Dean of Weeklies honored

Dean of weekly publishers in this province, C.A. Barber of Chilliwack was honored at the recent B.C. Weekly Newspapers Association convention in Vancouver. W.C. Mearns, B.C. Electric vice-president of Vancouver Island operations, (left) on behalf of the B.C. Weeklies, made the presentation of a plaque to Mr. Barber, retired publisher of the Chilliwack Progress, and paid tribute to his work in both provincial and national newspapers association circles.

The inscription, signed by officers of the B.C. Weekly Newspapers Association, reads: "To Charles A. Barber as a mark of respect and affection, and in tribute to his association over five decades with the weekly newspaper profession — Oct. 29, 1959."

Editors show concern over lack of apprentices

British Columbia Weekly Newspapers' association at its convention last week in Vancouver decided to see what can be done about formation of a school where printing can be taught.

One of the members of this committee will be the editor of the Coast News, Fred Cruice who was also re-elected as a director of the BCWNA and vice-chairman of the Weekly Newspapers' Ad Bureau.

It was felt the need for young fellows in the printing trades was increasing and that something should be done about encouraging them. Formation of such vocational training has been discussed by numerous organizations concerned with printing.

Other elected executice officers were Arvid Lundell Revelstoke Review, past president; Les Campbell, Castlegar News, first vice-president; Clive Stangoe, Williams Lake Tribune, second vice-president; Art Stanley, Nakusp Arrow Lakes News secretary-treasurer; Will Dobson, Cowichan Leader; Frank Marshall, Salmon Arm Observer; Dan Murray, Fort St. John Alaska Highway News Nestor Izowsky, White Rock Sun; Eric Dunning, the Haney Gazette; elected directors.

Hubbs talks on hospital

Mr. Harvey Hubbs, chairman of the study group of St. Mary's Hospital, speaking at a meeting of the Gibsons and District Ratepayers, Monday night, said that no specific site had been named for the proposed new hospital as yet, that water supply and drainage were items under consideration since a 50-bed hospital would require a 40 to 60 pound pressure.

The federal grant for 50 beds would be $2000 per bed and $660 per bassinette.

Mr. Hubbs told the ratepayers he would be pleased to return and give a more detailed report after the meeting of St. Mary's Hospital at Pender Harbour on Friday. This meeting is important to all Mr. Hubbs said and urged Gibsons residents to attend this meeting if possible.

School Trustee at convention

By Margaret McKee

Attending a School Trustees Convention may, to some people sound dull and boring, but to me, a new member of the Board of School Trustes of S.D. No. 46, it was a thrilling adventure.

For other members of the board it was a chance to renew old friendships, and to discuss and learn, with other board members the problems confronting all people interested in education, and in some way to get a little closer to the high standards which we hope to reach in matters of administration and teaching, and all aspects of school business and school life.

That so many well-informed dedicated people in every walk of life attend these conventions and take an active part in all discussions and meetings is a clear indication that education is a matter of concern to every one, as individuals and as a nation. The formal opening of the 55th convention by the Hon. Frank M. Ross, lieutenant governor lent an air of dignity and sincerity to the busy program which followed his remarks, and was a constant reminder of the importance of this convention.

Senator Donald Cameron, Alberta Royal Commission on Education, and director, Banff School of Fine Arts and Centre for Continuing Education, addressed the convention on Monday on The Fourth R in Education. Dr. Cameron said "I have called this talk the Fourth R in Education because I think the time is long overdue when, to the three R's of Readin' 'Ritin' and 'Rithmetic we should add the fourth R — Responsibiliy. We can talk as much as we like about education. We can spend many millions of dollars every year in building fine school plans, in training more and better teachers to go in the classrooms, — these things will help — but they fail in the urgent task of improving the quality of our schools unless more citizens are prepared to accept more responsibility to take an active intelligent and continuing interest in our schools.

"Much of the malaise in our schools today comes from the community attitudes in which the schools have their existence. Wrong attitudes in the community and in the homes lead to wrong attitudes in the schools. The breakdown of standards which we see on every hand, and which many people deplore, but few do anything about, if allowed to go

Salmon get great welcome

W.J. Marriette of Powell River made a trip into the United States on behalf of the Sunshine Coast tourist association. Here is a resume of the report he made to the last general meeting of the association at Ole's Cove.

The following is a short roundup of the events and results of sending two salmon and brochures to the Golf Tournament at Monterey, Cal., this year.

This is the second year that salmon and brochures were taken to the tournament in advertising the Sunshine Coast. The enthusiasm was much greater this year as the persons at the tournament have obtained greater knowledge of our coast. Wherever we stopped, brochures were put in motels, bus depots and gas stations. One place where brochures were left last year, were nearly out and were looking for more.

At Monterey, a fine reception was given to the arrival of the two salmon as a gift to the menu. There were 600 people present from all over the Pacific Coast, and to show their appreciation for these salmon, we were the only people introduced at the final banquet. The guests were given a graphic picture and story of the salmon.

I was questioned at length by a group of wine merchants and farmers on the possibility of having a fishing derby for them on the Sunshine Coast in 1960.

We placed hundreds of Sunshine Coast brochures in public places along the way and with a word wherever possible, and I feel that your money was well spent.

The American people are great spenders and will come here when the Sunshine Coast is made known to them.

One surprise to our party was to learn that the butterflies that land and color the landscape around Monterey each year, come from British Columbia. The Americans give great publicity to this phenomina.

What the people in the U.S. ask, is about accommodation and secondly about roads. Our motels and hotels must be kept to first class standards. Good food and courteous service are of great importance. Cost is the last thing they ask about.

W. J. Marriette, Powell River.

Aid for UNICEF

One family did its part towards having a nice quiet Hallowe'en and at the same time help other people. The West family of children, Aneli, Frances and Christa, in Gower Point distirct decided to assist the UNICEF fund and went around collecting and amassed the total of $7.

This amount will be turned over to UNICEF authorities. This money goes towards providing food for refugee children and other children who are in need of better food supplies.

Retarded Child Week

Retarded Children's Week will be marked in Sechelt and district from Nov. 15 to 26 in co-operation with groups interested in the welfare of these youngsters across Canada and the U.S.

Albert Lynn, chairman of Sechelt and district special week committee said this year a fund drive will be held in B.C. for the first time to help provide additional services for the children.

One of the main purposes of the week, he said, would be to make the public aware of the problems posed by retarded children.

The slogan in B.C. for the week will be "Retarded Children Can be Helped — Let's Help Them, Not Hide Them."

Mr. Lynn said the fund drive will start in Sechelt and district on Nov. 16.

The province-wide objective has been set at $200,000, he said.

In Sechelt and district the chapter hopes to raise $800. Sixty percent of funds raised in the B.C. drive will be allotted to chapters to help expand local services. The remaining 40 percent will be used to help establish counselling services, a research program, small residential care centres in strategic locations throughout B.C., and an expanded public and professional education program.

Famed Spanish dancers to visit Peninsula

The pocket-size dance company known as "Susana Y Jose," acclaimed today's greatest Spanish dancers by leading critics of Europe, who are currently touring America and are due to appear in Elphinstone High School auditorium, on Fri., Nov. 13, under the auspices of Overture Concerts, bring a refreshing change from the massive acrobatic exhibitionism and frothy superfcial glitter that has more and more been served up to the public under the name of folkdance, on the all-too-prevalent assumption that "bigger" is always "better."

Dancers Susana Audeoud and Jose Udaeti who head the unpretentious little troupe of six and who create their own imaginative, "electrifying" programs from the ground up and in every detail, are genuine artists with a genuine concern for the vital core of truth and meaning in Spain's rich and ancient culture.

It was as artists, as well as dancers that the tall, dark, remarkably handsome Jose Udaeti, born in Barcelona of an aristocratic Basque family, and the volatile, gifted Spanish beauty Susana Audeoud, each decided to renounce a successful career as leading ballet dancers in Spain, in order to join forces and create their own programs based on their common profound interest in the ancient dances of Spain as an essential part of their cultural heritage.

Susana, born in Bern, Switzerland of Spanish parents who migrated from Spain, studied ballet as a child, and the gifted pupil was then sent on to Paris to continue her study with leading ballet masters there. But the world of classical ballet seemed too restricted and unrelated to life for her intense, warm-blooded Spanish nature, and seeking broader scope for her talents, she studied art and art history at the University of Florence in Italy, where her Spanish pulse was quickened by the great art of Velasquez and Goya.

And on to Madrid she went, drawn there as to a magnet, for intensive study with Spain's greatest teachers of Spanish dance — Estampio, La Quica, and Pericet — to whom Jose Udaeti, too, had been drawn from Barcelona where he had already established himself as leading ballet dancer of the Barcelona Opera, while Susana's first engagement in Madrid was as prima ballerina of the Madrid Opera.

But when the two dancers finally met, by chance in a Barcelona studio, and each discovered the artist in the other, as well as an all-absorbing interest in Spain's ancient tradition, their desire to work together to create a completely new and original approach to the presentation of Spanish dance, became the decisive step for each toward self-realization as both dancer and artist.

Experience no asset?

One of the greatest crimes against the human race perpetrated in recent years is the theory that anyone over 40 years of age was too old to be considered by industry.

One could suppose that one can get more work out of a person under 40 than from those over 40. What a peculiar notion! There is one manufacturer known to the writer who refuses to hire anyone under 40 and at that he prefers they be married and settled in their own home.

The casting off of those who through natural growth have reached the age of maturity will be regarded by historians of the future as one of the barbaric features of this age.

Industry laments over the poor quality of human material supplied by high schools and universities yet confines itself to some extent by ignoring a labor force which has gained considerable experience.

One could ask with reasonableness why our greatest medium of contact with the general public, radio and TV, is entirely in the hands of the below 40 at the broadcast level. One would welcome the reasoned voice of a mature male or female announcer or explainer of detail in either radio or TV shows. What secret does youth hold that its supposedly delightfully young and fresh voices have any advantage over a voice not so young or fresh but with plenty of experience behind it? Is it a myth that has grown -- just because it contains convenience rather than common sense?

Union wages and combines

The B.C. Federation of Labor has submitted a request to the federal minister of justice for provisions under the combines act to sentence responsible company officials to two years in jail and to make any fine not less than 25 percent of profits for each year covered by the charge.

When negotiating wage increases and benefits labor bargains on an industry basis regardless of the size of the individual plant concerned. If such wage increases and benefits are granted it not only affects the unionized shops involved but also has an affect on non-union shops.

The small operator strives to keep pace with a situation or else he must close shop. He has to pay what he can afford and usually is forced to increase prices.

It might be that unions will have to come around to bargaining on a shop level and not on an industry level. When they demand the same wages from all unionized shops they force prices into what might be termed a combined rate.

It is not intended that this editorial should defend any companies who have been charged under the Combines act. There are combines which can be rooted out and there are combines which cannot be pinned down. For example operators who handle a certain product can mutually agree to sell at a certain price without there being anything on record to show they have acted as a body. Also suggested prices are being offered by manufacturers and so long as there is no pressure brought to police such pricing and the retailer is left to make a decision on his own, the suggested pricing is apparently legal.

There are laborites who can see one angle to prosecutions under the Combines act and that is for mulcting the public for all the manufacturer can get. This is not quite true. Some might be for cartelization of markets and for other reasons. However the thoughts expressed here are not to attack the right of labor to criticize but to point out some angles which arise in some minds.

Prepared by the Research Staff of ENCYCLOPEDIA CANADIANA

Which father of Confederation died before 1867?

Sir Etienne Paschal Tache, joint premier of United Canada in 1856-57 and 1864-65, died at St. Thomas de Montmagny in Canada East in 1865 but is regarded as one of the fathers of Confederation because of his achievements during the preliminary negotiations. Tache, a descendent of the explorer Louis Jolliet, emerged from political retirement following the resignation of the John Sandfield Macdonald ministry in March 1864 and formed a short-lived government that was defeated three months later. Because of his magnanimity and impartiality, he was then pressed into service again to save the ministery known as "the great coalition" by acting as its titular head. As such, he had the honor of presiding at the Quebec Conference of 1864, the conference at which delegates from United Canada, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland drew up the outline for the proposed federal union.

What is the largest publicly owned Utility in Canada?

The Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario. Established in 1906, it is now one of the world's greatest hydro-electric enterprises. Its growth since the days of the Second World War has been particularly spectacular. In 1946 Ontario Hydro generated 8,500,000,000 kilowatt hours of electricity. It now develops close to 25,000,000,000 K.W.H. annually.

Who was the Indian who knew both Cartier and Champlain?

Henri Membertou, the Sagamos or chief of the Micmac Indians who died at Port Royal in Acadia in 1611, at an advanced age. As a young married man in the 1530's he had met Jacques Cartier; as a very old man in the early years of the 17th century he was in contact with Poutrincourt, Champlain and Lescarbot at Port Royal. He was a great and cruel warrior who showed himself a loyal friend to the French, possibly clinging to them for protection against his enemies. On June 24, 1610, he was baptized, with his wife, daughter, two sons and several grandchildren. All took the names of members of the French royal family; the old chief himself was named for Henri IV.

Moby Dick!

Gadget-minded Britons have been stirred by pictures of a sectional model of "Moby Dick" on display in London. This aptly-named vessel, sponsored by British and Canadian interests, may well be the world's first cargo-carrying submarine.

Her designs have been developed by a prominent civil engineering firm in co-operation with W. A. Crago, superintendent of the Saunders-Roe test tank near Cowes, Isle of Wight.

Intended mainly for service to the ice-bound regions of northern Canada, she will be built on the River Clyde, Scotland, and fitted with a boiling water nuclear reactor. Her tonnage of 50,000 puts her in the liner class, and people are asking whether "Moby Dick" will point the way to high-speed passenger submarines.

It would be quite a thrill waiting to welcome British-bound tourists surfacing at Southampton or Liverpool. But what should we call them — guests from overseas or underseas?

Civil Defence maps out

Detailed instructions on survival procedures in the event of a nuclear emergency are being mailed to more than 160000 British Columbia householders this week.

Provincial Civil Defence Co-ordinator Brig. G.A. McCarter announces that folders containing information on radioactive fallout and the most effective protection against this danger, are being distributed to every householder in the province outside the Greater Vancouver and Greater Victoria target areas. These will complement the instructions already issued by the two target area co-ordinators.

The folders also explain the functions of Civil Defence, and the important role that this organization plays in peacetime emergencies as well as possible wartime nuclear attacks.

"Civil Defence is not primarily a wartime organization," Brig. McCarter explained. "There are peacetime disasters in our province every year where an organization such as Civil Defence can be used effectively.

"Floods, slides, fires, explosions, are some of the many forms of disaster in which the local Civil Defence group can be called into action.

"The training of community Civil Defence personnel to equip them to meet emergency situations created by a nuclear explosion automatically readies them for lesser peacetime disasters.

"We believe that if Civil Defence is capable of coping with the worst possible emergency, it will have no trouble in meeting the problems resulting from lesser catastrophies."

In outlining the purpose of the folder, Brigadier McCarter explained that the provincal Civil Defence headquarters has attempted to emphasize the need for preparedness.

"At the same time we have tried to dispel some of the unfounded concepts about the dangers which will result from a nuclear attack.

"This information, insofar as it deals with nuclear explosions is prepared to give the people of British Columbia a more realistic idea of what to expect and what to do in an emergency."

Cool can goods

Canned foods should be kept at a moderately cool temperature in a dry storage area away from sources of heat, states R.B. Hyde, Central Experimental Farm, Morden, Man.

High temperatures have a detrimental effect on the color, flavor and texture of canned fruits and may cause vegetables to deteriorate. Freezing temperatures mainly affect food texture and may cause such products as creamed corn to separate or curdle.

While high temperatures hasten the internal corrosion of cans, external rusting is caused by warm air condensing on the cool surface. Unless a leak develops, external rusting does not affect the contents of the can.

Convention

unchecked will get progressively worse in each succeeding generation.

Responsibility is everyone's business, I could say privilege and now is the time you can share in the opportunity of assuming responsibility by attending the forthcoming ratepayers meetings, and see for yourself just what is being done in your school district. Only by constructive and helpful criticism can we improve our standards.

Dr. Byron S. Hollinshead, former director of the technical assistance department of the United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization, and currently director of the Survey of Dentistry in the United States, addressed the convention on fundamental differences between European and American education. Al though Canada and the United States do not follow the same course of studies in the same way, there is a closer connection in education than in any other two neighboring countries.

Dr. Hollinshead summarized his talk as follows:

In America we emphasize guidance more than the Europeans because we have a more heterogeneous population with a far greater variety of educational and occupational opportunities.

We have a different theory about how to teach vocational education because we need to prepare our students for a mass production system and an apprenticeship system does not meet our needs.

We emphasize physical health and organized sports more than the Europeans do.

We give greater emphasis to school activities because we regard this as one of the best ways to give students experience in the problems of democracy. European students are more arduous in application to studies in elementary school and high school, though American students mature earlier in the social and economic sense.

The degree of arduousness applied to advanced education is about the same on both sides of the water, though the American student is apt to pursue postgraduate studies with greater intensity.

Lay groups of all kinds have a much greater influence on education in the United States than in continental Europe, though I understand that local control in England is about the same as in America.

The fact is that Europeans are making criticism of their own educational system which are more severe than Americans would ever make, and Americans are more critical of their own system than Europeans could ever be. Canadians, therefore, are in a good position to benefit. You are already combining your rich heritage from France and England with the American ideal of giving educational opportunity to everyone. Obviously, there is no such thing as a single best system of education, because education is always an expression of the social, political and ec onomic aspirations of a particular people.

If Canada continues to develop a program which merges its own educational aspirations with some of the best features of the European and American education then you should come close to an ideal plan, uniquely Canadian.

The Ratepayers of School District No. 46 will be pleased to hear that the resolution submitted by this district requesting the department of education to increase the grant to school boards where water transportation is provided, received the whole hearted approval of all the other school boards in British Columbia.

This board announces that Mr. G. Fahrni has been chosen executive representative to the Provincial Council of School Trustees, and also vicepresident of the South Coast branch of the B.C.S.T.A.

New model Vauxhalls show restyling

Mjor improvements in appearance and comfort are featured in restyled Vauxhall Velox and Cresta models now in full production, General Motors of Canada Limited announces.

Among the new features of the GM British-built cars are:

One-piece, wrap-around rear window.

A larger radiator, for better cooling and more efficient engine operation.

Stiffer body structure and improved engine mountings.

Increased leg-room in the rear compartment.

Slimmer body-side mouldings and re-designed name-plates.

A new, thermostatic, high-efficiency fresh-air heater unit.

Mechanically, the new 6-cylinder Vauxhalls are almost unchanged, though the body shell has been considerably reinforced and stiffened, particularly at the rear end, and engine mountings have been strengthened. The automatic choke now incorporates a filter for the air supply which prevents air-borne dirt from entering the automatic choke.

Onions and asparagus are both members of the same family as the lily.

BY MRS. A.A. FRENCH

Mrs. J.S. Northcote entertained members of the W.A. to St. Hilda's church at tea. Miss Marilyn Fane, youth worker for the Diocese of New Westminster was a guest and told of her many experiences in working with children. Recently returned from a Toronto conference with representatives from many countries, Miss Fane addressed the Anglican girls in the evening to form the Junior W.A. Present were Mesdames Billingsley, Tillotson, Erickson, French, Browning, Gray, Dawe and Boggust.

Sechelt Volunteer Fire brigade arrived within seconds at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. Korgan when the oil stove which had become filled with oil became ignited. It could have resulted in the loss of a home. The Korgans are most grateful.

The evening group of the W.A. to St. Hilda's of which Mrs. G.A. Kennedy is president met recently when Mrs. T. Lamb was presented with a gift on leaving the group. They also sent a grocery hamper to the Anglican college.

Competition for students

There are various prizes offered and judging for the competition will be done in Vancouver. More details on it will be published in later issues.

Pre-paid prescriptions?

Possibility of a pre-paid prescription plan for B.C. was discussed by the 10-member council of the Pharmaceutical association of British Columbia at its fall meeting in Vancouver.

Douglas A. Denholm, association registrar, said that while more statistical and acturial information was required before initiating a prescription plan on a province-wide basis, the council has instructed its health insurance committee to investigate the possibilities of initiating the service on a pilot plan basis. The committee will report back to the council at its March meeting.

Gibb G. Henderson, executive secretary, said the council also discussed the public's view of current drug prices and how pharmacy can best tell its side of the story. He said that undoubtedly many people feel drug prices are high but he drew attention to the fact modern life saving drugs sharply reduce time lost from work, and the period of hospitalization and convalescence, thus effecting a saving often overlooked.

Nanaimo boy drowns

A five-year-old Nanaimo boy drowned Oct. 16 in the salt chuck at the Anchorage Marina, between the city and Black Ball ferry wharf.

He was Gary Newsham, son of ham, 1351 Stewart avenue. A Mr. and Mrs. George P. News- coroner's inquiry will be held into his death.

His body was found floating in deep water not far from a marine gas station. Police said apparently no one was about when he fell in.

The boy is believed to have fallen from a landing shortly after 4 p.m. when he left a houseboat in search of a playmate.

The body was taken to the wharf and artificial respiration applied while the fire department inhalator squad, a doctor and ambulance were summoned.

The boy is understood to have gone to the Anchorage with his mother to visit friends on the houseboat.

Gary went outside to look for a playmate who lives on the houseboat and was not seen alive again.

First to try to revive him was Peter Kelly, part owner of Anchorage Marina, who was called immediately the body was discovered.

"The inhalator squad arrived within a few minutes and took over attempts to revive the boy," Mr. Kelly said.

"There were three or four people on the wharf when I got there, and we did our best until the inhalator arrived. The boy had apparently been in the water some time, however, and it was too late."

Mr. Kelly said children frequented the wharf and marina area.

"n this case the boy did not come alone, but sometimes children do," he said.

"They ask permission to fish from the wharf, and I frequently lend them a lifejacket in case of accidents while they are near the water."

Also surviving are his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Mildred Mills, at Victoria, and maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John McQueen, at Gibsons, B.C.

Funeral services were held in the Apostolic Church, St. George street, Nanaimo, Tuesday, Oct. 20, at 11 a.m. Rev. Alan McLean conducted the service.

Westwood Chapel of Flowers have charge of funeral arrangements. Interment was in Nanaimo Cemetery.

Port Mellon news notes

By Mrs. J. Macey

Hallowe'en activities started Friday afternoon with a school party for the children at Port Mellon Elementary school. Prizes were given for the best costumes and fun and refreshments for all followed.

Saturday evening shelling out started at dark and followed with the party given each year by the Port Mellon firemen. The costumes were such that it was difficult for the judges to decide which were best. Black cats, bats, witches, queens, fairies and even the old grey mare was there, testifying to a good deal of effort on the part of the parents to put on a good show.

Apples, oranges and candies were handed to the childrern as they left the hall to watch the fireworks display. This event put on by the firemen assisted by the Community club provides the annual climax to the children's party.

Mr. and Mrs. C.B. Davies entertained about 30 guests at a Hallowe'en costume party at their home, Hillcrest, Saturday night.

Guests of the Gordon Taylors, Sunday, were Mr. and Mrs. T. Watson and daughters Linda and Valerie of Vancouver and Mrs. Watson's mother, Mrs. J. Bernie of Winnipeg, Man.

Barry Legh and Bruce Strayhore were home from Athlone for the weekend. Barry Legh entertained friends at a Hallowe'en party at his home Saturday night.

LOOK WHAT GAS IS DOING NOW!

Everything that goes into a GAS dryer comes out

FASTER... FLUFFIER... FOR LESS MONEY PER LOAD!

No warm-up wait with a Gas dryer. Turn it on and it's on . . . clothes are drying. No hang-over heat wasted afterwards— no danger of over-drying the clothes.

Then, because gentle Gas heat blows moisture away, instead of baking it out, clothes come out fluffier, more wrinkle-free . . . and you'll find that makes 'em easier to iron.

They last longer, too.

With all these advantages, a Gas dryer still costs less to install, less to maintain, less to use per load!

Many September rescues

September was the second busiest month in the history of the Vancouver Rescue Co-Ordination Centre.

Averaging more than three major incidents a day, the centre actioned 107 emergency calls in September, one less than the record breaking month of August when 108 incidents occurred.

Breakdown of the emergencies in September show eight classified as aircraft in distress, 45 marine disasters, seven missing person searches, two rescues and two emergency air evacuations. Communication failures caused 11 communication searches and 33 cases were noted in the miscellaneous column.

Aircraft in distress included a ditching at sea and the rescue of all concerned, emergency landings at Quesnel and Comox, four reports of aircraft with engine trouble or feathered propellors. Escorts were dispatched for two of these and a suspected hoax showed up when communications check turned up no further information on an aircraft reported overdue.

Shipping in trouble in the area turned up two fires and nine cases of boats disabled for various reasons Six others were aground, five were reported in a sinking condition, six were reported overdue and later located and one small boat was found and turned over to police for identification.

Nine incidents of vessels in various states of difficulty were highlighted by the case of the pleasure craft Charlou, in difficulty in high seas south of Cape Roger Curtis in Georgia Straits.

The CPR Ferry Princess Patricia found the boat and, acting as a breakwater, turned around from its Nanaimo bound course and escorted the distressed boat back to English Bay.

At this point the vessel Terra relieved the ferry and began towing the Charlou to safe mooring. A short time later the towing vessel Terra reported being in difficulty and had to be assisted by the tug Windsor into harbor.

Mercy flights saw aircraft from No. 121 Communications and Rescue Flight at Sea Island ferry a 50 year old woman with head injuries from Hornby Island to Sea Island and an Indian child with a congenital heart disease from Prince George to Vancouver.

Aircraft from 121 C & R Flight were called out for various other reasons. In only one case, a man washed overboard from a fishing boat, was the search called off without conclusive success. In all others all parties reported missing were found or returned of their own accord.

Miscellaneous incidents included examination of an oil slick, finding of an eleven point practice bomb by Vancouver City Police, medical advice by the Marine Doctor to a Liberian freighter on treatment of a carpenter injured in a fall, a pleasure craft found adrift and returned to the owner, and two cases of white rock and pools of water being mistaken for aircraft wreckage.

Selma Park to continue lights

The October general meeting of Selma Park Community Centre was open to all residents of the area to discuss the street lighting system. In spite of the possible increase in cost under a new conract, the meeting decided that the street lights are essential, as there is only one road through the area, being Highway 101, and the majority of the homes are on either side of this highway.

The present contract expires May 31; 1960 after being in force for ten years. Because such a contract existed in the past, the British Columbia Electric is able, under Public Utilities Commission rulings, to sign a further contract for five years. At present members of Selma Park Community Centre are making the yearly door to door canvass for funds to defray the cost of the present contract.

Show of mums rewarding finale

The Chrysanthemum show Oct. 20 was a rewarding finale to the 1959 season for Gibsons Garden Club. A wealth of bloom was shown and also color aplenty.

Miss Burnaby was the name of a fine red in-curve. Two lovely yellow in-curves were Geo. Mcleoud and Reg Pound, the latter being strongly recommended for its earliness and long lasting qualities. Orchid spoon mums and a variety of button mums rounded out the display.

There will be no further meetings until March when it is hoped many new and old members will join for a season of pleasant get-togethers.

Safety big asset in new truck

Impressive advances in ride, handling, durability and safety through an exclusive new suspension system lead an imposing list of improvements in Chevrolet trucks for 1960.

The new design, under development for the past six years, sets new standards for truck stability, durability, driver comfort, and load cushioning under present conditions of increasing horsepower, heavier payloads, and modern high-speed highways. It represents the nearest approach to passenger car ride and handling yet achieved in any but dual-purpose trucks built on basic passenger car chassis.

The 1960 Chevrolet trucks pioneer independent front wheel suspension with ball joints and torsion rod springing on all but two models. Also an innovation is a two-link coil rear suspension on one-half and three-quarter ton models.

Variable rate, two-stage leaf spring rear suspensions are new on medium and heavy-duty models except Tandems. Tandems are equipped with the Eaton-Hendrickson tandem drive and feature a built-in power divider and inter-axle differential.

Frames, steering and other chassis components are tailored to complement the new suspension.

Styling is changed along clean, functional lines. All sheet metal is integrated with the new chassis design for a much more rigid, lower, roomier, more accessible cab and sturdier front end assembly.

In line with the most extensive model change in the history of Chevrolet truck, General Motors also has made sweeping realignments in series and model designations, wheelbases and GVW ratings.

Addition of several new models and the elimination of some previous ones results in a net expansion of the line to 129 models. Wheelbases have been consolidated into 16 different dimensions.

KNOW YOUR Canada

Prepared by the Research Staff of ENCYCLOPEDIA CANADIANA

What is Ogopogo spelled backwards?

It is still Ogopogo, the name of a reputed monster in Lake Okanagan in British Columbia. Some say that the monster, like the spelling of its name, appears the same viewed from either end. Others describe it as "twenty feet long with a heavy snake's body and a horse or goat's head, well bearded." Before white settlement the Indians revered the monster, said to have appeared at intervals in the lake. Reports of seeing it have frequently recurred in more recent years and such reports have, of course, stimulated the local tourist industry.

Teacher status

B.C. School Trustees Association will call a conference before the end of the year to discuss teachers' status and suggested new classifications.

Mrs. Marion Ricker of Nanaimo president of the association announced plans to call together the parties vitally interested to develop a concerted, mutually accepable plan that will benefit education in this province in general and the students in B.C. schools in particular.

The conference would include Department of Education, University of B.C. College of Education Trustees' association and Teachers' Federation.

Need boxes

A problem has arisen at Roberts Creek. It has come up owing to a Christmas play which Roberts Creek school children plan to present.

They need a lot of a certain kind of potato chip boxes put out by Nalleys. The large size, three to a box type, is preferred. Anyone having any of them can leave them at the Coast News office or at Roberts Creek school.

In England, the constellation that we know as the Big Dipper is called the Plow.

WINTER STORAGE OF DAHLIAS

Frost dictates the time to dig and store dahlias. When the tops have become blackened by frost, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph, cut the tops off, leaving about six inches of stem attached to the tuber. This serves as a good handle.

Do not discard the tops, but spread them over the roots for a week to encourage the eyes around the crown of the tuber to ripen.

Dig out the tubers carefully, for if the narrow neck is broken or injured the tuber will be blind.

After the tuber has been dug, turn it on its side for a few hours to allow the hollow stems to drain out.

The tubers must be stored so that they will not dry out and shrivel, or the other extreme, not rot from excess moisture.

There are many ways of storing the tubers. As shown, they can be packed away in boxes of soil, sawdust, sand, peat moss or vermiculite. Vermiculite has the property of absorbing excess moisture without robbing the tuber of the moisture it needs.

Some gardeners wrap them in foil. A very new method is to "bag them" in the large plastic bags used for freezing turkeys. They can be kept closed by rubber bands.
