NOW MAYOR JAKES

The Doctor Carries Election by Small Majority.

THE ELECTED ALDERMEN

Are Geo. R. Naden, Thos. Miller, W. J. Kirkwood, J. J. Caulfield. D. J. Sullivan and James Sutherland.

The municipal elections are a thing of the past. Last Thursday Dr. Jakes won the mayoralty after a close and exciting contest. All the aldermanic supporting Mr. Ross were elected. Both sides appear to be satisfied. As the mayor and council, taken together, will give a higher average assay than any of its predecessors, the year's outlook, municipally, is bright. The contest to a large extent was for the mayor's office. Mr. Ross' opponents were prepared to yield everything in order to secure his defeat. They succeeded by a narrow majority, but the four aldermanic candidates supporting him headed the polls. On Wednesday night preceding the election, a joint public meeting was held at the Auditorium. The building was crowded to the doors, a large number of ladies being present. H. C. Shaw was chairman and he had an easy time as the large audience was most orderly and took a keen interest in the remarks of the various speakers. The two candidates for mayor, the members of the retiring council and the candidates for aldermen were the speakers.

Thursday, election day, both sides worked hard to poll their votes and both were confident of victory until the ballots were counted.

The result follows:

FOR MAYOR.

R. W. Jakes	145
Duncan Ross	125

Three spoilt ballots.

ALDERMEN NORTH WARD.

Geo. R. Naden	93
Thos. Miller	73
W. J. Kirkwood	66
D. A. Bannerman	57

ALDERMEN SOUTH WARD.

J. J. Caulfield	109
D. J. Sullivan	103
Jas. Sutherland	83
Geo. H. Cropley	79

After the result was known the more enthusiastic of the doctor's supporters celebrated their victory.

Next Monday night the first fancy dress carnival will be held at the Greenwood skating rink. The management is offering more prizes this year than last. For ladies and gentlemen a prize will be given for the best fancy dress costume. For boys and girls under the age of 14 prizes will be given for the best costumes. Also a prize for the most comical costume worn by either sex.

THE QUEEN IS DEAD LONG LIVE THE KING

Britain Mourns the Loss of Her Beloved Sovereign Who Passed Quietly Away Surrounded by the Royal Family.

Special to the Times.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The Queen passed away peacefully, suffering no pain. Around her were gathered almost every descendant of her line. Well within view of her dying eyes hung the portrait of the late Prince Consort. In scarcely audible words the white-haired Bishop of Winchester prayed by her side. With bowed heads the ruler of the German Empire, and the new King of England, and others of the family, listened to the bishop's ceaseless prayers. The women of the royal household sobbed faintly and the men shuffled uneasily. At 6:30 Sir James Reid held up his hand and those present knew they had lost their Queen. The body of the Queen was embalmed last night and will probably be taken to Windsor Station today.

The Prince of Wales was very much affected when his mother passed away and was consoled by the German Emperor.

King Edward, the seventh, entered his capital at 12:53 today and proceeded to Marlborough House.

In every quarter over which the Queen reigned so long and so wisely, the brief announcement was heard with feelings of awe and regret. While the gracious sovereign had gone beyond the alloted number of years, still those who followed her public and private career with extraordinary sympathy and insight could not but feel impressed by the fact that the good Queen is no more and that her long and benificent reign is at an end.

The sorrow of her loyal subjects is but natural. What a wonderful reign it was! When one considers the great events that have taken place since that June day nearly 64 years ago when in the first bloom of youthful health and beauty, she, who is now no more, took those vows of grave responsibility which carried with them the charge of a great nation! How well and nobly the Queen performed her trust is best evidenced by the devotion and respect in which she was enshrined in the hearts of her people and the univesal expressions of regret and sorrow at her death, after years of usefulness and goodness both in her public and private life.

In no other 64 years of history have changes so momentous taken place. The marvellous scientific discoveries, the beneficial reforms, both political and social, and the extraordinary advancement along every line during the Queen's reign, make it the most remarkable in history. Other soverigns have ruled long in Britain but there is no such development to chronicle.

The stability of Her Majesty's throne was never for an instant in jeopardy. It was one of the most gratifying incidents of her long reign that her subjects never ceased to accord her every expression of loyalty and sympathy. They made her joys their joys and her sorrows their sorrows. No greater proof of this affectionate esteem in which the Queen was held could be offered than the national rejoicings in 1887 on the occasion of the 50 years' jubilee, when from every quarter of the Queen's domain enthusiasm was awakened and eager loyalty with difficulty found adequate expression to voice the force of its sentiments and again in 1897 when enthusiastic subjects from every quarter of the earth gave expression to their thankfulness that their beloved Queen had reigned longer than any other British sovereign.

This unanimous affection on the part of an independent people was not only because she was a good Queen but also because she was a good woman. As a wife and mother she was the embodiment of all that a good woman is and to this is greatly due the fact that she was loved and revered by her people. As Queen she has been the grandest women of all nations and all times. She not only exercised a beneficial influence upon her own people but also upon the nations of the world. Her voice has always been for peace and on the side of justice and righteousness.

While regret is universal, while her people sorrow at her death, her departure will not affect the solidity or permanency of the empire. Her successor, the Prince of Wales, with his ripe experience and the training and example of his mother, will make a prudent sovereign.

The news was heard in Greenwood about Midnight and Tuesday morning the fire bell was tolled, flags were hung at half-mast, and banks and public offices were closed, Mayor Jakes, on behalf of the citizens, cabled to Lord Strathcona, high commissioner, to convey to the Royal Family, the sympathy of the loyal subjects in Greenwood. Public meetings and entertainments for the next week will be cancelled.

IS NOW CRUSHING ORE

A Description of the Sampling Mill Now in Operation--Mining Notes.

After a thorough testing of the sampler machinery last week at the reduction works of the British Columbia Copper company, crushing ore has started preparatory to its going to the furnace. As has already been stated by the Times, the blowing in of the 300-ton furnace will be unavoidably delayed on account of the lack of coke. Shipments from the Crow's Nest Coal company should have started the first of the year, so that an ample supply would have been on hand to begin operations by the end of the month, but up to the first of the week not a pound had been received.

As the sampling mill is running, a description of the same will not be out of place. The mill building is a commodious frame structure 70x65 feet in size and 48 feet high, covered with a corrugated iron roof. Its present capacity will allow of sampling 700 tons each 24 hours. By extending the building south, when necessary, two additional sets of machinery can be installed, bringing the capacity up to 2,100 tons per day. On the west side of the building are located the upper ore bins. There are six bins each having a holding capacity of 500 tons, or a total of 3,000. From these storage bins the ore is dropped into cars that will contain 15 cubic feet of ore, and these are run into the sample mill building down an incline tramway.

Following is the process through which the ores goes so that by the time the assayer gets a sample it is as accurate a sample of the whole product as mechanical inguinity has been so far been capable of devising. The ore first goes into a No. 5 Gates crusher, which reduces it to about 4 inches in size. Next through a Johnson No. 1 sampler. The sampler takes out 20 per cent of the product and rejects 80 per cent which goes into the sample discard bins below. The one-fifth sample next goes through a No. 2 Gates crusher, which reduces it to one and a half inches in size. It then drops into a No. 2 Johnson sampler which takes a fifth and rejects the remaining four-fifths which pass on to the bins. The sample then goes to the bucket elevator and is carried to the top floor of the building, passing through a chute back into a No. 0 Gates crusher, which

THE OLD AND NEW

Last Year's and This Year's Councils

MEET ON MONDAY NIGHT

New Council Sworn in and Adjourn Until Wednesday Night—The Annual Reports Received.

The old and the new councils met on Monday night. At 7:30 o'clock Mayor Hardy took his seat at the head of the council board for the last time and seated around him was every member of last year's council. After receiving the reports of different officials, passing a few bills and listening to valedictories from Ald. Galloway and the mayor, both of whom gave utterance to expressions of good will towards the new council, the city fathers adjourned and their places were taken by Mayor-Ele ctJakes and all the members of the new council, except Ald. Naden who was absent from the city. Police Magistrate Hallett took the declarations of the members and then in a brief speech Mayor Jakes thanked the outgoing council for expressions of good will and suggested an adjournment until later in the week. The other members of the council made short speeches each and every one hoping that while it might be necessary at times to differ on questions of public policy that any feeling in the heat of the debate would not be carried beyond the council chamber. An adjournment was then taken until Wednesday evening.

Three interesting reports were presented to the old council. The auditor, W. E. Hodges, in presenting his report took advantage of the opportunity to make some practical suggestions. His report will be published later. In the letter enclosing the financial statements, he said in in part:

"I have examined the books and vouchers of the city for the past year and they are now correct. During the year $14,998.75 was spent in street improvements and the flume, $10,000 was raised by the hypothecation of debentures for this purpose, leaving a balance of $4,998.75 which was paid out of the general tax; in my opinion, as soon as debentures are sold the general tax is entitled to be refunded this amount.

"I have charged each department with the salaries of its respective officials and have equally divided the fire chief's salary between the fire department and office expenses as he as also collector.

"I would suggest that the city treasurer be requested to carefully check the returns from the collector in order to prevent commission of errors."

The general revenue is credited with the gross amount of revenue receivable during the year, with the exception of probably a few trades and dog licenses which may not yet be collected and is charged with gross expenses of running the municipality (except debenture and interest which appears in another account) during the year, including $7,501.10, incurred in three law suits of which $2,501.10 has been paid in cash and $5,000 is still owing on a note.

The balance sheet shows an excess of assets over liabilities of $17,674.42 on general account, taking the assets at the cost price. The auditor closed by making several suggestions in reference to the keeping of interest and debenture accounts.

Fire Chief Hallett, in his annual report, congratulated the council upon freedom from fire during the year and pointed out the necessity of keeping the department efficient notwithstanding this immunity.

Chief of Police McLaren also congratulated the city upon its freedom from crime. During the year 131 case were tried, only a few of which were serious.

Last Thursday evening several of the gentlemen of the city give a sleighing party to Midway, terminating with a dance at Terry's hall and a supper at Crowell's hotel. Those from the city were Mr. and Mrs. Strickland, Mr. and Mrs. Coles; Mr. and Mrs. White, the Misses Moffatt, the Misses Massam, Miss Hirsch, Miss Fisher, Miss Burnham, W. T. Smith, Andrew Laidlaw, Randolph Stuart, Ed. Massam, H. C. Turner, E. A. Duff, Geo. Guess, J. Elrich, Mr. Chesterton and Mr. McGowan. At Midway the party was augmented by Mrs. Thompson, Miss

THE MUNICIPAL CONTEST.

THE people are to be congratulated upon the result of the municipal elections on Thursday last. While there may have been disappointments, the electors have the satisfaction of knowing that Greenwood's council-elect is the best the city ever had. The Times congratulates Dr. R. W. Jakes upon his election. The fight was not made against him because of any unfitness for the position, but because voluntarily or otherwise, it matters not, he was associated with those who were responsible for the bad municipal government of the past two years. He was elected by a narrow majority and the Times having confidence in his ability and good intentions is prepared to give him every support in carrying out a progressive policy for the advancement of Greenwood. Thanks to his opponents in the contest, there are several able men in the council who will be of great assistance to him in carrying out many important measures that will be necessary in making the city what it ought to be.

While it will be a difficult matter to convince his opponents, it is nevertheless a fact, that the editor of the Times had no personal ambition to become mayor of Greenwood. He went into the fight to break up the old combination and elect good men to municipal offices. This has been done by the election of aldermen who will not tolerate anything but what is in the interests of the city and he is better satisfied that he is left free to attend to his own business.

There are, however, matters of public interest that should be considered by the council-elect, and when these are acted upon, the Times will be satisfied to bury the past. In the first place the police commissioners should be changed, and one of the objections to them might just as well be stated in plain terms. Those who stuff the voters' list should not be allowed to remain in public office.

Before the assessment roll is prepared the council should give definite instructions to the assessor. If the assessor prepares his roll according to his transfer book, there will be 37 names placed thereon that should not be there. The council should insist that in the preparation of the new roll, only bona fide holders of real estate should have their names inserted. The importance of this will be apparent to every one since the assessment roll is the voters' list at elections where by-laws are to be ratified by the ratepayers. As a three-fifth majority is necessary to carry such by-law, the fictitious holders of real estate, those who have no interest in the city, could easily defeat a measure that may be of the greatest importance to the city.

THE MUNICIPAL CONTEST.

TO THE ELECTORS:—I thank you for the generous support accorded me in the recent municipal contest and also the members of my campaign committee for the hard and faithful efforts they made in my behalf.

A NEW ENTERPRISE

Fungus Has a Splendid Place at the North End.

A Times representative recently visited Mr. A. Furgeson, better known as Fungus, at his new premises situated at the end of the townsite. Here he has securned nearly four acres of land. The genial club secretary has built a pretty cottage, a stable, chicken house and a green house, and the glass house, mentioned last, because this is the most interesting part or will be early next spring. The industry which Mr. Furguson is establishing is yet in its infancy, but underneath the glass roof are to be found strawberry plants, well forward in fresh green leaves, radishes just through the ground, mustard and cress, cucumbers, parsley, lettuces and flowers of all kinds peeping through the wonderful black soil.

"Where did you get this magnificent black loom," was asked by the newspaper man, "Right here where we are standing," was the reply. "When excavating I put all the top soil in one place and since then I had it screened as you see it. The whole garden is just like this or better."

"I suppose you think it will grow anything?".

"Certainly, with water only as a fertilizer, it will grow anything. We can irrigate from Providence creek, but I do not think much irrigation will be required. You see, after August Providence creek sinks just above here and the water then runs on bed rock under the garden and eventually comes out at the lower end near the Auditorium, so you see we have natural irrigation."

"The glass house," oontinued Mr. Furguson, "is 100 by 22 feet. I intend to keep it warm in all sorts of weather. The boiler is guaranteed to do this. Heating the glass house can be done very economically. I am hopeful that the enterprise will be a profitable one if the people will support me. I have tried gardening for three years in this vicinity and beyond the hardy vegetables which the Chinamen grow, I have never succeeded. Jack frost comes too frequently during the summer months and destroys tender vegetables, such as sweet corn, French peas, tomatoes, vegetable marrow, etc., so I came to the conclusion glass was wanted and glass I've got. All these tender products are imported and freight and duty will be a big profit. I intend to grow suitable stuff out doors. Every inch will be cultivated. I will require considerable help."

"Will you employ Chinese."

"Not if I know it," was the emphatic reply. "I can get good white men who can beat any three Chinamen."

Mr. Furguson has a neat place and his many friends will wish him every success in his enterprise.

The Century's Offering in Fraternal Orders.

FOR BOHEMIANS ONLY.

Greenwood Lodge Has a Street Parade and Banquet—Aims of the Order.

"Hark! Hark! the dogs do bark, the Orients are coming to town," is what the good folk of Phoenix and Grand Forks are liable to be saying in a short time. That is when the members of the Orientals hit the trail for an expansion of business and membership in these two cities. The Orientals let it be said, is the latest and correct thing to belong to in fraternal organizations. It is the first product, in its particular line, of the twentieth century. Its inception was crystalized one minute after the stroke of 12 o'clock on the 31st day of December, 1900, last past. It was born a vigorous babe, that 14 days after threw off its swaddling clothes and mask. After an inspection by many of the prominent citizens, and in company assembled, it ate its first meal with knife, fork and spoon, accompanied to the clinking of many glasses and the hearty good wishes of its numerous attendants. Not even forgetting the paternal benediction pronounced upon it by "Jakey" Barrett. Now its off in the bunch for winning honors for the largest fraternal order ever launched in the woolly west.

This fraternal order is unique in many respects. After the payment of a $2 initiation fee no other dues are expected from its members for the balance of their natural lives. There are no sick or death benefits attached. Neither is one compelled to take out an insurance policy—except an accident, and that only to cover the time of initiation. Meetings are held regularly when called by the High Potentate. Refreshments are provided at every gathering so that the work in hand may not become a physical strain.

Candidates must be natural born Bohemians. The order has a membership of 53 of the leading merchant princes, mining and smelting magnates and professional and unprofessional makers of a living. Millionaires are only tolerated until they become broke. Each member has to provide three regulation uniforms, for street wear, such as parades, torch-light processions, etc.; for attendance at court and for the banquetting hall. The costumes are, however, inexpensive and strikingly attractive. So much for the aims and objects. The ambition of Order No. 1, Greenwood Orientals is to spread the gospel of good fellowship and to form a chain of orders stretching everywhere from the greatest mining camp the world ever witnessed in an embyronic state.

Tuesday night the members of the Orientals decided upon a parade and a banquet. The former was given on the streets and the latter in the dining hall of the Windsor hotel. Both features were a success. At 9 p. m. citizens meandering on Copper street, shortly before the Curfew rang out its sonorous tones from the city hall, were attracted by numerous forms clad like unto Banquo's ghost. Then came the clashing of cymbols, the mournful wails of the bagpipes and the flourish of trumpets. Without an order the paraders took the position assigned them by the High Chief. He was easily recognizable by his height—6-foot 4 inches. Starting from the Windsor the processsion marched down Copper avenue, accompanied by much music (?) and the frequent barkings of timid canines who frightened, speedily sought shelter under the sidewalk. A description of the costumes worn is out of place. They were mostly of a light color, slashed with a brilliant red color and set off by masks of all colors. The head of the procession would enter a place of liquid refreshment and the body and tail would follow. No time, however, would be lost in getting out, for it is a rule of the order that refreshments of that nature should be partaken only on a wholesale scale. After much tramping in and out and the head chief having become thirsty the procession headed for the feast spread at the Windsor. Previous to entry to the dining hall, the street costume was discarded and the banquetting one put on.

Some 50 Orientals and their guests occupied seats at a long table loaded down with delacicies of every description. As a special mark of honor to two candidates who have been accepted for membership, and who will cross the burning sands next Monday, one was made the toastmaster and the other assistant. At the head of the board sat Postmaster Frith, at its foot Police Constable Lauder. In the center surrounded by princes of various degrees was Potentate Chief Prince Dallas and opposite sat Prince "Shorty" Bunger, a twenty-dollar change artist. On each side of each guest sat a Prince. The guests included Provincial Darraugh, Prof. Kauffman, Alderman Bannerman, Manager Ketchum of the Electric Light company, Dr. Oppenheimer, A. Branson and others.

Grand Oriental Cameron, after everyone was seated and the opening toast sipped, asked the diners to fall to and enjoy themselves. This was done faithfully and well for the menu was excellent. Then came the toast list and the postmaster arose to the occasion. Princes, potentates and guests added fun to the proceedings, story telling and songs. Previous to the close, Treasurer Prince Birney gave a brief history of the organization, its benefits and its intentions and invited an addition to the membership list. This was cheerfully responed to by the guests and at the next meeting some 10 candidates will be initiated. Sometime before the end of the month, under the care of Pilot Prince Rodgers, the members will visit Phoenix in a body for the purposes of instituting an order. Correspondence has now been opened with the "head push" of the C. P. R. for reduced rates for an excursion to Grand Forks and in time that place will also have a lodge. "Pro bono publico," is the principia of the Orientals.

TO THE DEAF.

BLOWN TO ATOMS.

IS NOW CRUSHING ORE

grinds it down to the size of half an inch. It then drops into a No. 3 Johnson sampler, which again retains a one-fifth and discards the balance. The one-fifth passes to a set of 10x20 Reliance rolls, crushing to one-eighth inch in size, the whole passing through a second No. 3 Johnson sampler, that cuts out a one-fith and sends same to the "bucking" room. It has then reached a fineness that gives an absolutely truthful sample of the whole original product. The discarded ore is then taken from the bins direct to the smelter mixture bins for treatment.

Most of the sampling mill machinery was designed by Paul Johnson, the manager of the smelter, and was manufactured by the E. P. Allis company of Milwaukee. Mr. Johnson claims for his samplers a simplicity in their access for cleaning, an extremely desirable feature when custom ore is being sampled, as it allows of no possible chance of salting the samples. The machinery is driven by a 100-horse power Eric City engine with 16x18 cylinder, the power being piped from the boiler room.

In its weekly review of the mining camps the Rossland Miner in discussing the smelter situation has the following to say regarding the converter to be installed by the British Columbia Copper company: "In this direction the action taken at Greenwood in erecting a copper blister converting process, which is a decided step on the way to a refinery, will also help the mining situation. The Greenwood correspondent of the Miner has pointed out that there will probably be an influx of custom ore from Boundary mines, but it is extremely likely that other Kootenay copper smelters will avail themselves of the opportunity and send their matte to be converted and so save a heavy freight rate. It is by no means improbable that the copper blister process will be imitated at other points. To Greenwood belongs the honor, if not of the inception of the idea, certainly of that of having courageously put it into practice."

Harry Shallenberger arrived in town the end of last week from Spokane and has been up at the Lake clalm in Skylark camp. This property, together with the Yellowstone group, is under bond to Chicago people, and is being developed.

Considerable ore is being produced from the big cut on the Emma in Summit camp. When the Pyritic smelter is ready to start operations the ore will be shipped for treatment there.

At the Cariboo, Camp McKinney, a diamond drill is prospecting the ground below the 300-foot level.

D. A. Holbrook is doing some prospecting work on the St. Paul claim in Deadwood camp.

LEADS THE BOUNDARY.

Some Statistical Pointers of Local Interest.

A perusal of the report of the postmaster general for 1900 has much of interest affecting this city. In the British Columbia division it is found that this city ranks seventh in the list of provincial postoffices for its gross postal revenue which amounts to $5,462.81. Grand Forks ranks ninth with $3,662.03. In the matter of the number of money orders issued, Greenwood issued 4,701 orders valued at $81,994.59, as against Grand Forks 3,253, valued at $55,801.98. The salary list at the forks amounts to $655, with a rent allowance of $125. To Greenwood $1,100 is charged for salaries and $225 for allowance towards rent, fuel and light. Statistics are dry reading at most times, even if accurate. But the figures quoted add one more claim to those already advanced why Greenwood is the financial, commercial, mining and smelting metropolis of the Boundary district.
