French Capture Fortified Position

Paris, Aug. 3.—North of river Somme last night French troops took a powerfully fortified German work between Hem wood and Monacu farm. On the right bank of river Meuse, north of the fortress of Verdun, there was a series of violent engagements throughout the night at Vaux Le Chapitre wood and Chenois, extending to the east as far as to the south of Damloup, after a series of unsuccessful attacks some with asphyxiating gas, the Germans gained a little ground in Vaux Le Chapitre wood and Chenois. During the actions the French took as prisoners over a hundred Germans, including 3 officers. A Russian reconnoitring party made a bayonet charge in Champagne region dispersing a German detachment.

Berlin, via London, Aug. 3.—On the high road between Maricourt and Clery in region of river Somme, French troops penetrated to our completely demolished trenches, but we captured a hill in the salient northeast of Fort Souville in the region of Verdun.

London, Aug. 3.—Further progress has been made by British troops to the east of Pozieres in the river Somme region.

Italians Successful

Rome, Aug. 3.—Austrians suffered a very severe defeat in Monday's engagements in the Astico valley. Their attacks on the Italian lines at Monte Seluggio, Castelatto and Monte Cimone were repulsed with extremely heavy losses for attacking forces.

Deutschland Sets Sail

Newport News, Aug. 3.—The German submarine Deutschland, was sighted off Tangier Sound at 6 o'clock this morning, she was still heading towards the Lower Bay at a high rate of speed. Tangier Sound is about 75 miles above the Virginia Capes.

Lloyd George's New Bill

London, Aug. 3.—Much interest is being shown in the lobby of the House of Commons in the bill introduced by David Lloyd George, secretary of war, empowering him to set up a special court martial to try certain allegations which have been made against a high official at the war office. Morning Post says it is a simple looking measure but there is a great deal behind it. The allegations involved concern civilians more than soldiers.

London, Aug. 3.—Gavin Duffick, Roger Casement's solicitor, says he has reason to believe there would be no reprieve in the case of the former knight, who is to be executed by hanging tomorrow morning.

British Consolidate Recent Gains

London, Aug. 4.—During the night we continued the work of consolidating the ground which we had gained and in opening of communication trenches. Our guns were active and the enemy's artillery retaliated briskly during the evening along front from Maltze farm to Longueval, also in the woods of Mametz, Fricourt and Bucourt and village of Pozieres; his fire slackened off at daybreak. The enemy exploded a small mine near Souchez, it caused no casualties and did little damage.

Austrians Shell Bisceglie

Rome, Aug. 4.—Two Austrian destroyers shelled Bisceglie, an Italian seaport on the Adriatic near Barie. Nine Italian aeroplanes bombarded Durazzo this morning with great effect. A large number of bombs fell on wharves, buildings and aerodrome, all machines returned except one, which broke down and had to land on enemy land.

Germans Beaten Back

Paris, Aug. 4.—North of river Somme several German attempts last night against French positions at Monacu farm were repulsed, the French troops organized their new positions between Monacu farm and Hem wood, south of the Somme a German counter attack south of Estrees failed. Several German counter attacks on trenches taken by the French yesterday on the left bank of the Meuse were everywhere stopped by the screen of infantry fire, in this region, which is north of Verdun fortress, the French made substantial progress to south of Fleury. Since August 1 we have captured 1100 Germans on this bank. On right bank of Meuse an intense artillery duel continues, but no infantry action has taken place. In the Somme sector Sergt. Chainat of the aviation corp brought down two German machines, which makes total eight brought down by this aviator.

Gas Attacks Repulsed

Petrograd, Aug. 4.—On night of August 2 in region of Smergon the enemy launched gas attacks on both sides of railway, the attack opened at 1 o'clock in the morning and the gas was released six times with intervals between the waves. The gas attacks finished at six o'clock in the morning. The use of gas was discovered in good time with the result that Germans who were following the gas attacks were on attempting to advance met with rifle and machine gun fire and suffered severe losses. The enemy did not even succeed in getting outside his own wire entanglements and rapidly returned to his trenches.

Caucasus front. In direction of Karnut near village of Nurik, our detachment made advance and forced back the enemy from fortified position on right bank of Euphrates at Murdetchala.

Jottings of Bella Coola and District

S. S. Camosun came last Sunday at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. It is presumed that the untoward weather conditions obtaining in this part of the world were responsible for the extraordinary fact that no passengers either arrived or departed.

Mr. John Flewin came down from Prince Rupert last Tuesday posting election proclamations enroute. At Swanson Bay his launch developed engine trouble and he had to resort to the use of another steamer to Bella Bella, where he enlisted the serviees of J. A. Pauline to make the round of the remainder of the district with him. Although a resident of northern B. C. for upwards of thirty years, and for a long time government agent for this district, this is Mr. Flewin's first visit to Bella Coola.

F. McCrea, timber inspector, came in last Wednesday and proceeded to the upper part of the valley.

The Board of Directors of the Bella Coola General Hospital expresses through the columns of the Courier, their thanks to the Lysdahl Sewing Circle, Mrs. E. C. Clayton and others for their liberal donations to the hospital.

The Red Cross Committee is pursuing its even way in the monthly collection of funds. On comparison of the contributions of Bella Coola with those of other communities it will be found that they are quite creditable.

There is one difficulty the collectors have to contend with, which by a slight co-operation on the part of the contributors could be easily removed.

As most of the collectors are ladies, they find it impossible to reach all the fishermen, who under the circumstances are in the most favorable position to donate goodly sums. It is hoped that they will be chivalrous enough to call upon the ladies regularly in the future and thus avoid the necessity of the ladies hunting them up.

All that these young men need to do is to call on these ladies early and often with their contributions and their visits will always be welcome.

The 11th Battalion C. M. R., of which our former editor H. L. Harris is a member, is reported safely landed in England.

Two more of the Bella Coola boys have decided to join the colors.

Peter Oveson, whose brother Alfred is with the 102nd Battalion is one of them. They will enlist in the 211th Battalion known as the American Legion and will depart for Calgary tomorrow, where the battalion is encamped.

The second anniversary of the Empire's entering in the war will be observed at the Mackenzie School tomorrow evening.

There will be addresses made by Rev. W. H. Gibson and his son, Rev. John Gibson. A good musical program has been arranged for.

The Red Cross Committee is contemplating the holding of a concert and a superfluity sale in the near future. The statement is made thus early to give everybody a chance to save up their superfluous nickels, dimes and dollars for the occasion. The official announcement with all the details will be given in our next issue.

The Vancouver World of July 24th announces the marriage of Robert Draney to Miss Cassie May McCaviny, at the Kitsilano Methodist Church parsonage.

It is of considerable significance and shows the direction of the public sentiment that wherever the Liberal leaders, H. C. Brewster and M. A. Macdonald, hold meetings large and highly interested audiences are gathered. Their tour through the interior of the northern part of the province has brought out the people from far and near, and enthusiasm and keen interest have been the order throughout.

The local cannery has had more of the pink fish this year than before, and at present is packing to its full capacity. The Cohoe salmon is already arriving.

The Tonapah-Belmont Company, owners of the Surf Inlet mining property, is doing extensive improvements and development work this season. The total amount of money to be expended this year will reach a million dollars.

About five hundred men are needed, but only half the number has been obtained so far.

PROVINCIAL ELECTION

Your influence and support is respectfully requested.
T. D. PATTULLO.

A Great Anniversary.

Yesterday was the second anniversary of Britain's entrance into the world war.

Despite the great sacrifices made and the enormous losses sustained there are very few, if any, true Britons who regret the action of the motherland in joining in this gigantic struggle. Instead, there prevails a satisfaction that our land has a sense of honor and justice of such keenness that it did not consider the consequences when these virtues were at stake.

When Germany invaded Belgium Britain's security was not threatened. Ensconced in her island home behind a navy by far the strongest in the world, she could have remained a calm spectator while Germany thrashed her neighbors, feeling that Germany would never become strong enough to overpower her navy and invade the British Isles. Even if a fear of eventual German supremacy had lodgment with our statesmen, the danger was so far away in the future that it would not necessitate the plunging of the country into war at that time.

But such sordid motives did not actuate the leaders of our government nor the great majority of the people. And looking at the development and history of this the greatest of empires, her action was in keeping with her high traditions. For hundreds of years foremost among the nations in manufacture, in commerce, in enterprise and in world-wide good deeds, such as the suppression of piracy and slavery, the spreading of the gospel and civilization, the establishment of justice and the amelioration of untoward conditions among dependant people, the spirit of her people has developed to a point where it cannot calmly sit still and see tyranny, robbery and cruelty rampant without entering her protest in word and action.

And in the strength of her high character developed through years of labor in the cause of civilization and christianity, when the neutrality of Belgium was violated and her neighbor France stood in danger of being crushed, she donned her armor and with her utmost might hurled herself into the struggle; and subsequent events bear proof that if she had not done so, the future of Europe would have been changed for the worse for ages to come.

To her was given the high mission of saving civilization from a dominating militarism and, as we hope and believe, establishing a permanent world-wide peace.

For these reasons it is fit and proper that all who love their country and the great principles it is defending at such a great sacrifice, should commemorate the anniversary of her high resolve by joining public demonstrations in that behalf and by presence give utterance to their allegiance to these principles and approval of the country's action taken in their defense.

The End Drawing Near.

The fighting now proceeding in the eastern and western theatres of the war is so intense that even this the fiercest war on record has not seen the like of it. We look upon it with mixed feelings; admiration for the heroism, perseverance, endurance and patience displayed, but also with deep regret of the many precious lives lost and other dire results, and we long for the end of it all.

We are longing for the time when our victory shall be so complete that no nation at any time in the future shall be in a position to force another war upon the world or any part of it.

We are glad to note that indications are becoming numerous that the end of the war is drawing near. Even German newspapers are beginning to express doubts of what the outcome will be. The Vossische Zeitung of Berlin, says in part: "We are shaken with burning pain as new streams of German blood are flowing and we recognize our powerlessness over what cannot be changed.

"After two years of war the angel of destruction is passing through our ranks as mercilessly as if the battle had only just begun. We do not blind ourselves to the new mourning to come to us, nor over the seriousness of the fate of this decisive battle raging on all fronts.

"It is now a question of everything—for the life or death of our nation. We stand differently now from what we did in August, 1914."

In the above extract it is especially worthy of note that the paper regards the battle now raging as "decisive."

The chief of the Russian staff, General Alexieff, according to the London Times correspondent says: "The most interesting and profitable part of our work is still ahead. My confidence is based on a twofold foundation: First, the Allies are advancing simultaneously and the enemy is no longer able to fight us piecemeal as last year; second, the Germans have used up their reserves.

"Moreover, the internal situation in Germany is decidedly critical. All sources of information concur in reports of disorders in all parts of Germany."

In Switzerland the opinion is now general that the war will end in about three months.

As a result of the famous naval battle off Jutland, Germany has evidently lost control of the Baltic Sea, as since then more than two hundred British vessels have escaped from confinement in Russian and Swedish ports.

Premier Morris of New Foundland has just returned from the western front and reports French officers and German prisoners interviewed predicting that the war will soon end in victory for the Allies.

The greatest authority of all, David Lloyd George, who formerly repeatedly has pointed to the seriousness and doubtfulness of the outcome, in a thrilling speech on July 24 in the House of Commons stated that, "We are going to snatch victory in a few months from what appeared at one moment to be something that was invincible."

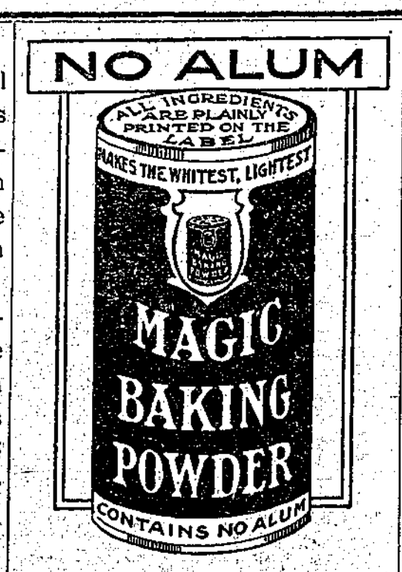
A Business Government.

The supporters of the Bowser government are in some respects the "easiest" lot it has been our misfortune to look upon in a long life. In their effort to keep a set of men in power who have proven themselves utterly inefficient and worse in managing the business of the province, they are shouting themselves hoarse praising the business acumen of Bowser, and they have the guilelessness (we think that must be the right word) to style his mode of administering our affairs "a business government." In the face of the present state of the province, surrounded as we are by as great a wealth of natural resources as found in one spot anywheres on the globe, it is not very farfetched to assume that given control of the richest business corporations we know of, the Standard Oil Co. or the Canadian Pacific Railway Co., this government would in a few years run such gigantic concerns into bankruptcy.

While from one point of view at least Mr. Bowser is a buccaneer of the boldest type, yet his followers want a continuation of his methods. We refer to his dual capacity as the attorney of great corporations on one hand and the attorney-general of the province on the other.



The inevitable result of his thus serving two masters has shown itself in the spoiling of the treasury of the province for the benefit of his clients. He has given his clients through his private practice first consideration over and above his duty to the province as its chief law officer.

That an intelligent public is able to condone practices so utterly at variance with ordinary rules of business is almost enough to make a person despair of the success of a government of the people.

But in the words of Abraham Lincoln: "You can fool all the people some time and some people all the time, but you cannot fool all the people all the time."

The people of British Columbia will on the 14th of September show their good common sense by turning out of power the brazenfaced outfit, that dares to defend and practice such unbusiness like methods.

Serving Two Masters.

Hon. W. J. Bowser, premier and attorney-general of the Province of British Columbia, while holding these the highest positions in the gift of the people (whom, by the way, he has not thought it necessary to consult as yet,) is as stated above, at the same time the attorney for several interests which have sought, are seeking, and have obtained from him as the member of the government concessions belonging to the people of the province.

He was solicitor for the Dominion Trust and, in his position as attorney-general, allowed it to evade the law to the great injury and ruin of many people.

He is solicitor for large land corporations whom he, as the chief officer of the province, allows to hold extensive areas of land without paying either principal or interest or taxes. He says they "must have a chance."

He is the solicitor of the Northern Construction Company, a Mackenzie & Mann corporation, and as attorney-general has allowed this company to ignore the express terms of the statute regulating the completion of the C. N. P. Railway.

He is the solicitor of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway Co. as well as for Pat Welch, one of the dominant partners in the company.

He, as the minister of finance, has paid out illegally to this company nearly $7,000,000 of trust funds held by him as a safeguard to compel the company to build the road according to the agreement made with the province.

And now he is using the credit of the province to let them have $6,000,000 more. And all this time the millionaires who are ostensibly building the railroad escape putting in a single dollar of their own into its construction.

Verily Mr. Bowser is conducting a business government!

It may be business for Mr. Bowser, but it is not the sort of business that is creditable to the intelligence of a self-governing people.

County Agents.

Nearly a year ago we devoted considerable space in our columns to the discussion of the system adopted in United States of engaging demonstration agents or county agents to teach the farmers the best way of carrying on different branches of farming.

Although after another year's trial this system has further proven its efficiency and popularity, its success has not caused a ripple of comment in this province as as far as we are aware.

Agricultural experts are beginning to realize the fact that although millions of dollars are being spent in this Dominion alone by the different governments for education on agricultural subjects, yet the effect upon the farmers as a class is altogether short of attaining the object sought for.

We are in receipt of a report published by the Dominion government on the Agricultural Instruction Act. This report states that it is "the experience of agriculture in United States that the way to teach farmers is to let the farmer do the work with his own hands on his own farm."

This is the up-to-date method of instructing the farmers, and we may say the only adequate way and, therefore, must sooner or later be adopted by all progressive governments.

The county agent idea has been accepted by everyone of the northern and western states of the neighboring republic and it is spreading rapidly.

The first county agent went to work in 1911; soon it became apparent that he was the man to fill a long felt want and other counties tried the experiment and were satisfied. Then the U. S. government took hold of the idea, passed acts, provided funds and organized the work for its extension wherever the farmers show their appreciation by a willingness to raise part of of the expense of maintaining an agent. The U. S. government furnishes to every county maintaining an agent, $900 per year towards his salary. The result of this movement is that now there are more than three hundred counties who have such agents.

British Columbia, which prides itself of being run by its government along progressive lines, should not be too proud to copy methods that have proven so highly successful wherever put in practice.

Our articles on agricultural subjects are prompted by our knowledge of the needs of this particular section of the country.

It is absolutely necessary that a new system be adopted here in order that the farmers be aroused from a lethargic state into which they have been gradually sinking. The Farmers' Institute which should be the means by which the farmers should be brought together for the exchange of views and experiences, the adoption of better methods and co-operative undertakings, has for some time been in a moribund state; exerting no influence for good whatever.

Our farmers are in need of a leader who can direct them how to deal with the many problems arising, from the clearing of the land to the marketing of the products, and how to utilize and conserve our resources.

WHICH IS BETTER FOR BRITISH COLUMBIA?

Government Control of the Liquor Traffic or Unregulated Importation of Unlimited Quantities of Liquor?

Which is the best for British Columbia? The regulation and control of the liquor traffic by the provincial and municipal authorities through a license system or the policy of unlimited, unregulated and unrestricted importation of liquor, with absolutely no general or local control, as proposed by the B. C. Prohibition Act?

The above is a fair statement of a question on which the electors of this province will cast a referendum vote on September 14th.

"That the Prohibition Act will not prohibit" is now generally admitted by electors (among them, many Prohibitionists) in all parts of the province, and, in the face of the inclusion of the "wide open" clause which states, "Nothing in this act shall be construed to interfere——(a) With the right of any person to import from without the province liquor for bona fide use in his private dwelling house," it will be impossible for any man to successfully contend that the measure will prohibit.

What then would be the result should the Prohibition Act be approved by the electors?

Just this, and nothing more. In place of the present method of selling liquor under government license (carrying with it the right of the authorities to regulate and control the business as well as amend these regulations according to existing conditions) it would mean that liquor might be imported in unlimited quantity, orders being placed as frequently as the purchaser desires, without the least control or regulation by the government—so long as the orders are placed outside the province. It means, for the sake of illustration, that it would be legal for the reader to place a standing order with any liquor dealer outside of British Columbia for a daily, weekly or monthly supply of liquor, the shipments being made regularly according to the order just as long as a monthly account for the purchase was met. Well may the reader ask, "Is this Prohibition?" and well may Prohibitionists, who are to an amazing extent ignorant of the real meaning of the measure, declare that such a condition is impossible under the Act. But it is possible, in fact, the Act, which has been approved by the Prohibition leaders, places special stress on this "wide open" privilege to import.

Clause 57 of the Prohibition Act (quoted above) is a "blue sky" clause. It places no limit on the amount of liquor which may be ordered at one time. It makes no stipulation as to the frequency with which such orders may be placed. It makes no provision whatever for government knowledge or regulation of the shipments.

Under such conditions, the reader is asked to judge for himself whether the Prohibition Act does not provide for all the liquor the citizens of British Columbia want coming into the province, without let or hindrance, regulation or control by the authorities.

Is such a condition for the best interests of the province? Is it wise to throw overboard the license laws in British Columbia, under which there has been built up a hotel system of the highest standard—to give up the right of strict regulation and control now exercised in general by the province and in particular by the local license commissions and to substitute for this tried plan legislation which allows the liquor to come into the province by importation just as freely as it is now distributed, but without government regulation or control to the slightest degree?

The reader is now asked to again consider the question with which this article opened:—"Which is best for British Columbia—the regulation and control of the liquor traffic by the provincial and municipal authorities through the existing license system or the policy of unlimited, unrestricted and unregulated importation of liquor, with absolutely no general or local control, as is proposed by the B. C. Prohibition Act?"

WHAT person so happy and contented as the prosperous farmer?

WHAT person so independent?

WHAT ambition more noble than to be a producer of the necessaries of life?

Bella Coola farmers are independent; they are strangers to hard times.

THE REASONS for this enviable condition of affairs are obvious to anyone who knows the Bella Coola Valley.

The land is fertile and needs little or no irrigation. The climate is mild and enjoyable; long warm summers with sufficient rainfall and mild winters make for excellent crops.

Large and small fruits, garden and field crops are grown to the best advantage. This fact was established at the Prince Rupert exhibition last year when farm produce from Bella Coola Valley carried away over twenty first prizes.

BELLA COOLA and the surrounding country possesses wonderful wealth in timber, as yet almost entirely undeveloped, and perhaps at no other point on the Northern Coast is there the same opportunity for a remunerative investment as in a saw mill at Bella Coola.

Production and Thrift

CANADA'S CALL FOR SERVICE AT HOME

Produce More and Save More The Empire needs food. If you are not in the fighting line you may be in the producing line. Labour is limited—all the more reason to do more than ever before. Grow food for the men who are fighting for you. The Allies need all the food that you can produce. Every little helps. You are responsible for your own work. If you cannot produce as much as you would like, produce all you can. Work with the right spirit. Put fighting energy into your effort and produce now when it counts. The more you produce the more you can save. Producing and saving are war-service.

Make Your Labour Efficient In war-time do not waste time and energy on unimportant and unprofitable work. Economize labour. Put off unproductive work till after the war, and, if possible, help in producing something needed now. Let us not waste labour. Canada needs it all. If possible help to feed the Allies. Make your backyard a productive garden. Cultivate it with a will. Make your labour count for as much as possible.

Do Not Waste Materials There should be no waste in war-time. Canada could pay the annual interest on her war expenditure out of what we waste on our farms, in our factories, in our homes. Every pound of food saved from waste is as good as a pound of increased production. The way for a nation to save is for every individual to save. France is strong to-day because of thrift in time of peace. The men and women of Great Britain are not only "doing" but are learning to "do without."

Spend Your Money Wisely Practise economy in the home by eliminating luxuries. Wasting our dollars here weakens our strength at the Front. Your savings will help Canada to finance the war. Save your money for the next Dominion War issue. There can be no better investment.

BE SOCIABLE.

One of the main reasons why our farmers show so much reluctance to working together is a distrust and suspicion of each other.

It is noticeable that the people who entertain the greatest distrust and uncharitableness towards their fellowmen generally consider themselves as shrewder and keener of judgment than those who are unable to share their views.

But it is nevertheless a fact that this lamentable distrust is a direct fruit of ignorance and unsociability. This weakness on the part of our farmers must be overcome before they will be able to co-operate. Anything that will bring the farmers together will tend to remove this disability. When we meet often we learn to like each other better.
