OUTLINES OF CURRENT EVENTS

The British elections are held on the installment plan.

Pomologically speaking the imprisoned suffragettes might be classified as canned peaches.

After serving another 23 days the case of Time vs. 1910 will be struck from the calendar.

On motion of Dr. Cook, the general belief that he never reached the North Pole is now made unanimous.

Moving picture films of the "action" scenes at Ottawa would be censored as incentives to crime and profanity.

In order to get home in time to help their wives do their Christmas shopping early the senate has adjourned until after the holidays.

Bishop DuMoulin, of Niagra, suggests two schemes to suppress the militant suffragettes—turning on the hose, and liberating a bag full of mice.

Owing to the numerous heated debates in the House of Commons the services of a number of stokers in the furnace room can be dispensed with.

The curate in the East who asked his congregation to sing hymn 589, "Little Drops of Water" and to put a little more spirit into it, was an unconscious humorist.

Late dispatches indicate that the Mexican revolutionists are getting their second wind, but President Diaz,s lariat treatment has a discouraging effect on any prolonged deep breathing exersises.

Sir Thos. Shaughnessy places the operating cost of the proposed new transcontinental train from Toronto to Vancouver at $5000 a trip. It is reported that the service will be inaugurated in the spring.

Anatomical assayists estimate that the human body contains a pound of iron. In the cheek lode brass is visible on the surface and silver in the tongue formation. With a heavy deposit of free milling gold in the corner pocket consideration of the baser metals is merely a matter of analytical interest.

John F. Donahoe of Lynn, Mass., for 12 years a confidential clerk in the employ of Thomas W. Lawson, the financier, committed suicide by jumping in front of an electric train in the Washington street tunnel. The cause of his act is unknown.

China May Buy Silver Mine

Mr. Wang, Chinese consul general for Canada, returned recently from a visit to the silver mines of the Cobalt district very much pleased with what he saw in the mining country. As a result of his visit it is more than probable that negotiations will be opened up by some Chinese capitalists and several of the mine owners of Cobalt for the purpose of securing a source of silver for the Chinese coinage. China consumes annually a great amount of silver, and having to purchase in the open market is sometimes forced to pay the highest prices for raw material. Some months ago Abe Hallow of Cobalt conceived the idea of suggesting to the Chinese government the purchase of a producing mine in Cobalt large enough to supply their coinage wants, and a letter was forwarded to the emperor a few weeks later. A reply came pointing out that the government is not officially at this time ready for such a deal but that the matter had been laid before some of the foremost capitalists of the country. They decided to ask Mr. Wang to visit the mines and report to them.

Mr. Brodeur Defends Navy

St John's, Que. A definite opening was given by the government to a campaign throughout this Province to oppose the Bouressa anti-naval propaganda. Hon. L. P. Brodeur was the main speaker, and made a fighting speech, full of his old time vim, in which he declared that he had prepared most of the naval bill, and regarded it as the best and most important measure presented to Parliament during the Laurier regime. He declared that there were three policies before the country—the direct contribution idea of the Conservatives, the do-nothing policy of the Bourassaites, and the project of giving the Dominion a navy of its own, as provided by the government measures. This, he said, meant that the ships would be built in the Dominion, and controlled by the Canadian government. There were about 1,500 people at the meeting, and although there was a little heckling the speakers were all well received.

Good Advice.

The following advice, given by the Vancouver Mail, is well worth noting: If you are a member of the Board of Trade or the Civic Improvement League, or a regiment, or a church, or a fraternal lodge, be an active member. Don't put your name down and put your money up and then give it no further thought. Don't join unless you are willing to help by ready and active service. Don't be a drone or a figurehead; don't be a kicker and a knocker; do something to advance its objects. Work on a committee and work hard. If you are a member of the Board of Trade, be an active member: shoulder some of the responsibilities of membership. Paying your fees helps of course, but pay them promptly and then place yourself and services at the disposal of council and executive and work for the general good.

Two Demonstrations.

The recent Crippen case has drawn the attention of the civilized world to at least two considerations, which rise above a mere criminal procedure and, in a measure, are diametrical.

One is the tremenduous advantage to a state or nation of sweeping and highly intelligent criminal processes. Not only are the English laws and criminal practice far more direct and exexpeditious than those of America, but the administration of criminal justice is on a much higher plane. In England criminal procedure lacks both the maudlin sentiment and the technical trickery which are so conspicuous in this country, and from the historic case of Eugene Aram down to that of Dr. Crippen, the administration of justice in England has not only been sweeping and sure, but in the ninety-ninth part, it has been just.

The other consideration is the barberity and utter inadequacy of capital punishment. We have long since learned to look with horror upon the awful carnage of the French Revolution, which amounted to nothing more than modern capital punishment exaggerated to national proportions and inflamed by the mob element. The taking of human life is justified by neither divine nor human considerations. Life imprisonment and hard labor are far greater punishments than death and far more just. For the reason that, in addition to horror which must possess any rightly ordered mind at the taking of human life, either judicially or otherwise, there remains under the more just punishment the opportunity for correction if the sentence should ever prove to have been wrong.

The mere possibility of the discovery of Belle Elmore Crippen is proof enough of this, and while it may not be possible, instances have occurred within the knowledge of almost every one where deathbed confessions or something else revealed the awful fact that the wrong man had been executed.

Young Girl's Heroism

A dramatic story of the heroism of the thirteen-year old daughter of a settler near Clementson on the American side of Rainy River. J. A. Hyer, mail carrier between Beaudette, Minn., and Clementson, was carrying half a ton of mail on a dog sled down the river when the whole outfit went through the ice. Hyer found the ice breaking every time he got hold of the edge, but his cries attracted Lizzie Alloway, who rushed down to the river, and lying down on the thin ice, got hold of Hyer's coat collar. She clung to him for twenty minutes, even after the water came over the ice and almost covered her. Hyer pleaded with her to let go and leave him, as he was convinced both would drown, but their cries brought three men, who happened to be near, and they dragged the girl over the ice, still clinging to Hyer, who was but all unconsicious. All the mail, including a sack of registered letters, went to the bottom of the river and has not yet been recovered.

Alien Labor.

Members of the city hotel and restaurant employees union of Montreal met recently, drew up and adopted resolutions calling upon the minister of labor to investigate the importation of alien labor into this country, especially the importation of alien cooks and waiters. They further asked for the enforcement of the alien labor law as a protection for them as Canadian workingmen.

UNION LABEL

Friday, December 9 1910

The outlook for Greenwood in the year 1911 is far better than in any preceding year in the last decade. The various mining properties surrounding the town are taking on new life and with the advent of spring many of them will be conveying ore to the smelter. Great encouragement is expressed by the business men, and a general all-round prosperous year is anticipated.

Our neighbor to the south—Midway—is destined to become a town of considerable proportions. Every indication points in this direction. The Kettle Valley railroad building from this point, the opening up of nearby coal mines, and her ideal location almost insures her future greatness.

The mutton-head who traveled through Canada as a correspondent of "John Bull," a London publication, and who said Canada had seven months' winter with the thremometer standing at 50 degrees below zero, and that all a man could do was to think and go mad, ought to have spent a portion of his time this season in the Boundary district. Up to the present time the weather has been mild and invigorating, and no such conditions prevail in this part of Canada as stated in the London publication

Board of Control

Speaking before the Union of Manitoba Municipalities, Hon. G. R. Coldwell, of the Manitoba government, took exception to the municipal government of cities by the board of control system. He stated that it had failed in Toronto and was due to fail in Winipeg.

It had been Mr. Coldwell's experience that greater difficulties were encountered in the handling of the affairs of the town and cities than of the rural municipalities. Changes came more rapidly and there were so many adverse conditions to contend with. A vital question of today was the management of the affairs of the towns and cities. The board of control system had failed in Toronto, and he felt that it would shortly fail in Winnipeg. Government by commission was another system that had been tried by a couple of cities; the scheme having been originated in Galveston, Texas, and tried in one other large city. It might be found to work satisfactorily in a large city if the proper men could be secured, but he did not think it suitable for small cities.

One great fault at present is the lack of continuity in the handling of municipal affairs. Many cities today were undertaking large schemes of development, or were embarking on industries which required careful management for a long term of years by competent men. He instanced the Winnipeg power development. The trouble came in the electing mayor and council each year, and the resulting change in the make-up of the management. It took the new men considerable time to learn all the details of the work. In some countries the mayor was elected for a long term of years, six or more years, and the term of the council was three or four years. This had been found to be more successful. The electorate should be more careful in the selection of men.

A Good Thing

At the present time lectures in first aid to the injured are being given by physicians to the C. P. R. employees and to the Boy Scouts. The provincial government has also established a mine rescue station in the Pass and is establishing others at which instruction will be given to the miners.

All of this must result in a large number of persons receiving instruction of a very valuable sort, and some of them—perhaps many of them—are certain to be able by means of this to render indespensable service at critical times, and to be of much use in saving life or limb or in relieving suffering.

Such works is one of the good signs of the times. It is a great thing that this instruction should be so widely extended and it will probably lead before many years to its being made almost universal.

Canadian Population

Mr. McPhail, of the Canadian Census Bureau, thinks we have 8,000-000 in the Dominion. A man of 23 years, with his wife of 22 years left Montreal for Alberta. They had with them ten children, all their own five pair of twins born within six years. If this sort of thing keeps up we will soon have a hundred million Canadians. The proud father told a newspaper reporter that they were going west where there was plenty of room. They need it.

"IT HEALED MY SORES WHEN ALL ELSE HAD FAILED!"

This is what Mr. Edward Bingham, of 118 Brant Ave., Brantford, says of Zam-Buk. After an attack of typhoid fever, ulcers broke out on his right foot and ankle. "The foot and leg were terribly inflamed," he says, "and the pain was very acute. I could not wear boot or shoe, and could not move about at all! I used all kinds of lotions, salves and ointments, yet nothing seemed able to heal the ulcers until Zam-Buk was tried.

"The very first application of Zam-Buk relieved the intense pain, and as I kept on using Zam-Buk the ulcers began to look healthier and were less painful.

"By use of this healing balm the discharging was reduced and healing commenced. After a few weeks' treatment, the swelling and inflammation were banished, and the sores were entirely healed. I am so grateful for my cure through Zam-Buk that I consider it my duty to let others know of the merits of this great balm."

What Zam-Buk should be used for.

Zam-Buk will be found a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bites, eczema, blood poison, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, eczema, chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises, and skin injuries of all kinds easily. The generous firebox is built so that the water heats very rapidly as it passes through the water front, and gives a plentiful supply. One bath usually empties the boiler heated by an ordinary range with the result that the rest of the family must wait for more water to heat. Not so with the boiler attached to the water front of a

MINES AND MINING

The British Columbia Copper Co.'s net earnings in October were approximately 17,500, which compares with 27,600 in September. The falling off in October is understood to have resulted from a precipitation of dirt into the ore at the Mother Lode mine in the closing days of the month.

When operated to their full capacity, the enlarged furnaces should give a monthly output of a million pounds of copper.

The Mayflovr, according to report, is going ahead. The lead in the shaft has widened out to about 30 inches of almost solid galena. So pleased is the company that another shift of three men is to be put on to work at night. The shaft is over 55 feet deep, and as soon as it reaches 60 feet they will commence stoping.

There are the best of reasons for believing that there will be a large amount of mining done in Southeast Kootenay as soon as the Kootenay Central railway is completed.

Australia has another remarkable gold discovery to record. At Kayarra fifty ounces to the ton are being produced, and the boom is steadily growing. British capital is being attracted, and still further development may be looked for.

F. Keffer, mining engineer of the B. C. Copper Co., of Greenwood, arrived in Princeton Saturday last, leaving on the following day with E. F. Voigt for Copper Mountain. It is understood that Mr. Keffer is especially engaged to make final report on Voigt's Camp, which is under negotiation of sale by a large and well known mining firm. It is some five years since Mr. Keffer was here, then directing operations at the Sunset, under bond to the B. C. Copper Co. He has been with the company for some fifteen years, and knows the Boundary and Similkameen mining district better than any other mining engineer. Mr. Keffer says that copper mining is sluggish, the low prices being responsible for this condition. It is his, and a general expectation, that copper will regain its old quotations and revive the stagnant condition of the market shortly.—Princeton Star.

R. L. Reinecke of the Canadian Geological Survey, has returned to Ottawa from his work on the West Fork Kettle River, B. C.

The Greenwood smelter of the B. C. Copper Co. is now producing copper at the rate of 100,000 lbs. per month, and gold and silver valued at 75,000 dollars.

Shipments of ore from the Boundary district for month ending Nov. 12: Granby mines, 19,370 tons; Jackpot, 350 tons; Mother Lode, 7,160 tons; Number Seven, 75 tons; Rawhide, 3,200; Snowshoe, 2,990.

The management of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal company has closed down the south side of the creek temporairly which reduces the daily output 3000 tons.

The Boston Commercial has the following: We can state from positive knowledge that plans for a merger of the leading copper producing companies of the United States, and which will probably include the big mines of Canada, Mexico, South America, and possibly the Rio Tinto in Spain, are being put in shape, and the negotiations of terms and prices will begin very soon. The world's leading financier is interested, and undoubtedly the combination will be brought about under his direction. On the present price of copper the world's producers are showing an average net profit of between three and four cents per pound on their output.

Before you take your departure from Greenwood subscribe for your home paper, $1 for six months, or $2 a year. You will find it full of interest to you wherever you are.

1000 Successful Men

"I have on my desk a list of 1000 successful men of this nation," writes an investigator in the Juvenile Court Record. "By 'successful' I do not mean mere money-makers, but men who have given us new conceptions of steam, electricity, construction work, education, art, etc.

"Two hundred started as farmers' sons.

"Two hundred started as messenger boys.

"Two hundred were newsboys.

"One hundred were printers' apprenteces.

"One hundred were apprenticed in manufactories.

"Fifty began at the boitom of railway work.

"Fifty, only fifty, had wealthy parents.

JACOB GOULD SCHURMAN
The President of Cornell University

When Jacob Gould Schurman was a boy on his father's backwoods farm on Prince Edward Island, where he was born in 1854, educational advantages were scant in quality and costly in time and energy. Books were few, the one newspaper that connected the family with the outside world was but a provincial weekly, and the district school was taught by one teacher who gave the staple things of education, with no fancy dishes of the modern class.

When Jacob was thirteen he had to become self-supporting, and secured a clerkship of the general utility type in a country store at thirty dollars a year and his board and washing. In his second year he received sixty dollars, and with this coming of wealth came a longing for a better education.

In two years he had saved eighty dollars and with this as a bulwark against starvation he attended the village high school, studied voraciously day and night and entered a competitive examination for a scholarship at Prince of Wales College at Charlottetown, on the island. He won the scholarship of sixty dollars and went to the college. Then after a year of teaching he went to Acadia College, where his appetite for prize-winning became insatiable. He won a scholarship of $500 a year for three years offered by the University of London, followed by his winning the traveling fellowship of the Hibbert Society, and other prizes, scholarships and similar rewards, with predestined certainty and monotonous iteration.

He studied in London, Paris, Edinburgh, Berlin, Göttingen, and half a dozen other cities, and when six or seven nations had given him all they could supply but not nearly all he could absorb, he returned to Canada as professor in one of the colleges.

In 1885, Andrew D. White recommended him to Cornell, and the year following, at the age of thirty-two, he became head of the Department of Philosophy; in 1891 was made Dean of the Sage School of Philosophy, and in 1892 he received the degree of Doctor of Laws from Edinburgh University and became President of Cornell, being the only man even considered for a moment for the position.

Dr. Schurman is remarkable as a lecturer, broad and liberal as a teacher, searching for truth with his students rather than giving them his opinions as finalities; sincere and thorough as an investigator; clear, eloquent and effective as an orator; simple and direct as an author; and as a man, popular, magnetic, sympathetic, sterling and broad-gauge.

Entered according to Act of the Parliament of Canada, in the year 1904, by W. C. Mack, at the Department of Agriculture.

MAGNET
Wood Furnace

The McClary Magnet Wood Furnace has a fire-box opening that admits the largest chunks of wood with ease—wide, deep, generous in size as the Magnet is in quality of material and workmanship. The wide opening saves you work, because you can use wood that you would have to saw and split to get through the narrow, shallow fire-box openings of ordinary wood furnaces.

Instead of making the fuel fit the door, the Magnet door is made to fit the fuel.

It is just as easy to get the ashes out of a Magnet as it is to put fuel in; because the opening of the ashpit is just as generous as the fire-box opening. You can get at the farthest corner and remove the ashes with ease and speed—no turning and twisting; no trouble nor inconvenience. These two advantages are good reasons why you ought to use a Magnet. The McClary agent in the nearest town will welcome the chance to give you many more. Write to the nearest McClary branch for booklet.

Protect Your Town

Many of the weekly country papers throughout the West are doing a good work in educating the consumer as to the benefit of trading at home, in their own town or village. The Raymond Hustler in a recent issue says: "Protect your own town and thereby show that you are in favor of protection. If protection is good for the nation it is good for the town. As townspeople we should favor our town above every other as the growth and development of it is what will enhance the value of all property in and about it. Then buy your dry goods, groceries, hardware, furniture, etc. at home; have your printing, your blacksmithing, your shoemaking done at home. Patronize home in every instance that you can. The success of our merchants and mechanics means new business houses and residences, additional demands for labor of various kinds. To the farmer a first-class town affords a better market for his grain, a better trading point and such a town is bound to increase the value of his land. Unquestionably 'in union there is strength.' Let us protect our town.

Aerial Service.

Aerial liners capable of carrying 20 passengers and a crew will be plying the airways between Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington within six months, according to Chas. Glidden, president of the Aerial Navigation company.

Plans have been drawn for the construction of a great dirigible, and it is predicted that the first American passenger car will be considerably larger than the gas bags built and floated by Count Zeppelin.

Chief Engineer Van Inman, of Walter Wellman's ill-fated balloon America, has charge of the work of construction for the Aerial Navigation company. It is likely that he will be in charge of the first liner to leave on a journey over the 450-mile air lanes.

The cost of the tickets for a trip has not yet been announced.

Mother.

Go back tonight in memory to the old home, far East, far West—across the seas maybe, and take a peep at mother. There in the old home she's waiting to greet us on our return from the office, shop or the busy streets. Supper is over; the dishes are washed. Mother picks up the piece of work laid down when supper was announced. Adjusting her glasses, she bends low to see the stitches are right, and proceeds in silence. Brother and sisters are there. They take up their books to read, and stretch out for a lazy evening. Perhaps it is the first evening they have all been home in many. A busy day at the office or in the shop makes the quiet rest needful. They do not want to be disturbed. Mother has been alone all day, with nobody about with whom she could talk And she wants to talk now. A question or two is asked, but, receiving only a disinterested yawn for an answer, she concludes to not say any more, and silently works on.

A sigh from the heart tells of a load there, but she chokes it back and bends closer to her work. Her thoughts turn to the son or daughter far east, far west—across the seas maybe—you and I. Green fields are always over there. Angelic daughters and affectionate son are too. If she could only have one of them by her side! The word of love and confidence that her ears have so long wanted to hear, would in love be spoken, and the tears of anguish now suppressed would give place to tears of joy. Yes, indeed!
