SERVING THE GROWING SUNSHINE COAST

SECOND-PRIZE AWARD of $250 in annual journalism awards by MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Limited is presented to Les Peterson, at left, for series of articles on The Sechelt Nation in Coast News, Gibsons, by Peter M. Downes, general manager, corporate communications, MB & PR. Presentation was made Oct. 23 in Vancouver at annual convention of B.C. Weekly Newspapers Association.

Martin to open hospital Nov. 29

Hon. Eric Martin, minister of health and hospital insurance will officially open the new St. Mary's Hospital on Sunday, Nov. 29, according to word from Victoria.

In the meantime builders have stated that equipment can be moved in the upper floor on Thursday of this week and that the lower floor would be ready on Nov. 23.

The nurses' home is expected to be ready by Nov. 16 with finishing touches now being completed.

Others offer help for tree

Interest has developed in the Coast News offer of a $25 reward for information on who cut down the Coronation oak at Elphinstone Secondary school grounds.

Eric Thomson, lawyer, is prepared to pay half of the reward and Ewart McMynn, real estate, is ready to add $10 to the $25 reward amount. There are also other people ready to increase the amount if it is found necessary.

John Atlee of Franklin road is prepared to start a fund with $5 for a new tree.

Trade license boost?

Business licenses in Sechelt have been doubled and it likely the same may occur in Gibsons. This means Sechelt's $5 semi-annual fee will be $10 making the yearly tax $20 for the future.

While amounts may differ for some types of operations assessed for business license purposes the general trend is that they will be doubled. A bylaw to this effect will be prepared for consideration at the next meeting.

At last Wednesday night's council meeting in Sechelt the clerk was asked if all this year's licenses had been paid. He replied that not all of them had paid up.

The question, asked by Councillor Bernel Gordon, resulted in his commenting that one individual in Sechelt was boasting he had not paid his tax and had no intention of paying. As a result action will be taken on delinquents. It was pointed out that the penalty for non-payment must not exceed $250. The new bylaw will be so worded that payment in advance will be necessary or the non-payer would be subject to penalties.

Gibsons council is also preparing a new set of schedules and one of the sticklers for both councils will be the assessing of tax against itinerant pedlars. Under the new Municipal Act regulations a municipality shall not cause or permit any discrimination between non-resident business and resident business either by classification or by fee imposed.

New rat killer is outlined

Raticate, a new rat exterminator, was explained to the rat control meeting held Monday night in Sechelt's Legion hall by members of the provincial health unit at Gibsons.

Raticate, a new product, is reported to be in the unusual category because it will kill rats only within four hours but will not do harm to any other animal.

Barrie McDonald, chief sanitarian for the Coast-Malaspina Health Unit accompanied by Phil Crampton, area sanitarian with the Gibsons Health Unit, told the meeting of this new exterminator and also showed two short films, Vandals of the Night and Get Rid of Rats.

A question and answer period followed and methods of placing bait for rats was explained.

Nominations Nov. 26

Municipal council nomination day in Sechelt and Gibsons falls on Nov. 26 with elections where necessary on Sat., Dec. 12.

Saturday as a voting day is a change from the usual Thursday which has been the rule for many years. This change was made by the last legislature at the request of the Union of B.C. Municipalities which preferred Saturday.

In Gibsons there will be two seats vacated now occupied by Councillor Sam Fladager and Councillor Norman McKay. Councillor Flagader has not yet made up his mind what he will do. Councillor McKay will run again.

In Sechelt, Councillors Same Dawe and Frank Parker will end their two year terms. Both have signified they will not run again.

Gibsons council at its last meeting named Mrs. Jules Mainil as returning officer. In Sechelt Village clerk E. T. Rayner will be returning officer. The polling booth will be at Jack Mayne's office.

Accidents injure 2

Two persons received injuries in two accidents during the past week, one near Langdale and the other on Gower Point road.

In the Langdale accident Albert Prendergast of Port Mellon careened into the side of the highway past the ferry road. He received numerous glass cuts and bruises. This mishap occurred shortly after midnight last Thursday. The car was damaged heavily.

The second accident, on Gower Point Rd., occurred about 3:30 p.m. Thursday when two cars, one pushing the other took the turn past Gospel Rock too close to the road centre and an oncoming car driven by Mrs. A. M. Gant of Port Mellon ended partly off the road while the other two cars experienced more difficulty in coming to a halt on their side of the road. Marvin Garriott of High River, Alta., was injured to the point he needed medical attention and Ronald Cartier, also of High River received minor injuries. A third man, Harold F. Allan of Gibsons was driving the second car. Damage to the Garriott car amounted to about $500 and to the Gant car about $250.

School board election?

One elected Sechelt District School board trustee will complete his two year term and either retire or seek re-election. He is Leo Johnson representing the village of Sechelt. Mrs. C. M. Volen, representing the village of Gibsons on the school board has another year to run.

At present Mr. Johnson's mind is not yet made up whether he will run or retire. There are reports that regardless of whether Mr. Johnson runs or retires there will be another name put forward on nomination day.

The remainder of school trustees are selected at a meeting of school representatives. Those whose term ends at the end of the year include the chairman Mrs. M. Ball and Reg. Spicer. Pender Harbour who has already resigned having moved away. Trustees remaining to fill another year are Mrs. Celia Fisher, Mrs. R. L. Jackson of Davis Bay area and Joseph Horvath of Roberts Creek.

Report cards a problem

The November Gibsons PTA meeting will be held on Monday, Nov. 16 at 8 p.m. in the Elementary School. It has been decided by the principals of Elphinstone High and Gibsons Elementary schools that the question of report cards is too complicated and fraught with emotion to be dealt with at an open meeting without prior discussion in committee.

All parents and students having constructive criticisms, practical suggestions for improvement of report cards or questions needing clarification are asked to bring them in writing to this meeting. If there is enough concern felt by parents a committee of teachers, parents and school trustees will meet and bring their findings to a PTA meeting early in the new year.

As Nov. 15 to 21 is Young Canada Book Week and as the School Board has recently received notification from Victoria that Gibsons Elementary school is now entitled to a library it was thought opportune to ask Mr. Dober to speak about his job as Librarian for the school district. Representatives from the Gibsons Library and the high school librarian will also be present.

Chest idea explored

A type of community chest for Sechelt or for the entire area was mulled over Wednesday night of last week by members of Sechelt's council.

Council decided to toss the issue to the Chamber of Commerce and to the Ratepayers' association for further discussion. With householders being plagued to death by demands for charitable purposes council strived to find a way out and pointed to the Port Mellon system where an assessment is made and the association in charge of the fund divides it up amongst the organizations it decides to help.

(Informaton from the Howe Sound Pulp Employees Charity Fund states that this fund is a wage deductable assessment which entails little more work than bookkeeping.)

Members of council were of the opinion that there were too many demands now being made on the public and that it would be a good idea if a community chest plan was in effect, to which the public could make one annual contribution and not be bothered by door to door canvassers. Canvassers would also be quite happy to have a community chest take over.

Some thoughts were expressed that it would be a good idea if the entire area to Pender Harbour were included in such a setup.

SOCCER

(By GOALIE)

Sechelt Residential Division five team outplayed Roberts Creek boys to score a convincing 6-1 win and thus managed to keep a secure hold on second place in the league race.

The team from Sechelt has the better goal average, as a look at the standings will show, but somehow or another the United team seems to have the ability to score when they need to score. They do not run up the scores that the league champions do, but then they did not let the champions run up a big tally when these two teams last met. The results of Sundays league games in division five were:

Roberts Creek 1, Sechelt Res. School 6.

Gibsons Utd. 5, Port Mellon 0.

Sechelt Legion has expressed a desire to sponsor a team in division five again, and has requested that the commission allow them to play in regular league play for the remainder of the season. This is a matter for the next meeting. We will always welcome a sixth team in the league. If the Legion's request is granted, they shall commence playing as soon as possible.

Games for Sunday Nov. 15 in division five are:

Sechelt Res. School vs. Port Mellon.

Gibsons Utd. vs. Gibsons Merchants.

In Division three league play this weekend, the visiting Powell River Legion played against the Residential School at Sechelt on Sat., Nov. 7 and lost a hard fought game by 3 goals to 2.

On Sunday they kicked off against the Gibsons team and a very good turnout of spectators witnessed a game well fought which ended in a 1-1 tie.

Next weekend yet another Powell River team will be visiting this area and will play two league games, one on Saturday and one on Sunday, Nov. 14 and 15. Times for these games will be posted in the village on notices, but anyway Saturday or Sunday, you can watch soccer at the Elementary School grounds.

Parker presses for park area

Further argument ensued last Wednesday night when Sechelt municipal council discussed Porpoise Bay property as a likely park but the issue remains unsettled.

Councillor Frank Parker opened discussion by referring to a letter from the real estate company handling the area which stated its terms were half of the $28,000 as a down payment with the rest on terms, or, council could make its offer.

Twice during the discussion Councillor Parker moved that the village take a plebiscite to purchase the land but no seconder supported him. The property on Porpoise Bay shore east of the wharf is 3.75 acres and extends from the reserve about 800 feet. At a price of $28,000 it was estimated it would cost $350 a foot. Village Clerk E. T. Rayner informed council it could not buy any property with the pectancy of selling any part of it. The Municipal Act was specific that councils cannot go into the real estate business, he said.

Members of council including the chairman, Mrs. Christine Johnston pointed out that the village would also like to develop Hacket park and also its waterfront area. These would cost money. It was also argued that with lack of tidal movement at Porpoise Bay there would be polluted water which would not be suitable for swimming. With time getting close to 10:30 p.m. councillors allowed the discussion to trail away with Councillor Parker deciding to look into the matter further.

A special meeting to give further consideration on the basis that the municipality can purchase land and with authority from Victoria be able to sell some of it later, was held Friday morning and was left adjourned until Tuesday night of this week when it was expected there would be further information available from the real estate company on the subject of price and terms.

A new wrinkle

Here is a new wrinkle for you!

A Boy Scout troop with sufficient leaders but no Scouts. So lads, if you live in the Wilson Creek area and want to become a Scout phone 885-2180 and you can arrange for a lift to attend Tuesday night meetings in the Sechelt Legion Hall.

COYOTE VISITS GOATS

What appears to be a young coyote has been a frequent visitor at the George Charman farm on Sunshine Coast Highway just past the S turn. It shows up now and again and plays with the goats and latterly has become less afraid of human beings. Some nights it howls.

Game banquet Dec. 5

On Saturday, Oct. 31, the clubhouse of the Sechelt Peninsula Rod and Gun Club was alive with sheiks, harem girls, gay-nineties gals, little old-fashioned ladies, peasant girls, and many others in gay and original costumes.

Prizes went to Mrs. Shirley Fearnley for the best dressed, to Mrs. Bonnie Paetkau as the most original and to Chief Caldwell as the most comic. Dancing was enjoyed to the music of Rod Lesee's accordion and guitar orchestra.

After midnight a smorgasbord supper was served by the ladies of the club. This was a very happy preview of the good time all will have who attend the annual Game Banquet in the Roberts Creek Hall on Sat., Dec. 5, commencing at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are now available in Sechelt stores and at Don Head's Shoe Store in the Plaza at Gibsons.

PAINTED CROSSWALKS

Three painted crosswalks are scheduled for Sechelt. One will be in vicinity of the Shop Easy Store, another at the bus depot and the third at Inlet Ave. and Comrie St. Sechelt's council ordered their being painted after the roads department had given its O.K.

Peterson resigns

Les Peterson has resigned as chairman of the Gibsons area Recreation Committee and Eugene Yablonski has been asked to take over the chairmanship, Councillor Fladager reported to Gibsons council at its last meeting.

He also added that sometime in February it is quite likely this Port Mellon to Egmont area will come under the control of a recreation director. Tom Ruben, consultant of the Community programs branch of the provincial government informed Centennial committee members, of which Mr. Fladager is chairman, this will quite likely take place as the area is being used as a model area for a program of this sort with the idea of extending it to other areas if it can be worked out here.

"I didn't like to ask for change for the parking meter without buying something!"

Kinsmen visit

On Friday, Nov. 6, Gibsons Kinsmen played host to North Vancouver Kinsmen at a lady's night in the banquet room of the Peninsula Hotel. After a lovely dinner a short meeting was held followed by some good old Hillbilly entertainment by the Gibsons Kinettes. Those attending from North Vancouver were President Bill Anderson, D. R. Annan, G. A. Freeze, T. D. Grieve, P. Moffat and J. Hilton. Sechelt Kinsmen attending after their executive meeting were President Glen Phillips, wife Helen and Morgan Thompson.

MRS. S. E. LANGDALE

Mrs. Sarah Emeline Langdale, 88, member of a pioneer Vancouver family died Nov. 1. She was a member of the family after which the Langdale ferry terminal was named when Black Ball interests ran the ferry service.

SHED HAS GONE

The eyesore of a shed which stood on Gibsons federal wharf for many years is now a thing of the past. It was removed during the latter half of last week with parts of it being transported intact to other locations for use as sheds or garages.

CHIMNEY FIRE

Monday evening's fire alarm was a chimney fire at the Jack Johnston home on Reid Rd. near Payne Rd. Damage was reported slight.

CONTAINERS FOR GARBAGE

Four garbage containers, each to cost $68.50 were ordered purchased by Gibsons council at its last meeting to be set up at Seaview Plaza, Kruse Drug Store, Co-op Store and Dogwood Cafe. Council had three samples available ranging from $75 down.

A broader point of view

It may be a mystery to some people why an early start has been made on opinions for a Centennial project. The completion of such a project must be concluded in 1967 and for areas where a project will not be of a costly nature this allows plenty of time to get a clear-cut decision.

What should have occurred on Monday of last week in Gibsons, could have been the attendance at a Centennial meeting of a large bulk of the public. They would have learned a great deal.

For instance they would have learned that no one area is going to get very much money and that the money contributed by the federal and provincial governments must be matched by donations from the public either cash, labor or materials. They would also have learned that the area from Port Mellon to Pender Harbour is so split up with as many project ideas as there are segments in the split area.

Given time, some of these suggestions in the smaller areas might fall by the wayside and result in there being fewer projects for a lesser number though wider area.

Suggestions have been made that the entire region from Port Mellon to Pender Harbour should get together on one project and obtain a tidy sum of money for something worthwhile.

There is little hope that the Port Mellon to Pender Harbour region will ever get together on 1967 Centnnial project. It is a pity because with proper organization something worthwhile could be achieved. If anyone desires to get something started on the widest possible basis there is one way to get it going and that would be through the half-dozen hospital auxiliaries which have worked so valiantly for the new hospital and through the various fraternal and service clubs and church organizations. Chambers of Commerce could be included along with the two municipal councils, Sechelt and Gibsons.

Is there a leader in the district who has enough strength to stand up and start something? If there is and the project is worthwhile he has the support of the Coast News.

Consult your librarian!

Some of the strongest influences in our lives come from the pages of the books that are read to us, or from which we learn to read and to absorb much of our way of life.

Today's children have unlimited fields of learning but not all of them are salutary, so fortunate is the youngster who forms an attachment to his public library and librarians, so that he may be helped in finding paths of adventure and knowledge.

For doting aunts and kindly uncles and grandpas, books are an answer to the problem of Christmas shopping for the small fry. Consultation with the local librarian can help in starting a youngster on his literary road. Books that will help him to read or, if he has accomplished that skill, reading matter suited to the age, sex and inclinations of the child can open new worlds to him.

The wise donor will remember that good Nature books can start him on lifetime interests.

A packet of built-in services

The pattern of Canadian food consumption will continue to shift in the direction of higher protein foods and foods which satisfy an increasing demand for variety and convenience according to the Bank of Montreal Business Review for October, just issued.

The bank reviews the changes that have taken place in food in the past decade and notes that, with new methods of processing and distribution, the housewife buys a packet of built-in services.

Many of the changes in the last decade also reflect the tendency, as living standards rise, to eat less food with a high carbohydrate content.

With these changes, plus higher spending on restaurant meals, the bank says that some rise in food prices would be expected and this has taken place.

The wonder is, however, not that food prices have gone up, but that they have gone up so little. The B of M points out that, on the average since 1951, food prices have actually risen less than the prices of other consumer goods and services and substantially less than the rise in incomes per capita.

For the future, the B of M says that there are two opposing forces at work in the market for food.

Real incomes in the population as a whole are rising and the distribution of income is changing in such a way that there are relatively more families in the higher income brackets. the bank notes. It adds that these changes indicate a continuing decline in the percentage of total consumer spending devoted to food.

On the other hand, the population is increasing and the age distribution is shifting in such a way that there will be relatively larger numbers of heavy eaters (teenagers and young adults) in the years ahead than was the case in the recent past.

Therefore, total expenditures on food in Canada, which in 1963 reached $6.3 billion, will most certainly rise but the extent of the rise will depend on the strength of the various influences, the B of M review concludes.

Flexible constitution needed!

By JACK DAVIS, M.P.
Coast-Capilano Constituency

It is nearly half a century since Canadians first began to think seriously about amending our Constitution. Many meetings between Ottawa and the provinces have been held in the intervening years. Finally, their efforts have been crowned with success. Everyone is agreed. We can now change the British North America Act without having to refer it to the U.K. Parliament in Westminster.

The new formula is significant. Formerly Ottawa could get its own amendments to the B.N.A. Act passed at Westminister without reference to the provinces. Now it can no longer do so. The provinces have to agree in advance. So the federal government's powers in this connection may be said to have been curtailed.

This is true in theory but not in fact. Never in our history has the parliament of Canada asked Westminister to act without reference to the provinces. So we never used this power of unilateral action. What we have never done in the past, we are now bound not to do in the future.

The amending formula itself is complex: a few select areas of provincial jurisdiction (such as use of the French language) have been identified. In their case a single province can veto any proposed change. Other provisions, however, provide for amendments which can be passed with the support of a majority of our Canadian provinces — that or a majority of the Canadian population.

* * *

Even greater constitutional flexibility may be required. This is why the provinces have been given certain rights to delegate their powers to the federal government and/or vice versa. No one quite knows how this will work out in practice. But it has one great advantage. If there is a widespread demand for general legislation which lies in the provincial field, a number of provinces can ask Ottawa to pass the necessary laws without waiting for the rest of Canada to fall into line.

Under this arrangement we will no longer be able to blame other provinces, like Quebec, for lack of progress. The majority will be able to press ahead while the minority — at least in fields of provincial responsibility — will be able to go its own way.

We have been hearing a good deal recently about separatism in this country. The effective repatriation of our Constitution is a tangible denial of these statements. It is indeed comforting to learn that, at this so-called dark moment in our history, all ten provinces and the federal government can get together and bury their differences. They have done more. In one of the greatest acts of Canadian statesmanship for more than a generation, they have made Canadians masters in their own house. They have at the same time, preserved that degree of constitutional flexibility which is so essential to our survival as a nation.

COLD WEATHER STRATEGY

It is generally thought that the outer surface of the walls of a beaver lodge always consist of plastered mud and muck, the sticks used in construction being invariably concealed, presenting a comparatively smooth surface to the observer. While this is correct, without variation on beaver range where the winter season is not severe, the same does not apply in terrain suffering from long periods of subzero weather.

One never finds a beaver lodge in the north country that is not covered with uncemented sticks and branches, loosely laid, before cold weather sets in. The reason for this, no doubt, is to gather and retain as much snow as possible on the outside to help keep frost from the interior, in much the same way as human residents of the north pile spruce and other browse about their dwellings, for the same purpose.

* * *

BEAVER TENEMENTS

Beaver lodges often serve purposes other than providing shelter for beavers and are quite frequently very cosmopolitan in their housing. Often the Canada Goose takes up rooms at the apex of the lodge, there to lay her eggs and build the family nest. A little further down the muskrat and water shrew are known to take up residence beneath the eaves, and little fish seek refuge in the crevices made by the inter-lacing of submerged sticks.

BUGS AND DISTANCE

We've heard of the D.E.W. line and the Pine Tree line to protect us from sudden invasion by air and now we hear that a Canadian scientist spent his summer in the northern-most Arctic to protect the nation's cities and towns from attacks by insects.

Brian Hocking, a University of Alberta entomologist, is seeking to find out just how far an insect can travel between meals.

Hocking told the annual convention of the Entomological Societies of Canada in Hotel Vancouver that once this distance is determined, the use of insecticides will be more effective as each bug will get a lethal dose.

He studied the sugar content of nectar in flowers in Ellesmere Island and the amount of energy it provides. His findings will be compared with other studies at Fort Churchill, 500 miles to the south, and in southern Canada.

A LESSON FROM THE OTTER

The sea otter obtains most of its food by diving to the sea bottom. Folding its front legs near its body, it uses its webbed hind feet to reach the shellfish far below the surface. Crabs, oysters, clams and similar creatures are its main diet, although its favorite food is squid. Sometimes it will bring a stone to the surface, lie on its back with the stone on its chest, and beat a stubborn clam with it until the shell is broken.

This playful, shy, defenseless creature was the animal which Bering's men used as their chief source of clothing. At that time it existed from California to the Arctic Ocean in the thousands, a source of valuable furs untouched by man. Now it is rarely if ever seen. It affords a lesson in why we need conservation measures.

Hi-Cs see exhibit of Indian relics

The Hi-C was recently invited to go and see Mr. Peterson's exhibit on Indian relics and art work. The party was surprised at his collection of Indian artifacts and his storehouse of knowledge. They not only learned several new facts about B.C.'s past, but also something about the expert craftsmanship of the Indians. The party thanks Mr. Peterson again for his kindness in letting them see his exhibit, and also for his interest in ensuring that this part of our history is not forgotten.

The Hi-C is having a beatnick party soon. A future announcement concerning this will be made.

EVERYTHING FOR YOUR BUILDING NEEDS

MY FAIR LADY: Audrey Hepburn, in the title role of the spectacular motion picture production, shouts one of the famous lines from the Alan Jay Lerner — Frederick Loewe musical play as she roots her horse home at the Ascot races, to the urbane amusement of Rex Harrison, standing beside her in the role of Professor Henry Higgins.

Motel problem debated

The problem of motels within the confines of Gibsons municipality received considerable attention at council meeting last week in Gibsons.

S. Gerard of Rit's Motel was granted a permit for $14,000 to cover four two room suites as an addition to present motel premises on the adjoining corner lot.

Council argued lengthily on the subject of whether permanently rented premises could classify as a motel. Intention of the argument was to define what was a motel. On the basis of an earlier letter to Mr. Gerard explaining that transient trade must be considered, council agreed on granting the building permit. Council plans a move to protect itself against the spread of non-transient set-ups in the village. Mr. Gerard's added lot will have to be re-zoned from residential to commercial.

Councillor Sam Fladager while not opposed to Mr. Gerard's application was of the opinion that allowing motels to be constructed for the use of permanent occupans was unfair to residents generally who are confined to placing one construction only on a lot as a permanent residence. To allow motels to place four or five small buildings on one lot would be unfair, Mr. Fladager argued.

After consultation with Walt Nygren's Chamber of Commerce breakwater committee Councillor Sam Fladager reported that it was decided that council would continue working on its seawall in the bay and make its own presentation to Jack Davis, M.P., for Coast-Capilano. It was decided with Mr. Nygren that there was no clash with the breakwater.

Mrs. Ball re-chosen

The several hundred ratepayers in the Roberts Creek district were represented by 24 at the ratepayers meeting to hear about school affairs on Monday evening. The chairman, by acclamation, was Mr. B. L. Cope, and the secretary was Mrs. C. Beeman.

Main purpose of the meeting was to elect a representative to the school board to take the place of Mrs. Muriel Ball whose term of office had expired. Mrs. Ball was re-elected by acclamation.

Mr. J. Horvath, also a member of the board, and Mrs. Ball, spoke on the impending referendum and pointed out the needs of the various schools. A new room for Roberts Creek school appears to be imminent and possibly later a library and an activity room also.

The subject of school plumbing facilities was discussed at length. The chairman, usually a stickler for parliamentary procedure, was heard to say "this is highly out of order but the way to learn is to listen" after which he sat back and enjoyed the discussion.

The secretary, interested in the discourse, had doodled the subject under discussion, flowers and designs over her notes, and while she was straightening them out so she could read them at the close of the evening, committed the worst of all sins, a pun.

All present were still chuckling when a delicious supper was served by the Parents' Auxiliary.

HALFMOON BAY NOTES

By MARY TINKLEY

The Halfmoon Bay auxiliary to St. Mary's Hospital will hold a Christmas bazaar on Sat., Nov. 14 at 2 p.m. at Rutherfords. Teas will be served and there will be a sale of home baking. Among the many novelties on sale will be Christmas candles and centrepieces, corsages and bargains in toys. Raffle tickets are on sale for a hamper of groceries, a planter and a table lamp.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wilkinson have returned from a honeymoon in California. They drove south by the coastal route as far as Morro Bay, where they crossed to Fresno and returned north by way of Sacramento and Redding. They crossed into Canada by Highway 97 and returned home by the Fraser Canyon. Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson were married quietly in Vancouver on Oct. 5. Mrs. Wilkinson is the former Mrs. Vylo Baker of Francis Peninsula.

Visiting in the Bay area this past week have been Ken Butterfield and his brother-in-law, Charles Murphy from Sarnia, Ont. Ken, who was assistant lighthouse keeper at Merry Island before going east, was delighted to be back by the water. He borrowed a boat, revisited all his favorite fishing spots and came back with a nice string of cod.

Ronnie Sussbauer is hunting for elk in the Golden area, but so far without success. Meanwhile, Mrs. Sussbauer's guests at Seacrest are her sister-in-law, Mrs. Carol Dionne of Abbotsford with her two children.

Linen shower for bride-elect

Miss Sharen MacKay was the guest of honor at a linen shower Thursday evening. Mrs. R. L. Gregory and Mrs. Stan Rowland entertained at the latter's home on Crow Road for the bride-to-be.

Fall flowers decorated the living room, and streamers in blue and white cascaded over the chair on which the honored guest sat to open her numerous beautiful gifts. The hostesses also presented her with a dainty corsage.

The bride's cake, made and decorated by Mrs. Rowland, was a tasty work of art intricately decorated. A buffet supper was served. A door prize was won by Marilyn Greggain.

Other guests included Sylvia and Wendy Gurney, Mrs. Anne Gurney, mother of the groom-elect, Mrs. K. Butler, mother of the bride-elect, Dawn Rowland, Mrs. Lorne Campbell, Lynne Ennis, Mrs. Do Wortman, Phyl Greggain and Jan Rowland.

Society of Women Only organized

Five persons attended a Selma Park meeting called by The Society of Women Only for the purpose of assisting deserted families. The meeting called by Mrs. Doreen Kaiser, formerly of Sechelt and now of Vancouver heard the objectives and achievements. Mrs. Kaiser is now planning to call a meeting in Gibsons area, the date of which will be announced later. Mrs. Kaiser reports the organization now has 46 members in British Columbia and is reaching out for more.

A broader point of view

It may be a mystery to some people why an early start has been made on opinions for a Centennial project. The completion of such a project must be concluded in 1967 and for areas where a project will not be of a costly nature this allows plenty of time to get a clear-cut decision.

What should have occurred on Monday of last week in Gibsons, could have been the attendance at a Centennial meeting of a large bulk of the public. They would have learned a great deal.

For instance they would have learned that no one area is going to get very much money and that the money contributed by the federal and provincial governments must be matched by donations from the public either cash, labor or materials. They would also have learned that the area from Port Mellon to Pender Harbour is so split up with as many project ideas as there are segments in the split area.

Given time, some of these suggestions in the smaller areas might fall by the wayside and result in there being fewer projects for a lesser number though wider area.

Suggestions have been made that the entire region from Port Mellon to Pender Harbour should get together on one project and obtain a tidy sum of money for something worthwhile.

There is little hope that the Port Mellon to Pender Harbour region will ever get together on 1967 Centnnial project. It is a pity because with proper organization something worthwhile could be achieved. If anyone desires to get something started on the widest possible basis there is one way to get it going and that would be through the half-dozen hospital auxiliaries which have worked so valiantly for the new hospital and through the various fraternal and service clubs and church organizations. Chambers of Commerce could be included along with the two municipal councils, Sechelt and Gibsons.

Is there a leader in the district who has enough strength to stand up and start something? If there is and the project is worthwhile he has the support of the Coast News.

Consult your librarian!

Some of the strongest influences in our lives come from the pages of the books that are read to us, or from which we learn to read and to absorb much of our way of life.

Today's children have unlimited fields of learning but not all of them are salutary, so fortunate is the youngster who forms an attachment to his public library and librarians, so that he may be helped in finding paths of adventure and knowledge.

For doting aunts and kindly uncles and grandpas, books are an answer to the problem of Christmas shopping for the small fry. Consultation with the local librarian can help in starting a youngster on his literary road. Books that will help him to read or, if he has accomplished that skill, reading matter suited to the age, sex and inclinations of the child can open new worlds to him.

The wise donor will remember that good Nature books can start him on lifetime interests.

A packet of built-in services

The pattern of Canadian food consumption will continue to shift in the direction of higher protein foods and foods which satisfy an increasing demand for variety and convenience according to the Bank of Montreal Business Review for October, just issued.

The bank reviews the changes that have taken place in food in the past decade and notes that, with new methods of processing and distribution, the housewife buys a packet of built-in services.

Many of the changes in the last decade also reflect the tendency, as living standards rise, to eat less food with a high carbohydrate content.

With these changes, plus higher spending on restaurant meals, the bank says that some rise in food prices would be expected and this has taken place.

The wonder is, however, not that food prices have gone up, but that they have gone up so little. The B of M points out that, on the average since 1951, food prices have actually risen less than the prices of other consumer goods and services and substantially less than the rise in incomes per capita.

For the future, the B of M says that there are two opposing forces at work in the market for food.

Real incomes in the population as a whole are rising and the distribution of income is changing in such a way that there are relatively more families in the higher income brackets. the bank notes. It adds that these changes indicate a continuing decline in the percentage of total consumer spending devoted to food.

On the other hand, the population is increasing and the age distribution is shifting in such a way that there will be relatively larger numbers of heavy eaters (teenagers and young adults) in the years ahead than was the case in the recent past.

Therefore, total expenditures on food in Canada, which in 1963 reached $6.3 billion, will most certainly rise but the extent of the rise will depend on the strength of the various influences, the B of M review concludes.

Flexible constitution needed?

By JACK DAVIS, M.P.
Coast-Capilano Constituency

It is nearly half a century since Canadians first began to think seriously about amending our Constitution. Many meetings between Ottawa and the provinces have been held in the intervening years. Finally, their efforts have been crowned with success. Everyone is agreed. We can now change the British North America Act without having to refer it to the U.K. Parliament in Westminster.

The new formula is significant. Formerly Ottawa could get its own amendments to the B.N.A. Act passed at Westminister without reference to the provinces. Now it can no longer do so. The provinces have to agree in advance. So the federal government's powers in this connection may be said to have been curtailed.

This is true in theory but not in fact. Never in our history has the parliament of Canada asked Westminister to act without reference to the provinces. So we never used this power of unilateral action. What we have never done in the past, we are now bound not to do in the future.

The amending formula itself is complex: a few select areas of provincial jurisdiction (such as use of the French language) have been identified. In their case a single province can veto any proposed change. Other provisions, however, provide for amendments which can be passed with the support of a majority of our Canadian provinces — that or a majority of the Canadian population.

Even greater constitutional flexibility may be required. This is why the provinces have been given certain rights to delegate their powers to the federal government and/or vice versa. No one quite knows how this will work out in practice. But it has one great advantage. If there is a widespread demand for general legislation which lies in the provincial field, a number of provinces can ask Ottawa to pass the necessary laws without waiting for the rest of Canada to fall into line.

Under this arrangement we will no longer be able to blame other provinces, like Quebec, for lack of progress. The majority will be able to press ahead while the minority — at least in fields of provincial responsibility — will be able to go its own way.

We have been hearing a good deal recently about separatism in this country. The effective repatriation of our Constitution is a tangible denial of these statements. It is indeed comforting to learn that, at this so-called dark moment in our history, all ten provinces and the federal government can get together and bury their differences. They have done more. In one of the greatest acts of Canadian statesmanship for more than a generation, they have made Canadians masters in their own house. They have at the same time, preserved that degree of constitutional flexibility which is so essential to our survival as a nation.

COLD WEATHER STRATEGY

It is generally thought that the outer surface of the walls of a beaver lodge always consist of plastered mud and muck, the sticks used in construction being invariably concealed, presenting a comparatively smooth surface to the observer. While this is correct without variation on beaver range where the winter season is not severe, the same does not apply in terrain suffering from long periods of sub-zero weather.

One never finds a beaver lodge in the north country that is not covered with uncemented sticks and branches, loosely laid, before cold weather sets in. The reason for this, no doubt, is to gather and retain as much snow as possible on the outside to help keep frost from the interior, in much the same way as human residents of the north pile spruce and other browse about their dwellings, for the same purpose.

BEAVER TENEMENTS

Beaver lodges often serve purposes other than providing shelter for beavers and are quite frequently very cosmopolitan in their housing. Often the Canada Goose takes up rooms at the apex of the lodge, there to lay her eggs and build the family nest. A little further down the muskrat and water shrew are known to take up residence beneath the eaves, and little fish seek refuge in the crevices made by the inter-lacing of submerged sticks.

BUGS AND DISTANCE

We've heard of the D.E.W. line and the Pine Tree line to protect us from sudden invasion by air and now we hear that a Canadian scientist spent his summer in the northern-most Arctic to protect the nation's cities and towns from attacks by insects.

Brian Hocking, a University of Alberta entomologist, is seeking to find out just how far an insect can travel between meals.

Hocking told the annual convention of the Entomological Societies of Canada in Hotel Vancouver that once this distance is determined, the use of insecticides will be more effective as each bug will get a lethal dose.

He studied the sugar content of nectar in flowers in Ellesmere Island and the amount of energy it provides. His findings will be compared with other studies at Fort Churchill, 500 miles to the south, and in southern Canada.

A LESSON FROM THE OTTER

The sea otter obtains most of its food by diving to the sea bottom. Folding its front legs near its body, it uses its webbed hind feet to reach the shellfish far below the surface. Crabs, oysters, clams and similar creatures are its main diet, although its favorite food is squid. Sometimes it will bring a stone to the surface, lie on its back with the stone on its chest, and beat a stubborn clam with it until the shell is broken.

This playful, shy, defenseless creature was the animal which Bering's men used as their chief source of clothing. At that time it existed from California to the Arctic Ocean in the thousands, a source of valuable furs untouched by man. Now it is rarely if ever seen. It affords a lesson in why we need conservation measures.

Hi-Cs see exhibit of Indian relics

The Hi-C was recently invited to go and see Mr. Peterson's exhibit on Indian relics and art work. The party was surprised at his collection of Indian artifacts and his storehouse of knowledge. They not only learned several new facts about B.C.'s past, but also something about the expert craftsmanship of the Indians. The party thanks Mr. Peterson again for his kindness in letting them see his exhibit, and also for his interest in ensuring that this part of our history is not forgotten.

The Hi-C is having a beatnick party soon. A future announcement concerning this will be made.

Motel problem debated

The problem of motels within the confines of Gibsons municipality received considerable attention at council meeting last week in Gibsons.

S. Gerard of Rit's Motel was granted a permit for $14,000 to cover four two room suites as an addition to present motel premises on the adjoining corner lot.

Council argued lengthily on the subject of whether permanently rented premises could classify as a motel. Intention of the argument was to define what was a motel. On the basis of an earlier letter to Mr. Gerard explaining that transient trade must be considered, council agreed on granting the building permit. Council plans a move to protect itself against the spread of non-transient set-ups in the village. Mr. Gerard's added lot will have to be re-zoned from residential to commercial.

Councillor Sam Fladager while not opposed to Mr. Gerard's application was of the opinion that allowing motels to be constructed for the use of permanent occupans was unfair to residents generally who are confined to placing one construction only on a lot as a permanent residence. To allow motels to place four or five small buildings on one lot would be unfair, Mr. Fladager argued.

After consultation with Walt Nygren's Chamber of Commerce breakwater committee Councillor Sam Fladager reported that it was decided that council would continue working on its seawall in the bay and make its own presentation to Jack Davis, M.P., for Coast-Capilano. It was decided with Mr. Nygren that there was no clash with the breakwater.

Mrs. Ball re-chosen

The several hundred ratepayers in the Roberts Creek district were represented by 24 at the ratepayers meeting to hear about school affairs on Monday evening. The chairman, by acclamation, was Mr. B. L. Cope, and the secretary was Mrs. C. Beeman.

Main purpose of the meeting was to elect a representative to the school board to take the place of Mrs. Muriel Ball whose term of office had expired. Mrs. Ball was re-elected by acclamation.

Lucky 13 tea planned

The Women's Institute in Gibsons plans a Lucky 13 tea for Fri., Nov. 13 starting at 2 p.m. in the W.I. cottage. There will be gifts, novelties, furniture, home cooking, sewing and a white elephant table. There will also be a lucky prize to be won during the afternoon.

Cartons of soap and used clothing are being sent to the United Services for shipment to Greece and Korea and a birthday gift was sent to the W.I. adoptee at the Queen Alexandra Solarium. It was announced at the last meeting that there would be a radio program every Wednesday at 11:30 a.m. on CFFC giving news of the 14 Fraser district institutes of which Howe Sound institute is one.

At the end of the meeting Mrs. Wes Hodgson gave an interesting talk on her recent trip to England and Scotland. It is expected she will continue her talk with slides at a later meeting.

Christmas bazaar

At Roberts Creek Legion Auxiliary meeting Nov. 2 it was decided the Christmas bazaar would be held Wed., Dec. 9. The auxiliary will also send its usual contribution to the blind institute and gifts will be sent to male patents at Essondale. It was also decided not to hold a Christmas tree event for youngsters if the Community association plans one and if so the auxiliary will make its donation towards it.

ZONING HEARING

A hearing on the bylaw to rezone property owned by Frank Wyngaert in rear of the chicken farm will be held at 7 p.m. on Nov. 17 preceding council meeting in the Municipal hall. Mr. Wyngaert seeks to have the property zoned from commercial to residential and commercial.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor: In June this year, an open meeting was held in the Community Hall at Roberts Creek to form a Centennial committee. Due to the small attendance a committee of seven persons was appointed to look into the matter of selecting a project. We are now calling for suggestions from any residents of Roberts Creek and all will be carefully considered.

In three weeks time a public meeting will be called to discuss these ideas and attempt to decide on a project. Date of meeting will be announced later. Please watch for it.

Address suggestions to the Centennial Committee, Roberts Creek. Thank you.

Ron McSavaney, chairman.

Editor: Re Gibsons project vote landslide — was there an actual ballot with the six mentioned subjects printed on the same where a person could mark an X or some similar symbol? To me that is voting. Where you have a choice shown to you and you mark the one you prefer, I think fair.

It seems to me that there were canvassers going around and not going to every home, asking if you thought it would be a good idea to clean up the old church grounds as a Centennial project. Naturally it needs fixing up as a lawn but the village can surely afford those funds themselves and use the grant for a larger project.

A park where the young people can benefit from it for baseball, tennis or other sports for outdoors. The church grounds are so small you can hardly play horseshoes.

Brothers Memorial Park is in the area now but someday it will be part of the village of Gibsons and you would have something worthwhile to show for Centennial Year.

I live in the village but I do think people should be thinking of the future and the expansion of the village. — Thinking.

Editor: Have just received the very informative circular issued by the Sechelt School District No. 46 and as I note it suggests that we ask questions I would like to ask the following.

Under the heading Annual Ratepayers Meetings they speak of the trustees making their annual reports to the people of the area. There was no trustee made any report to the Roberts Creek School meeting but there were two representatives there.

Just what is the difference between a trustee and a representative and what are the duties of each? I telephoned the lady who was re-elected a representative and she said she would take it up with the Board of School Trustees and have it explained in their next bulletin. Maybe you could enlighten the ratepayers in your publication.

B. L. Cope.

Rehearsal turns into sing-song

Mr. and Mrs. Denis (John) Connor entertained members of the Tidewater Players' Club Friday evening at their home on Lower Road. Those present had to do with certain scenes in the coming production, Calendar Countdown, and although part of the evening was given over to rehearsal, much of it was spent in spontaneous singing and dancing. Ray Johnson and Bill Garrison were, as usual, equal to any demands made upon them and their guitars.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. H. Mylroie, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Blatchford, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Laird, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Garrison, Mr. and Mrs. Rod MacKenzie, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Johnson, Mrs. L. Farr, Mrs. M. W. MacKenzie, Mrs. J. T. Newman, Mrs. B Campbell, Mrs D. Schoenewolf and Mr. Rex Davis.

What's your stand on registering life insurance policies to claim certain income tax deductions?

Mr. Campbell
If it's possible, I'm all for it!

Interviewer
You'll be pleased to know you may register any Mutual Life policy, except Term, under the Income Tax Act. Subject to certain limitations, the savings portion of your premium can then be deducted from your taxable income each year.

Mr. Campbell
It seems to me that everybody should know about this!

Interviewer
You're right! Particularly people who are building a pension for themselves. Even people now contributing to a company pension plan may qualify for further tax relief. ML65-1C

Christmas concert

Tentative plans for the school children's Christmas closing were made at the Parents' Auxiliary meeting at Roberts Creek School Monday night. It was decided to depart from the Christmas concert custom and have instead something less exhausting to teachers and parents.

Mr. A. Merling, the principal, announced that the children had collected in excess of the required amount for their little Korean adoptee on their Hallowe'en rounds.

Christmas Seals available

The Christmas Seal campaign which opens Nov. 9 in British Columbia will try to raise $325,000 this year.

Highlights of the Society's 1964 activities included the completion of the Vancouver Operation Doorstep community TB skin test and chest X-ray survey program. This program, the largest of its type ever attempted in North America has been declared an outstanding success. Over 220,000 Vancouver residents were tested in a 12 week period, with over 125 new cases of tuberculosis, 25 cases of lung cancer, 90 heart conditions and a long list of other chest conditions being discovered.

The Operation Doorstep program, which is considered a model in North America and has been copied by the States of Wisconsin, Washington, Ohio and others, was recently accorded an unprecedented five page review in the United States Tuberculosis Association Bulletin.

As in past years the Christmas Seal campaign will be conducted exclusively by mail. The campaign which opens on Nov. 9 will be completed by Christmas.

Financial statement sought

The public school meeting at the Halfmoon Bay school on Nov. 4 was a lively affair with an unusually good attendance of parents. Mrs. Peggy Volen, school trustee, was kept busy answering questions.

The question was again raised of extending the school bus run as far as Cooper's store during the winter months. This same question had been brought to the attention of the board the previous year but no action had been taken.

The School Board was asked to include a financial statement in the annual report and it was also considered desirable that a copy of the annual report be posted in the post office where it could be seen by everyone interested before the date of the annual meeting.

Questions were asked about the policy of giving school children periodic medical check - ups. Strong criticism was expressed of the access to the school by way of a stretch of busy logging road and through a too narrow gate. The meeting felt strongly that the gate should be widened and that the alternative road on the south side of the school should be repaired and made usable. Mrs. Queenie Burrows was re-elected as school representative.

World-wide Bible campaign

The Canadian Bible society is seeking a special $200,000 fund this Fall as the second phase of Canada's contribution towards a world-wide drive to triple availability of Bibles, Testaments and Bible portions to the growing millions of literates around the world. B.C.s part this Fall is an extra $20,000 added to the anticipated $110,000 1964 budget.

The God's Word for a New Age program was inaugurated in the summer of 1963 all over the world. Canada's goal of an extra $60,000 was over-subscribed. As a result of Canada's gift along with those from other countries, the society was able to increase scripture distribution, along with the other Bible societies, 29% in the first quarter of 1964.

In a July report by the British and Foreign Bible society, demand in languages alone, for translation and for printing, was being held up because the Society lacked the $344,000 needed to pay the costs. The present campaign is destined to help relieve that situation and others.

Stones used to beat other stones into shape are assumed to have been the first tools used by primitive man.

"Now I have to step on the scales to reach it!"

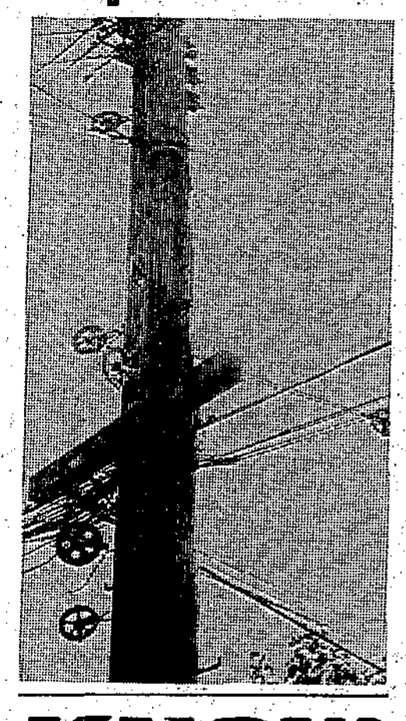
A poleman's nightmare



Step over number one.

Bend under number two.

Twist between numbers three and four. The count could extend up to eight — not as part of a daily exercise or a dance step but as part of a lineman's manipulations in dodging clotheslines and pulleys as he works on telephone poles.

A campaign is underway within the B.C. Telephone Company to improve safety conditions on poles.

"Hazards such as clotheslines and pulleys have caused some accidents among our men, although none has been serious yet," an official said.

He noted that every time a lineman climbs among pulleys, he has to unfasten his safety belt to change position. The official said that up to eight clotheslines were counted on a pole in a Vancouver (Point Grey) lane, although other areas produce equal hazards.

"When we learn that a particular pole is hazardous to climb because of obstructions, a supervisor will contact the householder concerned and request removal of the hazard," the official said.

The Workmen's Compensation Board is in accord and has regulations requiring removal of hazards within a two-week period.

Smiling and vivacious Peggy Neville is featured guest singer each Wednesday night on Red River Jamboree. Host Stu Phillips, the Altones and other members of the cast start their fifth season of lively country music and dance on the CBC television network.

Loggers to hear CFP man

The forest industry of British Columbia will be in the spotlight when the 55th Pacific Logging Congress convenes at the Vancouver Hotel, Vancouver, Nov. 18, 19 and 20, according to President Don McColl, director and timber manager of the Tahsis Company, Limited, Vancouver. The Congress, oldest and largest organization of its kind, meets in B.C. about every fourth year. Its members come from the twelve western states, Alaska and B.C.

The Congress theme will be Perpetuating Our Timber Heritage, and the program will be broken down into three basic topics — Protection, Management and Utilization, and Reforestation.

On the afternoon of Nov. 18, John Liersch, Canadian Forest Products Ltd., Vancouver, will present a paper on Forest Management and Harvesting.

Officers of the Congress are: President, Don McColl, Tahsis Company, Ltd., Vancouver; vice-president, R. B. Kennedy, Bly Logging Co., Klamath Falls, Oregon; treasurer, R. F. Dwyer, Clackamas Logging Co., Estacada, Oregon and executive vice-president, Carwin A. Woolley, Portland, Oregon.

KNOW YOUR Canada

Prepared by the Research Staff of ENCYCLOPEDIA CANADIANA

What was described as Canada's chief town?

In 1608 a pamphlet was published in Lyons, France, describing Brest, a Labrador harbor, as the principal town of Canada "peopled by about 50,000 men." Despite the fact that there was probably never anything more on the site than a blockhouse and some huts, this story of the former greatness of Brest persisted in one form or another for nearly 300 years. The harbor is on the Labrador coast, about 30 miles southwest of the southern end of the Strait of Belle Isle. It had already been frequented by Breton fishermen when Cartier visited it in 1534.

How did Franklin help Arctic exploration?

In addition to the great series of explorations he carried out himself, Sir John Franklin in death was the cause of great advances in knowledge concerning the Arctic. In 1847 Franklin and all his men lost their lives when hemmed in by the ice near King William Island, although their fate was not known for a number of years.

In 1848 and subsequent years numerous expeditions were sent out to search for Franklin and his men and, in the course of this grim search, the whole of the Arctic coast of Canada was charted. Ships sailing west from the Atlantic met ships sailing east from the Pacific, and thus the existence of a Northwest Passage was at last demonstrated. The actual navigation of the Northwest Passage from the Atlantic to the Pacific was first achieved by the Norwegian explorer Roald Amundsen in 1906.

Who baptized more than 10,000 Indians?

Claude Jean Allouez, Jesuit missionary of the 17th century, is said to have baptized more than 10,000 Indians during his years in the West. Born in France in 1622, he took his vows as a Jesuit in 1657 and came to Canada the following year. For seven years he worked at Trois Rivieres and other settlements on the St. Lawrence.

Then in August 1665 he set out from Quebec for the missions in the West and spent the rest of his life there, except for the occasional visit to Quebec. He worked first among the Ottawa of Lake Superior and in 1668 founded the St. Francis Xavier Mission near Green Bay, at what is now De Pere, in Wisconsin. In 1676 he was appointed to the Illinois missions and there he remained until his death in 1689.

Big order of powerful trucks

What is believed to be the largest single order ever placed in this area for logging trucks has been awarded by MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Limited to two Vancouver manufacturing firms.

The order for 23 powerful 18 wheel, 29 ton trucks — each capable of carrying almost as much timber in a single load as is contained in two average-size Canadian homes will cost $1,400,000.

The order, placed with Hayes Manufacturing Co. Ltd. and Canadian Kenworth Ltd., both of Vancouver, was announced by H. R. Chisholm, general manager of MB & PR's logging group.
