OBITUARY.—Mr. Thomas Graham, who died in London recently, was a man of considerable literary and scientific ability. Of his literary productions the most important is, "Elements of Chemistry." His most remarkable discoveries were the law of the diffusion of liquids and the new method of separation known as dialysis. He was born in Glasgow, 1805. In 1855 Sir John Herschel retired from the Mastership of the Mint, and Mr. Graham was appointed to fill the vacancy, holding the position with credit until his death.

TRICHINIASIS.—A Berlin medical journal mentions the death of two men from trichiniasis, after eating raw pork. The butcher who sold the meat was sentenced to four months imprisonment.

THE INDIANA HORROR.

[From the Indianapolis Journal, Oct. 2.]

One o'clock yesterday afternoon was the hour assigned for the trial of portable engines and saw-mills, and into the competition several firms entered.

A large circle of interested lookers-on were gathered about the area occupied by the machinery, while here and there over the grounds were scattered 12,000 or 15,000 people. At a moment of undisturbed quiet, while the hum of the machinery was hushed and attention directed toward the ring in which the fast trotting was about to commence, a noise, like the explosion of a park of artillery, saluted the ear, and a concussion of the earth, as of an earthquake, sent a thrill of fear to the heart. A volume of steam, a blinding cloud of dust and smoke, the air filled with debris of timber, of pieces of iron, of shreds of clothing, parts of human beings, of groans and shrieks, men falling hither and thither, and ranks opening as if ploughed through with grape and shrapnel, told the fearful tale of an explosion. The engine, a moment before a thing of beauty, obedient to the touch of man, was torn and rent by a mighty convulsion; its comeliness gone, its parts scattered to the four winds, hardly a joint left in integrity. That which in one second had been an implement of industry, in the next was turned into a sickle of death, reaping and mowing its victims in a swath confined by no rule and measured by no regularity.

The scene was one to appal the stoutest heart. The bodies of several were lifted into the air and alighted in mangled and mutilated shapes many yards from where they were standing when struck with the steam.

Where the engine stood was left no perceptible trace, except an area of smoked and blackened ground.

A man walking in front of the Executive Headquarters was startled at seeing the skull of a man dropping in front of him, the flesh actually scalded off the bones, but the eyes and teeth still remaining in the sockets and jaws.

Several yards from the disaster was found a pair of legs held together by the merest shred of flesh. At one place was the headless trunk of a man; at another was the leg of a woman, with her boot and stocking and a part of her drawers still upon it; the arm of a man was found driven into a poplar board; while not far from Power Hall was seen the body of a man so horribly mutilated that his heart, stomach, liver and lungs could readily be seen. When first discovered his heart was still palpitating, and the motion of the organ was plainly observed.

It was reported, apparently upon good foundation, that a woman was delivered of a child on the ground, the fright bringing on a miscarriage, which may cause her death.

In the Agricultural Hall were lying four bodies, a jumbled, almost unrecognizable mass of charred, roasted and scalded humanity.

The scalp of a man was found near the stairway to the Amphitheatre.

The little daughter of Mr. Dawson was struck in the head while standing near her father. The girl died very shortly after reaching home.

A baby wagon was struck by a piece of the flying iron and the wagon utterly demolished, but the child left unhurt.

A piece of the boiler was blown into the cattle shed, 200 yards, where it passed through the roof and knocked the tips off the horns of the mammoth ox, but doing him no other injury.

A piece of a man's head, showing a part of the forehead, the nose and left side of the face, the hair and whiskers very black, slightly tinged with gray, was found near the executive office.

One of P. L. Davis' arms was blown over a hundred yards from the place where he fell dead. His body was otherwise terribly mutilated.

An odd arm and shoulder have been found at the undertaker's, which indicate that there is still another dead man. The arm had been once amputated at the elbow, and this is but the stump of the upper half.

In a lumber pile near the place where the boiler stood were found some of the remains of a man, literally wadded into the interstices between the planks.

A miserable thief stole Dr. W. Clinton Thompson's watch while he was in the act of carrying away one of the wounded. The pickpocket was assisting the doctor, and all at once dropped his burden and snatched the watch. He was caught, but managed to struggle loose and escape in the crowd.

At the undertaker's the scene was terrible. In the back yard and rear shops, upon rude planks and benches were stretched the dead. The mutilations were fearful and cannot fitly be described. Blackened and begrimed, bloody and dusty, with protruding eyeballs, lolling tongues and clinched hands, the dead lay, silent but fearful witnesses, calling for a prompt and searching investigation of the disaster of which they are the fearful relics.

Altogether there were 27 killed and 56 wounded.

ANOTHER CURIOUS LAW CASE.—Mrs. Parker was tried at Portland, Me., recently, for shooting at a Mrs. Baker, with intent to kill. The jury rendered a verdict of "Not guilty, on account of insanity." On the decision of the jury being given, the prosecuting attorney moved there be a warrant granted sending respondent to the State Asylum for the Insane, in accordance with the statute. Counsel for respondent objected to the motion on the ground that the jury had found her insane at the time the murderous assault was committed, but not that she was insane now. The Judge was in doubt whether the the law upon him was peremptory or discretionary, and after the point had been ably discussed pro and con, after deliberation, Judge Goddard discharged the woman, saying he did not think it necessary to send her to the Insane Hospital to ascertain whether she was insane now or not, and as he believed he had discretionary power in the matter he ordered her discharge, because he had seen nothing to satisfy him that she was ever insane at any time.

ENTERPRISING.—The enterprise of some New York business men is astonishing. A druggist has just offered the sum of $30,000 for the use of a fence which surrounds the new post-office site in that city, as an advertising medium.

MONACO.—The Prince of Monaco and Lady Douglas Hamilton were married a few weeks ago. Monaco is a small Italian principality, containing about eight thousand people. The prince, on ascending a hill, might truly exclaim: "I am monarch of all I survey," for his kingdom comprises only a few square miles of territory.

NO SABBE, JOHN.—The post of American Minister at Pekin is going a-begging. Mr. J. Bigelow, editor of the New York Times, refused it, as did also Mr. F. T. Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey.

TERRIBLE SCENE ON BOARD A CHANNEL STEAMER.

The steamship "Lady Wodehouse," which sailed from London on Saturday last for Dublin, was on Sunday morning the scene of a frightful accident. Everything went on well till Folkstone was reached, when the wind began to increase in strength, till, about twelve o'clock, a fearful gale was blowing, accompanied by a very heavy sea. On the port side of the vessel, forward, were stowed several barrels of paraffin oil, and on the starboard side several large cases of lucifer matches and vesuvians. The former could not have been properly lashed, for, about a quarter past one a. m., one of the barrels of paraffin broke away, and rolling against one of the cases of matches, stove it in, and caught fire itself. It then rolled about the ship in flames, setting fire to the deckhouse, bridge, and one of the boats. The scene on board cannot be realized by any but those who witnessed it. All hope of escape was given up by every one, and the majority of the passengers spent what they considered their last moments in prayer, for the deck was one sheet of flame. Through the coolness and courage of the captain and men of the ship, and the assistance of the passengers, the fire was got under. The captain ordered the vessel's head to be brought up, so as to ship the first heavy sea, which [illegible] over the bows and washing all the burning paraffin into the sea, thereby clearing the deck and allowing all attention to be paid to extinguishing the fire in the deckhouse, which was now in flames for over 90 feet in length, and also that in the boats. Having a plentiful supply of water from the pump, the fire was extinguished about two o'clock a. m. The barrels of paraffin oil were thrown overboard by the captain's orders, as well as some of the cases of matches, but, unfortunately, not all, for about an hour after the fire had been extinguished a second alarm was given, another box of matches having become ignited in some way or other. This time the panic was something frightful. The ladies in the saloons were comparatively quiet, but the women in the second and third class cabins were in a dreadful state, running about the deck with scarcely any covering in some cases. In some instances the women were preparing to throw their children into the sea in the event of the flames getting the upper hand. This second fire was, however, soon extinguished. It was reported that there was also petroleum on board; and if it had become ignited, nothing short of a miracle would have saved the vessel.—[Liverpool Mercury.

RAILWAYS VS. STEAMERS.—The Continental railway has been in operation nearly six months. The business which it has attracted has exceeded the expectations of its most sanguine friends. Its success is beyond all cavil. Another similar road will be demanded long before it can be constructed. In the struggle for transportation, railroads must win over all other modes yet known, as steam prevails over sail on the trackless deep Already the Panama service has been reduced to two steamers per month. A revolution in commercial valus and in the general modes of doing business on this coast, will be likely to gradually follow in the wake of the railroads completed and contemplated.

TOLERATION.—Hitherto no Jews have been admitted to any Austrian university as professors. This prohibition has now been removed, and the first Jewish professor has been appointed in the person of the well-known oculist, Dr. Mauthner, who has obtained the chair of opthalmic surgery in the University of Innsbruck.

THE WINTER OF OUR DISCONTENT.

In our last issue we briefly noticed—what is destined to prove as great an advantage to the mining interests of the colony as the railways and steamships have proved to be to the general interests of the world in comparison with wagon roads and sailships—the intended introduction of steam machinery for mining purposes. What is wanted to develop our mineral resources is increased working power. An increase of power represents a corresponding decrease of expenditure, and economy is thus secured without meddling with the question of wages. Indeed, although the cost of living is now estimated as low as a dollar per day, a reduction of wages need not be expected so long as men can almost anywhere in Cariboo pre empt ground and make wages, more or less. A glance at the modes of mining will immediately satisfy any one that they are the most expensive. Any book on mechanics will tell you that the use of the common windlass, so generally used here, is a waste of animal power. And the windlass in Cariboo is used in its most primitive form. No attempt seems to have been made to supplement its power by attaching cog-wheels to it. Muscle and lungs alone are relied on. Verily, our mines are the richest of all, or they could not pay miners six dollars per day [illegible] are the appliances by which the rock and dirt are brought to the surface. By the present system, two, three and frequently four men are required to take away, hoist and wash the rock and dirt picked by one. Instead of getting out two or three hundred pounds by a bucket we ought to have machinery for hauling to the surface a ton of dirt at once. The water-wheel, it is true, is an improvement upon the windlass, yet a very small improvement, all things considered. It is too costly for the saving it effects, and too much dependent on the weather for its motive power. There is no lack of enterprise and energy in Cariboo. If all the colonists were equally energetic and enterprising we should soon see a very prosperous colony in British Columbia. But these qualities are misdirected or wasted. We have tunnels that have cost ten, twenty and thirty thousand dollars, and they have been constructed entirely upon speculative opinion as to the existence of gold in the ground they are run to. A shaft is sunk to the gravel deposits on bedrock, the water running through the gravel boils up and defies the pick, shovel, windlass and miner to reach the bedrock. Perhaps a small pinch of gold is extracted from the gravel before the water breaks through. That is encouraging—very; but frequently not even a color is obtained, and the ground must either be abandoned or a tunnel run. Hence the expensive tunnel system. One, two, three, or more, years of time are required for the construction of the tunnel, and an amount of money expenditure which in many cases exceeds the cost and freight, twice over, of an engine and pump that would render a tunnel unnecessary. We are well aware that there are greater difficulties in the way of procuring engines and machinery than of building a tunnel. The first requires ready cash and the latter comparatively light weekly or monthly instalments. But there are no efforts made to obtain steam engines and pumps. Instead of concentrating their means and combining to obtain the most powerful appliances and limiting their operations to one piece of ground at a time, prospectors fritter away their money by taking shares in too many companies. The introduction of steam engines would be of vast benefit to the companies concerned, and would be a great benefit to the community at large by keeping up mining operations during the whole year instead of yielding to the frost and snow. At the present time, and indeed generally every winter, there is sufficient water for washing purposes, but the elevated flume and the exposed wheel are ultimately rendered useless by the frost. With a steam engine and flume on the ground there need be no necessity for lying idle during the winter.

COURT.—A few cases, of importance only to the litigants, were in court yesterday.

NEWSPAPERS.—The village of Waterloo, Ontario, Canada, has a population of two thousand inhabitants. It has five newspapers, two of them English and three German.

ACCIDENT TO THE GOVERNOR.—We are sorry to learn that His Excellency the Governor has met with a severe accident. He was in the act of mounting a young horse, when he was thrown, and had his leg broken. He was promptly attended by Dr. Powell.

LOVE'S LAST TRIBUTE.—At a recent funeral in Ceylon of an officer a melancholy incident occurred. There was no clergyman at hand, and the service was performed by one of the officers of the brigade. The young widow buried her head in the earth, and cut off all her beautiful golden heir and placed it in the grave.

TERPSICHOREAN.—Four female professors of dancing, bearing properly certified diplomas from the College of Terpsichore, Baden-Baden, Europe, arrived yesterday per Barnard's express. They intend, it is said, to practice their profession at Sterling's dancing academy, where they will instruct the uninitiated, or any one else, in the mysteries of Terpsichore, at the very reasonable rate of $1 per lesson.

NEW WINTER STOCK—C. McCallum would inform his friends and the public that he has just received a considerable addition to his stock of Coats, Pants, Vests, Canvass Pants, Blue Overalls and Jumpers; Heavy Overshirts, Baltic Shirts, English and Oregon Underclothing, Woollen Scarfs; English, Scotch and Oregon Socks; Cloth, Ringwood and Aberdeen Gloves; Kid Mitts, lined; Neck Ties, Turkish Towels; Cambric Handkerchiefs, and an assortment of Felt Hats. All the above goods will be sold cheap for cash. Pants and Vests made to order. Parties wishing to have their clothing made to order by A. Gilmore, Victoria, may have their measures taken by Mr McCallum, in order to secure a good fit.

NOTICE.—Travellers will take notice that the Fort Yale Hotel is now carried on by W. R. Macdonald, so favorably known as the proprietor of the principal hotel on the Douglas road in days gone by.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

CARD.

ON behalf of the proprietor, I hereby desire to tender hearty thanks to the Fire Brigade and citizens of Barkerville for their successful efforts at the late fire, whereby the stable belonging to Mr. F. J. Barnard was saved from destruction.

THE CARIBOO SENTINEL

SATURDAY, NOV. 27, 1869.

MINING INTELLIGENCE.

STOUT GULCH.

The Mucho Oro co. were prospecting last week, and did not quite make expenses. The Jenkins co. got 86 oz. for the week, and up to Wednesday had washed up 30 oz. The Taffvale co. had 72 oz. for the week. The Coombs co. had a small dividend. The Floyd co. washed up 45 oz. for the week. The Hopeful co. have got in with their tunnel, just about a foot below bed-rock in the face.

CONKLIN GULCH.

The McDowell co. washed up 56 oz. for the week; and the White Pine co., 51 oz. The Felix co. washed up 28 oz. The McDowell co. are preparing machinery to work with horses.

LOWHEE CREEK.

The Victoria co. have run their tunnel to their own ground and are now sinking a shaft. The Kelly co. intend to drift into the deep channel during the winter. The Calaveras co. are rocking and doing pretty well.

BEGGS' GULCH.

There are five companies working on this gulch. Two of them are making over wages, and one of the two, the Grappler co., had been getting as high as an ounce and $20 per day to the hand for some time during the summer and fall. The Skym co. are running a tunnel and expected to strike bed-rock this week. The Red Dragon co. are also running a tunnel and expected to get in this week. A company near the mouth of the gulch are running a tunnel in the true Briton ground.

HARVEY CREEK.

The Point co. are taking out pay. The Perseverance co. are drifting and getting out pay. The Laidlaw co. have had a survey made for a ditch, and intend to get out lumber to build a flume, to be ready for hydraulic operations in the spring.

KEITHLEY CREEK.

The Grotto co are making from $8 to $10 per day to the hand. The Frenchman's claim is paying about $5 per day to the hand. The Cascade co. have opened out in their old tunnel and have commenced work inside for the winter. The Jackson co. are still driving ahead looking for pay. The Stonewall co. paid expenses for last week. Brown & co. have bottomed on high rock and commenced drifting. Polly & co. have commenced a bed-rock drain, with good prospects ahead. About sixty men are now on this creek.

THE NORTH FORK.

Kimball & McGee are running a tunnel. Crogan & co. are drifting in the hill and making about $5 per day to the hand. Cameron & co. were all ready to wash, and had prospects for good wages.

THE COOMBS CLAIM.—We have requested and obtained permission to publish the following statement showing the gross and net proceeds of the Coombs claim from April 1st to Nov. 11th, 1869:

CASH RECEIPTS.		CASH DIVIDENDS.
April	$4498 64	April	$1266 00
May	16712 06	May	13049 50
June	11433 88	June	8700 00
July	8405 74	July	6346 23
August	6350 19	August	4957 74
September	7586 50	September	5690 44
October	2466 78	October	514 53
To Nov. 11	1870 25	To Nov. 11	966 63
		Expenses	17832 97
	$59324 04		$59324 04

There are three interests in the claim, held by R. Brown, J. Adair and L. G. Coombs.

FROM KOOTENAY.—A gentleman who left that vicinity about three weeks ago, informs us that on Perry creek the Tais' shaft had been bottomed and about forty dollars taken from the bed-rock. Sluices had been fixed for the winter. The Armstrong company had struck good pay on a bench, where they had taken out as much as half an ounce to the pan. On Weaver creek, the Weaver, Tilford and Ford claims were paying well. Dr. Brouse had sold his claim and returned to Yale.—[Guardian.

DIGGINGS AT PITT RIVER.—An Indian recently brought to New Westminster a prospect of gold from Pitt river, and offered to show the spot from which he obtained it. A prospecting party was organized to test the diggings.

WEATHER.—So far, with the exception of plenty of snow, the winter has been as mild, and certainly a great deal pleasanter, than a Canadian or English winter. The thermometer has been dancing over the freezing point joyously during the past two or three weeks much oftener than below it.

MINING RECORDS.

WILLIAM CREEK.

West Bank co.—Nov. 22—Henry Meunerstorf, John Gallikson, Charles Holz and John Rosenburg, four hill claims on the west side, commencing at the upper line of the old Grier claim, and running up stream 400 feet.

COURT PROCEEDINGS.

(Before C. Brew, Esq., Gold Commissioner and County Court Judge.)

MONDAY, Nov. 22, 1869.

Lone Star co. vs. Renfrew, Indian Queen and New Amaden cos.—Action to show cause why defendants should not be ordered to assist in opening the drain tunnel formerly used by the Eclipse co. The Eclipse co. had constructed a tunnel running through the Indian Queen ground; the tunnel caved in the Indian Queen ground and the water ran into the Renfrew ground, compelling the company to stop work. The Renfrew co. sued the Eclipse co. who thereupon abandoned the ground, which has since been taken up by the New Almaden co. The Renfrew co. subsequently sued the Indian Queen co., but in neither case could the Renfrew co. obtain an order to compel the Indian Queen or Eclipse cos. to open the tunnel. The Lone Star co. now complain that they cannot work in their tunnel, owing to there being too much water overhead, and that the said water is that which comes from the broken tunnel and through the Renfrew ground into the Lone Star ground. All of the defendants disclaimed any responsibility for the condition of the tunnel, and declined to do anything to open it. The New Almaden co. did not require the tunnel, the Indian Queen had suffered great damage to their works by it, and the Renfrew co. had also suffered great loss by it. It was suggested that if the Lone Star tunnel were run to the Renfrew ground it would remedy the present condition of the claims, but none of the other companies would agree to that. The Judge endeavored to persuade all the companies to come to some agreement to open the tunnel, but without avail, and finally dismissed the case.

CONDEMNED.—The Indian has been found guilty of the murder of Patrick O'Brien Murphy O'Brien, at the New Westminster Assizes The murder took place in November, 1861, on an island since known as Murphy's island, just below New Westminster. "Murder will out." Since the trial and sentence of death, the murderer has confessed his crime. The Indian accused of the murder of Mountaineer Perry at Burrard Inlet has also been sentenced to death.

LOCAL MATTERS.

LAYING OVER CLAIMS.—The evils of suspending that part of the Mining Ordinance relating to representation of claims are beginning to manifest themselves. We hear of several companies having been compelled to stop operations during the winter, because the whole of the members were not unanimous in desiring to work their claims. In two instances, only one member declined to work or pay assessments during the winter season, and the consequence is that both companies will remain idle until the arbitrary mandate of the Gold Commissioner shall declare when work must be resumed according to law. There are many good reasons for and against the present system of laying over claims, but it would appear from the circumstances alluded to above that an alteration in the law, by which the laying over of company claims shall be left to the decision of a majority of the members, would satisfy all parties except the obstinate few who are willing enough to allow their interests to be worked by others, but are unwilling to contribute toward the labor or cost of doing so. We trust that the representative of the district will attend to this matter at the ensuing session of the Legislative Council.

PRECAUTIONARY.—Prevention is better than cure. Everybody knows that, but everybody does not act up to the axiom. The fire last year inflicted a great deal of distress and misery upon the people of Barkerville, but nature was kind. Beautiful weather smiled on the ashes of the town. If the fire was a great calamity then what would such a conflagration prove now? Every care and caution should be exercised in handling candles and matches, and a strict watch kept upon stoves, stove-pipes and combustible material. We have every confidence in the efficiency of the Fire Brigade, but it is far better to try and avoid putting that efficiency to the test. Remember, then, that prevention is easier than cure, and exercise care in all things that may cause fire.

A LOCK-UP.—The Grand Jury, we believe, recommended that a station house or lock-up for disorderly characters should be established in Barkerville, but no attention seems to have been given to the matter. The necessity for one is so urgent that several citizens started a subscription a few days ago; but it being considered, and rightly so, entirely a government matter, the subscription paper did not obtain sufficient encouragement to accomplish the object in view.

DONATION.—The appeal lately made to the Welshmen of the Pacific for aid to the widows and orphans of Avondale, Pennsylvania, where the dreadful colliery accident occurred, has been answered by the Welshmen of Barkerville and vicinity by a subscription of $100, which has been forwarded to its intended destination. Charity covereth a multitude of sins.

THE QUARTZ MILL.—On Tuesday last, Mr. Shaw brought in two boxes containing the bolts and screws of the pioneer test quartz mill. On Thursday, Mr. Poole brought in nearly the whole of the machinery. A few pieces have yet to come, but their absence will not retard the erection of the mill, which will be put up as soon as possible.

PINE CREEK GOLD.—The newly-discovered gold from this creek assays 882. Pine creek is the same stream that was known as Nigger creek. It lies between Harvey and Keithley creeks, and empties into Cariboo lake. It is one of a large number of creeks and gulches in that part of the district which have never been thoroughly prospected.

FISH AND GAME.—The weather at Bear lake continues mild and open, no snow having fallen within several miles of the lake. On Wednesday a supply of fresh trout was brought into Barkerville, to the great delight of the bons vivants. Twenty-two large-sized hares were brought from Quesnelmouth on Wednesday—a rare species of game in this country, although rabbits are plentiful.

EXPRESS.—Barnard's express arrived yesterday, at one p. m. Mr. and Mrs. F. Fick, Rosa Haup, Miss Lizzie, Miss Katie and Miss Emma, Mr. J. W. Scott, and Mr. E. Tormey were passengers. The express will leave on Monday. Sleighing is good from Quesnelmouth. There was some snow in the Green Timber, but not enough for sleighing.

RETURNED.—Mr. Livingstone, who piloted one of the Peace river parties up the river to Fort George, has returned to Quesnelmouth, and reports that all the parties had had a safe passage. The weather had been fine and there was no ice in the river.

ACCIDENT.—On Wednesday, a young man, named Wesley Brisbane, a member of the Salt Spring co., Grouse creek, while cutting cordwood near Marysville, accidentally cut his foot with an axe, making a dreadful gash.

RETURNED.—Mr. F. Fick, the proprietor of the New England bakery, returned to Barkerville yesterday with his wife.

THEATRICAL.—The performances at the Theatre on Saturday last were unusually well attended. Long before the hour of commencement, every seat in the parquette had been taken and reserved, and a great many more applications were made for the front seats than could be accommodated. Every part of the house was crowded, and even standing room was in excessive demand. The performances were announced as under the patronage of the Fire Brigade, and the crowded attendance clearly indicated how thoroughly the inhabitants of Barkerville and vicinity appreciate that extremely useful corps. The Amateurs must have been delighted with the cheering presence of so numerous an audience, and the Fire Brigade might well feel proud of the financial value of their patronage. The comedietta, "To Oblige Benson," is one of those sparkling little pieces which brings out all the peculiar characteristics of such actors as Robson, the great London comedian. Comedy in all its variety abounds in it, and there is no low drollery required to move the spectators into hearty laughter. Everything is perfectly natural, and all the spirit of the scene is entirely in accord with what one would suppose to be actual life. Nor is it an unmeaning, useless, literary effort, teaching nothing, contrived and written for no other purpose than to please. It teaches a very useful lesson for guidance in domestic life, by showing how a naturally disposed virtuous woman may be led astray from the path of honor through the inattention of a too confiding husband, and the contrast offered by the ready politeness of an admiring acquaintance, suggesting the necessity of a continuance of at least a portion of those gallantries which precede marriage. There is another lesson inculcated by this choice comedietta It demonstrates the danger of deceit, by showing the consequences to which it may lead in family affairs, when once an attempt is made to shield an error by false representation, although intended for the best. Absorbed in the business or politics of metropolitan life, men are apt to neglect the family hearth and give full opportunity to seductive friends to disturb their domestic peace, and "To-Oblige-Benson" is intended for an illustration of this social phase. Mrs. S. P. Parker developed all the conflicting emotions of Mrs. Benson—sensitive to her husband's neglect and the attentions of his friend, though rightly disposed—with genuine pathos. The shrewder Mrs. Southdown, full of resource and well versed in the ways of the world, found an able representative in Florence Wilson. All the roles were exceedingly well represented, as was manifest by the keen enjoyment of the spectators, so we need not particularise. It was gratifying to notice how well the audience understood and enjoyed what authors and actors call the points of the piece—the laughter and applause coming in at the right places. "To Oblige Benson" was written by Tom Taylor, Esq., the author of "Still Waters Run Deep," and several other dramatic pieces which continue to hold possession of the stage wherever the English language is spoken. Of "The Limerick Boy" we need say little, as it is generally well known. It is one of those farces destitute of any literary merit, and of the lowest kind of comedy, depending more upon its utter absurdity rather than genuine wit and humor for popularity. It was well represented, however, and excited a great deal of amusement. Altogether, the performances were a great success. The Amateurs are rapidly attaining the proficiency of regular professionals. A little more confidence, which will come with practice, and a more careful study of character—altogether apart from the words—will render the Cariboo Amateurs as good a theatrical troupe as is to be found almost anywhere out of the professional world. The next performance will take place on Saturday next, for the benefit of the William Creek Fire Brigade, when a new melo-drama, written for the occasion, will be presented.

EASTWARD AND WESTWARD, Ho!—The Peace River discoveries may draw some of the settled population of Cariboo from their old familiar haunts, and disturb to some extent, the present condition of things here, but they also will, if the deposits are rich and extensive, do great good to the colony generally, and to Cariboo, by giving the country a freshened importance and a more attractive character than it enjoys at present. Every industry will receive a new impetus, and revive trade. A short time ago we read in an Eastern paper that fresh gold discoveries had been made in the Saskatchewan valley, and that a large immigration from Montana was expected. Thus the east and west are about to fill up the intervening space and a living chain of humanity will soon be stretched across the continent and mark out a path for the Canadian railway.

THE YALE STEAMER.—It has not been decided, when the express left Yale, when the steamer would stop running.

How?—Be virtuous and thou'lt be happy.

THE CONTRAST.

How few there be who stop to think;
Who prize their being or its worth,
But court dishonor and the wink
Of passion's eye and murder's oath—
A foul display of cowards both.

Poison's drop from from old upas Time,
Made doubly deadly by abuse
Long-distilled from serpent crime,
The basis still of wrong's excuse;
Argument of fools still in use.

As if reason told them nothing!
As if conscience sleeps for ever!
To ways of beastly shame they cling;
Coward-like, insult the Giver,
And boast they have done passing clever

They think of nothing—madness wins;
Jealousy winks some armour smiles;
Hellish augmented former sins;
More fuel on shame's black furnace piles
Spending time ruinous the whiles.

Though honors still on Eden's wings
Or the sacred doves from the ark
The olive branch of pleasure brings
Pure as light that dispels the dark,
Or joy of May's ascending lark.

Life was given to be joyous,
In honor to the gift bestowed.
Must vain folly's way's destroy us?
Thus lose the comforts of the good?
And sink beneath the ire of God?

Lose that home of purer pleasure
Which outlives such nurslings of time?
Sacred hills of endless treasure,
Where God in purity sublime
Divinely fills out its measure?

A collection of twenty-five pins, very well made, has just been placed in the Louvre. They were found in the subterranean vaults of Thebes, and were made more than 3,000 years ago, showing that the modern invention is only a reinvention.

An extraordinary case of incendiarism occurred at Leamington, England, a few weeks ago. A man in custody confessed to having set fire to some corn stacks by which damage to the extent of some £800 was done, for no other reason than that he was tired of life and wished to be transported.

A report crept into the papers that the Princess of Wales' children "take to donkeys." Scores of British snobs at once left for Wildbad in the hope of attracting the patronage of infantile royalty.

The following advertisement appeared in a recent New York paper: "If you want a really pure and unsophisticated family pill, buy Dr. R— liver-encouraging, kidney-persuading, silent perambulator, 27 in a box. This pill is as mild as a pet lamb and as searching as a small-tooth comb. It don't go fooling about, but strictly attends to business, and is as certain as an alarm clock."

A Scotchman says he has no notion how much Mrs. Stowe got for her article on Lord Byron, but he is quite certain that she has made a "Deil" out of him.

M. Boutet, the celebrated French engineer, who conceived the project of joining France and England by means of a railway bridge, is about to demonstrate its practicability by building a bridge a thousand yards in length between St. Malo and St. Servan on the principle embodied in his projected Channel bridge.

A French chemist, struck by the unpleasantness attendant on nocturnal explorations, has invented a method of rendering the numbers of houses and names of shops as easily visible by night as by day. It consists in rubbing the figures and letters with a certain phosphoric paste, which, though not discernible in the daylight, will in the dark shine with perfect distinctness. The application would only require renewing about once a month, and involves a very trifling expense.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A Curious Weapon.—The Des Moines (Iowa) Register says: "A gentleman from Adair county passed through town a few days since on his way to Washington to obtain a patent upon a cannon that a man laboring on his farm had invented, which he says will hurl a ball of death and destruction a distance of fourteen miles. The wonderful ball of this wonderful gun is to be of seven parts, with some six fuses. The power of the cannon sends the ball humming two miles from the muzzle, lighting fuse No. 1, which burns to the powder in the ball in the time the ball travels two miles, when an explosion takes place which sends the ball two miles further, when fuse No. 3 does it duty and propels the ball two miles further, and so on to the end of the fuses and the fourteen miles." This beats the gun which was once invented to shoot round a corner.

Misery Relieved.—"Excuse me for troubling you," said a gentleman one day to a noted philanthropist, "but there is in your neighborhood a poor woman in the last extremity of misery. If she has not the necessary sum to pay her rent, to-day she will be turned out into the street. The sum needed is twenty dollars." The philanthropist took the needed sum out of his pocket and asked the woman's address. "You can give it to me," he replied, taking the money and putting it in his pocket. "I am her landlord. Here is the receipt for the rent. How joyful she will be when you give it to her."

Poor Fellow!—The other day, at Bilston, William Perry, the "Tipton Slasher," some time wearer of the champion belt of England, applied to the magistrates for protection against a virago named Fanny Conway, who had threatened him with grievous bodily harm. The Bench granted the "Slasher" the protection he desired.
