WELCOMING OF NEW YEAR IN OLD SCOTLAND

Why Joy Reigns from John o'Groat's to the Borderland.

SOME ANCIENT CUSTOMS

How the First Day of the Year is Celebrated by Scotchmen.

There is one day in the year on which Scottish exiles have a bad attack of homesickness. Whether it be the newly landed native or the oldtimer, it is the same. The heart craves for the old land, for the old friends, for the old associations and the old customs.

Such a time is New Year's Day, that day celebrated by Scotchmen all the world over. It is a day when the sordid money making desires fall from the race when Scotchmen and Scotchwomen become imbued with the milk of human kindness, and when in every town and hamlet is to be found the hearty handclasp and the equally hearty wish of "A guid New Year."

Those who are six thousand miles from the old homestead try to keep the day with socials and dances, but it lacks the enthusiasm of the old country. They are like strangers in a strange land, and their spirits seem easily depressed. But what a difference at home. There is no stilted New Year in Scotland; all is warm hearted and kindly. Friends meet friends, greetings are sent across the seas to old acquaintences, and when the various families sit down to enjoy the good things, whether they be rich or poor, all are happy, and each and all remember the friends and acquaintences, with them in spirit, though apart and divided from the old country by thousands of miles.

Imagine ourselves in Scotland on the last day of the year. The time is morning, and in various towns are to be found tiny tots out on a "cake hunt." This is a custom which goes back for ages. Children visit all the shops in town, and each receive their hogmanay "cakes" in the shape of apples, oranges, cakes and other things dear to the children's hearts. "Begging," you say. Oh, no; not that. Rich and poor seek cakes; they are not beggars and their parents might be able to buy up the shopkeepers who give the cakes. It is custom; aye, and an old one.

In the meantime the busy housewife has been doing her shopping. Current loaves, shortbread, whiskey or temperance drinks, as inclination decides, are bought and stored away. Houses are cleaned till they are spotless, and after that stage are cleaned once more. New curtains grace the windows, and it is night before the tired matrons are satisfied with their labors.

The clang of the factory bell or the shrill sound of its whistle send out excited groups of lads and lassies, who scurry home to don their Sunday clothes, for it is "Auld Year's Nicht," when everyone must be braw. The streets are gradually becoming brisker. Crowds begin to promenade the principal thoroughfares; everywhere is heard laughing and chaffing. Toy trumpets rackets and drums add to the din. Any other night such uproar would mean a compulsory visit to the magistrate, but this is "Auld Year's Nicht," and policemen are blind and deaf to everything except actual crime, and there is none of that.

As night approaches the crowds become more dense, till, when but a few minutes are left of the old year, the rally takes place round the city or town hall, or, as in Edinburgh, at the old Tron Kirk, the clock of which has looked down upon many such scenes. Nearer and nearer creep the hands of the clock. Now it wants but five minutes of midnight. But surely the hands are moving very slowly, or is it but the impatience of the crowd? Nearer the big hand creeps—watch it closely. Two minutes, one minute, then boom! goes the first stroke of the midnight hour.

and from thousands of throats goes out a cheer, another, and another. Someone strikes up the only tune known to tradition, and from a thousand or more voices comes the refrain:

"A guid New Year tae ane and a'
And mony may ye see;
And during a' the years tae come
Still happy may ye be."

In ten minutes the crowd has melted away. To bed? Oh, no. Follow that group of young fellows. They are walking as if with a purpose in view. Up one street, down another, till suddenly a bullseye lantern is flashed on them and a policeman scans the group. "Happy New Year, sergeant," shouts one of the group. "Same to you," answers back the guardian of the law and order as he starts to move away. "Na, na, sairgent; nane o' that. Take a drink."

It is not in the police rules, but what of that? It is New Years morning, and the hardest hearted chief constable must see nothing at this time. So the sergeant has his drink, and goes his way with a warmer heart than is provided to him by regulations. While we are retailing this side light our party has reached its destination. A loud bang at the door brings out the tenant, fully dressed. "Happy New Year, Tam," "Same tae yersels," is the smiling reply. Then, "Come awa in." The party does so, and the laughing wife repeats the husband's salutation. It is a great honor to be "first fit," and equally unlucky to come empty handed. But our friends have the bottle, and the males have a glass all round, flavored by the good wife's shortbread, while the children, wakened from sleep, sit up in bed interested little spectators of the midnight jolity. Another drink, this time the tenant's bottle, and off the party goes to carry out the "first fitting" program.

As 2 o'clock approaches the streets seem also to be infected with the New Year's festivities and, to our party's amazement, the sidewalks start to reel. It is now time for home, and as they zig-zag along, Sandy's legs rebel, and he sits down suddenly. Another bullseye flash and the sergeant looms into sight. He laughs as he sees Sandy has collapsed. "Come on, Sandy; I'll see ye hame." He does so, and Sandy sleeps the sleep of the just after his labors.

On New Year's Day the streets are crowded. Handshaking and good wishes are seen and heard at every corner. Dull care finds no adherents on New Year's Day. Some go off to the city pantomimes, others to see foot races, while a third section make a round of visits to friends. So the day passes all too quickly. But in a house an aged man and woman sit musing.

"Twa years noo since Tam went tae Canada. He micht hae written at New Year time, it only a post caird." And the old hearts are sad, and the old eyes fill, and away in far-off Canada Tam forgets that his mother and father are hungering for a letter. He does not mean to be unkind; he is merely "thochtless," but his want of thought is breaking two old hearts. Every day an old man looks to the "postie" for a letter which cometh not.

FAMOUS PEOPLE
BY FANNIE M. LOTHROP

MAY IRWIN

Canada's Favorite Comedienne.

One of the leading comediennes of the American stage to-day, is May Irwin, a daughter of Canada. In these days of Ibsen plays with their dull dreary pessimism; of problem plays portraying the morbid pathology of the emotions; of society plays with their whipped cream of forced epigram on the pulpy base of a thin plot; and of melodrama that puts a dime novel into the dress-suit of respectability, it is a relief to turn to something that gives us a hearty wholesome laugh and leaves no bad flavor in the mouth, no later regret. Laughter is one of the safety valves of civilization, it is a needed vent in an age of strenuous living; and a genuine apostle of laughter is May Irwin.

Her power is her personality, her naturalness, her spontaneity; her bubbling contagious good spirits establishing a telepathic sympathy with her audience which creates a continuous ripple of fun and laughter that defies analysis.

The daughter of Robert E. Campbell, Miss Irwin acknowledges that she was born in 1862—"tho' she doesn't look it" of course—in Whitby, Ont., where she spent her early girlhood. At the age of eight she was a soprano in the church choir of her native village and sang at every opportunity and with the slightest provocation, as naturally as a bird sings,—without a Marchesi training. At thirteen the death of her father threw upon her and her sister Flora the duty of money-making, and they made their debut as singers in Buffalo, N.Y. They were billed as the "Irwin Sisters," unknown to them, and accepted the name. They sang "Sweet Genevieve" for their first song; Flora fainted after it was over but May valiently faced the audience for an encore with the coolness of a veteran.

Engagements in other cities followed quickly on the western circuit, and their third season found them at Tony Pastor's in New York at eighty dollars a week. Seven years of this engagement where improvising was often necessary and the rôles ranged from a babe in arms to a grandmother, gave Miss Irwin a confidence that has never forsaken her, despite her statement that she cannot take her initial cue at any performance without a little qualm of uncertainty and fear of the audience. Augustin Daly who had a keen eye for new talent, gave her an excellent post-graduate course of four years in his theatre, which was a splendid training school, and prepared her for her later successes. At the age of sixteen she married Frederick W. Keller who died eight years later leaving her with two sons—her loving comrades and the pride of her life.

Entered according to Act of the Parliament of Canada, in the year 1905, by W. C. Mack, at the Department of Agriculture

St. Jude's S. S. Xmas Tree

December 29th, 1910, will long be remembered by the scholars of this school as a day of fun and enjoyment. Kind friends contributed most liberally towards the treat and the tree was well stocked with beautiful and valuable gifts, and when lighted up presented a splendid appearance with its glittering decorations.

The children and their adult friends assembled at the hall at 7 p. m., and the former soon settled down to various games. Speculation was rife as to whether Santa Clause would be able to reach Greenwood, owing to the deep snow, but he very kindly despatched a telegram from the North Pole when he started. All seems to have gone well with him until he reached Eholt, from whence he sent another message to say he had lost some of his reindeer, and would be somewhat late, as he would have to complete his journey by hand-car. However, he arrived before the company expected him, complaining a bit of the severe cold. He shook hands with many of the children and distributed gifts from the tree. All seemed to have a present to receive at his hands, including the teachers and the vicar and his wife.

Santa Claus himself was not forgotten; for Evelyn Tye handed him something very especial, which he graciously accepted.

The vicar thanked him for coming and called for three cheers. There certainly was no mistake about the heartiness of the demonstration. After this crackers were pulled, refreshments handed round and some more good games indulged in, and at 9:30 a verse of "God Save the King" was sung, and the children dispersed to talk over the fun for many a day. They wish to thank all their kind friends for the treat, which they sincerely hope may be repeated another Christmas.

Holmes for Mayor.

To the Electors of the City of Greenwood, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Having decided to run for the office of Mayor of the city of Greenwood for the coming year, my sole object will be to devote all the time I possibly can to the interests of the city.

The gentlemen below have kindly consented to run for Aldermen:

W. B. Flemming,	F. W. Mclaine

And we can assure you if elected our policy will be one of progress, realizing the needs of our city, such as recreation grounds, music, sports, attractions to bring into our city visitors and those working in the surrounding camps. Mr. McBride's Forecast.

Premier McBride's forecast of the amount of capital to be expended in this province during the next four years is striking indeed. It becomes still more impressive when considered in connection with two outstanding facts.

All the expenditure is of a productive nature. The railways to be constructed will when completed employ an army of men in their operation and maintenance, and will distribute yearly large sums of money in payment of wages and for supplies.

Railways and provincial highways alike will bring into existence industries of all sorts, which for their success require only the transportation facilities now to be provided.

An immense aggregate amount of capital and energy will, as a result of the construction of transportation facilities, be applied to the development of natural resources in this province. New mines will be worked, new timber areas opened up, new agriculture areas settled, new manufactures established. New towns and cities will spring up and existing towns and cities will expand.

Although Mr. McBride does not so much as hint at it, the fact remains that all this expenditure is the direct result of the work he has done for the province in establishing stable government, and in framing and carrying out a large and constructive policy of advancement. But for the part Mr. McBride has played in the history of this province there would be a different story to tell today.

Three communicants have died and 29 others are seriously ill as a result of a mistake made by an elder of the Lutheran church in the Peterhof district, Russia, who filled a communion cup with a mixture of sulphurated chromate instead of wine.

Six thousand Bibles are to be placed in the hotel bedrooms of Chicago. Certainly Chicago is in need of something to make it better. Over 600 murders occurred in that city last year with but 35 convictions.

The Duke of Argyle says that Canada is a mixture of Scotland and Heaven. Perhaps he was referring to the admixture of evil and good in the life of the country. But a canny Scot says that in common parlance the better place is usually mentioned first.

What should and what should not go into the columns of a newspaper is sometimes a pretty hard matter for even a veteran editor to decide, and yet the man who has spent his entire life in a printing office ought to be a better judge than the man who has no knowledge of the business whatever.

While returns are not yet complete it is estimated at the department of immigration that the total arrivals in Canada for the year 1910 have been approximately 350,000, of whom 150,000 came from the United States. It is estimated that the immigration during the next twelve months will touch the half million mark.

Impecunious young men who terrify their girl friends with fairy stories about the danger of eating ice cream, are not supported by the results of the official analysis made at Ottawa. Out of 125 samples 77 were found to be absolutely pure, and the rest were so close to the required standard that they could be eaten from a spoon or imbibed through a straw with perfect safety.

There is consternation in high society circles in Ottawa over the rumor that the Duke of Connaught is not likely to be the next occupant of the vice-regal chair. Visions of a court presided over by a prince of the royal blood have been rudely dispelled and the presentation courtesy before an ordinary peer will have no more animation than a calesthenic exercise at a physical culture school.

Mr. Martin Schuman of New York possesses qualities that characterize eminent diplomats and successful financiers. The members of his family had long pleaded with him to undergo an operation for appendicitis, but he invariably refused on the ground of expense. Finally they consented to sign a written document releasing him from all obligations for Christmas presents, and he observed the holiday by having his internal superfluity surgically eliminated, the estimated cost of the holiday gifts exceeding the fee of the operation.

In a recent lecture at Washington Dr. Wiley said he believed that the earth was slowly cooling and that the people of the future must freeze. There is no immediate cause for alarm as the doctor assures us that the frigid finale is not likely to transpire for a million years. However, there is an economic question involved, as the chilling process will mean an increased appropriation for coal.

Addressing the Boy Scouts at Toronto Earl Grey deplored the lack of manners displayed by many of the pupils of the schools throughout the Dominion who appear to consider civility an evidence of servility. The Governor-Generals impression has probably been formed from observations in Ottawa where evil communications corrupt good manners.

The millenium of peace and good will is not yet in sight. The year 1911 opens under conditions that must cause the advocates of universal peace much concern. Insurrections in Mexico and Honduras; threats of revolution in Spain; the fate of the new Republic of Portugal in doubt; discontent in Greece; Korea sullen and discontented; China and Japan at daggers' points; Britain and Germany watchful and suspicious; the United States and Japan sparring for wind; Russ dormant but preparing; Turkey full of plots and assassinations; Austria only awaiting the death of the aged Emperor; and riots and strikes disturbing the peace of France. In no country under the sun does tranquility and prosperity prevail to a greater extent than the fair land we have the fortune to live in—British Columbia.

Death of Early Settler.

The death of Frank Xavier Richter at Victoria on Christmas day removes one of the first settlers in the Similkameen valley and one who was probably most identified with its history and development. He had reached the allotted three score and ten years, at last passing away from the effects of heart trouble. He was on his way to California accompanied by his wife but was taken seriously ill at Victoria, from which he never rallied. Deceased was married twice and leaves a large family. His home at Keremeos consisted of a large estate of medow and orchard, also large herds of cattle and sheep and bands of horses. Land held by the deceased in the vicinity of Princeton is valuable. The estimated value of the whole estate is a little more than a million dollars.

If you are a subscriber of the Times and not paid up, $2.00 from you would be very acceptable.

MINES AND MINING

In October the payroll of the Crow's Nest Past Coal Company was $17,000.

The Snowstorm mine at Mullan, Idaho, is shipping ore to the Granby smelter,

The Hedley Mining Co. has contracted with the Princton Coal Co. for ten thousand tons of coal.

During the winter the mines adjacent to Stewart will employ 250 men.

From Hosmere 250 tons each of coal and coke are being shipped daily.

A night school has been opened at Ladysmith to teach the coal miners.

The Great Northern has put on two additional ore trains between Phoenix and Grand Forks.

There are 70 men working at the Lone Pine Surprise mine at Republic.

The Sullivan mine in East Kootenay is shipping 100 tons of ore to the Trail smelter.

The demand for pig lead is now so great in Canada that the Trail Smelter cannot supply the demand.

An electric hoist will be installed at the Combination property near Greenwood, and in the meantime work has been suspended.

The past year in the mining industry in British Columbia has been a good one. Great progress has been made and an output of increased value will be the result.

That the copper industry is in better control than ever before is generally believed, and there is a better working basis on which to keep the output within the demands of consumption.

Every person will be pleased to know that E. F. Voigt has very favorable prospects for closing a deal for his mining property on Copper mountain, says the Similkameen Star of the 30th ult. When it is remembered that he has lived with his family for about a dozen years on isolated Copper mountain it will be admitted that a liberal reward is due. Mr. Voight has done a herculean work in proving so large a property as Voigt's camp. It all tends to establish the well known reputation of Copper mountain and will make for the general good of the country. No details of the proposed turnover have been made public, but it is said that a smelter is in the agreement.

ROCK CREEK NOTES.

The year 1910 has been a record year for prosperity and improvements in the Rock Creek district. The following new buildings have been erected during the past year:

Blacksmith shop, butcher shop and residence, barber shop and pool room, school house for lower Rock Creek school, residence on Mr. Goodman's orchard, residence for Commander Lewis, residence for Major Anderson.

There is to be considerable building activity in the spring, and will equal if not surpass that of 1910. Orders are out for the erection of an Episcopal church. Three new houses and three barns for the inhabitants of the irrigated fruit lands will be erected in the near future.

Work on the Kettle River Valley railway is now in full swing, and before long Rock Creek will be in direct communication by railroad with all the big western cities.

The Kettle River Valley Fruit Lands Co., Ltd., report the sale of two different lots since the 1st of November last, and are hopeful of making a number of sales early in the spring.

The ranchers on Nicholson creek and others are endeavoring to get the government's sanction for another bridge over the Kettle river at a point near Mr. Hopper's ranch.

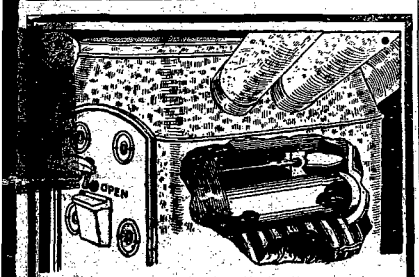
There was a jolly gathering at the lower Rock Creek school on the evening of the 23d, when Santa Claus ably aided by Mr. J. R. Jackson (M. P. P.,) distributed prizes and presents to the numerous children of the district.

A touring theatrical troupe recently gave a very creditable performance at Larsen's hall.

The busiests and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They do the work when-ever you require their aid. These tablets change weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, gloominess into joyousness. Their action is so gentle one don't realize they have taken a purgative. Sold by all druggists and dealers.

A Frank Opinion.

Commander Sims of the U. S. navy was recently entertained in London, and in the course of a speech at a banquet declared that the United States would spend their last dollar and last drop of blood in aiding the British empire were it menaced. Despite the commander's assurance that he voiced only his personal opinion, President Taft has ordered an inquiry into the matter.



The Damper Lever of a
MAGNET

is where it ought to be—at the front, readily reached without groping in the dark or taking unnecessary steps. A turn of the lever instantly changes the draft so the fire is quickened or checked, at will. Turned on, McClary's Magnet Wood Furnace produces the strongest heat in a few minutes; and the nickelled steel tubes radiate this heat for hours after the draft is shut off. Because of this stored heat McClary's Magnet Wood Furnace is economical and a continuous roaring fire is unnecessary. The heat that goes up the smoke pipe of ordinary wood furnaces, goes into the register pipes of the Magnet. Like the position of the damper, the Magnet Wood Furnace is right all through. Right in principle, right in construction, right in materials. See the Magnet at the McClary Agent's store in the nearest town. Write to nearest McClary branch for catalogue giving a detailed description. Free, postpaid.

CONDENSED NEWS ITEMS

Over $7,000,000 worth of new cars and train equipment has just been ordered by the Canadian Pacific Railway; all to be delivered next summer. Two thousand refrigerator, coal, box and other freight cars and 200 coaches and passanger train equipement, including baggage, express, sleeping, dining, parlor and observation cars are at present under construction in the company's Angus shops. Besides these, orders have been placed with other firms for 2000 steel frame box cars of 80,000 pounds capacity to cost over two million dollars, besides 500 stock cars and 800 flat cars. Orders for 75 heavy locomotives have been placed in Canada at the Angus shops, and the Kingston and Montreal Locomotive Works.

A unique record is held by Earl Nelson, who was 88 years old recently. He is not only the "Father of the House of Lords," but also enjoys the distinction of being the only living peer who was a member of that assembly throughout the whole of the Victorian era. He was born in the reign of George III., so that he has lived under six sovereigns, and for upwards of 70 years he has drawn a pension of £100 per week, granted to the descendants of the Victor of Tralgar.

G. T. P. employees have received word from their representatives in Montreal that all strikers will be reinstated by January 1. There are 275.

A national memorial to Abraham Lincoln, to be erected in Washington at a cost of $2,000,000, is proposed in a bill introduced by Senator Cullom of Illinois.

Bid for construction of two new Chilian battleships will be opened in London, January 10. The armor and armament for the two vessels must be bought in England.

The Toronto Globe estimates that the cost of maintaining the schools in that city in 1911 will be at least $1,500,000 and the expenditure on accommodation fully three-quarters of a million.

Joseph Gorbin, indicted banker of New York swallowed a tablespoonful of hyocene just before he was taken to court for trial. Gorbin was indicted for wrecking a bank, and rather than face trial he attempted suicide. A stomach pump was brought into requisition, and Gorbin may yet meet his just deserts on this earth. The poison he took was the same as Dr. Crippen administered to his wife, and which he was executed for in England a few weeks ago.

A plot to assassinate King George has been unearthed in connection with the discovery of a bomb factory in the east end of London, according to secret operatives an officials of Scotland Yard, says and evening paper. The discovery of the infernal machine works is a sequel to the Houndsditch crime in which three policemen were killed by foreign burglars, the report says: They assert further than no robbery, but anarchy was a qualification of the gang. Documents found at the bomb factory and at the burglars' lair in Houndsditch, the authorities say, prove conclusively that a plan existed to kill King George on Coronation Day.

Application for still another railway charter in connection with the development of the northern areas of the province has just been given notice of by the solicitors of the promoters of the Naas and Skeena Rivers Railway Co., which proposes to construct and operate a standard line of railway from Groundhog Valley down the south side of the Skeena to its junction with the Slan Geest river, thence up that stream to the Fifth Cabin on the [illegible] graph line, westerly to above Blackwater lake and down Blackwater river to the Naas; thence down the Naas to Naas bay. The promoters represented in the present application by Barnard & Robertson, of Victoria, further seek authority to build a branch line from the junction of the Skeena river with Courier or Carrier creek, and up that creek to Blackwater river.

Says the Lethbridge Saturday Courier "Next June there will be performed an imposing ceremony by means of which one, George by name, is to be officially crowned 'King George V' and a whole lot more title, unessential to us at this time. The main fact is that it is a big show and a lot of us want to have an orchestra seat. We figure that on about five hundred plunks we may be able to climb a London lamp post and see the big parade. Another five hundred would get us quite a few more privileges, and with two thousand to blow in we ought to get a dogone good run for our money."

Fred Dancey, formerly editor of the Nicola Valley News has purchased the Merritt Herald and has added a linotype to his plant.

HOMER WATSON
Canada's Great Landscape Painter.

Every great landscape artist is both a poet and a painter. The imagination, the intuition, the interpretation, the sympathy, the reverence, the love, kinship and communion with Nature of the poet, filtering through the mind of the artist find their medium of expression in brush and colors. Every great painting is a poem in paint instead of in print.

One feels this strongly in the presence of Homer Watson's paintings, the putting on canvas of a single mood, with detail ever subordinated to the general effect. They are never photographic, but are always strongly individual interpretations. Whether it be a rough sea with the dancing fisher-boats under a dull, rain-filled sky, the white mill catching the high lights with its background of foliage, the lone rider bent over his horse plodding along a rain-washed road, some noble monarch forest tree braving the elements, or his interpretations of any other moods of Nature, one always feels the sentiment, the richness of color, the atmosphere, the glow, the feeling—all seen inseparable parts of a single effect. The dainty duties of detail characteristic of some painters find no place in Mr. Watson's work; it is ever bold, rugged, broad in treatment, breathing vigor and vitality.

Homer Watson was born in the little village of Doon, on Grand River, Ont., in 1855, and as a boy at school showed his natural instinct for art when he surreptiously drew on his slate an over-vivid picture of the strong and peculiar features of his teacher, which drew upon him deserved punishment. He seemed to turn naturally to landscape work, and his first large painting "The Pioneer Mill," which appeared at the first exhibition of the Royal Canadian Academy was purchased by the Marquis of Lorne, and now hangs in a place of honor in Windsor Castle.

Mr. Watson has exhibited at the Academy in [illegible] New Gallery, the New English Art Club, the Glasgow Institute [illegible] International Exposition, Lons, and been honored by one-man exhibitions where [illegible] more of his paintings were hung together, thus enabling one to study [illegible] the range of his work. for every occasion, with the Kootenay Steel Range, without "driving" the fire or wasting fuel. The generous firebox is built so that the water heats very rapidly as it passes through the water front, and gives a plentiful supply. One bath usually empties the boiler heated by an ordinary range with the result that the rest of the family must wait for more water to heat. Not so with the boiler attached to the water front of a Bandits Killed.

Barricaded in their lair in a house in the very heart of London's slums, seven anarchists defied the police, the fire department and three companies of Scots guards, all headed by Home Secretary Churchill, until the house was set on fire by the shots of machine guns and the defenders were burned to death. The fight began when the police, seeking two numbers of the notorious 'Houndsditch" anarchist gang, discovered two of them in the house. These men began the battle by firing down on the unarmed officers. Other police were were called and the Scots guards were brought in. The defenders still resisted. Others, evidently belonging to the gang, and living in the house, joined in the battle.

The attacking party at last faced several desperate men, heavily armed and firing with reckless abandon into the ranks of the attackers and the crowd of spectators gathered by the sight and sounds of the battle in the streets.

After the fire the anarchists retreated to the roof, where they continued to pour shot from rifles and revolvers into the police until the flames ate away the supporting walls and the roof on which they stood, fell with a crash. All the men are believed to have been thrown into the fire and incinerated.

RAILWAYS RESPONSIBLE

The Conservation Commission has issued a statement in regard to the starting of forest fires by locomotives, and the proposed legislation on the question.

The Commision declares that it has had investigations made by competent men and finds that thirty per cent of all forest fires have been started by locomotives, and that they have caused enormous loss. The legislation will hold railways responsible for damage caused by fires started by locomotives unless it can be shown that all reasonableprecautions have been taken to prevent such fires.

The precautions will include the the best possible spark-arresting devices, efficicient fire fighting staffs to check fires which have been started, and the companies will have to show that there has been no negligence on the part of their employees in allowing fires to start or spread.

FEAR SNOWSLIDES

Residents of Burke and Mayo are flocking to Wallace in fear of a repition of the snowslides of last winter, when eighteen persons were killed and several transcontinental trains hurled over the mountain sides. The mountains are covered with snow, and conditions are such that the mountaineers think slides are almost certain. Burke and Mayo are in the narrow gulch with sheer mountain walls on both sides, rendering them easy objects of destruction by slides. Both towns are practically deserted.

This Is

No recollection of the past; no exaggeration of the present, but should be a forecast of the future

A. L. WHITE

this week received his large semi-annual consignment of

Trunks, Valises & Suitcases

On account of the absence of street troleys he had to requisition his sled for transportation from the depot. Truly the prominence of Greenwood on the map does not warrant this. Certainly the size of the shipment does not.
