Start test holes for new hospital

Underwood, McKinley and Cameron, architects designing the new hospital have reported their progress to members of St. Mary's Hospital Society construction committee. At present all areas have been approved by the British Columbia Hospital Insurance service except for minor details.

Preliminary work has started on the mechanical side such as plumbing, heating and ventilating as well as on electrical systems. Arrangements have been made to dig test holes this week to determine the allowable soil load for foundation design. In addition structural design is underway with building columns and beams now tentatively located on the plans.

Three estimates have been received for laundry equipment each taking into account the use of existing equipment where possible. Two preliminary estimates have been received for kitchen equipment. All proposals take into account a possible later expansion to 50 beds instead of the 35-bed size planned for the immediate future.

The construction committee feels that it is still fairly close to the original schedule although actual construction may not start as soon as first anticipated. The committee now feels it did not allow sufficient time for studying tenders and having them approved by the government. However the committee believes the contract will be let early in 1963 with construction starting immediately after.

Fires start in odd ways

Forest fires start in the oddest ways. Take the case of a moose that disputed the right-of-way with a diesel-pulled ore-carrying freight. The cargo was hot sintered ore which, although it had been given a shower to cool it off before leaving the yard, was still hot in spots.

The moose simply refused to get off the track. The flies were not as bad as they were in the bush, and besides he was there first. The diesel whistle disturbed him not at all. In fact, it sounded much like another bull moose calling and bellowing.

At any rate no one knows exactly what the moose was thinking but rather than run into him or over him the engineer applied the emergency brakes and a few pieces of the still hot ore bounced out of the open gondolas and rolled down the embankment coming to rest in a mouse nest. From there it took off through the dry grass and headed for the adjoining bushland.

Hobby show entries heavy

Judging from the number of entries already in, Gibsons second annual Hobby Show promises to be even more outstanding than last year's success.

The show, held in the Christian Education centre of Gibsons United Church last year attracted a large number of people from a wide area which has resulted in the officials of the show deciding to make what they hope will be a bigger and better effort this year.

Mr. C. Bedford of Gower Point will display a portion of his famous shell collection. Hobbyists are urged to take up copper tooling and exhibit their work. For further information call 886-9507.

Grants paid by Sechelt

Main work by Sechelt's municipal council at its Oct. 3 meeting in the municipal hall was the passing of the final payment of taxes to Sechelt District school board, a grant to the fire department and payment of $305 as the assessment for Sechelt to the Hospital Improvement District. Gibsons village makes a similar payment.

The grant to the fire department was for $500 and the amount turned over to the school board as final payment from taxation for this year was $9,730. Total paid from municipal tax collections for the school board for the year amounted to about $26,000.

NEW POST OFFICE

The new post office at Winn and Gower Point roads is now ready for occupancy but as no word has been received yet from Ottawa concerning the removal from its present location no announcement can be made. It is expected that arrangements for the moving job will be undertaken before long.

W. A. (BILL) McLAREN who has the Howe Sound district to cover in connection with Canada Savings Bond payroll savings division. This will mean he will keep an eye on the situation at Port Mellon and wherever there are employees who desire to purchase bonds on a payroll savings plan.

17th issue for CSBs

For the 17th year Canadians will be able to help themselves and Canada as the new series of Canada Savings Bonds goes on sale this month.

Initially the bonds were offered to answer a public demand for a convenient facility for saving. The unvarying success brought widening acceptance to the point where sales now provide a large part of the net money requirements of the government.

Ownership of close to $4 billion of Canada Savings Bonds has built a sense of personal independence and security into the lives of more than two million Canadians. They have provided for education, retirement, travel and emergencies. This year the bonds if held to maturity will yield 5.11 percent.

Again, they can be turned in easily at any time for cash plus interest. They can be bought through banks, investment dealers and the popular Payroll Savings plan in plants, industries and firms.

A dozen members of the Investment Dealers' association of Canada will help organize the payroll savings plan for the new Canada Savings Bonds in plants and firms, mills and camps in B.C.

They are on loan from their companies and work from the coal mines on the B.C.-Alberta border into the Yukon, work from the inlets of Howe Sound down the length of Vancouver Island up the Fraser and Okanagan Valleys.

Heading the team for the tenth year as B.C. Regional Director is George Sherwood, of Thomas B. Read and Co., Vancouver.

MESSENGERS MEET

The Messengers, boys and girls 6, 7 and 8, will start on Sat., Oct. 13, 1 p.m. at the Gibsons United Church Christian Education Centre. Mrs. Jean Duncan will be the leader of this group.

Wider membership aim of Tourist Association

The annual meeting of the Sunshine Coast Tourist association will be held Sunday, starting at 2 p.m. in Sechelt's Legion hall.

At this meeting there will be representatives from Powell River to Port Mellon and quite a number of constitution changes will be placed before the meeting. These changes have in view increasing the voting strength of the organization, Fred J. North secretary of the association reports in his advance notice.

There will also be the election of officers for the coming year and notices of motion for the changing of the constitution to allow voting privileges to be spread over a wider number of members.

In the past, associate members could attend meetings and enter discussions but could not vote. This will be changed by proposed amendments which will include a re-alignment of fees.

The advance notice of the annual meeting also announces that Mr. A. Colby, director of the B. C. Travel Bureau, department of recreation and conservation, will be the speaker. Mr. Colby will have some enlightening facts concerning the visitor industry. Officials from the Greater Vancouver Tourist Association and the Fraser Valley Tourist Association have also been invited.

An amended constitution would no longer restrict voting membership in the association. The time has come when the active membership is open to all progressive residents of the Sunshine Coast who are desirous of increasing the tourist business. There is every reason to believe that the ferry service to the Sunshine Coast will be greatly improved shortly and ready for 1963 business without undue delays and mishaps in the service.

The association notice continues by pointing out that the work of publicizing the Sunshine Coast during the past seven years has been carried on by a few members, who at times had to scurry around to entice one or two members to general meetings to make a legal quorum. The executive is required to meet many times each year, and has produced excellent publicity with an annual distribution of upwards of 80,000 top-rated brochures without waste. Now, many new active members are required to carry on the increased work. The tourist dollars affect every person on the Sunshine Coast by providing more jobs and making more money available to businesses and individuals.

There have been associate members who have questioned the reason why they could not vote at general meetings. If constitution changes pass they can obtain an active membership and take authoritative part in the operation and future of the association.

There could be a voting membership of at least 100. Every businessman on the Sunshine Coast should be active in the association. Municipalities, boards of trade and chambers of commerce could have a direct voice in the association. A united effort can produce maximum results and make the Sunshine Coast an even better place to live, the association notice emphasizes.

SOCCER

All four of the first soccer games scheduled by the Sunshine Coast Association for Sunday were rained out. However, two of these games and one exhibition game were played on Monday, Oct. 8.

At 1 o'clock, on Elphinstone High School grounds, Gibsons United defeated Port Mellon Thunderbirds 3-1. Two of the Gibsons goals were scored by Danny MacKay and the third, on a penalty shot, by Brent Hansen. Port Mellon's goal was scored by Bruce Serafin.

At 2 o'clock on the same grounds, in an exhibition game, Roberts Creek defeated Gibsons Merchants team 2-0. Both Roberts Creek goals were scored by Kerry Eldred.

In Sechelt, the team from the Indian Residential School defeated Sechelt Legion 9-0, in a game postponed from Sunday.

Two more homes

Building permits for two new homes were issued at Tuesday night's Gibsons municipal council meeting and Clerk Jules A. Mainil informed council that there is a strong possibility of another ten permits likely to come before council within the next few months.

The two permits issued were to H. and M. Mansfield for a $15,000 six room, one storey oil heated home on Sechelt Highway opposite the old phone office; and to James A. and Roberta C. Cramer for an $8,000 six room, one storey, gas heated home on Cochrane Rd.

The further ten homes will be built largely by newcomers to the area.

Accounts covering a total of $635.83 were examined and passed. Close to $500 of this was used in roads work.

Council decided that some new hose be purchased for the fire department replacing hose which the department regards as being borderline for fire duty.

Plea by Sechelt Guides

The monthly meeting of the Sechelt Girl Guide Association was held at the home of Mrs. Charlotte Jackson at Wilson Creek, Wednesday evening, Oct. 3. Mrs. Harriet Newton, the district commissioner, presided with nine members present.

It was brought out at the meeting as there are 45 Brownies and Guides in Sechelt that an attendance of nine adults at this meeting showed a lack of public support for the organization.

It is hoped that the division meeting in the United Church hall in Gibsons on Nov. 3 will bring a large turnout of parents and others interested.

Mrs. Laura Potts, divisional secretary read out the interesting program to the district meeting. This divisional meeting will be open to the public.

The next meeting of the Sechelt Girl Guide Association will be held on Nov. 7 at the home of Mrs. Harriet Newton in West Sechelt. All offices for 1962-63 have been filled, but it is hoped that more members and prospective members will turn out to support the ladies who have taken on these offices.

Oil companies expand

Imperial Oil Ltd. and Shell Oil company are considering new tank installations on the harbor waterfront area.

Shell Oil plans, when the need arises, to enlarge its tank area and Imperial Oil anticipates constructing a tank area in connection with Gibsons Boat Works.

Up to the present both projects have been discussed with Gibsons municipal council, to see what municipal requirements call for. The provincial fire marshall is also in the discussions.

Both installations are taking into consideration increased business which is expected for Gibsons harbor area in the not too distant future.

Wanted Island as historic site

Hon. E. C. Westwood, minister of the department of recreation and conservation for British Columbia, has recommended that historic Cole Island in Esquimalt Harbour be preserved as a national historic site.

In a letter to the Honorable Walter Dinsdale, minister of northern affairs and national resources, Mr. Westwood pointed out that in conjunction with the restoration of adjacent Fort Rodd Hill, Cole Island has national significance.

Cole Island was offered for sale by Crown Assets Disposal corporation in 1959, but at the request of the department of recreation and conservation was removed from the disposal list. The site has played an important role in naval history dating back more than 100 years.

A provincial archives extract notes that the island was examined in 1859 by Rear Admiral R. L. Baynes and Lt. Col. R. C. Moody with a view to establishing a powder magazine. In November of the same year, instructions for the erection of a magazine were issued to Governor Douglas by the Duke of Newcastle, then Colonial secretary. Construction of the magazine began in February, 1860.

Bear makes few feet long mile

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Linton of Lyncrest, Roberts Creek, have returned from a motor trip which included in its itinerary, the newly opened Rogers Pass highway.

They report this mountain highway which connects the towns of Revelstoke and Golden, bypassing the hazardous unpaved Big Bend route, comprises 92 miles of panoramic scenery and that the British Columbia government Travel Bureau is not exaggerating when their bulletin describes the new highway as one of the most spectacular drives in North America.

The bureau should have added that it is necessary to travel in bright sunshine, as the Lintons did, to see all the wondrous sights this road has to offer, the tall, craggy peaks, some of them over 10,000 feet high, against a sky of cumulous clouds, the gleaming glaciers and vast snowfields in their pristine beauty, the grandeur of Albert Canyon, and the deep valley of the Illecillewaet River, the majestic view of three mountain ranges from the Revelstoke National Park, and the grizzly bears as well as the natural glories of Glacier National Park.

It has been admitted that the grizzlies are somewhat of a problem on Rogers Pass highway. For centuries the grizzly has roamed this hinterland of mountains and valleys at will with no one to dispute his supremacy, not the caribou or moose, or the big horn sheep or mountain goats, who inhabit the land with him.

Then came the onslaught of civilization as hundreds and thousands of cars began to pour along the new highway, many of the travellers stopping to take pictures or spread out picnic lunches in the attractive spots provided by the government. One picnic party had just put out the cold chicken and salad and pie when Mr. Grizzly came out of the bush, headed straight for the table, hopped on top and took over, while the picnickers, still hungry, fled to their cars.

On the day of the opening ceremonies at Rogers Pass it was known a mother grizzly and two cubs were in the area. Visitors were warned not to go too far afield, and there was many a sigh of relief heaved when that day ended with no unpleasant incidents.

It was hoped that with the coming of the humans, the grizzlies would retreat to their mountain fastnesses, but that is wishful thinking. The grizzlies have shown no inclination to leave their familiar haunts, and from their point of view, why should they? But the fact remains that humans and grizzlies are not compatible.

Mr. and Mrs. Linton saw three of these mammoth animals within a few miles of each other, two were by the side of the road being fed from cars. The third was at a picnic site by the side of a rushing mountain stream.

Engrossed by the scenery, having left the car to get nearer the stream, they heard a terrific rattling behind them, and turned to see a huge bear wrestling with a garbage tin. The rattling noise had been the top of the tin hitting a rock. While bruin was taking apart a discarded carton of peaches, the Lintons walked past him to get to their car and they said that although only a few feet were involved, it seemed like a mile.

Can you help?

A watch, a birthday gift, has been lost. It belonged to a boy attending Port Mellon school. He received it on Thursday of last week and lost it on Friday. It is a Timex watch with expanding gold bracelet.

It was lost either on the school bus or at the school. A reward has been offered for its return. Anyone having information of it can phone the Coast News at 886-2622 or drop in personally.

A broadening out

The weather at this time of year cannot be termed suitable for tourists yet it is a good time to look ahead and see what can be done about future tourist treks.

The annual meeting of the Sunshine Coast Tourist Association will be held in Sechelt's Legion hall Sunday and it is possible there will be quite a shakeup of the constitution in order to give more people a chance to get in on deliberations to attract tourists.

The result should mean a voting membership available of close to 100 instead of the less than 50 in the past. This will be done by opening up voting privileges to associate members of past years.

Broadening of the right-to-vote clause will give the association the chance to have, besides operators of tourist establishments on its rolls, members of boards of trade, municipal councils and other authoritative bodies which are close to the needs of the area.

With the approach of the day when faster and larger ferries will ply on the route to Langdale, members of the association executive have decided it is time to have wider representation in their operations. Practically everyone living in this area benefits from the stream of tourists. Merchants should take stock of the situation and see how their support can give the district a much wider program of tourist attraction than is now available.

A united effort can produce maximum results and make the Sunshine Coast an even better place to live. This thought comes from the Tourist association executive and it is good enough for the Coast News to back up with whole-hearted support.

Not good medicine

While mulling over CBC releases to weekly newspapers, an intriguing sentence struck the eye. Helen Baillargeon, hostess of Chez Helene which features lessons in French for children, said a French lesson is like medicine — if it is recognized, it is distasteful.

This intrigues the mind and if associated with other radio or TV events can help express some feelings.

One can agree there are words which affect people in varied ways. There is one word covering performances on radio or TV which might pass unnoticed by many people and yet with some, has irksome undertone. It is the word documentary.

If lessons when recognized are distasteful why not documentaries? Would it not be better to show documentaries without being told they are such. The manner in which we interpret historical data of many years ago could be a long, long way from the manner in which they occurred. One can no more imagine the puppetry of today's so-called documentaries as being anywhere near the reality of yesteryear. Now and again, but rarely, one gets a scene that does smack less of obvious acting and more of reality.

Our documentary experts on radio and TV should forget they are dealing with historical matters and strive for less obvious acting, yet hew to the historical line as best they can.

This plea does not call for revamping of ancient history into modern ways. It asks that characters be allowed to be human beings in their time and not puppets. Such productions should be recognized less as documentaries and more as a reflection of life from the time when the action occurred.

Two customers!

A newspaper has two customers to please — the subscriber and the advertiser. Of these two, the subscriber is the most important.

This is true even though the advertiser provides most of the revenue of any paper. But the advertiser buys space for one reason: to get his message read by a large number of people. Therefore he is vitally interested in the circulation of his advertising media. The greater the circulation a paper has, the more advertising it can sell and the higher the rate it can command.

Over the years, therefore, the paper must cover the activities which interest its readers. Otherwise circulation will drop off and advertising revenues will shrink in consequence.

It is because of reader interest that such a large proportion of weekly newspaper space is devoted to District and personal news. Often this may seem of the "Mrs. Smith went down the road to visit Mrs. Brown" variety, but the little item has definite reader appeal to the Smith and Brown families, relatives and all their friends. In the Coast News we have had many examples of the great interest taken in personal and District news.

Reader interest builds circulation and upon that circulation a newspaper's revenue depends. Therefore to the publisher of any paper the subscriber is the most important person.

This is the second of a series of editorials on weekly newspaper which appeared in the Surrey Leader.

The Davis Ottawa Diary

By JACK DAVIS, M.P.
Coast-Capilano Constituency

The first business of the house of commons is to elect a speaker. Most people think of the speaker as akin to a referee; one who keeps order in the house of commons during the rough and tumble of parliamentary debate. But he does more than enforce the rules. He speaks, with one voice, for all of the members of the house of commons.

He must first be elected. Then he leads all the other members to the senate on opening day to hear the Speech from the Throne. As official speaker for that unruly mob, the commons, he, in times past, had to be brave. He was the one who had to voice the grievances of the common people while the other commoners, who marched in protest to the throne room, held their breath and waited to hear what the royal proclamation would be.

* * *

In order to qualify as the man who keeps some semblance of order in the commons our Mr. Speaker must have the confidence of his fellow members. Honorable, decisive and possessing an intimate knowledge of parliamentary procedures, he must rely on all parties for their co-operation. This does not come easily as our speaker is nominated by the government and always selected from amongst its members.

The British system differs from ours in that, by custom, the same speaker continues to preside in and speak for the house of commons as long as he retains his seat in the house. His seat, furthermore, remains uncontested.

* * *

We, in Canada, have not, reached this degree of sophistication. Instead, we still require our speaker to go out on the hustings at election time to fight for his own political life as well as that of his party. How, under these circumstances, can we possibly avoid claims of favoritism or discrimination during debate? That there have been very few charges of this kind laid in recent years is evidence of the high ideals, as well as good sound common sense, of those great men who have served as speakers of the house of commons in Ottawa.

KNOW YOUR Canada

What was the profession of Charles Henri Narbonne?

Buccaneer. Canadian born about 1627, he served as a soldier in this country. In 1660 he went to the West Indies, becoming a famous buccaneer. Ten years later he joined the great Sir Henry Morgan in an expedition against Panama. Narbonne became rich, settled in Tortugas in the West Indies and 1677 became deputy lieutenant of the French King — one of Canada's first and certainly most unusual success stories.

Where is Navy Island in Canada?

Just about everywhere. Best known is the small island of that name in the Niagara River, about two miles above the Falls. It became famous as the scene of the last stand made by William Lyon Mackenzie and some fellow-rebels in the Rebellion of 1837. Another Navy Island may be found in the Bedford Basin in Halifax Harbour. It is also the name of a group of islands in the St. Lawrence River. They are part of the Thousand Islands. Individual islands in the group were named after naval officers who distinguished themselves during the War of 1812.

Who was the Maritimes' most prolific novelist?

Theodore Roberts. Born in Fredericton in 1877, he died in Digby in 1953. A one-time New York newspaperman, Roberts fought in the First World War, wrote several volumes of military history, lived in many parts of the world, edited the Newfoundland Magazine and wrote 30 novels, many of them romances of the Maritime Provinces.

Do you eat much mustard?

Perhaps more than you realize. This family of herbs covers nearly 2000 species. It includes such familiar foods as cabbage, Brussels sprouts, kale, kohlrabi, cauliflower, broccoli, turnip, rutabaga, radish, horse-radish and watercress. In Canada the mustard family is represented by about 245 species. Canadian mustard species include such enticing weeds as peppergrass, stinkweed, false flax, bitter cress and hare's-ear-mustard. The food one usually thinks of as mustard is made from the seeds of Brassica nigra, a member of the family related to the cabbage and other mustard vegetables.

How did the Dutch pioneer in the Canadian West?

They introduced strip-farming in southern Alberta and were among those who put Western irrigation districts into production. Amsterdam bankers were among the first to take part in the financing of railroad building in Western Canada. The names of at least two of these gentlemen are commemorated in the place names of the region — Pierson and Boissevain. Other Dutch geographical names in the Prairie Provinces are Edam, Amsterdam, Zelandia and Neerlandia.

THIS WEEK'S RECIPE

Fish 'n' Seafood Week, held this year October 15 to 21, focuses attention on one of our most abundant, economical, and easy-to-cook foods. Whether or not fish is popular at your house depends greatly on the cook. Test your knowledge of fish cookery by trying this easy true or false quiz supplied by the home economists of the Department of Fisheries of Canada. Correct answers will be found at the end of the quiz.

1. As a rule, fish require less cooking time than meat.
2. We cook fish to tenderize it.
3. It is advisable to handle fish as little as possible during and after cooking.
4. Cooking time for fish is calculated on the thickness rather than on the weight.
5. Cooked fish tends to be darker in color than uncooked fish.
6. Overcooking fish makes it very tender and flaky.
7. Frozen fillets should be thawed before baking.
8. Frozen fillets should be thawed before frying.
9. For best results a fish steak to be broiled should be ¾ to 1 inch thick.
10. Smoked fish takes longer to cook than unsmoked fish.

Answers:

1. True. Unlike land animals, fish have no tough muscle tissue or sinewy connective tissue to soften, and no thick layers of solid fat for the heat to penetrate
2. False. Fish is tender in the raw state. As with eggs, we cook fish to make it easier to digest and more flavorful.
3. True. The connective tissue between the muscle fibres is thin and breaks down quickly under heat, permitting the flesh to separate in flakes or segments. On handling the flesh has a tendency to fall apart, spoiling the appearance.
4. True. Fish is usually flat and has a large surface area through which it can absorb heat quickly. For this reason, cooking time is based on thickness rather than weight.
5. False. During cooking the fish juices become a milky color causing the flesh to lose its watery look and become a lighter, opaque shade. A reliable indication that fish is cooked is when this color change has taken place to the center of the thickest part.
6. False. Overcooking toughens fish and dries it out.
7. False. The fillets retain juices better and are more flavorful if baked from the frozen state.
8. True. There are a number of good reasons for thawing fillets which are to be fried. One is to prevent overcooling the fat.
9. True. Cuts thinner than this have a tendency to dry out during the broiling process.
10. False. Depending on the type of smoking process used, smoked fish is either partially or completely cooked when purchased.

A specialty touch can be achieved with everyday sandwich fillings when they are teamed in a new variation such as individual sandwich loaves, frosted with softened cream cheese. Regular bread slices are used for these loaves, making them extra convenient to fix.

The sandwiches, easy to make in large or small quantities, may be prepared in advance, wrapped in clear plastic food wrap and refrigerated, ready for patio party or picnic.

Sandwich Loaf

White Bread, sliced.
Mayonnaise
Tomatoes
Ham Salad
Lettuce
3 three ounce packages cream cheese
Milk
Parsley for garnish

Ham Salad

½ cup ground, cooked ham
2 sweet pickles, chopped
1 tablespoon chopped chives
Mayonnaise

Using three slices of bread, remove crusts. Prepare as for three decker sandwich, using ham salad for one layer, tomato slices and lettuce for second. Spread bread with mayonnaise on filling sides. Cut sandwich in half, straight or crosswise. Frost halves with cream cheese softened with milk, wrap in clear plastic food wrap and refrigerate. Garnish as desired before serving.

Trees travel far and wide

During geologic times trees have travelled far and wide around the globe. How is this migration effected? Seeds are the footsteps of the forest.

When they step out they seem to be the haphazard playthings of wind and gravity, but the law of averages, which nature loves to use when she produces far more seeds than are needed, causes more seeds to sprout on the warmer side if driven by cold, on the moister side if driven by aridity, or on the drier side if swampland is expanding.

Thus trees move. They travel as a woodland, with the various trees and smaller plants keeping together. Trees like oak, maple, hickory, elm, ash, beech, poplar and birch keep together in their world-wide travels and the woodland flowers and bushes go along with them.

A new claimant to the title of tallest tree in the world is an as yet unnamed Sequoia sempervirens (coast redwood) in Humboldt County, California. It has been measured by Humboldt State College students at 368 feet.

Almost all churches built in British Columbia over the past five years have been roofed with red cedar shingles or handsplit red cedar shakes.

According to the Interstate Commerce Commission, lumber, shingles and lath constitute the second highest revenue-producing commodities handled by American railroads.

THIS WEEK'S RECIPE

This moist, rich cake is laden with the taste surprising flavor of California raisins. It's a grand dessert for all occasions — afternoon tea, dessert parties or a snack after school.

Homemakers enjoy making crumb cakes because they can be stirred up quickly and are good keepers. The buttery baked on topping eliminates the need for icing.

Raisin Crumb Cake

2 cups brown sugar (packed)
2¼ cups sifted flour
¾ teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening (part butter)
¾ cup California raisins
½ cup chopped walnuts
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup buttermilk
1 beaten egg
1 teaspoon vanilla

Stir together sugar, flour and salt. Cut in shortening until crumbly. Take out ¾ cup of this mixture and set aside for topping. To remainder add raisins and walnuts. Stir soda into buttermilk, add egg and vanilla, and stir into flour mixture, just until blended. Pour into greased 9-inch square pan; sprinkle reserved crumbs over top. Bake in moderately slow oven (325 degrees F.) 50 to 60 minutes. Makes 1 (9-inch) cake.

COMPLACENT DINNER

Some wasps sting and paralyze their prey without killing it. The insect is then placed in the nest with a wasp egg. When the egg hatches, fresh food is ready and waiting for the larva. The digger wasp is selective and chooses only a certain tarantula spider as food for its young. Curiously enough, the spider seems quite unaware of its doom and allows the wasp to crawl over its body in search of the vulnerable spot in which to place its sting.

Gems of Thought

UNSELFISHNESS

Be unselfish. That is the first and final commandment for those who would be useful and happy in their usefulness.
— Charles W. Eliot.

Sacrifice self to bless one another, even as God has blessed you. — Mary Baker Eddy

Men often mistake themselves, seldom forget themselves.
— Benjamin Franklin.

Modesty and unselfishness — these are virtues which men praise — and pass by.
Andre Maurois.

The best way of saving oneself a lot of trouble in life is to pay very little heed to one's own interests. — Joseph Joubert.

The greatest difficulty with the world is not its inability to produce, but its unwillingness to share. — Roy L. Smith.

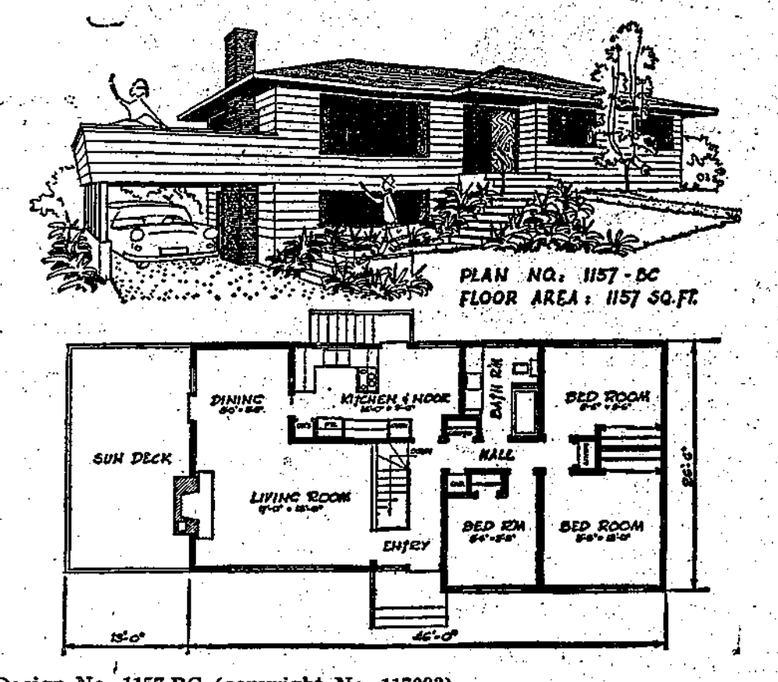
FOR MODEST BUDGETS



Design No. 1157-BC (copyright No. 117093)

A compact and functional design for the home builder who has to watch his investment, this is a house that has been planned for economical construction. The interior boasts all the amenities required by the average family. Note the L-shaped living dining area, with the outside wall fireplace, and the sliding door in the dining area for the sun deck. Kitchen is efficient and economically planned, with a good sized eating area, for family dining. Bathroom has a large vanity, and there is ample closet space in each bedroom. Open stairwell leads to a full basement with future recreation room and storage and laundry.

Although practical in design, the appearance of this home with its ornamental hand railing, horizontal siding, large windows and landscaping is handsome, and it lends itself best to a sloping lot to take advantage of the deck over the carport. Complete the carport making it into a full garage where the climate indicates this kind of protection.

Blueprints may be obtained from the Building Centre (B.C.) Ltd., 96 Kingsway, Vancouver 10, and are designed for N.H.A. financing. Write for a free plan book — enclose 25c to cover cost of mailing and handling.

Halfmoon Bay notes

(By PAT WELSH)

The Sunday before Thanksgiving 1962 will probably go down as one of the wildest and stormiest on the Sechelt Peninsula. The rain came down in torrents; the trees, harried by the wind bent almost in two, the golden leaves fluttering to earth in veritable clouds while heavy seas battered the coast spraying the rocks with a barrage of water 30 or more feet high. A wonderful scene and awesome too.

Most summer homes in this area were occupied by their owners, families and friends. Dads hauled in boats and mooring buoys, the young fry collected treasures to take home and Mom fussed over the kitchen stove with pumpkin pies and turkey.

But the rain stopped, the wind died down and the sun came out in all his glory for a brief spell in the late afternoon putting everyone in a happy frame of mind to enjoy the Thanksgiving dinner and to thank God for the blessings bestowed.

Redwell Guild met Wed., Oct. 3 at the Tinkley home to make braided and woven rugs which will be sold in aid of St. Mary's Hospital.

On Wed., Oct. 17 the Halfmoon Bay PTA will hold a tea and sale of home baking from two to four o'clock at the home of Mrs. R Doyle. Everyone is welcome and proceeds will go to the school children's Christmas party.

Mrs. R. Greggs and Mrs. W. Grundy are at home after spending the past month in Montreal.

The Johnny Simpsons and George came up for the weekend, their dinner guests on Sunday, Mrs. G. B. Simpson and Mrs. P. Welsh.

Mr. and Mrs. Doug Naud had a houseful of guests for the holiday, while Mr. and Mrs. F. Lyons has as guests her sister Mrs. H. Turnbull, Mrs. Bess Parker and Mrs. Ruby Breeze, Sechelt, and Joyce and Charlie Stewart of Prince George, formerly of Selma Park.

Mrs. P. Meikle is home after a sojourn in St. Paul's Hospital.

The Jack Morgans have returned from Seattle where they visited the Worlds Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Chris Dalton's small dog partook of some apparently poisonous yellow toadstools while wandering around the garden and was discovered dead soon afterwards.

At their summer homes were Dr. and Mrs. H. Caple, Bruce and Kippy; the Harold Merilees, the Chris Daltons, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Taylor and sons, the Gordon Cruises and children, the Wrights and Birrells with families, Dr. and Mrs. J. Payne and children, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Ryan, Michael, David and Robert, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Greene and daughters Erin and Kerry, all members of the Hunt clan and Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Lefeaux with Ruth and Peter.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Snellenburg of Vancouver who have been spending the last week at the Bill Thom cottage, drove to Powell River, accompanied by Mrs. G. B. Simpson. They were amazed at the growth of Westview and the many lovely homes there.

SMALL TALK By Syms

"You'll hardly believe it . . . but he understands every word we're saying." "Izzat so . . . should we change the subject."

For parents only

By Nancy Cleaver
Copyrighted

"See the pretty leaves, Mummy! Why are they so red?"

There is no end to a child's questions! It is small wonder that the miracle of the trees changing their green foliage to red and yellow fills them with amazement. By the time they start to school they want to find out how Nature withdraws the nourishment from the leaves and stores it in the roots for use in the winter months. But to the little boy or girl the feel of the frosty air, and the golden sunshine and the gay colors is joy enough.

One of the characters in "Chez Nous" says regretfully: "Ah. Why have I lost the eyes of childhood!"

* * *

Parents who take their child for a walk in the woods can almost re-capture a child's delight in the color of the out-of-doors. Their ramble must be a leisurely, happy occasion. No one, child or adult, can drink in beauty in a hurry. W. H. Davies knew this when he wrote:

"What is life if full of care
We have no time to stand and stare!"

Anyone who watches one hillside will see the gradual transformation of the trees each day. After a sharp night's frost, suddenly great bright splashes of red appear on the rich leafy mosaic. The different hues of the maple — scarlet, crimson, red, gold and amber make it perhaps the most dramatic of all the trees. Anyone gazing at a maple will agree that no mistake was made when its leaf was chosen as our national emblem. No wonder Bliss Carman exclaimed:

"And one, in gown of scarlet,
The first beloved of all,
Still tells me tales of glory
When Autumn days befall."

* * *

A Canadian met a friend in London, England, and said, "It always does something to me to see a maple leaf! — I remember all the bright red and yellow maple leaves I collected as a kid in a little village in Ontario. I pressed and waxed them. I never could keep them quite as bright a color as when they first fell on the ground — but it was fun trying!"

We Canadians have a wonderful variety of maples throughout our land and the other trees have their own peculiar charm. The yellow of the elms and the birches, the bronze of the beeches, the flaming red of the sumac bushes on the rocky edges, all catch the eye and fill the heart with wonder. How the dark green of the evergreens stands out in shar contrast to the bright shades of the deciduous trees! The graceful shapes of the different trees are accentuated by the variation in color.

* * *

The pasture land is often green right up until the snow covers it, but the other fields, shorn of harvest, have strange and lovely hues. A traveller in the autumn on a trans-Canada train said, "The prairie fields are like giant sheets, and those in eastern Canada by comparison, are like pocket handkerchiefs. But east or west, they are all dyed with colors which make one long for a paint brush!" Perhaps it is th. very wealth of color which lures so many amateur artists out of doors.

The autumn sky at dawn and sunset is something to be watched with delight. Across this vast dome, the birds are starting their long journey to the south. No one can help but pause and gaze with amazement at the swift, orderly flight of the feathered folk. Listen for the soft whirr of many wings and the low "Honk! Honk!" of the Canada geese or the quack of the ducks.

A new Canadian from Holland said: "I have asked for one holiday week in October so that I can take a trip and see the colored leaves. I arrived too late last year to see them and I know I missed a lot."

We cannot all go on holiday week's trip, but all of us can make at least one expedition to the country. So many of us take the autumn colors so for granted that we hardly see them. We might as well be blind for all the dint they make on us!

Helen Keller, in her essay on "Three Days to See' mentioned one of the experiences which she covets is a walk in the woods. If we had "Three Days Without Sight" we would have a new appreciation of the shades, dark and light, all around us, particularly out of doors.

No country has a monopoly on beauty in any season, and we Canadians can appreciate this translation from a Japanese poet who wrote thus of "Autumn Magic:"

"Valley and hill, where'ere I glance, the same
Glory of Color! Surely Autumn weaves
A Spell to set the very Wind aflame
With Gold and Scarlet of the falling leaves."

WEALTH IN WOOD

In British Columbia the forests contribute almost 50 cents out of every primary resource industry dollar. In Canada as a whole they account for a third of the wealth that flows from farms, forests, fisheries, furs and mines. They support the entire edifice of all Canadian trade and commerce.

Bank ads win award

Top rating among Canada's eight chartered banks has been given to the Bank of Montreal for its advertising, according to a survey of financial advertising conducted by Vincent Edwards and Co., New York.

The B of M also ranks sixth among the 15,000 banks in North America, as reported in the annual "Bank Ad-Views" review of Canadian and U.S. financial advertising.

The Bank of America (San Francisco) placed first among all North American banks.

With the exception of only three years in the past 17, the B of M has been rated first among Canadian banks in the Bank Ad-Views survey and has received a Socrates Award each year. In 1946 and 1954, the bank rated first in North America and received the Socrates High Award of the Year.

The B of M's new advertising award follows the winning of an award of excellence in the PR in Print awards program of the Canadian Public Relations society, for its currency guide prepared for use by travellers to the Caribbean area.
