WHOPPING HOSPITAL VOTE

Last Friday's plebiscite seeking $327,767 to help cover the cost of a new hospital to be built in close proximity to Sechelt resulted in an 84.2 percent vote in favor. The actual vote was 1,777 YES and 295 NO with 38 spoiled ballots making a total vote cast of 2,110.

Hospital Improvement District officials are elated at the result and marvel at the fact the plebiscite vote was 401 greater than the vote to set up a Hospital Improvement District taken on Dec. 12, 1960.

The area which showed greatest opposition to the new hospital, Egmont, Garden Bay and Madeira Park mustered 47 more votes for the plebiscite than for the H.I.D. vote.

There was also a swing against the hospital in the same areas among the voters who favored setting up of an H.I.D. For the H.I.D. vote there were 236 voters and for the plebiscite Friday 283 votes. For the three areas the H.I.D. vote was 116 YES and 120 NO. For the plebiscite Friday it was 80 YES and 203 NO.

For analysis of the other areas which were definitely in favor of a YES vote consult the table below:

	YES	NO	Spoils	Total
Egmont	8	18	—	26
Garden Bay	7	77	1	85
Madeira Park	65	108	2	175

Port Mellon	40	2	—	42
Gambier Island	14	—	—	14
TOTAL	1,777	295	38	2,110

So readers can compare the money plebiscite with the vote to form a hospital district, held on Dec. 12, 1960, here are the results of that vote:

Suspend activities of wharfinger

Due to the fact tariffs charged by federally appointed wharfingers are out of line with the times, the wharfinger in charge of Gibsons wharf has been suspended temporarily while the entire coastal situation concerning remaining wharves is examined, W. H. Payne, candidate for the Conservative party in the federal election informed Gibsons Board of Trade at Monday night's dinner meeting in the Mariner Cafe.

Mr. Payne maintained the present charges concerned coastal steamship traffic, now practically non-existent.

Mr. Payne argued that a review must be made of west coast policy in line with requirements. Wharves as used in the past were not needed to the same extent these days but shelter for pleasure craft was becoming much more of a necessity and he said he would work for much more protection for pleasure craft.

On airport matters, Mr. Payne said there were some people who wanted the department of transport to take over the Sechelt-Gibsons Municipal airport. Mr. Payne said the idea of government participation in municipal airports concerned keeping detailed administration of such airports at the municipal level as such people know best the problems surrounding each airport.

Slowness in getting Gibsons breakwater repaired after it had been rammed by an oil tanker many months ago Mr. Payne said was caused by the settling of responsibility for payment of the repairs. The department of public works is now involved in legal proceedings with the Shell Oil company and insurance companies to settle that dispute. In the meantime creosoted pilings for this work were in such demand where work can proceed that there is none available for the Gibsons breakwater.

Rural mail routes on the Sunshine Coast area over the last four years have been extended 23 percent he said, and are now servicing at least 75 percent of the rural population. As regards the proposed Gibsons post office the site selected satisfied all departments concerned. There were three sites involved.

Commenting on earlier board of trade business which concerned the board's favoring a policy of sweepstakes and lotteries for Canada, Mr. Payne said he was seconder of the bill presented to parliament which asked for the establishment of sweepstakes and lotteries but unfortunately the bill was talked out.

Forestry problems occupied the latter part of his talk when he outlined his efforts before the committee on such matters which had met during recent parliamentary sessions for the first time in 30 years. He discovered that the United States had insisted on standards being set up on lumber shipped from Canada to the United States. This outlined the need for a department of forestry in government for Canada and now Canada has a little over three years in which to get such standards set up. Mr. Payne added he did not regret efforts he had made to improve forestry affairs.

The devalued dollar came, he said, because during the last four years the premium dollar was causing a loss of overseas markets. He explained that recent developments in the pulp industry involving expansion of production facilities would be of benefit to British Columbia.

Mr. Payne was introduced by A. E. Tidball of Roberts Creek and thanked by George Cooper of Gibsons.

Donnelly re-elected

Following the annual meeting of St. Mary's Hospital society in Madeira Park Community hall and Gibsons Elphinstone school auditorium Sunday, the trustees of the society elected John Donnelly as chairman, Harvey Hubbs as vice-chairman, Mrs. E. Warden as treasurer and A. Rutherford of Halfmoon Bay as recording secretary.

At the annual meeting there were about 70 at Maderia Park and 64 at Gibsons Elphinstone school meeting. Ballotting for two trustees due to terms of office having expired saw Harvey Hubbs re-elected with 120 votes. A. Rutherford with 133 votes. A. Lloyd who was also nominated polled 19 votes, 1 in Gibsons and 18 at Madeira Park.

First plane

Elphinstone Aero Club now has its first club owned aeroplane. It is a two-place 85 hp. Cessna 140 and will be available to all qualified members at a nominal charge. It was delivered on May 23.

Anyone interested can obtain further information on rates and other requirements from Dick Kendall, at 886-2057.

Water rate is reduced

The annual meeting of Hopkins Landing Water Users' Community was held in the hall on May 19. David Fyles was elected manager, in the place of Stanley Bracewell, who retired, and Mrs. Gloria Fyles was elected secretary-treasurer in the place of Percy Cambourne, who retired after having been in that office from the time of incorporation.

The management committee elected was Tom Fyles, John Lord, Alex Fairley and Eric Thomson. David Fyles report on last year's operations showed that all the work planned for had been completed, and as a good deal of the labor had been voluntary, there was still a substantial sum in hand, and that the current assessment could be reduced from $25 to $20, which proposal, unusual these days, was duly accepted by the meeting, with a vote of thanks to those who had made this possible.

NDP meeting

The New Democratic party is swinging into action in the Pender Harbour area with a public meeting to be held at the Community Hall, Madeira Park, at 8 p.m. on Friday, June 8. James Wallace will be chairman.

Outline garbage plan

Barrie MacDonald, provincial sanitarian for the area spoke to Gibsons Board of Trade Monday night in the Mariner Cafe on the garbage problem.

He explained that the reason for the general meeting called by the Howe Sound Farmers Institute in the Parish Hall Wednsday night was to impress on provincial authorities the need for implementing the Local Service act in this area to cover the garbage problem.

Mr. MacDonald said present arrangements for the collection of garbage from Egmont to Langdale, lacked one essential, that of compulsory use of the system.

There were many who preferred to dump garbage wherever they could instead of taking it to the facilities now available In Gibsons with a free enterprise garbage collection system, only 50 percent of the public was using it. He maintained it should be made compulsory. Wednesday night's meeting he believed would urge Victoria to take steps to rectify the situation on the Sunshine Coast.

William McAfee introduced Mr. MacDonald and Charles Bourne thanked him for his exposition on the garbage situation.

Ken McHeffey chaired the board meeting in place of Charles Mandelkau who was attending a B.C. Chamber of Commerce meeting in Victoria.

The board decided by vote that it would change its name from board of trade to Gibsons and Area Chamber of Commerce. It will take time for this name to be registered. Mrs. Wynne Stewart was delegated to attend a district board meeting at Pender Harbour Hotel to discuss further formation of a Sunshine Coast area board of trade district.

Are these yours?

Have you lost a .22 calibre rifle and hunting knife lately? How about a diamond engagement ring or a wedding ring?

The rifle and knife were found in the bush near the Salvation Army camp at Langdale. RCMP now have it.

The engagement ring was found near Gibsons Building Supply premises on Seaview Road. The wedding ring was found near Lang's drug store. There are both at Lang's drug store where they can be claimed.

Continuous digester operating

Canadian Forest Products $1,000,000 Kamyr continuous digester was placed in operation at 7 p.m. Tuesday for the first time.

This new digester is part of the $14,000,000 expansion program now under way at Port Mellon. It is the first continuous digester to operate on the west coast.

One of its features is that the bottom 30 feet is built for the washing of pulp after it has been cooked.

Expansion for tourism

A special general meeting will be held in Pender Harbour hotel, Sunday June 3 starting at 2 p.m. when the executive of the Sunshine Coast Tourist association will submit a notice of motion to broaden the membership and work of the association.

This will mean the constitution and bylaws will have to be amended so the association can constitutionally and financially continue to promote the tourist industry in a bigger and better way.

Section 1 of Article IV of the constitution and Bylaws of this association reads in part—"The membership of the Sunshine Coast Tourist Association shall be limited to Motel, Hotel, Resort and cabin owners or operators, Boat rental operators, and trailer court operators — all of whom must be licenced to serve the tourist industry, and transportation companies serving the Sunshine Coast."

After serious consideration by the executive, it has been found necessary to broaden the scope of membership and activity of the association to include any persons and businesses serving the Sunshine Coast and who are interested and will help to further build the tourist industry on the Sunshine Coast. A survey has been made in part showing a big increase in 1961 business over 1960. With the proposed increase in ferry services the volume of visitors will steadily increase and the whole Sunshine Coast must prepare to properly receive the tourists and to keep them coming and staying longer.

Dog-fish Derby

Sechelt Peninsula Rod and Gun will hold a special dog-fish derby Sun., June 3 to attempt to eliminate a few of these pesky fish that have been plagueing local fishmen.

Open to all fishermen with a yen for an evening of fun, free herring will be supplied by the club for bait. Prizes will be given for the most dog fish caught, and all fish will be returned to their lucky owners if so desired.

Having the blessing of the local fisheries officer, the club hopes the idea will spread to other coastal clubs, and a larger dent will be made in the population of these mud sharks.

With a life span of thirty years and an average of forty young in this span, it is felt every dog fish killed today means hundreds in a matter of ten years. The club strongly recommends to all participants steel leaders and a sense of humor. For further information, consult your active Rod and Gun members or phone Sechelt Rod and Gun Thursday evening between 8 and 10:30 p.m. at 885-2115.

The hospital plebiscite

The area's verdict on the $327,767 plebiscite for a new hospital showed even greater strength than did the vote for formation of a hospital improvement district.

There were 401 more voters on the plebiscite than on the H.I.D. balloting. What made them come out? Was it a determination to be definite about an expression of opinion, in case anyone had doubts about the result? Was it because the great majority of the voting public needed no argument that the area required modern hospital and equipment?

It could have been any one of the above or a combination of both. However a determined electorate has spoken. Perhaps there might have been an "i" undotted or a comma misplaced somewhere along the path leading towards the plebiscite. If that "i" had been dotted or comma in its right place it would have made no difference. Eighty percent of the possible number of voters who could have marked their ballots did so and of that percentage 84.2 voted in favor of obtaining the money for a new hospital.

It should also be pointed out that at the annual meeting of St. Mary's Hospital Society with a total of approximately 140 members present, the leader of the opposition in Pender Harbour who sought re-election on the board of trustees received 19 votes while two other candidates obtained 133 and 120.

A member at the Gibsons meeting Sunday complimented the leader of the opposition at Pender Harbour for being a fighter who used his democratic right to oppose. If it was his democratic right to try and kill the new hospital and retain the old St. Mary's, the vote last week gave him a democratic answer and one which he should respect.

Characters change

If one seeks mental recreation and a picture of the past at the same time, reading national histories can do this and also make one realize that today's world-wide unsettled state is by no means a new development.

Take for example the histories of Spain and Portugal, tied together as a unit historically. Spain's foreign affairs down through the years took in the Low Countries of Europe, the West Indies, Cuba and parts of South America. Portugal's far-flung empire included areas in India and South China Sea areas.

The political scene had as actors Celts, Carthaginians, Romans, Visigoths, Muslims, Flemings, Frenchmen, Germans and Englishmen with naturally the centre of the stage being Spain and Portugal including incursions into Italy, the Lowlands and other areas of the world.

There was through the history of both nations the same doubts that exist today in the minds of the average person and peace was just as evasive then as it is now. The growth of a nation is always an interesting study but during the course of one's investigations one discovers the yesterdays a long, long way back, have much in common with today's political maelstrom. The characters have changed but the aims have not.

Nuclear power plant

Canada's first nuclear plant went into operation April 11 at Rolphton, Ontario, on the Ontario River. After a series of tests it will begin producing electricity for the Ontario grid later this year.

The plant called Nuclear Power Demonstration (N.P.D.) is a co-operative project of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., and Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

It will produce 20,000 KW of power and is designed to demonstrate the feasibility of the heavy-water-cooled, heavy-water moderated type of reactor. It is the prototype of larger plants such as the 200,000 KW station now being built at a cost of $80,000,000 at Douglas Point near Lake Huron.

The commercial application of nuclear power is well ahead of schedule. Ten years ago it was only a possibility and only the very optimistic ventured to predict that it might begin to compete with conventional sources of electricity by 1980. However due to necessity in Britain, research and developments have been intensive and now the timetable is considerably advanced.

The decision to build these first two plants in Ontario shows that before many more years have elapsed new power production in British Columbia may come from this source. It should be a source of comfort and satisfaction to the people of British Columbia that our main salmon rivers have not been dammed and will continue to support this great resource. — From Facts on Fish.

Who pioneered electric street lighting in Canada?

In September 1884, the town council of Pembroke, Ontario, contracted for five street lights "to be kept burning from dusk until one a.m." Pembroke was also involved in one of the earliest long distance telephone conversations when Thomas Ahearn of Ottawa talked from his home with Henry Bott at Pembroke, about 100 miles distant. Two cigar boxes housed the apparatus.

Which province is "The Garden of the Gulf?

Prince Edward Island, the smallest province of Canada in both area and population, is situated in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and is often called "The Garden of the Gulf." The area of Prince Edward Island is 2184 square miles — about one-tenth of one percent of the total land area of Canada. Crescent-shaped, it is only 120 miles long and 3 to 35 miles wide. The landscape is low and rolling, the soil rich and of a distinctive red color.

What Canadian lake is home for a monster?

Ogopogo is the name of a reputed monster in Lake Okanagan in British Columbia. Reports of seeing it have frequently occurred. It has been described by some as having a heavy snake's body, twenty feet long, with the well bearded head of a horse or goat. Others say that the Monster, like the spelling of its name, appears the same when viewed from either end.

What Indian tribe's folklore inspired the Hiawatha poems?

The Ojibwa which today numbers about 20,000 had a rich folk-lore of which a number of themes and characters have been introduced into English in the Hiawatha poems of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

Most of the Ojibwa, who inhabited an enormous wooded area from the Ottawa Valley west to the Prairies, live today on reserves in Ontario and the adjacent States, earning their livelihood as hunters, trappers and guides.

LETTERS to editor

Editor: There is one thing we have to admire about the Liberal, Conservative and NDP. They are not afraid to let their candidates hold public meetings to explain their stands on various issues, and to try to answer questions from the public. John L. Gordon.

Editor: We would like to thank you very sincerely for the publicity you have given our May Day festivities. However we would appreciate your publishing a correction. The Maypole dance was performed by pupils of Sechelt Elementary school under the direction of Mesdames Lang and Slater of the school staff. The parade was marshalled by Mr. Bill Smith. Monkey's tail denotes status

A study-team of Japanese scientists is steadily disproving the theory that monkeys, as somebody in the movies used to say, are the craziest people.

A group from Kyoto University, now in its 10th year of surveying monkeys on Mount Takasaki, has found that the animals have a well organized social structure based upon necessary consideration for their fellows.

For example, a monkey troop's class structure is made up of leaders, sub-leaders, and peripheral males. When the troop is gathered, the leaders occupy the central position with all the females and infants, the sub-leaders form an inner council around them, while the peripheral males range around the outer circumference as sentinels against enemies.

Monkeys apparently have both a group and private life. They are disciplined members of the troop for troop management and defence, but are left to live their private lives for such matters as eating and sleeping.

Rank is expressed by the height to which a monkey carries his tail. When a newcomer arrives with his tail held high, the previous leader may drop his tail in deference to higher rank and step aside.

There are also sounds of deference which can be clearly understood by those members of the scientific party who can interpret up to 30 monkey utterances.

However, a leader may prevail for a long time. The Mount Takasaki study group observed an intrepid and adventurous leader named Jupiter control his troop for eight years, partly because he had the support of the troop's females, until he died and was succeeded by a more sedate and dignified leader named Titan.

The Japanese scientists seem to admire the monkeys for the way they can dive into five feet of water to recover food, and for the way they will take food found on the beach to the water to wash it before eating.

If anything raises the eyebrows of the study team, it's the monkeys' matrimonial arrangements. It seems that a monkey is a very faithful partner in marriage — but only for about one week before he takes up with another partner. But even then, the scientists say defensively, he never seems to dwindle in affection for any of the children of his widespread marriages.

Douglas subject of book

From its beginning in depressed and drought-ridden Saskatchewan until the day in 1961 when its eloquent leader, Tommy Douglas, packed his bags and left to lead the New Democratic party federally, this is the story of North America's only working model of a Socialist government.

Author Tyre, Regina editor and at one time a writer in the employ of the Saskatchewan CCF government, though not a party adherent, has produced a tightly written, highly readable account of the Douglas years in Saskatchewan.

The first and only book of its kind, Douglas in Saskatchewan may be as controversial as its controversial subject, for few are neutral where the fiery Douglas is concerned.

Through the pages of this book run the accounts of battles and skirmishes won and lost, the sociological explanations of party beginnings, the promises and the performances, the achievements and the disappointments. And suffusing the whole account is the personality of the slight Scottish-born "wizard of words" who pictured a prairie Utopia in agrarian Saskatchewan. He labored to make his dreams bear fruit, then dominated the political scene by sheer personality when many of the dreams had faded in the ever-present realities of Canadian workaday life and other experiments were fighting for survival.

Filled with facts and with exhaustive research of the record of 16 years, Douglas in Saskatchewan is not only a contribution to literature as a uniquely interesting phase of Canada's political life, but with report and anecdote, it throws light on the life and personality of a man who has been described as the ablest platform politician in Canada today.—Mitchell Press Vancouver, 1962, 212 pp, $3.50.

LIKE IT LIGHT

Many land mammals and birds depend on forests for cover, for a place to escape their enemies and a place in which to seek shelter from deep snow and stormy winters. Most of our wildlife prefers to live along the edges of forest stands rather than deep within the heavy forest itself. It is really on the edge of the forest, where this adjoins open areas or clearings made by man, that the greatest variety of animals and birds is to be found.

CHANGING TRENDS

Among the factors contributing to the more general use of smaller logs and the gradual disappearance of mills specializing in the production of big timbers is the development and growing popularity of glued-laminated timbers now in much demand for their unique architectural and structural characteristics. Glulam trusses and arches have high decorative as well as structural qualities and are widely favored by designers of commercial and industrial building, schools and churches.

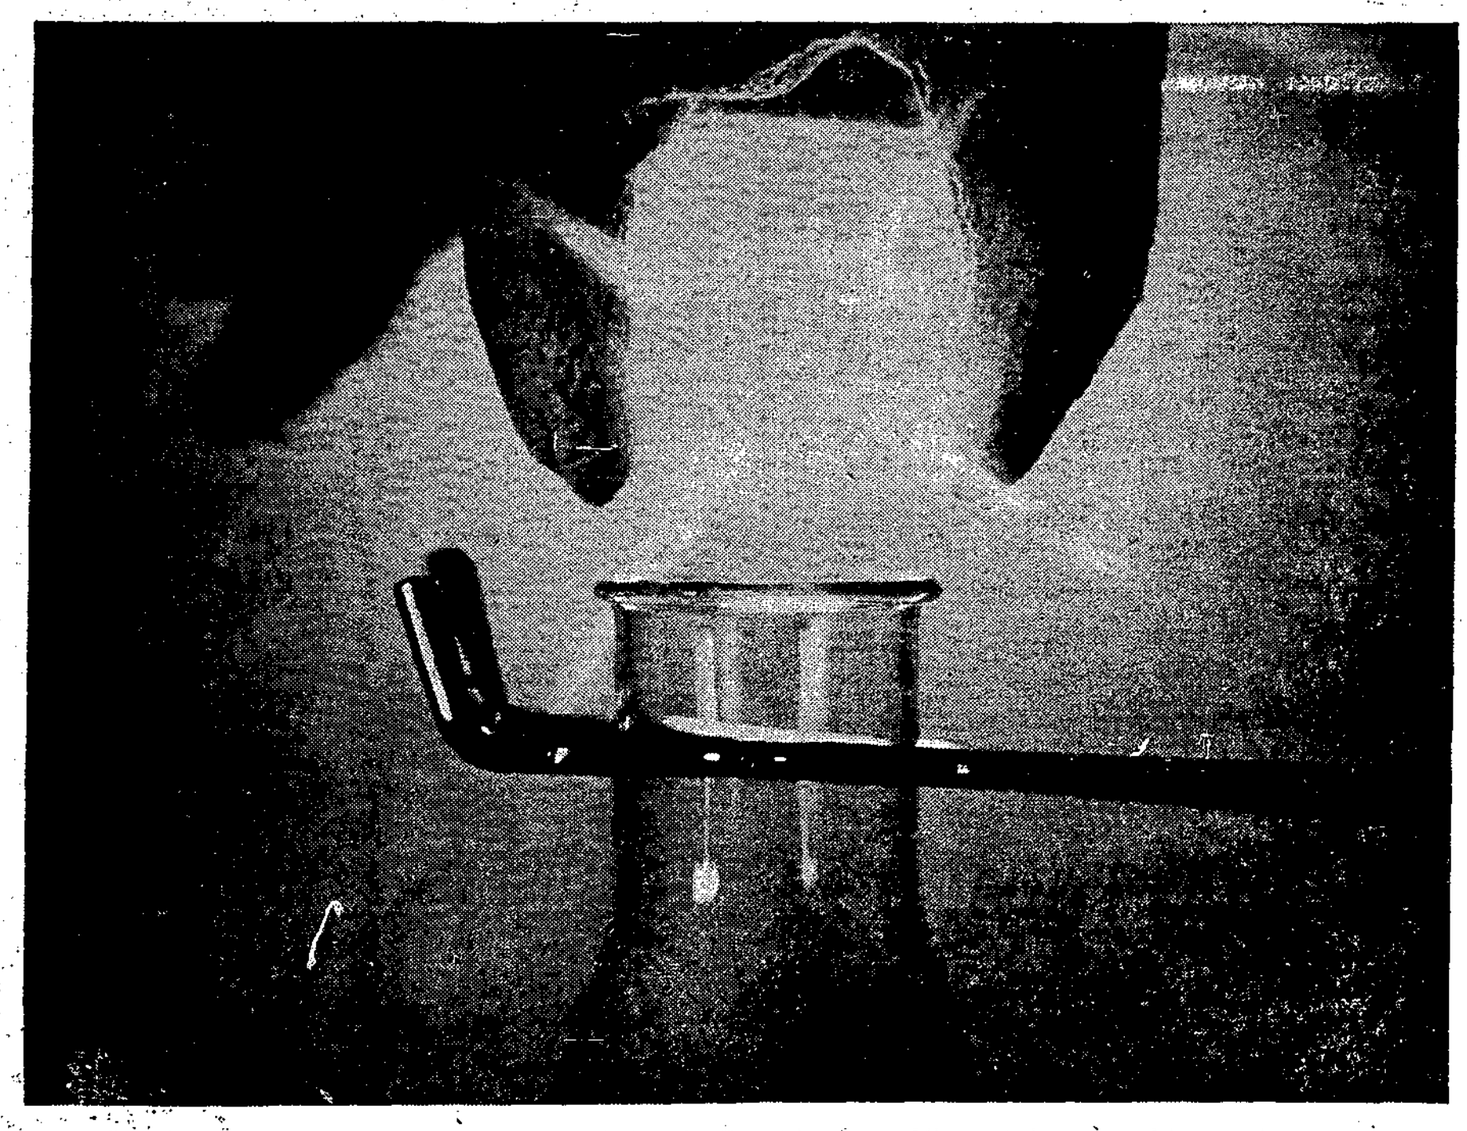
90% of all oil company product research in Canada is done by Imperial

At Imperial Oil's laboratories at Sarnia, Ontario, more than 200 scientists and technicians are working to improve present petroleum products—and to develop new ones. Their research covers many fields, from gasolines to household detergents.

Another 130 scientists and technicians are working at Imperial's Calgary laboratories on ways to find and produce more Canadian crude oil and natural gas. Imperial does more research than all other oil companies in Canada combined.



Every barrel of crude oil contains some of the sun's heat. Imperial research works to unlock more of this energy. After five years' intensive research, Imperial found a chemical additive which makes more heating oil available from Canadian crude oil. One important result: less oil imported to heat Canadian homes.

Good health and your health

Headaches are one of the most common afflictions in these modern times of tension and stress.

Temporary relief may be welcome, but the wise course to follow is to have the cause located and eliminated, since headaches are usually only a warning symptom of some deep-seated abnormal process. Repeated deadening of the pain without heeding the warning is like turning off the fire alarm and neglecting the raging fire.

Several books would be required to outline the various types of headaches together with the many related factors. The most common cause of headaches is displacement (subluxation) of one or more neck vertabrae or related discs.

The pain of sinusitis is at times excruciating and can be mistaken as resulting from eyestrain and other conditions. Sinus inflammation has been successfully treated by Doctors of Chiropractic when nerves supplying the sinuses are normalized.

Such conditions as constipation, anemia, kidney disorders, both high and low blood pressure, or allergy can produce headaches. However these diseases also have an underlying cause — frequently due to nerve irritation caused by spinal displacements.

The chiropractic approach to the headache problem includes careful spinal and x-ray examination for diagnostic purposes. Displaced vertabrae are scientifically manipulated or adjusted to remove the cause of nerve impingement or irritation. The warning of persistent headache should not be ignored.

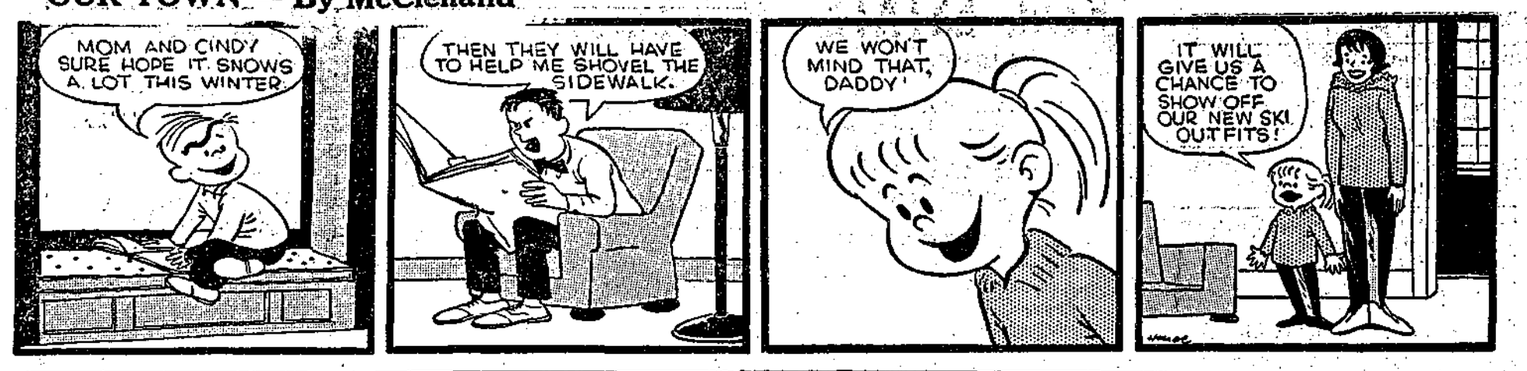
The St. Mary's Hospital Society Construction Committee thanks the Ladies Auxiliaries of Sechelt, Gibsons and Halfmoon Bay and all individuals who gave so much of their time and efforts towards making a success of the May 25 Plebiscite.

Without the co-operation of all these people the results of the vote may not have been so gratifying.

OUR TOWN — By McClelland



Sacrament given to 20 children

Most Pure Heart of Mary Roman Catholic Church was the scene of a ceremony on Sunday, May 27, when 20 children from Gibsons and Sechelt districts received the Sacrament of Holy Eucharist for the first time.

Preceding the Mass which was celebrated by the pastor, Rev. J. D. O'Grady, the procession entered the church led by an assembly of girls dressed in pale blue dresses and carrying a crown of flowers which was placed upon the head of the statue of the Blessed Virgin Mary, Mother of Jesus. This is a special tribute paid during May, the month set aside by the church to honor the Blessed Mother.

As the children approached the altar to receive the Lord in Holy Communion, Mrs. Frank Lauer sang a solo, "Jesus, Thou Art Coming."

Following Mass the children travelled to the Peninsula Hotel to share a Communion breakfast

Heirloom used

An heirloom christening gown a hundred years old and worn by her great grandmother and succeeding generations was worn by Victoria Eileen (Vicki), infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Cruice for her baptism in Gibsons United Church on Mothers' Day.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. G. Gulbransen, Vancouver and Mr. and Mrs. F. Cruice, Gibsons.

A buffet luncheon was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Cruice following the event, and out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. G. Gulbransen, Vancouver, Mr. and Mrs. R. Altree and family, North Vancouver, and Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Tjorhom and family, Kleindale.

William E. Dale

Mr. William Ernest Dale, a resident for the past eight years of Soames Point, passed away following a long illness, at St. Paul's Hospital, Vancouver, on May 26.

Born Feb. 8, 1884 at Clytha, Wales, he came to Canada in 1905 and worked in Toronto until returning to marry Blodwen Watson in September, 1907. Mrs. Dale passed away in October 1960.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale lived in Winnipeg and Saskatoon before coming to Vancouver in 1918. In 1926, he became assistant chief engineer of the power plant at the University of British Columbia at the time it opened in West Point Grey and chief engineer in 1944. In 1954 he retired and came to live at Soames Point permanently, having spent many summers there with his family prior to that time.

Mr. Dale leaves two sons, Charles J. of Vancouver, Harold E. of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, a daughter Violet (Mrs. H. F. Harris) also of Vancouver, and a sister, Helena of Santa Barbara, California, three grandsons, two grandaughters and two great-grandsons.

He was buried beside his wife at the Masonic Cemetery, Burnaby, on Wednesday, May 30. He was a member of the Southern Cross Lodge, Vancouver.

Letters to the editor

Editor: The Gibsons and District Board of Trade publicly extend a warm vote of thanks to Mr. Les Hempsall and his committee of the St. Mary's Hospital Society and to everyone who worked towards the passage of the hospital improvement plebiscite.

The strength of the approval vote is a tribute to this public spirited group's efforts and will ensure that this area has a modern hospital in the near future.

R. Whiting, D.C., secretary.

Editor: The copies of the Coast News arrived in the Harbour today (May 24). As many suspected you did not publish the reply we sent to you to Hon. Eric Martin's letter. Will you please publish it in your next issue, as not only is it informative but as one letter was published it is only right that the reply should be too.

K. E. Jermain.

Editor's note: Mrs. Jermain's letter arrived after 11 a.m. Wednesday morning of last week when the last page was practically ready to go on the press. An explanation was given as to why it did not appear in that issue. However the letter which follows was all set in type first thing on Thursday morning for the issue now available and quite probably before Mrs. Jermain had written the above letter.

Dear Mr. Martin,

I amongst others was very much shocked when I read the enclosed in the Coast News. Your letter was written to the Pender Harbour Hospital Committee and received by our secretary, Mr. Trappitt, and we had not all had the opportunity of reading it before its publication. We presume that a copy of this letter was sent to Mr. Donnelly for his information.

When I, Mr. Lloyd and Mr. Scoular talked with you last August 15th, you were most insistent that you did not wish us to quote you in any of your conversation with us. That wish we have sincerely respected. The publication of your letter to our committee by a second party seems therefore, outrageous. Could it be that you asked the president of St. Mary's Hospital society, Mr. Donnelly, to do this? Or could it have come about on the demand of Mr. Andrew Johnson, the government representative on the board of trustees?

Just to put the record straight; Many people still live here who helped in the building of St. Mary's Hospital, and know the facts. St. Mary's was built on land donated by a private citizen, by private donations of money and materials, contributions from the Columbia Coast Mission and the Anglican Church, and by voluntary labor of residents, young and old, living in this district. The architect donated his work and the plans. The wharf and the roadway were built by the government at the request of the Department of Indian Affairs and others, after the hospital was built, to enable easy access to it from the sea and to Garden Bay.

With regard to your remarks as to the annual general meeting of St. Mary's Hospital Society, I would like to point out that our society should be ruled by its constitutions, bylaws, and the Societies Act. These have been contravened in the most flagrant manner, and the time has come when members will no longer put up with this without protest. There are members who only get a mail delivery once a week, and they would have received their notices of the meeting on April 19 instead of April 26, had the so-called "technicality" been observed. Some were therefore unable to arrange to attend the meeting.

You quote the brief submitted in 1959. During the time that has elapsed since that was drawn up you are aware that conditions have changed considerably. We presented you with those facts last August, and it is for this reason that the then president of the society is now a member of our Pender Harbour committee.

As chairman of the Pender Harbour Hospital committee, and in view of the fact that you especially asked that your remarks during our conversation with you should not be quoted, I would be much obliged if you will explain why this letter was published over your signature by someone outside our committee.

Your very truly,
K. E. Jermain, Chairman, Pender Harbour Hospital Committee.

Following is a copy of the letter which was intended to go before St. Mary's Hospital society annual meeting but was rejected by vote of members present. This and the letter to Hon. Mr. Martin were both to have been read at the annual meeting but the vote killed that possibility.

Registrar of Companies,
Victoria, B.C.

Dear Sirs: Owing to a good deal of dissension among the members of this society, I feel it my duty, as past chairman for some few years, to advise you as follows:

(1) The Annual General Meetings of this Society have been held, as a rule, on Sundays — which I am informed is against British Common Law — and to which objections have been raised on religious grounds — and also people did not want to be upset by arguments on Sunday.

(2) For the past year meetings of the Board of Trustees of the Society have not been held in Pender Harbour, contrary to the Constitution and Bylaws of the Society.

(3) The 1962 Annual General Meeting is called for Sunday, May 27, contrary to the Bylaws of the Society (Article VI, Sec. 1.)

(4) The 1962 Annual General Meeting is to be held in two parts 50 miles apart, simultaneously — with no provision for the discussion in one meeting to be heard in the other — the only connection being by phone. This contravenes Article III of the Constitution of the Society — and I imagine the Societies Act as well.

The above actions and others by the present Board of Trustees are being strongly criticized by a large group of Pender Harbour residents who are members of the Society.

A. A. Lloyd.

Several hundred at store opening

Several hundred persons attended the opening sale of J. J. Rogers and Co., Ltd. at Sunnycrest Plaza, Tues., May 22 to Fri. May 25 and numerous comments were heard that the store filled a great need in the area for a quality furniture and appliance mart.

One feature of the opening sale was the playpen set up for the youngsters to enable mother to take a good look at the products laid out on the floor. Attending the opening and remaining for three days was Archie Badger, representing Fleetwood TV.

Prize winners of the free draws were Ted Fearn, chair; M. D. Randel, radio; M. Zabo, hairdryer; E. Fletcher, vanity bench; E. R. Shaw, stool; Mrs. Allibone, blanket; D. Machon, bedspread; S. Allibone, TV lamp; J. Walton, pillows and B. Zabo, ash tray.

DAVIS IN SECHELT

About 50 persons heard Dr. John Davis, Liberal Coast Capilano constituency candidate in the federal election. He was introduced by Joe Benner. Tom Duffy was chairman. Following the meeting refreshments were served and Dr. Davis took the opportunity to meet many Sechelt area people.

The Turning Point:

Freer trade & greater Prosperity for all

By

JACK DAVIS

for Coast-Capilano Riding

Trade is the backbone of our provincial economy. Half of every single dollar which we earn from industry and commerce is derived from sales which we make in the United States and abroad. Our attitude to these countries in tailoring our exports to their needs, and a willingness on our part to accept goods and services which they want to sell to us, is vital to the survival of our economy.

The Conservatives, while they hate to admit it openly, are protectionist minded. They don't want us to buy from outside the country. They raise tariffs on British woolens, European automobiles and imports of electrical equipment from the Commonwealth and elsewhere. Quotas have been put on radios from Japan, and so it goes. Often we sell far more to these people than they do to us. But the present Government wanting to protect the big manufacturing industries in the East, keeps putting obstacles in the way of our buying things at the lowest possible price.

The Liberals are more confident; more aggressive. We push our exports hard and give the consumer a break by letting him buy his food, his textiles and his equipment as cheaply as he can. Some exceptions will have to be made in order to maintain a high level of employment, but the trend, under a Liberal Government, will be towards fewer restrictions and freer trade between the nations of the world.

Here in B.C. the choice is obvious. To have a buoyant economy we must expand our production. We must up-grade more of our forest and mineral resources before they leave our shores. Mounting sales of processed goods to Europe, freer entry to the United States and more give and take across the Pacific is the answer. More Canadians will have well paid jobs and their dollar will go farther. This, then, is the direction in which we must move. Vote Liberal for freer trade and greater prosperity for all!

Abduction trial

Charges of abduction against three Powell River men were dismissed in County Court at Powell River last week but a fourth person, Shirley Cummings, was found guilty by Judge R. A. Sargent. Cummings was remanded for sentence, on continuing bail of $500.

Abduction charge against Michael Avizoff, Norman Casparie and David Seidel was dismissed. Seidel was dismissed Tuesday prior to any argument by the Crown or defence. Charge against Avizoff and Casperi was dismissed with Judge Sargent explaining he felt there was no intent on the part of Avizoff and Casperi to deprive the mother of her child.

Cummings, on the stand, said she was taking the baby, an eight month old boy, to Vancouver where she was going to eventually meet the baby's father. The father, H. Duker, denied knowledge of this when giving testimony.

The abduction complaint was made by Mrs. I. M. Graham (known locally as Mrs. H. Duker). Mrs. Graham said she had left the baby in the care of a local woman. Later a woman and group of men came to the home and asked for the baby, saying they were returning the child to his mother. The four charged with abduction were arrested in Gibsons on February 15.

WATER SAFETY WEEK

During 1961, 153 men, women and children lost their lives in British Columbia in drowning accidents. Ken Draper, Red Cross Water Safety chairman for B.C., in announcing national Red Cross Water Safety Week as June 3 through 9 said the national safety experts forecast the needless death of nearly 1,000 Canadians through drowning before the end of 1962 vacation season. A knowledge of the simple water safety rules is contained in the Red Cross water safety manual and it can be obtained through the Red Cross.

BIG TATTOO

The largest Canadian military Tattoo ever held on the North American continent is scheduled to take place during Canada Week at the Seattle World's Fair. The two-hour long spectacle of Canadian soldiers, sailors, airmen and Royal Canadian Mounted Police will be presented at 8 p.m., Sept. 10 - 15. Some 750 men will be involved.

Camera tips

Like your watch, your camera performs better with a semi-annual check-up and cleaning.

Watch your horizon line in outdoor scenes. Be sure it's straight in your camera's viewfinder.

If you just purchased a new camera, shoot a couple of rolls and have them developed before you go on vacation. This way you will become more familiar with your camera and get better pictures on your holiday.

Don't store film on your loaded camera in the glove compartment or in the back window of your car while travelling — it's much too hot there.

To add interest to your scenic snaps, use trees, posts or fences in the foreground to frame your pictures.

Keep your picture backgrounds simple. The sky is a fine background for pictures in the country.

Composition is often the difference between an "also-ran" and a prize-winning picture.

New director

British Columbia Junior Red Cross with more than 134,000 members has a new provincial director with wide Red Cross experience in Mrs. Isla Service, who started her new duties in Red Cross headquarters, West Pender Street on May 1st. The new director was herself a junior member during her pre-graduate school days in Montreal where she was born and educated.

In 1943 Mrs. Service served in the European war zone with the Overseas Detachment of Canadian Red Cross Corps, being seconded to the British Ministry of Health for special duty in emergency hospitals. She spent six years in France, Sweden, Austria and Germany, whose national languages she speaks fluently.

This week's RECIPE

SURPRISE! STUFFING UNDER ALL!

If your family is small or your guests few, you'll delight in this recipe for a holiday bird, cleverly portioned and baked on top of a tangy stuffing. In fact, this Saucy Chicken with Citrus Stuffing can be the answer to menu problems on many occasions. A chicken from the freezer, or cut-up chicken from the store can be fashioned quickly into an oven meal that's easy to prepare and delicious to eat. An interesting sauce containing lemon and orange juice and rinds, brown sugar and sherry is used to baste the chicken pieces as they bake over the fluffy bread stuffing. The result is a new flavor in stuffed poultry a combination of tangy citrus, sweet sherry, bland bread cubes and meaty chicken. The test is in the tasting. Why not try it?

Saucy Chicken with Citrus Stuffing

2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
½ cup orange juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
2 tablespoons sherry
6 cups soft enriched white bread cubes
⅔ cup chopped parsley
1 teaspoon salt
One 3 pound frying chicken, quartered

Combine one teaspoon lemon rind with orange rind, orange juice, lemon juice and brown sugar in a small saucepan. Bring to a boil and simmer for 20 minutes. Remove from heat and add sherry. Combine soft bread cubes, parsley, salt and remaining lemon rind, and toss lightly. Place stuffing mixture in bottom of a lightly greased square baking dish or casserole. Place chicken quarters over stuffing, cut side down. Pour half the sauce over chicken and bake in a moderate over (350 deg. F.) for 45 minutes. Pour remaining sauce over chicken and cook for an additional 30 minutes. Yield: 4 servings.

COLD WEATHER STRATEGY

One never finds a beaver lodge in the north country that is not covered with uncemented sticks and branches, loosely laid, before cold weather sets in. The reason for this, no doubt, is to gather and retain as much snow as possible on the outside to help keep frost from the interior, in much the same way as human residents of the north pile spruce and other browse about their dwellings, for the same purpose.

Thanks go to helpers

On behalf of the Sechelt Auxiliary to the hospital, the president, Mrs. Cliff Connor thanks all who helped make Sechelt's May Day endeavour such a success.

The float in the parade occupied by two of the convenors dressed as nurses, took second prize; the rickshaw which followed, and on its poster pointed out the need for a new hospital, was an afterthought by Tommy Ono (coolie), and Bill Parsons (passenger).

Thanks are due Hansen's Transfer and Jack Redman for storing and delivering supplies for the concession stands. Many thanks, too, to all the good hearted husbands of members of the auxiliary who erected and dismantled the booths.

The hard-working convenors of the booths, Kay Nelson, Freda Wilson, Irene Burtnick, Pat Masterson and Harriet Newton especially thank the members and friends outside the auxiliary who willingly came forward and helped. All of them contributed enormously to the success of the enterprise, but in so doing, sacrificed their viewing of the entire afternoon's ceremony and entertainment by the cadets.

Contributions of pictures taken of the auxiliary float and concession stands, also flash pictures taken recently during the presentation of the plays would be greatly appreciated. They will be mounted in the auxiliary scrap book accompanied by the name of the donor. Please contact Mrs. Arthur Redman, publicity executive if you have such pictures.

61 TEMPERATURES. You will need one of them next time you cook. Will you get it?

Guessing games should be played in the living room – not the kitchen. With an electric range, every meal comes out just as you'd planned: meat done to a juicy, tender turn, vegetables plump and tasty, cakes light and high.

Why? Because electric cooking gives you precision temperature control. Take the oven for example. You select the exact temperature a particular food requires – from 200° to 500° – and you get it! Set the timer and leave the oven to do the rest. The temperature is maintained and when the roast, cake or pie is done, the timer rings. Or, if you're planning to be out gardening or shopping during the day, put the food in the oven and set the automatic clock control. While you're out, the oven comes on automatically, cooks the meal for the correct length of time, then shuts off!

Your appliance dealer can show you a variety of range styles and models. Dozens of automatic controls and features – all automatic and all designed to take the guesswork out of cooking.

NOTE ON EDUCATION

Father, showing paternal interest, admired the new book, and commented on the challenge in the longer sentences, more difficult words.

"Yeah," said the seven-year-old, "but it's still the same Dick, Jane and Sally jazz."

Don't overdo gardening

Although gardening is excellent therapy, there are some pitfalls and hazards to be avoided regardless of whether you are an expert or an amateur.

First of all, don't try to do too much at first. You are bound to be out of condition after months of inactivity, so work up to the more strenuous tasks gradually.

Be sure to have a first-aid kit available. Gardening can often cause cuts and scratches from sharp thorns and tools. Power tools are potential dangers, e.g., lawn mowers. Read the instructions first and study them carefully. If you are in doubt, consult a good mechanic.

Even the soil has germs lurking in the background. Tetanus germs can often be picked up where barnyard fertilizer is used, or where animals are around. The best precautionary measure is to have a tetanus toxoid shot now at the beginning of the season.

Even the gardening aids such as insect sprays, weed killers, etc., require care in use. Read and follow the directions carefully, and be sure to keep the containers capped and out of reach of children.

Last but not least, if you are allergic to insect bites, extra caution is required, and consult your doctor about desensitizing injections. Always remember that it is the open season for bees, wasps and spiders, and their stings can be very painful.

When you need a BEAUTY SHOP, you'll find one fast in the YELLOW PAGES of your Telephone Directory.

Gardiners meet

On Wednesday of last week, Mr. and Mrs. Stan Burt were hosts to the Gibsons and District Garden club. Instead of the planned garden meeting, the 18 members present and three guests spent a delightful afternoon indoors in front of a cheery log fire.

The members showed great enthusiasm in working toward better gardens, believing that attractive gardens are an asset to any community. An invitation is extended to those interested in gardening to visit the group, and bring their gardening problems.

Following a question period, tea and refreshments were served and the social half hour concluded with a group picture taken in the garden.

The next meeting will be at Mrs. E. A. Mainwaring's on Wed., June 27 at 2 o'clock. Mr. Tarrant from Vancouver will be the speaker.

They have the ability to cope with emergencies and to distinguish between minor and major injuries and accidents. They have been taught the ethics of baby sitting and play activities related to the various age levels.

Each girl successfully completing this course has a card to this effect and it is felt that these girls are able to give a good community service on child care and child safety.

The girls which have completed this course are: Roberta Quigley, Ph. 886-2173; Patty Smith, Ph. 886-7711; Wendy Billingsley, Ph. 885-2127; Pat Thomas, Ph. 886-9988; Linda Stanley, Ph. 886-9323 and Sue Forbes, Ph. 885-9758.

Boat operators liable

A wealthy Detroit industrialist, owner of a luxury cabin cruiser, invited an old school friend from Brandon, Man., to bring his family along on a cruise of the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Just as they were about to shove off, the boat owner asked his friend to sign a brief document — a waiver.

It discharged the owner from all liability in the event of an accident, no matter how caused, which might result in injury to the friend and his family.

The friend became a little irate, refused —to sign the waiver, and promptly hustled his family back to Brandon.

In this case the owner had a lot to lose. Under the Canada Shipping Act the owner and operator of a small boat or pleasure craft are civilly responsible and may be sued for damages for the death or injury to any passengers caused by the negligence of the operator.

A gratuitous passenger on a pleasure craft does not even have to establish gross negligence to succeed in a civil claim for damages.

The legal consensus is that all he has to establish is a breach of a duty to take care, and he will likely succeed in a suit.

Under highway laws in many states and provinces on this continent a gratuitous passenger has no right of recovery for damages against the driver or owner of the motor vehicle in which he is travelling.

But, the owner and operator of a small boat or pleasure craft is civilly responsible for his actions to his guest. So boatman beware!

Here are a few more bitter facts to consider. A boat owner and operator are civilly responsible for the wake or wash left by a craft — and can be sued for damage it may cause.

A boat owner and operator are responsible for the safety of a water skier being towed by the boat, and may be sued if the skier in injured.

There is also the question of criminal liability. Under the small vessels regulations 1958, a part of the Canada Shipping Act, the owner and operator of a small boat or pleasure craft which is operated in a manner dangerous to other water traffic are criminally liable on summary conviction to a fine not in excess of $500 or a prison term of six months.

The regulations also provide that an owner is responsible for the actions of the operator and would be equally liable on summary convictions with the operator for dangerous operation.

Proof or evidence required to obtain a conviction is no different than in other offences. In many circumstances the evidence of the complainant alone could be sufficient.

The owner or operator of a small boat or pleasure craft may be sued for damages for the injury or damages caused to other boats or property due to negligence of the operator.

A person who places an obstruction in navigable waters which causes damage may also be sued by a person who suffered damages. For example, if a person moved an unmarked boat at night in a channel or placed an unlighted obstacle he could be liable.

If a boat hits an obstruction, either the boat operator or the person who placed the obstruction there, or both, may be liable depending on the circumstances.

The liability would depend on whether (a) the boat was operated negligently, or (b) the person who placed the obstruction in the place in question was negligent.

constantly until the maple crystals formed. Thus was discovered the good gift of maple syrup and sugar.

Another legend explained why the sap had to be evaporated to produce syrup. Nakomis, the old grandmother of Manabush, accidentally cut the bark of a maple. Thick sweet syrup oozed from the cut. But when her grandson, Manabush, tasted it, he was sure that this valuable food store was obtained with too little effort. It would cause idleness among the women. So he took a vessel of water and threw it over the top of the trees — thus reducing the sap to its present consistency.

The main work of maple syrup and sugar making in the various Indian tribes undoubtedly fell to the women. The Department of Mines and Resources in Ottawa has a quaint engraving taken from Lafitau's "Moeurs des Savages Americains, (1742)" depicting a group of Indians making maple syrup. The chief is sitting on the ground infront of his tepee while the squaws carry the sap pails to the fire where the pots are boiling. One woman is chopping wood like an old hand.

"How did the Indians discover maple syrup?" a child questioned. "No one knows exactly, although they have two legends about it."

Long ago in the early Spring, an Iroquois brave and his squaw, living near the great St. Lawrence river, fell to quarrelling. The angry brave hurled his tomahawk at his squaw, then turned, and stalked off into the forest. She dodged the missile which lodged deeply in the bark of a big maple, and did not bother to remove it. The sap ran slowly out of the trunk where it was cut, down the tomahawk's handle which was pointing towards the ground at an angle into a cooking vessel on the ground.

Late in the afternoon, the squaw started preparations for dinner. Not bothering to empty cut the sap, she threw into the pot, wild rice, bits of venison, and other scraps of food. When her hungry brave returned, she fed him at once. As soon as he started to eat, he exclaimed over the delicious sweet taste. This was better than any stew he had ever eaten!

When he asked what flavoring she had added, the squaw wondered if the maple sap could have made the difference? Next day they gathered more sap, boiled and boiled it until the thick amber syrup appeared, stirring

A large number of Indians throughout the eastern half of Canada supplemented their meager food stores in the spring with this product of sugar or hard maple and the red maple. The syrup they poured on their hominy and wild rice. Occasionally they added it to meat and even soup instead of salt flavoring.

Scientific modern analysis has shown that a tablespoon of maple syrup equals seventy-five calories and is rich in a variety of minerals including calcium, sulphur and iron. The Red Men had no theories about its energy releasing merits compared to other foods. They just knew it tasted good.

The Indians had no very satisfactory way of straining the syrup to remove small twigs and other impurities. They used clay moulds of animals and figures for their maple sugar. Bark was shaped into a funnel to spoon the hot sap and syrup into containers. Some Indians dropped red hot stones into an earthen pot to hasten the boiling of the sap. But when they were able to buy large brass and iron kettles from the French and English, their syrup "industry" became much more efficient. These European pots were larger than their native vessels and they could stand a hot fire directly beneath without cracking. When they had a surplus of sap or sugar they sold it to the early settlers. Thus the phrase "As Canadian as maple syrup."

Grow raspberries?

Last winter abnormally low temperatures were recorded in January and again in the latter part of February and first part of March and winter injury has been noted on raspberries grown throughout the area. At the Abbotsford Small Fruits Substation relative differences in winter injury, based primarily on can dieback, were noted among approximately 100 varieties or seedlings growing in the accession trial.

The variety Washington was the most severely injured of all those grown. One reason for this was the fact that it had partially leafed during February before the second period of cold weather. Cuthbert, which is one of the parents of Washington, also showed extensive injury.

Other varieties which showed injury were Puyallup, which has Washington as one parent, Willamette and two English varieties, Malling Promise and Malling Landmark. Among the varieties which showed little or no winter injury were Summer, Newburgh, Canby, Latham, and Carnival.

The Turning Point:

Freer trade & greater Prosperity for all

By

JACK DAVIS

for Coast-Capilano Riding

Trade is the backbone of our provincial economy. Half of every single dollar which we earn from industry and commerce is derived from sales which we make in the United States and abroad. Our attitude to these countries in tailoring our exports to their needs, and a willingness on our part to accept goods and services which they want to sell to us, is vital to the survival of our economy.

The Conservatives, while they hate to admit it openly, are protectionist minded. They don't want us to buy from outside the country. They raise tariffs on British woolens, European automobiles and imports of electrical equipment from the Commonwealth and elsewhere. Quotas have been put on radios from Japan, and so it goes. Often we sell far more to these people than they do to us. But the present Government wanting to protect the big manufacturing industries in the East, keeps putting obstacles in the way of our buying things at the lowest possible price.

The Liberals are more confidcnt; more aggressive. We push our exports hard and give the consumer a break by letting him buy his food, his textiles and his equipment as cheaply as he can. Some exceptions will have to be made in order to maintain a high level of employment, but the trend, under a Liberal Government, will be towards fewer restrictions and freer trade between the nations of the world.

Here in B.C. the choice is obvious. To have a buoyant economy we must expand our production. We must up-grade more of our forest and mineral resources before they leave our shores. Mounting sales of processed goods to Europe, freer entry to the United States and more give and take across the Pacific is the answer. More Canadians will have well paid jobs and their dollar will go farther. This, then, is the direction in which we must move. Vote Liberal for freer trade and greater prosperity for all!

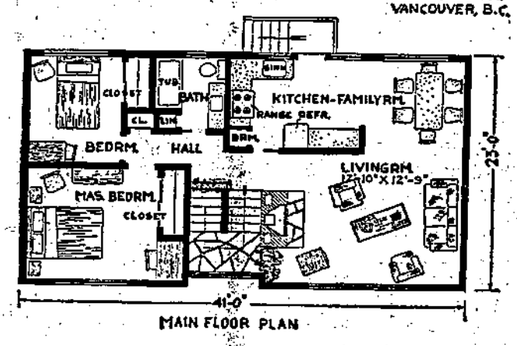
THE BUILDING CENTRE (B.C.) LTD.,
PLAN SERVICE
VANCOUVER, B.C.



MAIN FLOOR PLAN

Two things that most people are looking for, but rarely obtain in the smaller house, are the illusion of space, with room for expan-

With this in mind, we present another version of the ever popular split entry type of house, with two bedrooms on the upper or main floor, and room for further expansion in the lower level. Two bedrooms, or possibly a small suite could be embodied in the generous basement area. The designer has given this house plenty of large windows throughout to give lots of light.

The fireplace in the living room forms part of the entry wall, flanked on the one side by a planter or stubb wall. See how much space is then provided for attractive arrangement of furniture. The kitchen-dining-family room is planned for the convenience of all the family while mother's particular domain is planned for efficiency. On the practical side, the plumbing is planned back to back with the bathroom, for economical installation.

The attractive front of this house with the wide overhanging eaves welcomes the visitor, while the use of many of the new siding and stucco finishes make it a beautiful home.

The floor area of this version is 943 square feet, but it is also available in a larger square footage, with the same basic floor plan. Write the Building Centre for more information on the large version.

Working drawings are obtainable from the Building Centre B.C. Ltd., 116 East Broadway, Vancouver 10. New edition of "Select Homes Designs" Plan Book available by sending 25c to cover cost of mailing and handling.

Where fish are biting

Blueback provided the main sport fishing interest on the weekend, with continued catches reported from the waters from Porlier Pass northward to French Creek, as well as the report of their first appearance off Cape Mudge on Friday. A 34 pound, 12 ounce spring salmon was taken in Sechelt Inlet on Saturday.

HOWE SOUND — VANCOUVER — Fishing was generally spotty over the weekend, with small numbers of springs, jack springs and spring grilse taken over a wide area. The run of spring salmon to local waters appears to be below the normal level of abundance. Jack spring and spring grilse continue to make up the bulk of the catch, with a few springs in the 5-25 pound bracket making up the balance.

PENDER HARBOUR — Fishing was fair in this area Saturday but was hampered by adverse weather on Sunday. Coho averaging about 4 pounds made up most of the light catch, even though coho were reported in good supply in Vanguard Bay on Jervis Inlet. Terry Raines of Roberts Creek landed a 34 pound, 12 ounce spring salmon at Storm Bay in Sechelt Inlet on Saturday.
