Please note, it's that time again

School board annual meetings have been announced so the general public can hear from school trustees what has been done by them for the taxpayer, during the last year.

Twelve meetings have been arranged and all are evening meetings with one exception and that is Gambier Island meeting which will be held in the early afternoon.

In past years attendance at these meetings has not caused janitors to hustle more chairs into the various halls. In fact few people have attended.

Sechelt District School Board's annual budget is now in the $800,000 class and members of the board feel that the taxpayer who puts up this money should be sufficiently interested in the spending of that money to find out how it was spent and what for.

Meetings as announced by the School Board are as follows:

Mon., Nov. 5, two meetings, Gibsons School hall and Bowen Island School, 8 p.m.

Tues. Nov. 6, two meetings, Port Mellon school and Madeira Park school, 8 p.m.

Wed., Nov. 7, two meetings, Sechelt Trail Bay school and Davis Bay school, 8 p.m.

Thurs., Nov. 8, three meetings, Roberts Creek Community Hall, Halfmoon Bay School and Egmont school, 8 p.m.

Fri. Nov. 9, two meetings, Irvines Landing school and Langdale School, 8 p.m.

Sat. Nov. 10, Gambier, Veterans Memorial Hall, 2 p.m.

The new post office is the most up-to-date of its kind for its size and no doubt the residents of Gibsons will be proud of this new addition to their expanding community.

Postmaster J. Marshall is very pleased that his new office will be in operation well before the Christmas season. This has been his fond hope ever since the new building was planned. He feels that his patrons and staff will all benefit from the new facilities and accommodation.

Mr. Marshall points out that patrons using the LockBox service would require new keys, and asks that these keys be exchanged for new ones during business hours on Fri., Oct. 26 or Sat. Oct. 27.

Youth Day celebrated

(By MICHAEL SKELLETT)

To celebrate Kiwanis Youth Day, on Oct. 21, boys of First Gibsons Scout Troop enjoyed a wonderful day at Evans Lake Junior Forest Warden camp in Squamish.

We boarded the 8:15 a.m. ferry at Langdale, arriving at Horseshoe Bay where we met a bus which took us to the camp. Four more buses joined us and we arrived at camp at ten minutes to 11 a.m.

The party split into two sections, one going to the lake and the other explored the camp. After this each group listened to a short lecture. My group was taught the use of forestry instruments.

We then all had doughnuts and pop. My group then heard a lecture on tree identification and conservation. Then we had lunch. A short period of conversation followed and some playing with a football. Next came a very interesting movie and demonstration of the portable fire pump.

At 10 minutes to 4 p.m. we were loaded on to our buses and got the ferry at five o'clock. Most of the boys were home by seven. All the boys who participated in this wonderful day thank Gibsons Kiwanis very much for arranging this trip for us. We also thank Mr. Raynor and Mr. Hauka for their work throughout the day and getting us there and back.

A gift from Brownies

After school Monday a group of Brownies representing Gibsons and Langdale Packs with their leaders, Mrs. Labonte, Mrs. Le Warn and Mrs. Olson and District Commissioner Mrs. Thomas met near Gibsons Municipal Hall to plant a flowering cherry tree. Mrs. Thomas read the following short message from the Brownies Godmother, Mrs. Tyson:

"This tree is a gift from the Brownies of Gibsons and Langdale. It is our way of saying thank you to all the good citizens of Gibsons. We'd like to mention it gives us special pleasure that we could help to make a wish come true. We heard by our Brownie grapevine that Mrs. Corlett had wished the Municipal grounds could have such a tree. She has donated flowers for Brownie ceremonies for many years. We hope our gift will be a delight for all to share, that it will flourish and bloom as a happy reminder of our sincere appreciation of the countless happy things Gibsons has given us."

The tree was accepted on behalf of the village by Mr. J. A. Mainil who in expressing his appreciation of the Brownies' gift regretted that Mrs. Corlett was not well enough to be present. He told the children that their gift would be mentioned in the village records so that in a small way they had helped in the making of the history of Gibsons With the help of Mr. Fred Holland and eager Brownies the little tree was carefully planted so all may look forward to seeing it bloom in the spring.

Gibsons parking solution delayed

Gibsons council Tuesday night in discussing parking on Gower Point road from the post office corner decided to let the problem rest for one month to see what effect the pattern of parking will take after the removal of the post office to its new location at Winn Road.

Council has debated whether parallel parking would be more suitable at that location. At present there is a semblance of angle parking there which results in traffic blocks when cars back out to leave the parking area. Some cars back out across the centreline, which is strictly against the law. It is to avoid such backing out that council is seeking a method of stopping such practice.

Council plans to press strongly for a double line for the highway from Checkwelp Reserve to Winn Road along Marine Drive and Gower Point Road. It will also press for marked pedestrian crossings at the Post Office corner.

During the discussion on parking council found that today with other parking areas in the vicinity of the post office there was more parking space in the area now than there ever was previously.

Letters to council covering trees felled by the last storm resulted in a suggestion to the writers that if further danger is obvious that council would write property owners concerned to see what can be done about removing any probable danger. Members of council will inspect the damage caused by the last storm and check on present conditions.

Accounts totalled $1,073.23 of which $768.41 was for water department expenses. Roads used up $116.70. The remainder was covered by minor departmental expenses.

Paul Harding, Stewart Rd., was granted a building permit to build a $1000 garage and workshop.

Councillor Wes Hodgson reported the B.C. Aviation council executive had asked him to take the deputy chairmanship of the municipalities committee. He said he had agreed to accept.

Each cent helps!

Brownies from the 1st and 2nd Gibsons Packs and from Langdale as well as the school children at Roberts Creek will be joining those mentioned last week who are planning a UNICEF Hallowe'en.

Last year the children's collections from this area gave 58 undernourished children a glass of milk every day for a year. Those children will need help again. Each cent dropped into a UNICEF box will buy five glasses of milk and 73 cents will provide milk for one child for one year.

If you live in the village and expect many Hallowe'en callers do not forget to shell out your pennies sparingly. Any you have left over can always be collected later.

The Canadian burden

Aptly named The Burden of Canadian Taxation, a study just released by the Canadian Tax Foundation says that Canadians pay out more than one-quarter of their incomes in taxation. In fact, since the figures are for the year 1957, the tax bite is even larger. Rates of taxation have been increasing over the past five years; for example, collections for the old-age pension — levied as a sales tax at factory level plus income tax on individual and corporation earnings — have gone from two to three percent. And now there are taxes that were not even being collected five years ago, such as sales taxes, premiums and other payments to cover the cost of the hospital insurance program.

The Foundation's study shows that on every dollar he earned in 1957, the average Canadian paid 3.6 cents to the provinces, 3.9 cents to municipal governments and 18.3 cents to Ottawa. That amounted to 25.8 cents on the dollar, a considerable proportion of the wage or salary dollar. For the year the average payment was $1,232.

Over a period of 40 years, probably a conservative estimate of a workingman's earning period, his various governments will tap the average Canadian for something over $50,000. Small wonder it's difficult for him to become a man of much property.

Unfortunate efforts

Not all of man's efforts to help balance nature's books have been fortunate. Everyone knows about the rabbits in Australia. That Dominion had another unhappy experience, when its people nearly put an end to a large bird because its harsh cry annoyed them. There followed an alarming increase in poisonous snakes. Farmers lost a quarter of their livestock and human beings were killed. Investigation showed that the screeching birds had each destroyed up to 20 of the snakes a day. Now it is forbidden to kill the birds.

Great efforts were made around the 1850's to naturalize English sparrows in America. Whoever thought up the idea did a thorough job by scattering the birds over 100 towns in the United States and Canada. Bird houses were put up for them and people were fined as much as $25 for shooting the birds. Then, too late, it was found that corn, and not insects, forms the staple diet of the sparrow.

The starling cheated New Zealand in the same way. At home, in England, it was looked upon as the great friend of farmers. It destroyed insects and grubs. Upon importation to New Zealand, the starling raised five broods a year instead of two, and changed its diet from insects to the very fruit it was brought in to protect.

Newspaper responsibility

(This is the fourth in a series of editorials explaining how a weekly newspaper functions.)

The person who has final responsibility for any paper is the publisher. He lays down the newspaper's policy and has supervision over all departments.

The publisher's responsibility extends to every word printed in his paper. He is held responsible for all news items and editorial comments and has secondary responsibility for paid advertisements and articles. Publication of a letter over the author's name does not free a publisher from his responsibility.

The editor has the day-to-day task of carrying out the paper's policies as laid down by the publisher. All the reporters and writers work under his direction. The space and treatment any particular story receives will depend on the editor's judgment.

Broadly speaking, therefore, the publisher lays down the policy of a newspaper and the editor carries it out. However on some papers the duties and responsibilities of the editor and publisher are combined.

Impetus to raise tone?

Pegging of the dollar really may work to the advantage of Canadians generally if only the peg stays firmly fixed. Operators of tourist resorts everywhere in the country, with an assurance of increased patronage, may have the impetus to raise the tone of their establishments to the level of those the Canadian tourist has been accustomed to find in the most travelled parts of the United States. Some improvement is already noticeable in some summer resorts. More could be done at relatively small expense.

For example, there seems to be no reason, other than false economy, for the custom of providing only one comfortable chair for a double room. And surely light bulbs and electricity are cheap enough in most areas of Canada to allow the hotel proprietor to equip his rooms with something stronger than 40-watt bulbs. Experienced travellers now carry a 100-watt bulb and an extension wire with them, knowing that if a reading lamp is furnished, it will be placed in the most inconvenient corner of the room.

It may be too much to hope for, but, if the dollar peg stays fixed for a few more years, it may be possible for the tourists in Canada to discover more resorts that make a decent cup of coffee.

Wood and Canada's economy

The B.C. Forest Service is joining with other woods operators and the forest industries of Canada and the United States to celebrate Forest Products Week from October 21 to 27.

The occasion is being used to mark the enormous importance of the forest industries in the total economy of the nations and to pay tribute to the men who sustain the forests—the primary factory which supplies the raw materials to the industrial complex which, in Canada, produces $1,600 million of the country's total exports.

In a statement Premier W. A. C. Bennett has pointed out that 30 percent of these exports come from this province, whose forests are a vital factor in the national economy.

Hon. Ray Williston has described Forest Products Week as National Survival Week because, without its trees, British Columbia would be an economic desert. Some 70,000 people are employed in the woods and manufacturing plants and one family in five depends on this one natural resource for its livelihood. Every family benefits indirectly from the fact that nearly half the dollars in the economic cycle originate in the woods.

Canada's forests are the backbone of the national economy and the chief source of raw materials for the giant forest products industries which employ more than 350,000 Canadians or nearly 10 percent of the total working force.

These industries have a net value of production of almost two and one-half billion dollars and exports of wood products and paper account for one-third of all national commodity shipments to other countries.

Canada's sawmilling industry is characterized by the large mills of coastal British Columbia and a great multitude of medium and small sized mills located across the country to the Atlantic coast. The permanent year-round sawmills of the British Columbia coast produce over one-third of all Canada's lumber and yet only five percent of the nation's sawmills are located there. Exports of lumber from this region have in recent years accounted for half the Canadian total of lumber exports.

The interior region of B.C., producing almost as much lumber as the coastal region, ships most of its production to the United States by rail. The bulk of lumber products east of the Rockies is consumed in the domestic market except for the sawmills of the Maritime provinces and Quebec which ship significant quantities of lumber to overseas markets. In 1961 Canada produced eight billion feet of lumber with a value well over half a billion dollars.

The pulp and paper industry leads in Canada in terms of production values, salaries, and wages paid, and in the consumption of fuel and electricity. Significant too is the fact that Canada yearly produces almost half the world's output of newsprint.

For newsprint, as for lumber, exports to the United States account for a large part of our output; almost eighty percent is shipped to that market while the remainder is exported to more than seventy other countries. Only eight percent of newsprint production is used in this country.

From the pulp and paper mills of Canada, with employment of more than 65,000, the production of market woodpulp adds substantially to the health and vigor of Canada's pulp and paper industry. The wood and paper-using groups of industries, including plywood, furniture, paper bags and boxes, make up the final important segment of the forest industries. Most of these products are consumed within Canada.

Canada's forest industries depend upon the 640 million acres of productive forest which stretch unbroken across the country. For every acre of privately-owned forest land in Canada between nine and ten acres are administered by either the provincial or federal government. So that these forest treasures may be passed on intact to future generations most forests are now regulated to supply sustained crops of timber. Almost all of Canada's Crown forests are administered by provincial governments.

The days are long past when lumbering was purely an extractive industry, taking all it could and putting nothing back. Canada's forest industries are forward-looking and well equipped to meet the challenge of the future.

Church Chuckles by CARTWRIGHT

"Dear, it's allright now—the preacher is here. Tell him about YOUR tonsil operation, Reverend!"

The Davis Ottawa Diary

By JACK DAVIS, M.P.

The House of Commons hasn't been quite the same since the eight-day Throne Speech debate came to an end.

The anxious crowds which packed the public galleries to see if Prime Minister Diefenbaker's minority government would survive, have departed.

But while other challenges lie ahead, the House is going quietly about the less dramatic business of examining the government's legislative proposals, one by one. For the time being, at least, opposition parties seem disposed to accept the idea that the Conservative government is going to be around for a while.

Most observers are now convinced that an election is unlikely to materialize until next spring. And a few are persuaded that the minority government, with lingering help from the Socreds, may continue in office even longer.

To the casual onlooker, the first session of Canada's 25th Parliament now bears a remarkable resemblance to the first sessions of other parliaments of the past, when the government of the day had a secure over-all majority.

But for all the business-as-usual air which this session has now adopted, this is not a session like the others. The government does not control the commons. And at any moment, fresh challenges may appear.

A formal want-of-confidence issue is not necessary. A government which loses the power of determining when the commons shall meet, for how long and to consider what business is in serious trouble. The loss of procedural motions doesn't, on paper at least, defeat a government. But it suggests that its defeat is imminent.

The next challenge could come through an attack on the speakership. Mr. Speaker Lambert's efforts to limit the questions asked during question period to those he considers to be clearly within the rules have already caused a good deal of resentment among opposition M.P.s of all opposition parties. Should the House of Commons overrule a decision of the Speaker, the latter and the government which nominated him would be placed in an embarrassing position.

The legislative program which the government is now introducing piece by piece will provide the opposition with other opportunities. Defeat of a key item in this program would undermine the government's position. For instance, its spending program must be approved in detail by the house. The first six supply motions, providing that the house resolve itself into committee of supply, are introduced on Mondays. And on each of these six occasions the motion can be amended and made the subject of a two-day debate on grievances of the opposition's choice. Loss of a supply motion vote would be fatal.

Thus while the Throne Speech debate is over and done with there is no reason to believe that the period of calm will last for long.

Which printer became a famous editorial writer?

Thomas Beattie Robertson. Born in Glasgow in 1879, Robertson had a hard time in Canada before making his name. After becoming a printing compositor in Glasgow, he emigrated to Canada in 1910, first to Nelson, B.C., and soon afterward to an unsuccessful bout of farming near Calgary. Then he accepted an offer of a Victoria newspaper job, but found on arrival that the post was filled. He went to Winnipeg as a linotype operator. His contributions to Voice, a labor paper, attracted the attention of J.W. Dafoe, famed fighting editor of the Winnipeg Free Press. Dafoe invited Robertson to join the editorial writing staff of his newspaper, where his initials TBR on articles soon attracted a host of faithful readers.

THIS WEEK'S RECIPE

Supper is fun for everyone when the main course comes to the table wrapped in individual foil packages. The children enjoy the element of surprise and mother can have the afternoon free from meal preparations. All she need do is arrange the foods in their wrappings (hours ahead if she likes) then stow the packages in the refrigerator until time to cook. The food is cooked and served right in the foil.

Fish is one food which cooks quickly and deliciously in foil. Encased in foil it literally steams in its own juices and none of the fine flavor is lost. For an adventure in good eating, try the following foil package combination recommended by the home economists of Canada's Department of Fisheries.

Fillets In Foil

1 pound frozen fish fillets
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup packaged precooked rice
¼ cup water
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup grated Cheddar cheese
1 tomato, cut into 4 slices

Thaw frozen fillets sufficiently to allow the block to be cut into 4 portions. Sprinkle with ¼ teaspoon salt. Thoroughly combine rice, water, and ¼ teaspoon salt. Add cheese and toss lightly to mix. Have ready four 12-inch squares of aluminum foil, greased on the inside. Place 3 tablespoons of rice-cheese mixture in centre fo each square. Top with a fillet portion and then a slice of tomato. Lightly sprinkle tomato slices with salt. Bring two edges of foil together over food and double fold to make a tight seal. Also double fold outer edges. Place packages on a baking sheet and bake in a hot oven (500 deg. F.). Allow about 30 minutes cooking time if fish is frozen and 15 minutes if completely thawed. Makes 4 servings.

CHILDREN'S CHOICE

It's a well proven fact that young children are not gourmets, but menu variety and imaginative preparation when geared to their level will definitely increase their interest in meals. As a general rule they like delicately flavored foods, simply prepared, and presented with a dash of color. The foods should be served in small portions and be easy to handle with only a spoon or fork.

A dish which meets these requirements admirably is Fish Timbales, a custard type of main dish cooked in individual cups. The recipe for it follows and has been supplied by the home economists of Canada's Department of Fisheries.

Fish Timbales

2 cups (1 pound) cooked or canned fish, drained and flaked
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ cup chopped green onions and tops
2 tablespoons butter, melted
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
2 eggs, slightly beaten
½ to 1 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
½ cup grated Cheddar cheese
½ cup fine dry bread crumbs
1 tablespoon melted butter

Sprinkle fish with lemon juice. Cook green onion in 2 tablespoonse melted butter until tender but not browned. Blend in flour. Add milk gradually and cook, stirring constantly, until smoothly thickened. Remove from heat. Stir in eggs and seasoning. (If using canned fish add ½ teaspoon salt. If using lightly salted home cooked fish use 1 teaspoon salt.) Combine sauce with fish and mix well. Spoon into greased custard cups or ramekins. Sprinkle with cheese. Combine crumbs with 1 tablespoon melted butter and spread over cheese. Place cups in a shallow pan of hot water. Bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 30 minutes, or until firmly set. Serve in cups, or turn out on heated plates. Makes 6 cups.

HERE'S TO HALLOWE'EN PREPARATIONS

Here's to Hallowe'en preparations! Toward the end of October children can have a lot of fun and learn a good deal too, getting ready for the 31st. Youngsters, big and little, love to pretend they are someone else. Hallowe'en provides the Big Occasion of the year for masquerade costumes. The time spent getting ready to sally forth almost equals the excitement of the night itself!

Busy mothers may not be nearly so enthusiastic about these activities. But it is a pity not to set aside other jobs, and enjoy Hallowe'en with the boys and girls. The years pass swiftly, and before very long there will be no small daughter in your home hunting for a broom for a witch, or a little boy looking for a pillow for a clown's tummy, or a blackened cork to paint his face.

An old trunk where odds and ends are gradually accumulated, is a great time saver. Scarves, gloves, shoes, artificial flowers, ribbons, feathers, which might otherwise be thrown out at housecleaning time, can be collected there and found quickly when needed.

On a rainy Saturday afternoon when the children want to put on their own pantomime or play, this trunk saves mother's time and energy. Dressing up is such fun it shouldn't be confined to October 31st!

Older school age boys and girls are apt to be particular about what they wear. Sometimes an old dress can be ripped apart and the material dyed. The directions are on the package. Dyeing is not complicated and it is inexpensive. Old shoes painted with enamel make a smart addition to a costume.

If your daughter wants to design and sew her own costume, or follow a bought pattern encourage her to go ahead. The results may not be quite as you could have achieved, but it will be her own production.

A coating of cold cream before rouge or blacking is applied to the skin helps speed up its removal. Some parents will not allow their youngsters to color their faces. But Hallowe'en just comes once a year and the clean-up job doesn't need to be too trying.

Masks of all kinds and descriptions are sold at Hallowe'en time. The new grotesque overall rubber masks which are pulled over the head are popular in some areas. Little folk enjoy making a face on a large, clean paper bag which they can pull on too. Mothers should help locate the places for the eyes, nose and mouth. Blunt scissors should be used to make the holes large enough to allow for lots of fresh air. Crayons or poster paints can color hair, complexion, eyes and mouth various shades.

As parents watch their children getting ready for Hallowe'en, they are reminded of the satisfaction in making things with one's own hands as well as the importance of imagination. Far too soon most people lose the urge to "make believe." Do you not think that the good times children help to create for themselves have far more character values than passive "spectator" recreation?

PUSHBUTTON TELEPHONE

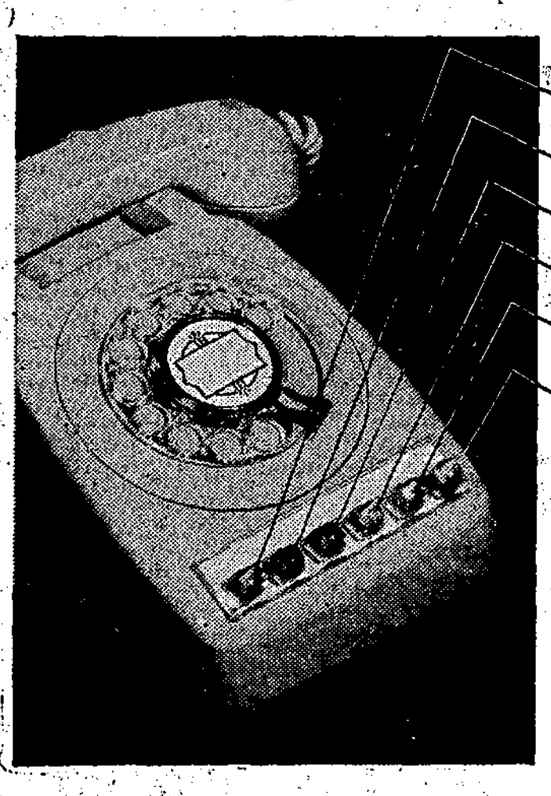
HERE'S HOW IT WORKS



ONE TYPICAL BUTTON ARRANGEMENT
HOLD. Holds a call on any line while a second call is made over another line.
Connects telephone with first line to place or receive a call.
Connects telephone with second line to place or receive a call.
Connects telephone with third line to place or receive a call.
Connects telephone with fourth line to place or receive a call.
INTERCOM. Used for inter-office calls.

When you're big enough for several telephone lines - but not for a PBX - pushbutton phones are the ideal solution. They are a boon to doctors, lawyers, accountants and smaller business offices.

A pushbutton phone is a miniature switchboard right on your desk. You can receive and dial calls on more than one line . . . hold a call while another is answered . . . talk to colleagues internally.

The model illustrated is only one of the many types of pushbutton phone. There's a model tailored to your exact requirements and our representative will be delighted to demonstrate just how much it can save you - in time and money.

New symbol for B.C. Hydro

B.C. Hydro has a new symbol. It depicts British Columbia and the vast scope of the utility's operations, extending from the hinterland to the sea.

Basically, the new symbol is a twin-diamond shape, forming a stylized "H" for hydro.

Top half of the two verticle diamonds is green, representing the forest-covered mountains of B.C. The bottom half is turquoise, depicting reflections of the mountains in the water areas of the province—the sources of hydro power.

The new symbol takes its place among hundreds of other geometric forms that identify the continent's major enterprises. It was created by Vancouver's Ted Bethune, one of Canada's leading industrial designers who has won top awards in competition with some of the continent's leading industrial artists. Bethune is employed by Cockfield Brown and Co. Ltd.—the agency that handles the Hydro Authority's advertising account.

The semi-absract shape of the "H", according to Bethune, also represents the geometric patterns of an electrical substation, the dials and oscillations of a control room panel, the pointed flame of a gas jet.

Before the new symbol was selected, dozens of sketches were considered and discarded.

Because of B.C. Hydro's variety of services and projects, the symbol could not depict any one enterprise or service. It had to be effective whether it was 20 feet high or half an inch from top to bottom.

It had to be equally usable in illuminated signs, on the fronts of buses, on the sides of service trucks or on business stationary and forms. And it had to be different from any known symbol.

It was a tall order. But, as Bethune explains, these are the problems that must be faced in developing any well-designed, modern business symbol.

"The symbol finally selected," he said, "is an attempt to crystalize the spirit of a growing province and the services of a large utility in one simple design which in time, through continued and constant use, may become immediately recognizable as 'B.C. Hydro and Power Authority'."

Weddings

WILLIAMS — WYTON

A quiet wedding took place Oct. 13 at 7 p.m. at St. Bartholomew's Anglican Church, Gibsons, when Louise Medley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Wyton, Gibsons became the bride of Mr. John Richard Williams, Sechelt, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Williams, of Egmont, Rev. Denis Harris officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a three-quarter length tiered white lace gown, with square neckline and a 25-year old heirloom veil. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and carnations. Her attendants were Miss Mavis Cook and Mrs. Evelyn Dubois who were gowned in pink and carried mauve chrysanthemums. Mr. Ken Anderson was best man and Garry Wyton, usher.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where a toast was proposed by Ken Anderson, uncle of the bride. The bride's table was centred with a wedding cake made by her mother and decorated by Mrs. Bruce Campbell.

The bride's mother wore a blue sheath dress with matching jacket and pink corsage. The groom's mother chose a dress of black and white.

After a wedding trip to Powell River the couple will live at Selma Park.

Province joins A.R.D.A. project

All 10 provinces have now signed agreements to participate in the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act program, Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton announced today.

Nearly 40 types of projects are outlined in the general agreements. These embrace new uses for marginal or submarginal farm land, rural development, and soil and water conservation measures

A committee of ministers and a sub-committee of senior civil servants have been establishd to examine the large list of projects that have been submitted for consideration under A.R.D.A. and to recommend those that should be given prior study and detailed investigation. A provincial director of A.R.D.A. will be appointed to administer the British Columbia Act.

Allocation of federal contributions for programs and projects under A.R.D.A. will be approximately $3,625,000 for the three year period ending May 31, 1965.

GLASSES FOUND

Someone has lost their plastic rim eye-glasses. They were found on the federal government wharf on October 21 and brought to the Coast News office by David Geoghegan.

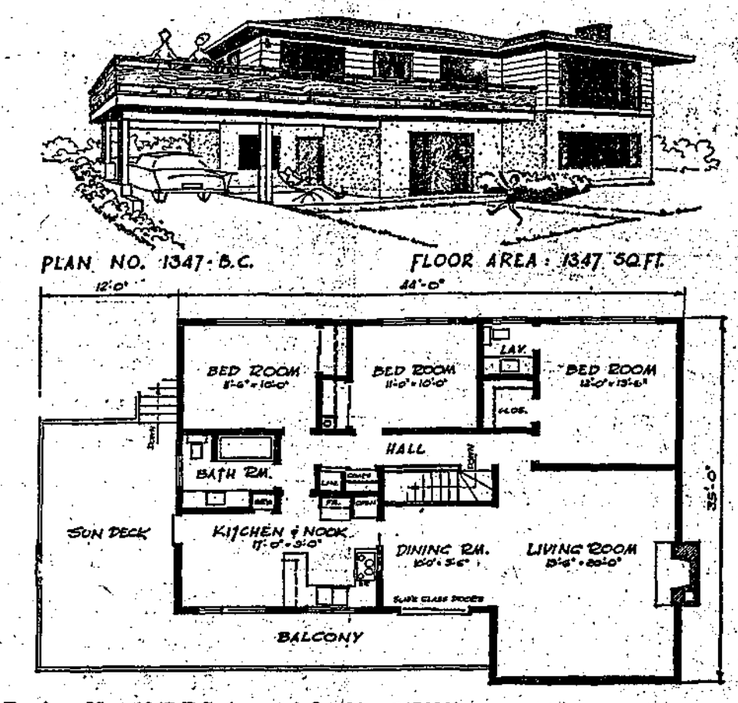
HOUSE FOR A FLAT TERRAIN



Design No. 1247-BC (copyright No. 117099)

Of special interest to home owners in areas where the terrain is flat — or where it is not feasible to excavate — or for a view lot — Design No. 1347 features a large balcony and sun deck for out door living.

Grade level entry provides for recreation room in the lower area, workshop for father or son, sewing room for mother, or an "in law" suite if desired. On the upper level, there is an attractive living room with formal dining room adjacent. Panoramic sliding glass doors in this area give access to the balcony which continues along in front of the house, opening to the sun deck over the carport. Kitchen features U shaped arrangement of cupboards, double sinks, and built-in oven and range, large nook for family meals, also access to the balcony to serve outdoor dining.

Three bedrooms across the back of the house ensure privacy for sleeping, and the master bedroom shows not only plumbing "en suite," but a king sized walk-in closet or dressing room. There is only a minimum of space taken up for hall in this house, main bathroom is large, with built-in vanity and storage.

Blueprints of this practical home are available, designed for N.H.A. financing. Write for free plan book (enclosing 25c to cover cost of mailing and handling) to the Building Centre (B.C.) Ltd., 96 Kingsway at Broadway, Vancouver 10.

Sun shines for Guides

For most of the winter months the cabins at the Guide Camp at Wilson Creek remain empty but over the weekend of Oct. 13, the North Shore cabin re-echoed to the laughter of the Roberts Creek Guides and their leaders.

The storm clouds had blown away and the sun was shining as the girls arrived at the cabin Saturday afternoon. Soon the quiet woodland clearing became the centre of activity as the wood patrol helped by Mr. Allen split kindling and carried in wood for the stove and fireplace. It wasn't long before a satisfactory curls of smoke issued from the cabin chimneys.

Nor was all the activity confined to the outside, indoors 15 girls were settling in, sorting out their bedrolls and discussing the merits of top-v-bottom bunks. The cook patrol were busily peeling potatoes and carrots, reconstituting milk powder and weeping over onions helped by any one who had a spare moment. By 3:30 p.m. chores were finished and leaving the pot roast to cook quietly on the stove the patrols disappeared into the woods on a mushroom hunt.

An interesting and varied assortment of fungi and one salamander were brought in, edible field mushrooms, fat brown russulas, orange and yellow Hygrophorus, blewits delicately tinted with purple, dainty brownie caps on slender stems and the odd sorts, elf saddle, coral fungus and witches butter among them. The collections were arranged on the porch to await Dr. R. Stace-Smith, president of the Vancouver Natural History society who came over on Sunday to help name the different species. He took several specimens back for an exhibit in the Vancouver Museum.

The cooks served a wonderful supper on time and three cheers were given for their success, and to the gardeners who had provided the potatoes and onions and to the mothers who sent an extra bonus in the shape of a cake and a pie. The evening was spent singing songs and acting skits and the presence of Mrs. D. Stockwell of Sechelt, the Divisional music adviser was most welcome. With a full moon shining over the trees a beach fire and weiner roast was suggested and then cocoa and doughnuts and off to bed.

Sunday morning got off to a good start with the Guides own service. The outdoor chapel, a moss grown forest glade with log benches is especially loved by the girls, where the sounds of birds in the trees overhead and the surf on the nearby shore accompany the hymns. The service was arranged by Pat Thomas, the lessons read by Wendy Inglis and Lorna Sneddon. Mrs. Allen spoke briefly on courtesy a part of the Guide law bringing to our attention the fact that courtesy covers a far wider field of thoughtfulness and consideration for others than just good manners.

The morning passed quickly with the Daffodil and Poppy Patrols out on a compass hunt. They found their new patrol boxes having successfully carried out their instructions. The Forget-me-not and Fuschia Patrols went out on a nature hunt and brought in interesting collection including a large wasps nests all of which they were able to name.

The Guides and leaders were happy to welcome Dr. and Mrs. Stace-Smith and their family for lunch and visitors in the afternoon including divisional commissioner, Mrs. Betty Williams, Sechelt; district commissioner, Mrs. Elsie Thomas, Gibsons, both just returned from a Commissioners conference in Alberni, Mrs. W. Dockar and Mr. and Mrs. Pat Quarry. During the short closing ceremony Deborah Dockar was enrolled and farewell and good wishes expressed to Mrs. Lou Nygren who is leaving the company.

Roberts Creek

(By Mrs. M. NEWMAN)

Five young geese, fugitives from one of the great V-shaped flocks southward bound, dropped to the Bernhof field for rest and food over the weekend. The family dog kept his distance and remained under the house most of the time. The birds had no objection to being watched from a distance but were ready for instant flight if any approached too near. After several hours of rest and feeding the geese took off to follow their fellows across the cloudy sky.

Mrs. S. Bennett has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. M. Johnston, and her son, Mr. A. Lang and family.

Mrs. B. McCue and two sons have returned to their home in Williams Lake having spent a week at the M. MacKenzie home.

Mr. and Mrs. K. Linton have returned from a visit to the World's Fair. They and typhoon Frieda were in Seattle the same night, the Lintons marvelling at the havoc Frieda played with the street decorations as she flung them past the hotel windows, six stories up.

The racket in the wee small hours a few nights ago was made by a car burning down in the neighborhood, honking its horn in a vain SOS to its sleeping owners. A power saw locked within also perished.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bennett of Nanaimo were guests during the week of the N. D. Blakey family who will remain at camp until Oct. 23.

Use only clean, first quality fuel for heaters and furnaces.

Letters to the editor

Editor: A letter of thanks seems such a trifling little thing in the face of such Trojan efforts, but it is at least an acknowledgement. And I am not alone in wanting to express a word of commendation for the outstanding service rendered by the line men — both B.C. Hydro crews and telephone line men.

We have heard much talk within the last few years about the physical unfitness of Canadians, along with the suggestion that we are becoming a decadent society. Perhaps there is an element of truth in the charges, but we certainly have some men who are physically fit, mentally alert, and conscious of their responsibility to a society which has become dependent upon them. Cheers for the men who keep the wires humming!

CLOE DAY

Editor: I was very much interested in the article "Bear makes few feet mile long" in the issue of October 11.

Having made this same trip, eastbound in the first week of September and westbound in the second week, and having stopped for lunch at one of the picnic areas, I feel that over-emphasis has been given to the grizzly bears. While I do not doubt that there are grizzly bears in the area, they are rarely seen around areas frequented by human beings. There are plenty of black bears to be seen on this highway and around the picnic sites.

We witnessed much the same scene as outlined in this article but they were black bears, not grizzlies. I write this letter not with the idea of contradicting the informant, but with the thought to convey to the public that the bears on the Rogers Pass Highway are grizzlies is frightening to the travelling public and we do not want to frighten our tourists away. Even though the highway is posted very frequently with signs warning not to feed the bears or tempt them to the cars, we saw a certain black bear with his paws on the door of the car and people teasing him by holding food out and then pulling it away from him. Even black bears become annoyed at treatment of this kind and are apt to grab someone's hand or make a slashing swipe with a front paw, which happened to a friend of mine and could easily have cost him his life.

In a lifetime in British Columbia I have only once, in my memory, made the acquaintance of grizzly bears on the road and that was a mother and three two year old cubs, but that is a story in itself.

As I said earlier I do not want to start a controversy or contradict the article but thought I would drop you a few lines entirely from the effect which too much emphasis on "grizzlies" might have on our touring public, because mention of grizzlies so often brings to a person's mind some mauling or fatality that has been attributed to grizzly bears.

Royal Murdoch.

Editor: A remarkable piece of news appears in last week's issue. Roberts Creek Community club, with 30 paid-up members, proposes to sell-out the hall. The reason given is lack of community interest and very difficult to carry on.

Perhaps some legal eagle will give them the go-ahead and tell them how to distribute the proceeds. But it would appear that a community property is something like an incorporated company in having its own individual identity and permanence. Even more, a community property might be judged to belong to the people who merely hold land, or the children yet unborn.

The first tea and bazaar of the newly formed Rebekah Lodge 82 was an outstanding success. It was opened by the noble grand, Mrs. T. Ivan Smith, and convened by Mrs. Lloyd Turner. The door prize was won by Mrs. T. E. Duffy; grocery hamper by Mrs. John Walker and cup and saucer by Mrs. S. W. Burt of Gibsons. Fancywork and novelties were in charge of Mrs. A. L. Parsons; home cooking, Mrs. Elsie Fletcher and Mrs. Hazel Critchell; candy, Mrs. Frank Walker; raffle, Mrs. Roy Erickson; door, Mrs. Archie Campbell; kitchen, Mrs. Gladys Brown, Mrs. Ruby Breese and Mrs. F. French. Serving were Mrs. Margaret Donley and Mrs. Margaret Wise; fish pond, Caroline Walker and Sharon Walker.

Beautifully decorated tables and fall coloring graced the Harvest Supper of the auxiliary to St. Hilda's Anglican Church. It was convened by Mrs. Helen Payne and the Evening Circle. The two auxiliaries combined to make the evening one long to be remembered.

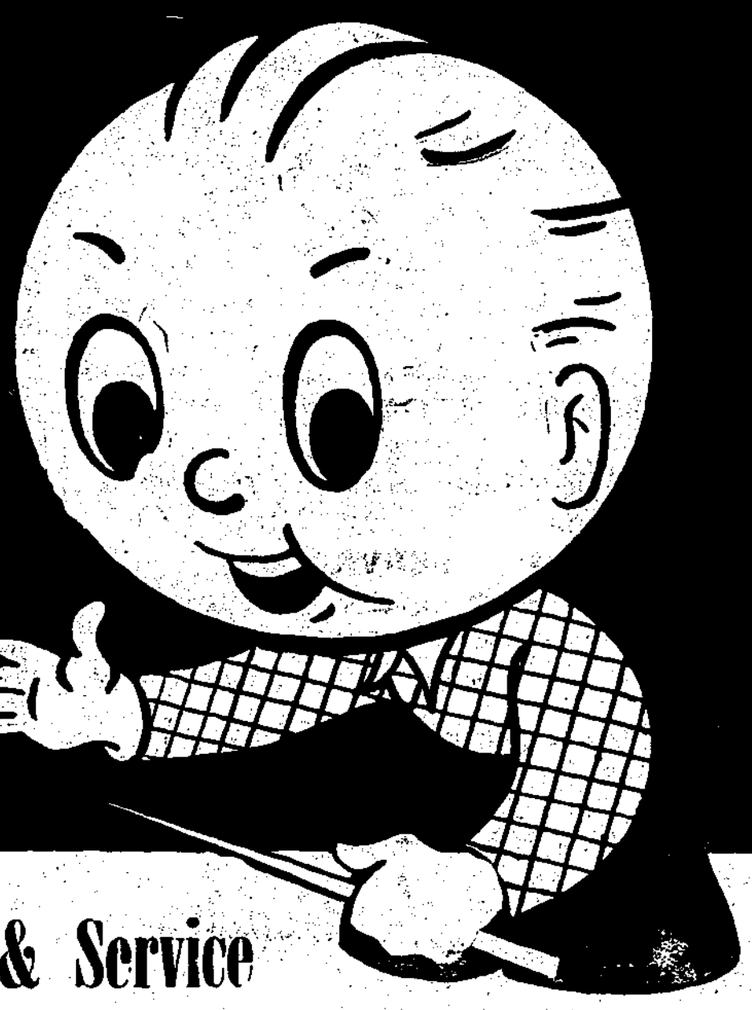
LENNOX
proudly presents a
New Certified Dealer!



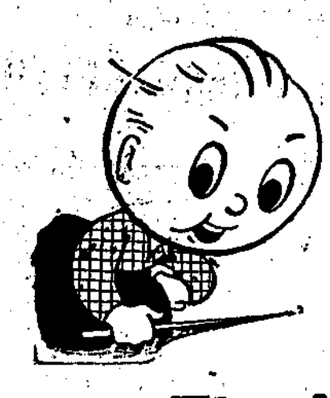
Tingley's Hi-Heat Sales & Service

Why we chose this dealer to represent us...

A lot of established dealers would dearly love to handle the Lennox line. And no wonder: in warm air heating, more families buy Lennox than any other make.

So we CAN be selective about our dealers—and we are! In order to maintain this position of leadership, our dealer organization must be limited to individuals and companies that have integrity, financial stability and an up-to-date knowledge of heating and air conditioning. Only in this way can our name—and the money you invest in home comfort equipment—be protected.

LENNOX Industries Inc.
Established 1895



THANK YOU FOR YOUR CONFIDENCE IN US!

It is both our pledge and promise to give prompt, courteous service to the people of our trading area ... to provide Lennox heating and air conditioning installations that are attractive in appearance and economical in operation. No job is too small (or too large!) to receive our careful and expert services.

SOCCER

Results of Juvenile League games played on Sun., Oct. 21:

Gibsons Merchants 3, Gibsons United 1.

Sechelt Warriors 0, Roberts Creek 1.

The game between Port Mellon and Sechelt Legion was cancelled because of unfavorable conditions.

The weather in Gibsons allowed the local derby to start on schedule, and the Merchants took a 3-1 decision and two points from the United team. This game was closer than the score might indicate.

For any team to take two points from the Sechelt Warriors is quite an achievement, and Roberts Creek did just that with a fine 1-0 decision in a close game.

This result puts Roberts Creek with Sechelt Residential School and Gibsons Merchants at the top of the league this week, and next week's games should prove interesting to all soccer fans

Games for next Sunday, Oct. 28, are as follows:

Residential School vs. Port Mellon.

Roberts Creek vs. Gibsons Merchants.

Sechelt Legion vs. Sechelt Warriors.

Port Mellon residents who were anticipating a good, evenly matched game between the local Totems and Sechelt Legion, the visiting team, had to settle for TV football, after glumly surveying the heavy rainfall.
