Hospital finances improve

About 40 members and friends of St. Mary's Hospital Society spent an hour-and-a-half of almost midsummer sunshine Sunday afternoon at the Pender Harbour Community Hall for the Society's Annual Meeting. They heard good news. Through the efforts of a large number of individuals and organizations, the board of trustees, the administrator the nursing staff, Dr. Playfair and Dr. Swan, and the various friends in every part of the Sechelt Peninsula, the hospital is today in the best financial situation since the Society took over from the Columbia Coast Mission.

All those present received an abbreviated copy of the audited financial statement for the past year (which appears in full on page 5 of this issue).

In outlining the year's activities, A.A. Lloyd, chairman, said there are still occasional suggestions that the hospital is overstaffed. It should be remembered, he said, that a patient is a patient 24 hours of every day and must be provided with service, nursing attention and facilities during all that time, whereas, a staff member is only on staff 8 hours a day and needs days off and vacation. In actual fact the staff allotment is below that allowed by the British Columbia Hospital Services, which puts a strict limit on the amount of staff that can be hired, Mr. Lloyd said.

Mr. Lloyd reported on the current drive for funds to modernize the electrical wiring. The earliest reports from canvassers were almost sufficient to let the contract, but a $400 donation from the Redroofs Auxiliary to St. Mary's together with help from the St. Mary's Hospital Auxiliary, whose faithful members had worked hard to increase their regular financial support, had put them over the top. Tenders are now out and the work would go forward rapidly.

Among the highlights of the chairman's report was the news that the late Gabriel Eluk of Roberts Creek had left his property as a bequest to the Society. The estate, after various formalities were cleared away would leave about $1,400 as a generous and substantial contribution to the work of the hospital.

In closing, the chairman expressed the thanks of the board of trustees for the wholehearted support coming from all parts of the Peninsula and in other areas of B.C., both from individuals and organizations such as: The W.A. of Port Mellon Community Church, Billings Bay Harvest Festival, St. Peter's W.A. at Hatzic, All Sappers W.A. at Chilliwack Camp, Mt. Elphinstone I.O.D.E., Roberts Creek, St. Bartholomews W.A. at Gibsons, St. Aidans W.A. at Roberts Creek, Gibsons Kiwanis Club, the late Gabriel Eluk bequest and the fine support from the active, hard-working auxiliaries to St. Mary's which had been organized at Redroofs and Halfmoon Bay as well as the local St. Mary's Hospital Auxiliary. Thanks were due also, he said, to the various industrial firms and companies operating along the Peninsula, who were showing their appreciation of the services of the hospital, by accounting for a very fair share of the total funds being donated during the present campaign.

Mrs. Norman Lee and Mr. Oliver Bristow were both elected to the Board of Trustees for a further term of three years, by acclamation. The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman and the board proposed by Mr. Peter Trappit.

The long-suffering mother is played by Jean Hague and the father by Lloyd Burritt. Mr. Maxwell's boss, Mr. Mallory is played by Glen Wicklund.

Heap Chief Tail Feather will be played by John Burritt and Evelyn Cook will be Miss Turk school teacher.

The second play, "Forever Judy," is an hilarious sequence of events that occur when the young heroine, Judy Jackson, played by Heather Bracewell, is unexpectedly called on to take the leading role in the high school play. The handsome senior, Barry Moore, whose presence makes Judy's feet itch, is played by Gary Butler. Papa Jackson, a somewhat bewildered Swede, is played by Bernard Olson, and his wife by Wendy Smith. Marguerite Veale takes the part of the southern maid Amanda.

Mr. Roy, whose art display is also on view in the afternoon in the high school foyer has done some outstanding work in the field of art. He will be present afternoon and evening.

School mill rates set

School rates bylaws are now before the Village Commissioners at Sechelt and Gibsons and in each case there is an increase.

In Sechelt the school rates were 11.71 mills last year and for this year they will be 12.97 mills, an increase of 1.26. In Gibsons the rate will be 13 mills, an increase of 1.2 mills over last year's 11.8 mills. Gibsons will raise $15,430 for educational purposes. Total school budget calls for $518,000, up $103,000 from last year.

Sechelt's municipal mill rate will be 10, the same as last year and Gibsons will be 13 compared to last year's 16 but a general increase in assessment will allow the commission to assess for practically the same amount of taxation on a lower mill rate.

Sechelt Commission passed its Expenditure bylaw and total revenue will be $26,351. Operating expenditures are expected to be $21,504 with a revenue surplus of $4,847 but with a $4.000 provision for capital expenditures the net revenue surplus is expected to be $847.

Sinclair urges voters consider govt's. record

Before a crowd of 130 in Bal's Hall Monday night, Hon. James Sinclair, federal minister of fisheries opened his Coast-Capilano contituency election campaign with the promise that Gibsons will get two more floats in the bay, dredging will be done and the matter of a breakwater will be cleared up when Black Ball Ferries moves to Hopkins Landing.

As regards the airport now under negotiation for the area, Mr. Sinclair said that if the municipal commissions did their part he was to see the matter went through.

Mr. Sinclair received an attentive hearing as he explained the stewardship of the St. Laurent government over the past eight years and asked vofers to consider that stewardship in the light of the prosperity we now have and the prosperity to come

When he got down to the meat of his talk he explained how the federal government at Ottawa had done considerable for British Columbia in spite of the Social Credit slogan that B.C. wanted a better deal at Ottawa. He explained the government took $293,000,000 in taxes from British Columbia and put back some $373,000,000 in the last fiscal year. He pointed out that the provincial government strived to take all the credit for what was being done in British Columbia overlooking the fact the federal government provided a great deal of the money. The B.C. government he explained complains about high taxes yet takes the money Ottawa hands out and takes all the credit for what it does with that money, and the federal government gets the abuse.

Earl Bingley was chairman and he introduced Frank Millerd, Mr. Sinclair's campaign chairman, who introduced Mr. Sinclair. In his early remarks Mr. Sinclair explained he opened his campaign in Gibsons because of his early association with the area.

Discussing national issues, Mr. Sinclair said the government's policy was peace abroad and stabilization at home. He told of the positive approaches made by the government to keep peace and how Canada with only 16,000,000 people had become the fourth trading nation in the world At home, never before in history were the people working under such good wage and pension schemes.

Mr. Sinclair outlined what the federal government was doing in the social security field showing how budgets for such work had increased enormously because of efforts to provide some security for the young on one side, through family allowances, to the aged on the other, through pensions and medical disbursements..

As far as federal assistance on any Columbia River power project is concerned "we are not going to hand out $300,000,000 without having some direct interest, either through a joint company with the province or by doing some of the work ourselves." Mr. Sinclair said. The federal government certainly will not hand over such a large sum without having something to say about how it will be handled.

Discussing reasons why Canada has not recognized China Mr. Sinclair said there was a general feeling growing that China might be ready to conform with international law and if we could recognize China it would eventually lead to a considerable trade with China which would greatly affect the port of Vancouver.

Seek entries for parade

Sechelt's May Day Committee announces that floats from all districts on the Peninsula will be welcomed in the big parade, May 20.

Entry forms are available from George Page, Peninsula Motors; or Jack Laidlaw, Village Coffee Shop, and in Gibsons, Mrs. W. Stewart, Howe Sound 5 and 10 Store.

At the Sechelt May Day committee meeting May 6, Jack Mayne showed his films of former May Day celebrations. One of the reels, filmed in 1937, showed the Elementary School grounds, with children playing. He said most of them now have their own families. Many familiar faces appeared.

Peggy (Clayton) Hemstreet, Alice Billingsley, Faye Hansen and many others were engaged in a lively game that could have been a variation of tag. A group of boys, most now with children of the same age, and well known here in business, were playing pick-a-back

No blame attached by jury

The six man jury, at the inquest of Ronald August Larson, who died April 23, found there was no blame attached to anyone and death was purely accidental. Court was held May 1 in the Sechelt R.C.M.P. office, 7:30 p.m. with Corporal Nels Cummings in charge, Dr. McKee was coroner.

The jurymen were: Robert Jackson, foreman; Leo Johnston, Jack Laidlaw, Fred Gike, Ernest Pearson and Hugh Gordon.

Joe Robinson, Sechelt, the push for Lamb Lumber Co. Ltd. at Porpoise Bay was driving a truck at the time of the accident. He said he jumped out of the truck when he heard a thundering crash, and noticed Ron Larson under a log.

Larson had been hired as a boom man but was transferred to second-loading that day. Benjamin Newcombe, Porpoise Bay, was head loading and stood on the back of the truck at the cold deck pile. The loader was standing idle; but the yarding donkey was putting in a turn of three logs, he said.

Larson was hooking the logs when Newcombe noticed the top of the spar tree start to fall. Newcombe leapt from the truck and slid underneath. After the crash Larson was found partially under a log and still conscious.

Dr. McKee said it appeared that Larson was crushed by the heel boom

Evidence showed a guy line had snapped, the sudden weight loosened two other supporting wires rigged to stumps, tore them loose, and the four remaining guy wires were not sufficient to hold the tremendous pull of the spar tree as it dropped to the landing.

Inspector for the Compensation Board, Mr. J. McLean, said he was satisfied with the verdict.

The jury recommended that more attention be paid to the size and adequacy of guy line stumps and the manner in which they are rigged.

Bus conduct to be clarified

School bus drivers to Elphinstone High school will aid in drawing up a set of rules for consideration of the school board, to keep student behavior on buses under control, it was announced at the last meeting of the board. The rules will be mimeographed and sent to all parents.

The board accepted resignations of Miss Carol Humphries, Sechelt Elementary school and Miss Lucy Quinn of Gibsons Elementary school. Miss Sylvia Lesack was appointed to Elphinstone High School temporarily and Mr. Benjamin Morgan was appointed to teach music at Elphinstone starting Sept. 1.

The Pender Harbour PTA will meet May 9 at 8 p.m. in Madeira Park School. Miss C. Jervis, an authority on accountancy will talk on "Finances and Financing."

Attractive clothes displayed at Fashion Show

BY SHIRLEY LINTON

After seeing the attractive clothes displayed at the Fashion Show on May 1, 1957, in Gibsons Theatre, the local stores carrying the lines must be doing a booming business.

Sponsored by St. Mary's Altar Society, the show was a great success, and a credit to all those who participated in it. Mrs. Cliff Connor, a well-known professional model herself, was a charming commentator.

The decorative flower arrangements were done by Anne's Flower Shop, Sechelt, while appropriate music was supplied by Mr. Vincent Prewer, Gibsons. Sincere thanks went to the following stores who took part in the fashion show: Irene's Dress Shop, Thriftee Ladies' Wear, and Thriftee Stores of Gibsons also Tasella Shop and The Toggery of Sechelt. Eye catching jewelry was loaned by Mrs. Stewart's Variety Shop of Gibsons and Chris' Variety Shop, Sechelt, while McLean's Shoe Store, Gibsons, supplied many of the shoes.

The local stores can be proud of the stylish clothes which were displayed, from children's sports clothes to lovely party dresses. Soft sweaters in vibrant colors made graceful tops for the wool and tweed skirts. Several smart suits were shown, one especially chic which had been made in Vancouver featured a nile tweed with colored nobs, mohair effect. The jacket was briefly cut with french fold circling pocket. The skirt was straight cut with kick pleat in the back.

The airy summer dresses and wide range of sports clothes made one wish for the warm summer weather to come as quickly as possible. Some cool party dresses were featured, and there were also clever innovations for quick changes. One was a turquoise dress with halter top and a coin spotted skirt matching the top. The underside becomes the top side for a quick change. An afternoon tea frock made of washable printed blue grey and white silk makes a cool wardrobe addition as well as a clever one. Its white pique collar is removable for washing, while underneath is a mandarin orange collar for a costume change.

The sand and sea and bathing suits all belong together, and the smart swim wear modelled made the hot sun seem very close. The bathing suits were elasticised for perfect fit, and some of them were even glamorized with rhinestones.

The wedding scene made a perfect finale, the two flower girls, Pamela Jackson and Marion D'Aoust, bridesmaid, Doreen Hough; matron of honor, Lorraine D'Aoust and the bride, Irene Plourde made a beautiful picture as they assembled on the stage to the strains of the wedding music. The flower girls, bridesmaid and matron of honor were dressed as they were in the recent D'Aoust-Jackson wedding. The bride model was a recent bride herself, having only arrived from New Brunswick a short time ago to be married.

The fashion show was the ultimate in finesse and showed just what can be accomplished by organization and co-operation. Many thanks are due the gracious chairman, Mrs. Nygren, and the following models who did their job with real professional glamour:

Mrs. Grace McDonald, Miss May Reitze, Mrs. Lila Plourde, Miss Sue Atcheson, Mrs. Joan Korgen, Miss Diana Wheeler, Miss Denise Quarry and Mrs. Joyce Stewart.

Mrs. Margaret Swan, Miss Jean Hague, Mrs. Enid Myette, Miss Patsy Reitze, Mrs. Joan Quarry, Miss Karen Johnson, Mrs. June Blounstein and Mrs. Leslie Jackson.

Mrs. Moira Clement, Miss Gerda Sherman, Mrs. Pat Mur-Miss Eileen Harrop, Miss Linrison, Master Philip Anderson, da Stuchberry and Mrs. Margaret Ayton.

Good public relations?

The forestry department at Pender Harbour has again aroused the wrath of people in that area. Last time it was over the handling of the Ruby Lake area fire. Now it is the Garden Bay Lodge fire.

It appears there is a certain wrath because the forestry department boat did not put in an appearance and offer its help. Every individual in the vicinity of the blaze rushed in and did what they could to save something. It was necessary for someone to go to where the forestry boat was moored and bring back some hose and a pump.

Taking a reverse view and a possible situation, the individuals in charge of the Forestry boat could come into Pender Harbour area and press every man available to fight a forest fire.

It is not suspected any one will need the moral of the two situations explained to them. It does look like a rather bad job of good public relations, something the Forestry department should be building up and not tearing down.

What a week!

The Coast News had a real blooper week last week. It happens once in a while on every daily, weekly and monthly periodical regardless of its religious or political present or past.

First of all we promised the Girl Guides a story on their cookie sale, Peninsula wide. What happened? It went clean out of mind. There was a hankering thought in the mind of the editor that he had forgotten something but nary a clue could he find. The paper came out — and the dawn came up like thunder — no Girl Guide cookie story. An apology for the omission is called for but it is not the satisfaction a good news story would have engendered.

Next we blooped on the United Church Women's Association rummage sale date in a Coming Events advertisement with a wrong date. As a result the W.A. held the rummage sale on two days. For this we also apologise and will make amends by searching back into our past to see just where we require some brain-washing to keep the editorial mind where it should be.

Maybe it was the effect of spring and the scent of the numerous blossoms now pervading the atmosphere that turned the editor's thoughts gently to other subjects. However, apologies all round and we will do our level best to retrieve the situation.

Pageantry for 1958

A spectacular three-act pageant, portraying outstanding historic events in B.C.'s history, is being prepared by the B.C. Centennial Committee.

The pageant, in various forms, will be staged by a great number of communities in the province during the 1958 Centenary.

"From Wildernes to Wonderland" is the title of the pageant which is being written by well-known newspaperman and radio writer, Dick Diespecker of Vancouver, assisted by Theatre Under the Stars technical superisor, Gail McCance.

To be staged in outdoor arenas or large community halls in conjunction with individual community centennial celebrations, the pageant is expected to attract an audience of close to 1,000,000 people by the end of 1958.

From Wilderness to Wonderland" in its 26 scenes depicts such historic incidents as Captain Vancouver's arrival in 1778, the reading of the proclamation at Fort Langley in 1858, the comic war of Ned Gowan 1858, and the Royal Visit in 1939.

Opportunities for each locality to play up its own history have been provided. Communities who wish to emphasize their individual historic events will be able to integrate it into the body of the master script.

"From Wilderness to Wonderland" is written in blank verse. As the narrator describes the historic incident, the actors complement his word on stage.

A streamlined version of the master script has also been prepared for presentation by schools and smaller communities. Like the major version it gives detailed instructions for staging the production.

The B.C. Centennial Committee expects "From Wilderness to Wonderland" to be one of the major attractions in 1958.

Open house

During the week of May 18-25, the B.C. Forest Service, in co-operation with the Canadian Forestry Association will hold open house at all district Ranger stations throughout the province.

Adults, schoolchildren, Junior Forest Wardens, Boy Scouts Girl Guides, all are cordially invited to visit their local Ranger and learn at first hand something of his varied duties and what they mean to the protection and wiee use of our forest wealth.

Letters to the editor

THE POLITICAL CAMPAIGN

Editor: The more I look at your editorial "The Political Campaign" the less I agree with it. You state: "Disregarding characters and analyzing the ituation as it will likely appear after the election, B.C. would be in a better position by electing Liberals — because that government will be elected."

What a position to take! Progress has not come about by voting with the majority. Stating the case baldly, the reverse is nearer correct. Anyone who goes to vote on June 10 should surely have better reason for voting Liberal than just voting to be on the winning side. Furthermore, voting Liberal is nothing more or less than a positive endorsement of that party. There is no half measure in that X on the ballot. By voting Liberal one endorses the party that promised Hospital Insurance for nearly 40 years and was lavish with salary boosts for cabinet ministers and M.P.'s and judges, but most careful with increasing Old Age Pensions and made it a practice to elevate to the bench their defeated lawyer Liberal candidate. (Evidently consolation prizes.) The party also gave us the chance to purchase $8 shares and quickly realize around 400% profit.

One notes the fear of splinter groups expressed. Had the Labor and socialists in Britain feared the detrimental affects of splinter groups, we would not have experienced a Conservative government afraid to upset the so-called welfare state Sufficient voters had the courage and understanding to vote against those who persistently maintained the status quo, and we found the Tories removed from office and the Liberals practically eliminated. Ah! I'll be told but the Tories came back. Yes, but a much chastened group.

No political party is positively above reproach. Unfortunately, electioneering and temporary expedients seem closely akin and are almost indistinguishable in an election campaign. Old timers in this district will well remember the repeated pre-election road surveys on the Port Mellon road with the surveyors laid off as soon as the ballots were counted.

I cannot see the wisdom of voting for a party whose platform and policies I do not agree with. Floating down stream is more likely to prove disastrous than forging up stream and aiming at something different.

Coast Capilano has been fortunate in having a man of outstanding character and ability as its representative, but despite his qualities he did not get into the Cabinet by drifting with the tide. "Jimmy" showed the Liberal top brass that he was prepared to quit politics before he was taken into the Cabinet. I am reminded of the Associated Boards of Trade Ads run in all the papers in the last election campaign. "Vote Free Enterprise" In other words, Liberal, Conservative or Social Credit. The brightest jewel in our free enterprise system is the privilege we enjoy to vote against it.

Dave Rees.

LETTER FOR SINCLAIR

Editor: Would you allow me to place this open letter to the Minister of Fisheries in your paper:

To the Minister of Fisheries:

A short time ago I asked you two or three questions which were answered by you in a very ambiguous manner. Will you please give a direct answer to the following questions through the medium of this paper?

1. Approximately three years ago the House of Commons passed a bill placed befort it by Gen'l Pearkes to the effect "a veteran on War Veteran's Allowance could earn money by casual labor — no limit stipulated." By whose authority has the War Veteran's Allowance Board placed a limit of $50.00 a month on those earnings. It seems odd that a Government Dept. should be the first to break the law.

2. The Dept. of Defense has allocated one Padre to every 500 R.C. Army personnel and one Padre to every 1,000 Protestant army personnel. You inferred the reason was the R.C. Padre had twice as much work to do as the Protestant Padre — rather a funny statement isn't it? Will you please give the REAL reason?

3. Your very roundabout admission that the Govt. provides $3.00 per day each for any necessary cases (any Hungarian or other immigrant) shows very clearly what the Govt. thinks of the veteran. With the large advance in pension rates and allowances just granted, the veteran (single) on W.V.A. gets nothing extra ($2.00 per day). The married veteran on W.V.A. now gets $2.00 per day each for both man and wife — no medical attention for the wife. This shows very clearly that in the opinion of the Government the immigrant is of greater value by 50% than the man who offered his life for his country. A very illuminating piece of legislature isn't it? Can you deny this?

E.G. Sergant.

Both have a bank account - and a purpose for saving

Nurse and father both agree that some things are too important to leave to chance. So, like most Canadians, each uses a chartered bank for planned saving, making regular deposits to accomplish a definite purpose.

Your own savings plan may be a short-term, modest one — maybe a vacation trip, or new drapes for the living room. Or your goal may be long-range, like providing more security, greater comfort and independence for you and your family.

But whatever use you find for the money you save, you'll always be glad you saved it!

Save at a bank — millions do!

THE CHARTERED BANKS SERVING YOUR COMMUNITY

BETWEEN OURSELVES
BY Gordon Wallace

At the beginning of a year, we know that often we shall meet situations which harass and distress us; we ought to know that much of the worry is futile and unnecessary. In the Book of Acts (Chapter 12) there is an account of Peter's deliverance from prison by the assistance of an angel.

With a heart full of fear and misgiving the Apostle passed through the first and second gate and then approached the iron gate. Here is the Scriptural account of what happened: "They came upon the iron gate that leadeth unto the city which opened to them of its own accord and they went out and passed on through one street."

There are hundreds of books written about the utter futility of worry and thousands of sermos have been preached on the subject; the sad truth is that many of those who write the books or preach the sermons often find it hard to take their own advice. That doesn't mean the advice is futile; it does indicate how much harder it is to practice than to preach. Not only is it useless but it is dangerous. It unfits us to meet the very experience we dread.

I once knew a student in England who had to face a difficult examination. It was a critical one for him in more ways than one. As the day drew near, he became more and more nervous and soon after the written exam began, he was taken ill, had to leave the room and, of course, was not allowed to return. It was a perfect example of how worry saps the strength.

We often say that some are born worriers. It is true that there are men and women who have that tendency. Yet in their better moods these people laugh at themselves. They know from experience what they have previously suffered from scarecrows and so hope begins to glimmer.

We must learn to live one day at a time; otherwise we shall have no peace of mind. It is certain that we cannot carry today's burden and tomorrow's burden with today's strength.

Newpapers told recently of an old couple who happily celebrated the 60th anniversary of their wedding. Supposing on the morning of their marriage day they had been shown a list of all the troubles that lay ahead of them. It isn't likely they would have had courage to go on with it. But the trials came one at a time and they were given strength to meet them all.

Jesus taught us to say: "Give us this day our daily bread." Dr. Archibald Alexander, a Scottish preacher, tells this story:

The railway into Edinburgh from the east goes through a long tunnel just before coming into the city. Now there was a certain old lady, who lived in the country, who had a great dread of this long, dark tunnel, and so, though her friends laughed at her and tried to tease her out of it, she always used to get out at Abbeyhill, before the tunnel, and go into town by car. One day, when the train reached Abbeyhill, she was sleeping, and her friends did not wake her. So she passed through the tunnel she so much feared in her sleep and never knew it, and when she opened her eyes she was in the midst of the city.

Park clearing

It was reported to the Sechelt Centennial meeting April 29 that clearing of the log and brush pile has begun at Hackett Parksite. Mr. T. Cooke, a member of the commission, explained that some form of binding clay must be harrowed into the soil at the park grounds in order to have a substantial surface for a ball diamond.

The Recreation Commission plans to enter a float in the May Day Parade, with plans to be made more definite at the next meeting.

Mrs. A. Garry, West Sechelt, was nominated by George Page as a member of the commission. The nomination was accepted.

Here is a preview of what will be worn at smart thearical openings next season. The evening jacket is of paisley pattern silver lame and is cuffed and collared in mink. It is worn with an understated but distinctive dress, which is as it should be, with so opulent a jacket. The black crepe dress has a low square neckline and inverted tucks through the middle lend a slightly shaped silhouette to an otherwise straight line.

Floor price for poultry

The federal minister of agriculture announced that the Agricultural Prices Support board has been authorized to provide a support price for fowl produced in Canada. The support is on the basis of a price equivalent to 23 cents per pound live weight at Toronto for top grade fowl five pounds and over, marketed for slaughter from August 1 to November 30, 1957, with appropriate differentials for other weight and principal markets throughout Canada.

The minister stated further that he hoped by introducing this additional support for the poultry industry that a measure of stability would be provided in the main marketing season for fowl. He indicated that this price was slightly above recent market prices.

Early Gibsons HISTORICAL and OTHERWISE

By ROBERT BURNS

Article 17

Thus we arrive at time nearly 70 years after "Dad" Gibson and his sturdy companions landed here. Many changes have taken place; the living conditions are very different, certainly much improved and easier. This narrative has purported to be a "history," but certainly is far from being sufficiently well documented to deserve that name; perhaps it is more a story about people.

After all, most history is merely a record of things that were done by people; and for myself I have long found people to be the most interesting study of all animate things; with their intelligence and stupidity, their generosity and meannesses; their heroism and faint-heartedness. All mixed together it makes up a people, and the success or otherwise of that people will perhaps be measured by the proportion of the ingredient parts.

Certainly, when one looks back over the record, one cannot fail to be struck by the vast amount of work, and no inconsiderable amount of money that was poured into enterprises that never did produce any but the most meagre tangible reward. Perhaps the more evident of this are the many efforts at fruit farming, chicken ranching, etc.

Five or ten acres of stumps and brush, often far up on the mountain side, where a hopeful settler went in, paid money for the land, put up some sort of a shack, struggled with stumps and stones in all his spare time from the main effort of trying to get enough money for a living, and then after two, three or more years of heart-breaking toil abandoned the place, sacrificing usually some money, a lot of work, and a few years of his life. And many of those places have returned to the jungle; they could not now be found.

On the other hand, many of those places were developed into farm-homes; small as to farms, it is true, and as to homes usually lacking many of the conveniences that are considered a must in the "American way of life." But there was perhaps a feeling of independence, and freedom from much of the regimentation that seems to be a part of modern living.

Those early settlers were perhaps the real "sturdy individualists." They seemed to be completely self-reliant; if their plans and efforts proved to be ill-advised they accepted the penalty of failure, without a whimper. But they paid not the slightest attention to even the few Government regulations current in those days. Generally speaking, they were a law unto themselves. However, those few self-imposed laws to which they did subscribe had quite a sound basis in equity; so far as I know, in the early days I doubt if there was ever a locked door on any house in the neighborhood; yet the contents were never molested; men living quite far from the beach often had their boat pulled up above high-water mark, often there for months without being checked; boat oars, sail, etc., were always quite safe. And in case misfortune struck one of the settlers, sickness, fire, or other, the neighbors were immediately on hand, to share what they had, little though it might be.

Among all the men and women who played a part on the development of the district there were perhaps two who in their respective times had major roles; those were Mr. Gibson and Mr. Winn. Both did a lot, and both seemed to try to build for the future. But there were many others, too many to attempt to list, who carried a full load according to the opportunities of the moment.

I could name quite a number, but those I named would merely be those of whose work I, for one reason or another, happened to become aware. There would still be all those I did not know about. It is my observation that men and women who really do things never talk about it, and are seldom heard of; one only learns of it accidentally.

Ceramics intrigue

BY BETTE LUMSDEN

Making mud pies, and turning them into interesting objects of art is the hobby of the ladies of the Roberts Creek Ceramics Club. Talk of firing, glazing and potter's wheeling aroused my curiosity, so I spent a day with the busy members.

Mrs. Rose Morrison was glazing some tiny objects which turned out to be bowling pins and balls for an original necklace and earring set. The white glazing powder, liquidized with waterglass and brush-on gum gives a professional porcelain shine to the clay after it has been glaze fired in the electric kiln for several hours.

The club uses red clay which is found in Wilson Creek. The finer white clay is bought, as it is imported from California.

Mrs. Vera Richardson was practicing on the potter's wheel, an interesting rig which is pumped by the foot of the worker. A huge cylindrical shaped piece of cement goes around and around on a shaft, which in turn operates a small metal wheel installed on a table top, while the worker moulds the shape with her hands. It was amazing to see the mould of a bowl take shape from a formless mass of soaking wet clay.

After a drying period the bowl will be put into the electric kiln — a little brick oven — and bisque fired. It is then ready for a pattern to be painted on with special ceramics underglaze colours. For the professional shiny look, the glaze will be applied with spray gun or brush. Another firing in the oven at a temperature of over 1800 Fahrenheit, and the bowl will be a graceful addition to any table.

A demure little squirrel was the pride and joy of Mrs. J. Evans. The squirrel was moulded of white clay, and a coating of red slip clay will make Jimmy the proper color. After his sojourn in the kiln, a glazing and another firing, he will be a present for her grandchild.

A beanpot was taking shape under the nimble fingers of Mrs. Crouse, who used still another method. Red clay — which is really dark grey in colour until put in the oven — was manipulated into long thin rolls. These were placed atop each other, and worked into smooth sides the shape of the old-fashioned beanpot that grandma had.

A beautiful cream jug and sugar bowl were moulded in the same manner by Mrs. Bernhof and sat ready for the colour glazing.

Dainty lamps, ashtrays, and crockery of every description were in different stages of preparation. Some of the work of the members is generally shown, and for sale, at the Fall Fair in Gibsons.

May Day meals

To help the Hackett Park project of the Sechelt Centennial Commission for 1958, the women of West Sechelt have banded together with volunteer time and labour to operate a gigantic meal concession for May Day, in the Indian Ball Park.

All proceeds will be turned over to the Commission, with the exception of a percentage to the May Day committee.

Orders of the day will be hot and cold turkey dinners with all the trimmings, hot dogs, hamburgers, pop, ice cream and coffee at usual prices.

Port Mellon news notes

BY MRS. M. WEST

Mrs. P. Strike and Mrs. B. Pitman were co-hostesses at a general shower on April 30, and Mrs. W. Brown at a pyrex shower on May 2 to honor Miss Ann Davies whose marriage to Mr. Dougal Rae will take place on May 17 in Kerrisdale Presbyterian Church.

Among those who watched the visiting Barbarians vs. British Columbia All Stars English Rugby match at Empire Stadium Saturday were Mr. and Mrs. C.B. Davies and Miss Ann Davies, L. Hempsall, D. Pitman, G. Proulx and R. Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Kerbis with their three sons Burkhard, Roland and Peter went to Vancouver Sunday to meet Mrs. Kerbis' mother, Mrs. Marie Dipper who arrived aboard the CPA Polar flight from Amsterdam. Mrs. Dipper's home is in Sindelfingen near Stuttgart, West Germany. She hopes to spend the summer months with her daughter and family in Port Mellon.

Visiting Port Mellon and their many friends were Mr. and Mrs. J. Carlson, now living in Duncan, Vancouver Island.

David Sherman has returned home for the summer vacation after his first year at UBC.

Mrs. Strayhorn, captain of 1st Port Mellon Guide Company and Mrs. Louden, Brown Owl for the Brownie Pack attended the annual provincial convention and training course for Girl Guide leaders at Trail, April 25, 28. They report a most interesting and rewarding as well as very busy time. The Trail Guide commissioner and Guide leaders were hostesses to the Guiders from all over B.C. and arranged a full and varied social program between the training and convention sessions including a tour of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. smelter. A highlight of the convention was the presentation of the highest award to Guide leaders, the Beaver award, to the retiring president, Mrs. Wright of Port Alberni.

Mrs. Strayhore, captain, and Mrs. Macklam, lieutenant, took a full company of Guides for the second annual breakfast picnic to Roberts Creek on Saturday. The company left Port Mellon at 7 a.m., and the three patrols prepared breakfast of bacon and eggs, toast, jelly and cocoa by 8 a.m.

Following the tidying of camp a semaphore treasure hunt was arranged and won by Daffodil patrol. The patrols played stalking games and Kay Louden, Jean Mason and Eileen Scheidegger passed their campfire tests.

A trail laying hike brought them to the Macklam's summer camp where the company had a picnic lunch and Easter egg hunt before returning home.

Garden hose, pails aid in quelling fire

BY STAN BOWDLER

It was sunny and warm without a breath of wind, the April afternoon Garden Bay Lodge burned to the ground. Flames and smoke blasted the skies to be seen for miles around as one of the most spectacular blazes ever seen in Pender Harbour raged virtually unchecked for over an hour.

Spectacular though the blaze was, none of the men who reached the scene in seconds after smoke was first seen pouring from the upper floor of the 30 year old landmark watched it. They were too busy inside the blazing building, heedless of danger, friends and neighbors of a man in trouble, concentrating every effort on saving whatever they could before it was too late.

Everything on the lower floors that wasn't nailed down was carried out by the volunteers, furniture and cafe equipment, even a tall cabinet with its shelves filled with fragile china was carried out and deposited intact on the road.

No one gave orders — none were needed. With the flames roaring a few feet above their heads, they kept on until everything possible had been done, even to the removal of propane gas tanks which were wrenched from the walls with the fire almost upon them.

Then the volunteers turned their attention to saving the nearby Girard home in the direct path of the flames. With only a trickle of pressure from a garden hose, and pails of water, they kept the fire back until a volunteer who had made the trip to Madeira Park Forestry station and back, in his own boat, arrived with some hose and pump equipment loaned by the station.

With the Girard home saved, the final job of packing the piles of furniture to temporary quarters was done that evening by the same people. Lloyd Davis, in thanking the volunteer helpers, told them that in all his years in the Harbour he had never realized what wonderful neighbors he had.

Had there been a wind at the time the flames were at their height, no one could estimate how far the fire could have spread without any effective means of checking it.

The volunteers saved much, but the loss suffered by Lloyd and Marnie Davis was a heavy one. Nothing could be saved from the upper floors and the family lost practically all clothing, personal possessions jewelry. Only partial insurance was carried.

It was an irony of fate that just three days before, the Pender Harbour Board of Trade had held its first public meeting to sound out public interest in the formation of a Volunteer Fire Brigade for the area.

Among the discouragingly few people who attended was Lloyd Davis, the board's vice-president and one of the most active in the efforts to bring fire protection to the Harbour.

Wins silver

During the successful spring tea Saturday by the St. Mary's Hospital Society Auxiliary, the draw for the chest of community silver and Jantzen sweater, held over from the recent Cabaret Dance was made.

Winners were: Chest of Silver — Mrs. Inge Bremer; sweater — Mrs. Helen Page.

The various attractions arranged by the hard-working ladies of the auxiliary in their efforts to raise money for their community hospital were well patronized.

Auction gets Kinsmen $160

The White Elephant Auction Sale in the school hall at Gibsons last Saturday evening grossed a total of $160, the money to be used for the Kinsmen playground and other Kin charitable works.

Although the turn out of buyers was not up to expectations, the sale, under the able auctioneering of Kin Joe Benner, went very well. Many very useable articles were donated by people from Sechelt to Port Mellon and a good selection was on hand for the buyers.

We have prospective members for the Kinsmen club who are anxious to attend a meeting, but as the next meeting is closed to members only for the purpose of election of next year's officers, another dinner meeting will be set up soon to bring in new members to the club.

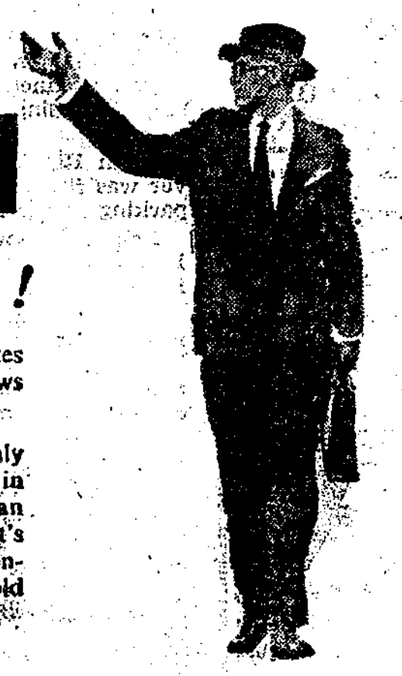
FIRST SHOWER

The first shower she ever attended was a surprise for Mrs. Lee Davis, Sechelt, at the home of Mrs. Verna Beck in Selma Park. Mrs. Davis, who came from England said they do not indulge in baby showers She has been in Canada only a few years. About 14 ladies presented the guest of honor with many lovely gifts for the coming event.

You can die when a high-throwing head light blinds, angers and confuses an approaching motorist. The Canadian Highway Safety Conference warns Check Your Car, Check Accidents, in May.

FACE THE BIG ISSUES

VOTE FOR CANADA



Hold on to what we have and cherish !

We live today in a world of explosive contradictions. While Canadians enjoy soaring prosperity, millions elsewhere are hungry. While we strive for peace, the threat of war is ever present. The age of abundance for all mankind now is possible, so is world-wide atomic destruction.

These are the big issues. Today, as never before, Canada's freedom and prosperity and the future of our children—all the things we love and want most—depend on events in the world around us.

It's essential to elect a government which promotes prosperity at home and peace abroad. History shows we can't have one without the other.

Only the Liberal Party can do this. It's the only party with statesmen experienced and respected in world affairs. The Liberal record proves it can promote prosperity at home and peace abroad. It's Canada's only truly national party, seeking constantly to re-affirm national unity, the 90 year old goal of Confederation.
