Coast.

The Northwestern Smelting & Refining Co., of Crofton, B. C., Looking for Business.

Mr. W. M. Brewer, M.E., who is now connected with the Northwestern Smelting & Refining Co., of Crofton, B.C., has, during the last week, been looking over the quartz prospects of the Whitehorse district with a view to obtaining ore for his company. He states that it is the purpose of his company to make a rate to the miners that will permit them to work their mines and ship low grade ores as well as those of a high grade.

In speaking of the facilities of the Crofton smelter, Mr. Brewer states that in weighing and sampling the ore, exceptionally good facilities were afforded the shippers to watch every stage of the work. This smelter is the newest and one of the largest on the Pacific coast. It was begun last December and the first furnace was blown in on the 10th ulto. The construction of the plant was under the superintendence and direction of Mr. Jas. Breen, President and General Manager of the Company, and H. C. Bellinger, Assistant Manager and Metallurgist, two of the best known smelting men in the West, and who have been connected with many of the best plants in the country.

Crofton is located on Oyster bay, on the east coast of Vancouver island, and has one of the finest harbours on the coast. It is 45 miles from Victoria, and 30 from Nanaimo, and is connected by a branch line with the E. & N. Ry. The plant consists of a smelting, power house, boiler house, sampling mills, furnace building, converter building, assay office and general office building. The immensity of the plant may be understood when it is stated that the excavating for the furnace building converter building and dust chamber amounted to 19,000 cu. yards.

The sampling mills' building is 85 feet high and has a capacity of 1000 tons a day.

In the furnace building are installed two water jacket furnaces, each having a capacity of 350 tons daily, and a cupola furnace for treating the matte drawn from the furnaces and making a further concentration.

In the converter building are four converters, each having a capacity of treating 50 tons of matte daily and converting the the same into blister copper, which is the product shipped. The assay office is one of the largest and most complete west of the Missouri river and has been erected with the view of affording specially good facilities for the representatives of shippers to watch every operation of final sampling. The entire plant is lighted by electricity, furnished by the Company's own electric light plant.

HIS REPORT.

Lieut. Emmons, U.S.N., Submits the Result

Of His Alaskan Investigations to the Members of the Boundary Commission.

Following up the subject of the Alaskan Boundary dispute and the report of Mr. Cameron, which was published last week, Lieut. G. E. Emmons, U. S. Navy (retired), has reported to Secretary Hay the result of his investigations, along the Alaskan boundary, of certain stories which have found frequent repetition in late years to the effect that monuments have been discovered marking the real boundary between Alaska and British Northwest territory, at a point many leagues further from the sea than the British have been willing to admit.

Lieut. Emmons is thoroughly familiar with the country in which the supposed boundary stones exist, and spent much of the past summer in the region. The State department will not make the report public at present. It is regarded as a fair conjecture, however, that Lieut. Emmons has not found the stones, reported to exist, to be boundary monuments, or else the State department would take steps to bring that fact to the attention of the British Government. Instead of this, the report has been referred to Secretary John W. Foster and Senator Fairbanks, members of the Joint Commission, which was charged with the settlement of the Alaskan Boundary question among other matters.

Ex-Governor Ross was expected to arrive in Skagway this week. He will make a personal canvas of the electors of the Yukon from Whitehorse to Dawson, and is expected to make speeches on the most important creeks. It is confidently believed that the presence of Mr. Ross in the Yukon will result in making his election as member for the Yukon Territories almost unanimous. Mr. Ross will be in Dawson on election day, Dec. 2nd.

Profit and Loss.

From a bushel of corn a distiller gets four gallons of whisky, which retails at $16. The Government gets $3, the farmer who raised the corn gets 40 cents, the railroad gets $1, the manufacturer gets $4, the retailer gets $7, the consumer gets six months and the policeman gets paid for running him in.

There is more solid comfort in a cup of Blue Ribbon Tea than in a gallon of most beverages.
