Course for swimming instructors

A course in swimming instruction and water safety will commence Monday, August 5, at Gibsons. The project, aimed at certifying local residents in water safety and swimming instruction, is conducted by the Canadian Red Cross Society and sponsored by Sunshine Coast Recreation commissions.

A course held during July of 1962, after most exacting examinations, resulted in certification of four candidates, all or most of whom are currently engaged in swimming instruction.

This year's course will commence August 5 and continue to August 10. To date, about 12 candidates from Port Mellon to Sechelt, have completed application forms.

Anyone residing here during the week of the course, 16 years of age or older, and possessing a Canadian Red Cross Senior Swimmer certificate, or its equivalent, may enroll on the first day of instruction.

All candidates for this course should be at Kinsmen's Hall, Kinsmen Park, Gibsons, at 6:30 p.m., August 5, equipped with pen and notebook. Theory lectures will be given by two qualified Red Cross instructors, and practice instruction at the Municipal Park, Gibsons.

Potential candidates desiring further information should phone Les Peterson, 886-9306. Arrangements will be made for reimbursement of those candidates who have paid the Red Cross for enrollment fees.

New marksman

Ed Wiren, 27, has been announced as the second Gold Expert Shield winner by Gibsons Rod and Gun club. He started shooting in 1959.

For this shield the shooter must fire perfect scores with a .22 calibre sporting rifle on 20 targets from each of the regulation positions, prone, kneeling or sitting and standing, with a total of 600 bullseyes being scored. This award is made by the Dominion Marksmen which arranges the competitions. Telescopic sights and other features of heavier rifles are barred.

OAPO trip

OAPO of Gibsons is arranging a day trip to the PNE and to make this possible must have a full bus load.

Actual OAPO members will be granted free privilege tickets to various shows, one being the Grand Stand performance, to celebrate Pioneer Day.

Prices for the trip will be $3 to OAPO members and $4 to non-members if space is available. The bus will leave Gibsons at 12:30 noon, returning 11:30 p.m.

To guarantee the trip reservations must be made so phone 886-2338 and make yours. The deadline is August 8 for this free privileges trip.

Summer bazaar

Howe Sound Women's Institute is planning a summer bazaar and strawberry tea in the W.I. cottage South Fletcher Road, on July 31, starting at 2 p.m.

There will be dainty gift aprons, utility aprons, pillowcases, socks and so on. Home cooking, garden produce and a white elephant stall. Ice cream and strawberries will be served. Come and do your Christmas shopping early and enjoy a pleasant afternoon.

GARDEN PARTY

The annual garden party of St. Hilda's Anglican church will be held in the spacious home grounds of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Burley on July 26, from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Asked to pour are Mesdames D. Harris, N. Burley, W. B. Billingsley, E. L. Baker, C. R. Harbord, D. Manns, A. Greene, J. Charlton and E. E. Redman. The tea will be formally opened by Rev. J. B. Fergusson.

Postponed!

The Peewee track and field meet, postponed owing to last weekend's heavy rains, has been cancelled entirely owing to previous arrangements by Sechelt and Gibsons Royal Canadian Legion branches, sponsors of the meet. It was expected peewees would perform Sunday in Hackett Park, Sechelt, but it was found that it would not be possible.

New store at Sechelt

A building permit for a store building with four suites on the second floor was granted on Wednesday night of last week at the meeting of Sechelt's village council.

Cost of the project is somewhere between $40,000 and $50,000 with the store area occupied according to reports by the Red and White store of J. Redman.

The building will be constructed on Ben Lang property close by the Village Centre building and the suites will be one, two and three rooms.

Auction draws

Auctioneering is something new in this area. The only recent auction was that of the John Woods Hardware store when an outside auctioneer was brought in.

On Wednesday of last week William Tweedly of Gibsons auctioned off possessions of Mrs. Mary Drew who is leaving the area after having sold her property for a new Elphinstone Co-op store on Marine Drive.

The ringing tones and quips of the auctioneer were a new sound in the open air and attracted quite a number of people. Mr. Tweedly expects to line up other auctions shortly.

Jet flight at 95

Dr. W. R. Phair, of Los Angeles Cal., who practiced for many years in Winnipeg, flew to Vancouver by jet airliner to be with his daughters, one at Gower Point and the other at Gibsons. Dr. Phair will reside with Mr. and Mrs. Allan McIntosh of Gower Point. Mrs. McIntosh is a daughter. The other daughter is Mrs. Harry Hurlburt. Mr. and Mrs. Hurlburt have recently purchased the Veever home in Gibsons.

ON FIRST VISIT

Mrs. M. Curiston of Vancouver with her sister Miss Hilda Richardson from Newark, England, were week-end guests of Mrs. A. M. Harper, Shasta Lodge, New Brighton.

This was Miss Richardson's first visit to Canada, and like all visitors, she was greatly impressed with our beautiful B.C. scenery, especially that around Howe Sound, which she described as another Switzerland only on a grander scale.

VISITOR FROM RENFREW

Mr. George Miller of Renfrew, Ont., longtime friend of Mel Usher will spend some time visiting the Ushers at Sleepy Hollow, Gibsons. This is Mr. Miller's first visit to the Coast.

RAFFLE POSTPONED

Peninsula Softball club raffle which was to have been drawn last Sunday was cancelled owing to inclement weather. It will be held on August 4 at Port Mellon.

School vote planned for autumn

Preparations are now under way by Sechelt School District board to present a referendum in the early fall in which the board will seek most of the requirements outlined in the referendum defeated last April 6 by 22 votes. The actual vote was 515 for and 381 against. Because the for vote was 22 votes short of the required 60 percent majority it did not pass.

In the meantime members of the school board have arranged for the placement of pupils at convenient schools until such time as additional accommodation can be constructed where needed.

There will be some changes made in the referendum from the presentation offered the public last April. At Tuesday night's meeting board members mulled over the situation but did not come to any definite conclusions.

Schon heads Legion zone

Delegates and members of the Ladies Auxiliaries from the four Peninsula branches, together with Malaspina branch visited Vananda, Saturday, for the summer zone meeting.

After luncheon, at which 80 guests were seated, the business session opened under the chairmanship of T. Hobbs. Reports on the Pacific Command convention at Kamloops were given, and discussions followed on welfare work done by the Legion.

Elevation of R. Haig, previous zone commander to the vice-presidency of Pacific Command, called for election of new zone officers. L. A. Schon, Malaspina branch, is the new zone commander and deputy zone commander is C. G. Lucken from Sechelt.

Following the business session the visitors were taken on tours of Texada Island. They were impressed by the expansion in the mines and in the great number of new homes being built. The next zone meeting will be Oct. 19 and host branch will be Gibsons Branch 109.

D'aoust reunion

A surprise family reunion was held in honor of Mr. and Mrs. V. D'aoust on July 13 and 14. All members of the family attended with their own families; a total of 28 persons, 13 of which were grandchildren.

Included were Mr. and Mrs. A. D'aoust, Mr. and Mrs. B. D'aoust, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. D'aoust, Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Tyson, Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Jackson, Leo, Louis and Marion. This is the first time the family has been united in 13 years.

Derby results

Here are the results of the second week of the Madeira Park PTA Fish Derby:

Largest fish: Jack Stevens, New Westminster, 29 lb. 5 oz.; hidden weight, Mrs. Mary Alexander, Madeira Park, 9.6 lb.

Results of the third week are: Largest fish, Mrs. M. Shaw, New Westminster, 32 lb. 8 oz.; hidden weight, Cledia Duncan, Madeira Park, 16.2 lb.

On a pole in Salem, Mass.

The shrill ringing of the telephone broke the quiet of the sleeping household.

"Hello?"

"Is this 886-9397?" The man's voice came in loud and clear.

"Yes. Who is speaking?"

"This is a lineman, on a pole. Where are you?"

"Where am I? At home of course."

"Where is that?"

"Roberts Creek. Who are you? What do you want?"

"I'm in Salem, Mass. I want Code area 604."

By this time Mrs. Rod MacKenzie was wide awake and thoroughly annoyed.

"Where is Roberts Creek? I am trying to get a suburb of Salem." The man sounded perplexed.

"Roberts Creek is 20 miles from Vancouver, Canada. Goodbye."

Mrs. MacKenzie went back to bed. Ten minutes later the phone rang again, and again the same voice asked, now plaintively, "Who is this?"

Awake now, Mrs. MacKenzie wondered if she was being "had," so she phoned the local operator and learned that our code number is indeed 604 also.

Consider rebuilding fire gutted Sechelt Inn

Fire which broke out about 2:30 p.m. Saturday caused close to $50,000 damage to Sechelt Inn. Seven guests were registered at the time and reservations had been made for a weekend full house.

Beyond shattered glass cutting the hand of one fireman no serious injuries were reported. Sechelt's Volunteer Fire department which responded within two minutes of the alarm lost three lengths of hose.

The fire department in its report on the blaze said: An alarm of fire was turned in to the Sechelt Volunteer Fire Brigade from the Sechelt Inn at 2:30 p.m. on Saturday, July 20 and within two minutes firemen were on the scene.

Fire had apparently started in a basement suite and the firemen's efforts were hampered by the dense smoke. The fire was under control by 6 p.m. but another fire broke out which was not finally extinguished until 9 p.m.

The dining room and lower floor sustained considerable damage and the furniture and fixtures were damaged by smoke and water but the building was saved.

Picture shows the corner of Sechelt Inn where Saturday's fire started and spread throughout the building.

The fire brigade lost three lengths of hose, and one fireman received medical attention for splinters of glass in his hand, the fire department report added.

The hotel was originally the home of the late Mr. Whitaker and was built in the 1890s.

Mrs. F. B. Duncan, proprietor of Sechelt Inn, is considering the possibilities of rebuilding. Considerable of the loss is covered by insurance.

The fire, which according to investigating RCMP, started from a cone heater in the lower floor room at the back of the inn, spread through the woodwork breaking out in various places, creating problems for the firemen.

RCMP Cpl. Ray Nelson who as area fire marshall, aided the firemen and commented that it was fortunate the fire did not start at 2:30 a.m. when occupants of the building would have been asleep.

The interior had been redecorated for the summer's business and operations were working towards the summer peak. Mrs Duncan purchased the building and land in 1952 from Union Estates and had operated it since.

It was regarded as an outstanding spot for flower-pot gardeners because the dining room with its rich foliage from numerous plants produced for Mrs. Duncan the green thumb slogan by which the place was known to many.

This is the third hotel fire for Sechelt, the first being in 1915, owned by Mr. Whitaker, the second in 1926 owned by Union Estates and the third, the fire Saturday.

Firemen were given great praise by Mrs. Duncan, Cpl. Nelson of the RCMP and Mrs. Christine Johnston, chairman of the village council.

Bad fire on Gambier

Fire caused $25,000 damage, destroying three well-built homes on the MacKenzie property at MacKenzie's Cove in Centre Bay, Gambier Island, Wednesday, July 17.

The fire which started about 7:30 in the evening started from a kerosene driven refrigerotor. The three homes are built in terrace fashion on the property and the fire spread uphill from one to the other. A fourth home was affected by sparks but did not suffer serious damage.

Officials of the Forestry department from Sechelt were called in and men from available tugboats and camps in the area were pressed into action. They kept the fire from spreading into the surrounding treed area.

The homes were owned by members of the MacKenzie family from Vancouver and were usually occupied by them each summer.

Founder of Granthams dies in his 93rd year

Frederick Charles Grantham, after whom Granthams Landing was named, died July 19 in a Vancouver hospital. He was in his 93rd year and became interested in Granthams area as far back as 1909.

He leaves a brother, Frank in Vancouver and a nephew, Dr. Herbert A. Grantham of Kathmandu, Nepal, India. Mr. Grantham married Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas J. McQuillan of Larne Island, North Island, in 1897. Mrs. Grantham died some years ago.

Mr. Grantham was a Mason, a member of Acacia Lodge No. 22 He was buried in the Masonic cemetery in Burnaby. The funeral service was held July 22 at Nunn and Thomson's chapel in Vancouver with Rev. A. E. Whitehouse officiating.

He was born at Peckham, England, June 10, 1871. He was in Manitoba in 1881 and moved to Vancouver in September of 1905.

In 1909 when seeking a good spot for a summer home he had heard of Gibsons and taking a look with the aid of John Glassford at the area now known as Granthams Landing, decided to purchase about 75 acres with an approximate 800 feet of waterfront.

After deciding where his summer cottage would go he had the rest of the land subdivided and put in the real estate market. With the aid of a crew he built a floating dock, cut roads through and put in a water system which was regarded as having the finest water in the area. At the time the area post office was known as Howe Sound post office but the steamboat officials decided that Grantham's Landing pin-pointed that spot and the name stuck.

Commercially Mr. Grantham was former owner of the F. C. Grantham and Co. beverage manufacturers. He retired from this back in 1944, continuing to spend his summers in Granthams area.

The Davis Ottawa Diary

By JACK DAVIS, M.P.
Coast-Capilano Constituency

The second budget of Finance Minister Walter Gordon, for the statement he released on July 8 amounted to that, removed a number of the more objectionable measures in his first budget.

The tax on building materials will be applied in stages. Powers sought by the government to prevent companies from avoiding taxation can be appealed to the Exchequer court. And the definition of Canadian ownership has been altered.

This retreat means that the government's estimated budgetary deficit for the present fiscal year will be increased by $115 million. But it has at least one desirable effect. It has increased the government's resolve to cut expenses. Prime Minister Pearson sounded the keynote when he said "I don't think we should spend a nickel after the election unless it contributes to the expansion of the economy."

When the Liberal government assumed power, confidence in Canada, both at home and abroad, enjoyed a hopeful upward surge. It was felt that a reasonable government, dedicated to realistic methods and objectives, had taken office. The result was an emotional stimulation to the economy. This vital upsurge in confidence suffered a temporary shock when the confusions and contradictions of the Budget became apparent.

The government's job now is to get on with the task it originally set for itself: To cut expenses where they can be cut, and that is in many areas, and to provide incentives for business and industry to become more productive and therefore better sources of revenue.

A bigger deficit cannot be accepted as inevitable, and the revisions in the budget will not in themselves restore confidence. But if the government is firm in its use of the blue pencil and ingenious in its use of incentives it may be possible to introduce other tax reliefs. This is the way back to confidence and prosperity.

Water flowing uphill?

A British Columbia cabinet minister who as much as told the prairie provinces they had enough water at hand to look after their needs should never have to worry about his future. The prairie provinces could use him to solve their water problems.

The B.C. cabinet minister was in fact, telling those east of the mountains they should leave British Columbia water to British Columbians. This is of course one angle to the water situation.

What the prairie provinces would be interested in is asking the B.C. cabinet minister if he knows how they can get water to run uphill. Perhaps he has the answer. The above-sea-level height of the average Manitoba lake is about 800 feet, in Saskatchewan, 1,500 feet, Alberta a rough 2,000 feet and B.C. over 2,000 feet.

General observation has noted that water runs downhill. Efforts to make it go uphill have not been successful. The eastern Rocky Mountains are a natural watershed for the prairie provinces. A great deal of this water finds its way to the Arctic ocean. Some could be diverted to the prairie provinces and even stored for future use.

The British Columbia government is ready to store Columbia river water in Canada for United States. It is not too far-fetched to suggest that water could be stored at other points for the use of Canadians in Canada. It is quite possible the Saskatchewan view of the uses of Canadian waters in Canada may not be a pipe dream despite the suggestion that Saskatchewan has "cotton picking hands." Riparian rights are just as effective in Saskatchewan as they are in B.C.

Respect for law

Ever stop to figure out what one should do with all the rumors available in this area, rumors such as burning down the old Drummond block as it stood, the coming of a big super-market, Sechelt Inn burned to the ground — just a pile of rubble left — and many other such rumors the average adult can recall without over-tiring the mind?

A suggestion has been made that the Coast News should publish all it hears and sees. It would indeed be interesting and the Coast News lawyer, who is well-versed on sins of omission or commission, would be a very busy person presenting habeas corpus proceedings in many courts on behalf of the editor.

So far the Coast News has strived to keep itself out of court and has been reasonably successful. It is not the duty of this or any newspaper to publish all it sees and hears. If it is in the best interests of the community there is no doubt the news item will be printed. If there is doubt about its validity the editor shadow-boxes for time — and time usually clears up the mind and the matter involved. There are periods when the voice of experience emerges and controls one's thoughts. The voice of experience carries weight and must be heeded — or else the need for a lawyer arises. So far our lawyer has found this publication a rather quiet field in which to expand his vocation. Long may it continue.

Supplies information

Through the medium of other newspapers this publication is keeping its readers informed of what is going on in transportation to Vancouver Island northwest of this section of the Sunshine Coast. This is done because there are areas involved who have as a sitting member in the legislature a member of the government and this member usually gets close to the minister involved and obtains information which the public of this area should know.

It would appear that the circle route from Horseshoe Bay to Powell River area then across to Campbell River area is something more than a dream based on a story on one of the inside pages of this issue. Whenever such items are available they will be published for the information they contain.

BIRD MASQUERADE

In the amazing world of nature many animals, birds, fish, and lower forms of life are mistakenly identified as being something they are not, or closely resembling some other animal.

This is the fate of the North American Robin. This bird has been called a robin so long that it would be almost impossible to persuade people that is not a true robin. The bird we identify as a robin, is, in reality, a true thrush. The robin often called the English Robin, is a much smaller bird, and except for the peculiar red coloring on the breast, does not resemble the thrush at all. These thrushes are often three times as large as the true robin.

Easter Island or Island Easter

(By Eric Thomson)

Last Easter week, when I was helping my son with his new house on Savary Island, my evening reading was a fat paperback of tales of the South Pacific written by two American professors resident in Hawaii.

In their foreword the authors explained that every time either of them published a story of the South Seas, it brought an avalanche of letters from men all over the world asking for particulars of island life. The enquirers had a common vision of trade winds whispering in the palms over coral beaches as day followed golden day.

The Americans stressed the monotony of island existence, food, isolation and idleness which combined eventually to bring the adventurer to a bad end, if he survived the multitude of tropical diseases that awaited the newcomer. They illustrated their theme with a series of short stories about adventurers good and bad who had sought haven there, all of whom, except one, had come to an unpremeditated and violent death by cannibals, sharks, spears, and, infrequently, by execution, and the only one in the series who died in his bed was Captain Bligh.

The last tale dealt with the enslavement of the natives of Easter Island, who perished in the guano mines off the Peruvian coast, and with them perished their island's history. Their tale ends there, and mine begins, so Easter Island transposes to Island Easter, and deals with an island life of strangely different tempo, but of equal attraction.

There are in the North Pacific, islands and beaches as alluring as any in the South Seas, and of these British Columbia has its generous share, and many men there are, who in their time have had a dream of an up-coast island home, and some have achieved it. From English Bay, in Vancouver, I used to watch the sun go down behind Texada Island far up the Gulf of Georgia, and speculate on what life would be like beyond that sunset, but it was nearly 50 years later that I found out, the hard way.

In 1959 my son Willie bought 150 feet of waterfront on Savary Island, above Texada. This island is about five miles long and lies a few miles off Lund, some 14 miles above Powell River. At the end of the island nearer Powell River there is the government wharf, a small store, and some 50 summer homes, owned mostly by Vancouver business and professional men. A rough road runs through the wilderness to what is known as the other end, on one side of which is the Royal Savary Hotel, and on the other side there are a few widely scattered summer homes, now including my son's.

Following his purchase, in 1959 my son spent a few days on his property, located his boundaries, did a little clearing and built a small shelter with a tar paper roof and fir boughs for the sides. During the winter he fabricated a cabin of some 20x8 feet, and had the components shipped to Savary Island wharf. He invited me to accompany him to his island as the extra pair of hands, to spend Easter week.

We went by car to Lund, camped there the night in his tent, and at daylight on Good Friday, before the morning wind arose, we crossed the six miles of open sea to his end of the island in a car-top boat, fully laden with tools, food, hardware and our bags and blankets. We made it nicely, and on rounding Indian Point we raised thousands of brant geese, which congregate there on their spring migration to feed on their special sea grass which grows there.

We got our load ashore safely on a beach of silver sand about half a mile long, in front of the

A pound of flesh

by C. J. Harris

A pound of flesh and then some is what the federal government's succession duties demand from widows, according to the complaints of various women's organizations appearing before the Royal Commission on Taxation. Several very sensible reforms of the Estate Tax Act were recommended by the groups.

As the federal law now stands there is a basic tax exemption of $40,000 on all estates, and an additional $20,000 to a widow. There was a time, and not too long ago, when $60,000 was a lot of money. But if a widow of today were left that sum entirely in cash and invested it at a reasonable five percent, her $60-a-week income is not going to go very far, particularly if there are children to be fed and housed. It would seem, then, that succession duties are based on a quite unrealistic appraisal of the real value of the current dollar.

That view was echoed by the Canadian Federation of University Women and the Canadian Committee on the Status of Women. They proposed that a widow's inheritance should be exempt up to a value of $100,000. The two groups also proposed that the tax collector should start off by acknowledging that a wife directly contributes to the creation of family property and, therefore, one-half of a husband's estate should be considered as belonging to a surviving widow and not subject to tax. In support, the Committee stated that 65.5 percent of working women are married and obviously are contributing to the family's wealth.

The point that one-half of an estate should be regarded as belonging to a widow, and thus tax exempt, was also made by the National Council of Women. The Council also argued that pensions and annuities should not be taxed at their capitalized value; a widow, said the Council, now must pay a state tax on capital she has not received, and since she must then pay income tax on most of it she is subject to double taxation at a time when she needs the money most.

In the same vein, the Professional Institute of the Public Service of Canada urged that annuities that cannot be commuted to cash should be tax exempt, as is now the case under Ontario law. The Institute suggested, too, that a widow should be considered as a half-owner of a family home, up to a maximum exemption of $10,000, and that all normal household appliances and furnishings should be considered as the property of the widow.

Finally, it might be noted that Uncle Sam is far more realistic in taxing a widow's inheritance. In the U.S. the basic exemption is also $60,000, but in addition a widow has a tax-free ownership of the first half of her husband's estate — and the tax rate starts at three percent as compared to 10 percent here. On a taxable estate of $10,000 a Canadian widow pays at the rate of 11 percent, while the American tax reaches that rate at $35,000.

The recommendations of the women's organizations should not be ignored.

homesite. It was a curious feeling to be the very first to come to where no one had ever lived before, and to think that presently there would arise a home on this lovely site, its lights to shine over the Gulf, and its children to play upon this beach.

We had breakfast, then my son went off for his material, while I set fire to the pile of debris from his last year's clearing, and while I was doing this I had time to look around. Inland, above the beach, was a strip of tall grass, and then a thin ringe of second growth fir and pine, next came a long glade, parallel with the beach, and then the ground sloped gently upward covered with medium-sized fir and pine, some very large arbutus, and one huge old and dangerous first-growth fir. Seawards, from left to centre were the Vancouver Island mountains back of Comox round to Campbell River, and from centre to right were the snow-clad peaks of the Coast Range, while in front, across some two miles of shallow water lay Hernando Island, once a logging camp, now uninhabited and owned by German noblemen.

My son arrived with the cabin material and we did the necessary clearing on the hillside, and we were living in comfort in the cabin in two days, after which we cut down that big fir by hand as the power-saw wouldn't work in the flow of pitch that poured out of the kerf.

In 1961 my wife and I were in the Old Country, so my next visit to the island was at Easter last year. By this time the skeleton of the house was up, on the inner side of the glade, but we lived in the cabin. It was on this visit that I fully realized that here was no tropical idleness while gentle breezes cooled the brow.

I had jobs like packing bricks and lumber and stapling in the battens of insulation while my boss was building the massive chimney and fabricating the partitions. Our radio worked best on the Courtenay station 16 miles away on Vancouver Island and every morning Billy Brown, Jr., erstwhile of Vancouver, interspersed his commercials with those mournful cowboy melodies, to which my son added his two-bits' worth, the mournfullest cow-poke of them all. I never worked to music before, and the combined effect of my son with voice and hammer, myself with stapler and Mr. Brown with the rest of it was symphonically something out of this world, but it brought lunch time before we realized it.

Scottish actor Bill Simpson plays Alan Finlay in Dr. Finlay's Casebook, a medical-adventure series seen Thursday nights during the summer on the CBC-TV network. The BBC-produced series is based on a collection of short stories by A. J. Cronin, entitled Adventures of a Black Bag. In the series, Bill Simpson, as Alan Finlay, is cast as an assistant to an older doctor in the village of Tannochbrae.

Teenage problems

(By C. D. SMITH)

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "I have a teenage problem. I get along very well with my parents. They like me and say that they trust me. Yet, every time I go on a date, they always accuse me of doing things that I do not do. My father, particularly, accuses me of things I do not do. What can I do to convince them?"

OUR REPLY: It seems unlikely that parents would make blind accusations when they have absolutely nothing to go on. If this is true, then the parents are wrong.

On the other hand, it is more likely that you are mistaking interrogation for accusation. Your parents have a right to know what you do when you are away from home. They have a right to ask—even a responsibility to ask. You are obligated to tell them—just as you are obligated to obey them. Should they tell you not to go to a particular place, you must stay away from this place. If they tell you not to do something, don't do it.

Make it a policy to tell your parents exactly where you are going and what you will do there. Don't try to hide anything from them. Above all, don't lie to your parents. A little "fib" may seem the easy out sometimes, but this fib takes on big consequences when truth comes to light.

Here is one way to look at your problem: Your parents do have confidence in you or they would not permit you to date. They still have the responsibility to determine that you remain worthy of the confidence they place in you. Make them realize this is true by telling them the things you do without waiting for them to ask you if you did this or did that.

MUSKRAT AND BEAVER

The beaver and muskrat have several habits in common, besides constructing homes at ground level and denning in the banks of lakes and streams, habits which might suggest that they are blood brothers rather than remote relatives. Like the beaver, the muskrat expels bursts of air from its lungs when swimming any distance under ice in such a way that bubbles are formed here and there where ice and water meet. Later, when the lungs require re-fueling, these service stations are visited, and the air from the bubbles, aerated and fresh, is again utilized. The muskrat, of course cannot remain indefinitely under water without air breathed in the usual way; their sojourn is limited and bubble breathing a temporary measure.

ANNOUNCING:
BRITISH COLUMBIA HYDRO AND POWER AUTHORITY 5% PARITY DEVELOPMENT BONDS

AN UNPARALLELED OPPORTUNITY TO ADD TO YOUR SAVINGS AS YOU HELP BUILD YOUR PROVINCE'S PROSPERITY

British Columbia is now in the midst of its most dynamic growth. Our harnessing of the mighty Peace River is both one result of the province's tremendous expansion and one reason for it. British Columbia is now guaranteed a pool of available power, vital to population and industry growth, unmatched on this continent. It remains only for each family to assure themselves their maximum possible share of our growing prosperity. There can be no sounder way for you to establish or to further a savings and investment programme than to purchase a British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority 5% Parity Development Bond. Read in these four points why these bonds are such an exceptional investment for every family in British Columbia.

1. Your investment earns 5% per annum, payable every 3 months.

2. Your investment is unconditionally guaranteed by the Province of British Columbia. You have your province's pledge, therefore, that interest payments will be made on the 15th day of November, February, May and August during the currency of the bond, and that it will be redeemed for the original purchase price when it matures on August 15, 1967.

3. You can redeem B.C. Hydro and Power Authority 5% Parity Development Bonds at any time for the full purchase price, plus interest earned, at any bank in British Columbia or at the principal offices of the Company's bankers anywhere in Canada.

4. You have the satisfaction of investing in a public undertaking vital to your province. Interest payments on the capital necessary for this development remain in British Columbia, helping to add to the province's prosperity and to your own.

THE ISSUE: Purchases of this issue by an individual or company are limited to $25,000. Holders of the previous issue of British Columbia Power Commission Parity Development Bonds maturing August 15, 1963 can continue their investment by arranging to exchange for bonds of this issue immediately.

DENOMINATIONS: Bearer bonds are available with coupons attached in all denominations – $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $10,000.

INTEREST: Interest at the rate of 5% per annum will be paid quarterly on the 15th day of November, February, May, and August during the currency of the bond.

DATE OF ISSUE: August 15, 1963.

DATE OF MATURITY: August 15, 1967.

REDEMPTION: British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority 5% Parity Development Bonds can be redeemed at par value at any time at any bank in the Province of British Columbia, or at the principal offices of the Company's bankers throughout Canada.

REGISTRATION: Bonds of $1,000, $5,000, and $10,000 can be fully registered.

HALFMOON BAY NOTES

(By MARY TINKLEY)

The Lovers of Life league held its first session on Sat., July 20, probably one of the rainiest days on record for this time of year. Instead of the planned expedition to study wild life along the shore, a meeting was held at Mrs. Alan Greene's home, where the young members discussed pets, rules of health and received instruction on how to handle and care for injured birds. Expeditions are planned for the third Saturday in every month, starting at 3 p.m. from the Greene residence. Membership is open to all children between the ages of 4 and 14.

Joan MacDougall, who is taking a summer course at U.B.C., made a flying visit to Halfmoon Bay to visit her many friends here. Joan is enthusiastic about her new post as a school librarian in Kelowna.

Joan Brooks is spending her vacation as the guest of her brother Russell, at Prince Rupert. Mrs. Crystal Hare has returned to Detroit after visiting her sister, Mrs. B. McCaul at Welcome Beach.

The McTaggarts have returned to their West Vancouver home after a three week vacation at their cottage at Middlepoint.

Mrs. Claire Baird of Middlepoint is spending two weeks in Vancouver.

While Bobby Ellis was clearing land on the Ellis property, his axe slipped and cut into the soft part of Bobby's kneecap, necessitating stitches inside and out.

One of the most lively and happy sections of Redrooffs this summer is Duck Rock beach, where every house has been full to overflowing; where the fishermen have caught enough fish to make them forget the weather; where several teenagers have tasted the thrill of water-skiing for the first time and where some of the young fry have learned to keep afloat without lifebelts and without even a foot on the bottom.

The Bill Sextons in the June Bug have had remarkably good fishing. Eleven-year-old Bobby landed four big springs, the largest of which was 18 lbs. House guests of the Sextons are Mr. and Mrs. Lindsey Cleland of Vancouver.

The Buz Jones are enjoying their lovely new beach home with guests Mr. and Mrs Hap Flower of Victoria. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lawrence and Mark are guests of the Jack Temples. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Forshaw are vacationing at Duck Rock Cottage and Mr. and Mrs. Mike Urquhart of Powell River are at the McPhalen's. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Page of Port Moody are spending July at their summer cottage.

Swimming classes for children from age six and up are held on Mr. Cooper's beach at Redrooffs on Thursday and Saturday mornings at 9:30.

Sechelt News

(By Mrs. A. A. FRENCH)

A wonderful time was enjoyed by the Senior Citizens club of Vancouver on a scenic tour sponsored by the South Vancouver branch 16 of the Royal Canadian Legion.

They were served lunch by the Ladies Auxiliary of Branch 140 and met old friends and made new ones. One of the members, George Batchelor of Vancouver was celebrating his 92nd birthday. The past president of the district council, Mrs. Hilda Digby was with the party, also her mother, Mrs. Florence Clarke aged 72 and still able to sing a good song without the mike at conventions. President Mrs. A. O'Brien thanked Sechelt branch members for their hospitality.

Mrs. C. G. Lucken, president of the auxiliary and Ray Delong, president of the branch, responded. The bus driver, a local boy, George Shaw, married to Phyllis Nelson, is one of the better known sight-seeing drivers.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Parrish are Mr. and Mrs. C. West and son Michael of St. Paul, Alta, and Mr. and Mrs. L. McIntyre of Whitewood, Sask.

Greg Menzies, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Menzies, Porpoise Bay, is with his father on a short vacation at Queen Charlotte Island.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. Ivan Smith at Highcroft are Mrs. H. W. Gorrie and Miss B. Gorrie of Vancouver and Mrs. S. Ward and sons Sid and George, of North Burnaby.

THIS WEEK'S RECIPE

With a little ingenuity and a packet of instant pudding mix summer desserts are a snap to make. Ideas for using the mixes include: folding in sliced bananas, topping the pudding with fresh berries, using it as a fast filling for fruit tarts, or . . . as the main ingredient for Ice Cream Sandwiches, as in the recipe below.

Popular with youngsters, the sandwiches are made in double quick time, and are both more economical and more nutritious than store-bought ice cream. Graham crackers are used as wafers and vanilla flavored instant pudding mix is used as the filling.

If the sandwiches are to be made in quantity — for instance for a fund-raising garden party or as the dessert at a barbecue session—it's best to use a separate refrigerator tray for each batch. Different flavors of instant pudding can be used to vary the filling. To speed freezing, it's a good idea to moisten the bottoms of the filled trays before popping them into the 'fridge.

ICE CREAM SANDWITCHES

Yield — 4 to 8 servings
8 double graham crackers
1⅓ cups cold milk
1-3 cup (1 small can) evaporated milk
1 package (approximately 3⅝ ounces) vanilla-flavored instant pudding mix

If manufacturer recommends it, turn cold control of refrigerator to its coldest point. Cut four double graham crackers to fit into bottom of refrigerator tray. Cut remaining graham crackers the same size and set aside.

Pour cold milk and evaporated milk into a mixing bowl. Add vanilla-flavored instant pudding mix. Beat until well mixed — about 1 minute. Pour over the graham crackers in freezing tray. Top with remaining graham crackers. Freeze until filling is firm. To serve, cut around each sandwich and lift out. For smaller sandwiches cut each sandwich in half.

It takes very little effort to give an extra fillip to summer menus. Simple touches such as oven-fresh rolls are a way to add new interest to your favorite salads, or give a fresh slant to sandwich fare.

Crusty Twists are a treat that most families can afford to have often because they're inexpensive and easy to make. And since they are made with yeast and enriched flour, Crusty Twists are a good source of the nutrients which everyone needs particularly at this time of year when extra energy is needed for outdoor chores and sports.

If you're planning to use these rolls for an outdoor meal, try cutting them horizontally and filling them with sliced salami, ham and cheese — or a mixture of all three. This is the way they're eaten in the fields in France and Italy. In fact, the open texture, flavor and crisp crust of these twists are very similar to a French bread stick. Naturally, they're at their best when eaten warm from the oven, so don't hesitate to reheat them before serving.

CRUSTY TWISTS

Yield — 2 dozen twists
¾ cup boiling water
2 teaspoons granulated sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons shortening
½ cup lukewarm water
1 teaspoon granulated sugar
1 envelope fast-rising active dry yeast
3 cups (about) pre-sifted all purpose flour

Combine in a large bowl, the boiling water, 2 teaspoons sugar, salt and shortening. Cool to lukewarm. Pour the lukewarm water into a measuring cup; stir in the 1 teaspoon sugar. Sprinkle with yeast. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir well. Stir dissolved yeast into water-sugar-shortening mixture. Stir in 1½ cups of the flour and beat until smooth and elastic. Stir in sufficient additional flour to make a soft dough — about 1¼ cups to 1½ cups more. Turn out dough onto a floured board or canvas and knead until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl. Grease top. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 1¼ hours.

Punch down dough; turn out on highly-floured board or canvas and knead until smooth. Divide dough into 2 equal portions. Roll out one portion into a rectangle 7x9 inches. Cut dough crosswise into twelve ¾-inch wide strips. Fold each strip in half, then twist, doughnut fashion. Arrange well apart, in ungreased cookie sheet. Repeat with second portion of dough. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 45 minutes.

Meantime, place a shallow pan of hot water in the bottom of oven. Preheat oven to 400 deg. F. (hot). Brush risen twists with a little milk. Bake in preheated oven (pan of water removed) 15 to 20 minutes.

Ham a popular meat

Cured, smoked ham is one of the most popular meats today. Ham has been popular for so long, says the Meat Packing Council of Canada, that now you can find almost any kind of ham to suit your taste.

This is a problem for many shoppers because they are never sure of the differences between a ham, picnic, cottage roll, boneless, skinless, fully cooked, partially cooked, etc. It's small wonder that the average housewife today gets a little confused when she decides to buy just an "ordinary" ham for her family.

Strictly speaking, there is only one true ham. It comes from the hind leg of the pig and can be sold whole or in two sections: (1) shank—lower part of ham, and (2) butt—upper part.

Ham is processed in various ways. First, it is cured and smoked by the packer. Then it may be cooked and sold fully cooked ready-to-eat, or it may require further cooking before it is ready to be served. In all cases, it is important to read and follow the directions on the label.

There are two other pork cuts which are commonly referred to as hams by many people. These are the picnic and cottage roll, with both having characteristics similar to ham. In a general way, the picnic can be considered as a front-leg ham. The picnic is cure and smoked and sold in a number of ways like the regular ham.

The cottage roll comes from the shoulder and is usually sweet pickled, cured, but not smoked. It contains a little more fat than the picnic or the ham, but for that reason, it is very juicy and flavorful. Being boned and rolled, it is ideal for slicing. Sometimes the cottage roll is sold as a smoked shoulder butt, which is simply another form of the same cut.

The price of any of these cuts depends mainly on the amount of processing involved. A boneless, skinless, fully cooked ham costs more than a ham with the bone left in, some of the skin left on, and one which has received no previous cooking.

LITTER BAGS BEST

Motorists have been urged by the B.C. Automobile Association to curb highway litter this summer through use of litter bags and trash disposal receptacles. Garbage deposited along the highways is not only an eyesore for people who come to see the scenery, the BCAA said, but it is a safety hazard as well. Many accidents occur when drivers swerve to avoid objects thrown onto the highways by careless travellers.

Final circle route link under study

It is probable that the circle route from Vancouver to Victoria via the Sunshine Coast is a step closer to realization judging from the following information gleamed from last week's copy of the Cambell River weekly newspaper, The Upper Islander. Here is what the paper revealed:

The final link in a 350-mile great circle route of Vancouver Island and coastal British Columbia is under study by the provincial government.

Highways minister P. A. Gaglardi, in an exclusive interview with the Upper Islander said the ferry proposed by MLA Dan Campbell and a north Island group may well be the final link in the circle.

Gaglardi met with the upper Vancouver Island group to hear proposals about a Cortes-Quadra Island ferry link. The service would fill the only remaining gap in a highway-bridge-ferry route beginning south of Vancouver on the mainland, continuing to southern Vancouver Island by ferry, the major portion of the island by road. Ferry, bridge and highway along the coast would connect to the north shore of Vancouver.

Gaglardi said the Powell River-Comox ferry would not eliminate the possibility of the Campbell River-to-the-Mainland route, echoing the remarks made to the Upper Islander in a May 1 interview.

With institution of the Quadra-Cortes ferry, a traveller could leave the lower mainland at either Tsawassen or Horseshoe Bay and sail to Schwartz Bay or Nanaimo, then drive to Courtenay or Campbell River. He could then travel by ferry to the mainland, either directly from Courtenay to Powell River, or by island-hopping from Campbell River via Quadra and Cortes Islands to Lund, on the coast.

A road linking Quathiaski Cove and Heriot Bay on Qudra Island is now under construction, providing road travel between the two docks — the one in service at present at Quathiaski and the proposed site at Heriot Bay.

Gaglardi, in the Upper Islander interview, suggested Heriot Bay to Whaletown may be the route of the new ferry.

Gaglardi promised the Campbell River area group Monday that his department would begin a study of the need for a ferry between Quadra and Cortes Islands.

He also proposed a possible alternative to a plan put forth by Comox MLA Dan Campbell.

Campbell had proposed that the ferry Quadra Queen be moved from her present run between the Tyee City and Quathiaski Cove on Quadra Island to a run between the eastern side of Quadra and Cortes Island. To replace the Queen, the group wanted a new ferry built.

The highways minister suggested that the ferry Cy Peck, in service elsewhere in the toll authority might be used for the Quadra-Cortes run.

He told Campbell that a study would be made of both suggestions but that first he would have to determine where and how the Cy Peck fits into the toll authority picture.

The group, consisting of Dan Campbell, local C of C representative, Ron Davis; Cortes ratepayers Elmer Ellingsen and George Griffins, and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Law of Quadra Island, who were invited by the Cortes group, met with Gaglardi for a half hour on Monday morning. None of the representatives would make any comment to the Upper Islander on the outcome of the meeting.

Gaglardi said that if the additional ferry run appears feasible, this will be the final link in the great-circle route of mainland British Columbia and Vancouver Island.

SPCA explains--Just in case!

Although it is summer time the work of the S.P.C.A. continues. One of the recent calls contained an enquiry, believe it or not, as to what the letters S.P.C.A. stood for. Just in case there is one other person who doesn't know, it is The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Phone calls for the months of April, May and June totalled 100 incoming and 88 outgoing. One irate citizen complained about a horse which strayed into his orchard but when told to refer this to the RCMP, refused to do so. The S.P.C.A. is concerned solely with cruelty to animals, not cruelty to humans. Twenty-one cats had to be humanely destroyed this past month and this most distasteful task has to be done in many cases because of negligence on the part of the owner in not having his animal spayed or neutered as the case may be when they were young. This simple procedure, performed by a veterinarian, would save untold misery in the pussy world by preventing a flood of eventually unwanted cats.

Inspector Len Wray has travelled to various spots from Langdale to Pender Harbour to check on complaints. This being a season of small bird tragedies a number of kindly people have called to know what they should feed babies whose nests have been destroyed in one way or another and many were the dainties tried to tempt the birdie appetite, from chopped up worms, often refused, to hardboiled yolk of egg mixed with a little oil.

The S.P.C.A. has just received a copious report of some 375 closely printed pages of a hearing before the U.S. House of Representatives dealing with evidence presented on the treatment of animals used in medical research. This information concerning what is happening in this particular field is considered of so much value that it is being circulated to every branch of the society so that the matter may be studied in relation to its application in this country.

Easter Seal camp now in sixth year

Is there a crippled, a handicapped boy or girl between 9 and 15 years of age in your home who would like to attend an organized camp this year for twelve days of summer fun? Could this child obtain a recommendation from a doctor to attend camp with other handicapped children? Then, perhaps, Easter seal camp is your answer as it was for more than 70 parents and guardians last year.

Easter seal camp, now in its sixth year, is the only facility in British Columbia which offers organized camping experience to the crippled and physically handicapped child. It derives its name, of course, from the annual Easter seal drive sponsored by Lions clubs and other organizations throughout the province, from which funds are alloted to maintain and operate the camp each year. The camp is administered by the B.C. Society for Crippled Children.

In 1962 the camp site was permantly established on the side of the Chehalis River, about midway between Mission and Agassiz. Earlier it was for a time on the Sechelt Peninsula, and near Loon Lake in the Maple Ridge district.

2-day choral clinic

Of particular interest to all music directors of choirs in schools, colleges, universities and churches of all denominations, is a Choral Reading and Technique Clinic to be held in the First Baptist Church at Nelson and Burrard Friday and Saturday, July 26 and 27.

It will be directed by Dr. Richard P. Condie, renowned conductor of Salt Lake Mormon Tabernacle Choir. As an outstanding authority on choral music, he will be giving many valuable pointers to all attending. Sacred and secular music will be used at the clinic. For further information, write or phone Modern Music Limited, 536 Seymour St., Vancouver, MU 1-3941.

GUARDIAN HUGH SAYS:

Special kinds of trips require special precautions. If you drive through mountainous areas, be sure to check the steering mechanism, foot and hand brakes, and brake fluid both before and during the trip. These mechanisms can "burn out" on long, steep downhill grades. If you plan to drive through desert stretches, where service stations are scarce, carry a jug of drinking water, and extra water for the radiator.
