Happy New Year!

First twins born at St. Mary's

Bruce Charles and Ryan Karl Hogan, sons of Mr. Mike and Mrs. Pat Hogan are the first twin babies born in St. Mary's Hospital at Sechelt. Ryan Karl tipped the scales at 8 lbs. 10 ounces, and Bruce Charles at 6 lbs., 12 ounces. They will be brothers for Laura and Heather, Laura being the eldest at four years old and Heather one year younger at three. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson. Mr. Wilson is the Bobby Wilson of the fire department and Mrs. Wilson is known for her work behind the Co-op store meat counter. Dr. Walter Burtnick attended Mrs. Hogan.

Report on equipment

The report by Sechelt councillors on the condition of the park building and its contents revealed that the building was in good condition but that some of the equipment was not in the building.

This report was made by Councillors Ben Lang and Louis Hansen at the request of Chairman Mrs. Chris Johnston who retires as chairman on Dec. 31. Councillor Benner, recreation committee chairman who has had considerable to do with the building stated that the missing equipment was in storage and that he had at previous meetings said that he would store the stuff until it was needed. He added that now that he was out of council (not being re-elected) he would turn the missing equipment over to the building.

It was recommended by council that the sealcoating of woodwork and outside painting be left to the discretion of the incoming council.

After adjournment, Councillor Hansen commenting on retirement of the chairman, said, "She has done more for the village than anyone else would have done."

Councillor Ben Lang: "We have had lots of bellyaching but we always came through."

Chairman Mrs. Johnston: "The people haven't given me too many problems and they have been very good to work with. The people of the village are good people and over the years I have found they are not complainers."

Watchnight service

Bethel Baptist, Sechelt and Calvary Baptist, Gibsons, will combine for a Watchnight service at 11:30 p.m. New Year's Eve.

In view of the special significance to Canadians of 1967 an open invitation is extended to everyone to greet the New Year by seeking God's blessing.

The service will be held in Gibsons Baptist Church on Park Road opposite Brothers Memorial Park.

Milk fund up

The Cup of Milk Fund coffee party over Christmas this year practically tripled its contributions received when compared with last year. Some contributions still have to be turned in but collection cans and the coffee party plus $15 from St. Aidan's Sunday school really put the event over the top this year.

The coffee party was held at the home of Mrs. Robert Bennie, Point Rd., Hopkins Landing

Ring stolen

RCMP are searching for the culprit who broke into the home of Daniel Dick, Chaster and Gower Point road area on Dec. 26 and after creating damage inside the house made off with a diamond ring.

Pennies taken from a Cup of Milk Fund box and some minor damage to some of the contents in Gibsons Elementary School is reported by the RCMP. The damage was not regarded as serious. Who made the break-in is not known but it took considerable force to batter in a door to gain entry.

Power off

A Tuesday morning power out age in the area lasted longer than anticipated. A transformer in Langdale area burned out after a switchover had been made according to plan.

The switchover started in the Cheekye section and covered all the way to Powell River. Both pulp mills, Port Mellon and Powell River were involved in the switchover, rearranging distribution of power in the area due to the setting up of another power line. Changeover time was expected to be brief but the outage lasted about 90 minutes.

CHIMNEY FIRE

A chimney fire Tuesday evening brought quick response from Gibsons firemen. The fire occurred at the home of W. H. Kent, 1223 Headlands Road.

BOY SCOUT RAFFLE

Winners of the Boy Scout raffle are Quilty, ticket 1625 for the upholstered rocking chair and Kirsti Wiren, Ticket 1563 for the transistor radio.

Planners report

Gibsons municipal council at its meeting last week received printed copies of the planning study prepared by town planers Robert Williams and Associates, of Vancouver.

This 32-page study was accompanied by a letter which stated that recommendations made in the report, aside from zoning proposals, are necessarily general. There were several points which should be given further study. Most important of these are the questions of harbor improvements and waterfront development.

When new water mains are laid along Sechelt Highway, Pratt Road and in time, Shaw Road, it is expected that Gibsons council will use six inch piping. This was brought out at last week's council meeting when Martin Dayton, engineer for Gibsons water problems outlined by letter that it would cost about $42,000 to supply a system for those roads.

Not having that amount of cash in sight council settled on the possibility of tackling, when possible, an $11,000 expenditure covering Sechelt Highway and North Rd.

Councillor Fred Feeney explained that a six inch water main on a water system in effect helps cut insurance rates when compared with a four inch pipe. After further general discussion the Dayton letter was filed for further reference.

Earlier council decided the low tender of Murphy Wakefield, Vancouver, of $2,857 plus 5% sales tax be accepted to cover costs for the pump at the new well. High tender was $3,290.

Mail on heavy side

Jim Marshall, Gibsons postmaster reports a record high in receiving and delivering all classes of mail, not only at the local post office, but also the 11 offices in the area from Port Mellon to Egmont. This seasonal deluge of mail also included Keats and Gambier Islands, both of which come under the jurisdiction of the local post office.

To handle the estimated 5% increase, extra help worked at top speed along with the regular staff for the past three weeks and succeeded in maintaining a day by day clearance, remaining right on top of the incoming and outgoing spate of letters, cards, parcels, papers and periodicals. The last big push was pretty well completed with Saturday's mail deliveries.

Rain record

December rainfall has broken the record and is close to 13 inches of rain for the month, according to Dick Kennett, weather recorder. The last mark for December rainfall which was record-breaking was December, 1962 when 12.50 inches fell. At 8 p.m. Wednesday night the figure was 12.51 and raining heavily.

Christmas day temperature was a high of 42 and a low of 30. The warmest recent Christmas day occurred in 1963 when the high was 58 and the low 50.

Prizes for 1st baby

There's nothing so important or looked-forward-to with greater anticipation than the arrival of a young one in the home. The advent of the first baby in this area will be heralded with particular interest as Sunshine Coast Kiwanians, together with the Coast News, local merchant and private individuals will join in welcoming the First Baby born closest to midnight, January 1, with donations and gifts to the little one and its parents.

For further information on the First Baby contest, turn to page eight.

Jangled Jingles

As jingling bells ring in the year
We drop the fears that plague this earth.
and banish trouble, woe and care,
And strive to add a little mirth.

To help our jaded souls give out,
Verse and rhyme is what some seek.
Others over-ease the drouth,
But dry is our poetic streak.

A New Year for some to relish,
Is council's Hodgson like a Moses
Strike a rock and water floweth
So Bill Scott's men can man their hoses.

While valiant workers' accents clear
Depict a watery jewel
School trustees will undoubtedly cheer
When water fills THE POOL.

Comes Sechelt village's cold, gray dawn
Of Centennial New Year's Day
A tired chairman from council withdrawn
Sits sipping her cafe au lait.

Regions wide a Watson theme
As Norman scans his maps.
Victoria's Campbell backs the scheme
While Hodgson argues — perhaps!

A first must come for everything
Which hospitals rarely ignore,
So twins arrive and thusly bring
The Hogan tribe to four.

Socred, C of C and Legion's Haig
With Hon. I. Dawson in mind
Hope for a bridge — not too vague,
And hope it'll be the right kind.

To those with visitations
Leaving odors unmistakable
We expect that their quotations
Will always be unprintable.

This is enough, we think.
Here's hoping your New Year
Will never reach the brink
Of making you a sonneteer.

The lights of Gibsons

Like a myriad of sparkling gems on mounds of dark and sombre velvet; these are the Christmas lights of Gibsons — shining out through the night, reflected across the harbor from the quiet town, like the flaring Northern Lights on a still, frosty prairie Christmas Eve. These too, are the Yuletide lights of Christmas.

With so many gaily decorated homes, more than ever this year, and the lighted holly tree in the village square, the beckoning lights of the stores along the main street and up on Sunnycrest Plaza, all in all, it would be hard to single out any particular place for honors. However one has to pause for a longer moment of sheer delight before the home of Charlie Robinson, halfway up the big hill, close to the RCMP station.

Here indeed, is a Christmas fairyland of light and color, of festooned trees and Santa's little people, playing hide and seek in the lovely grove before the house, which is also picked out in gaily colored lights.

Charles Robinson, one of the five sons, explained how this fairyland came about — and how long it took to bring it to such a delightful state of perfection. Charles gave full credit to his brother Carman now living in Vancouver, who 10 or 15 years ago, with his father's blessing and working with his brothers, Charles, Winston John and Godfrey hit upon the idea of sort of lighting things up around the old place for the holidays.

As the years went by, more and more lights came on at the Robinson place over the festive season. And so, every year at this time, the cheery lights beckon homeward the five brothers and their families and with grand-daughter Debbie, daughter of John and Arlene, to add the brightness of childhood to the scene.

Again, this year, a happy family reunion will be held at Charlie Robinson's.

The Christmas lights of Gibsons shine bravely forth once more to proclaim again, Peace on Earth and Goodwill Toward Men.

Touch hands

A Thought for the New Year by John Norton

Ah, friends, dear friends, as years go on and heads get gray, how fast the guests do go!
Touch hands, Touch hands, with those that stay.
Strong hands to weak, old hands to young, around the New Year's board, touch hands.
The false forget, the foe forgive, for every guest will go and every fire burn low and cabin empty stand.
Forget, forgive, for who may say that New Year's day may ever come to host or guest again.
Touch hands!

New problems ahead

One hundred years ago 1867 came in with far less noise than will 1967. In that year in the British Parliament an act was passed late in March, for the union of the provinces of Canada, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick under the name of Canada. Later in the year the new Canadian parliament was opened in Ottawa, the capital of Confederation by Governor-General Lord Monck. There were many other events in that year but what concerns us today is the fact Canada became a Confederation.

One can wonder what will be thoughts of the populace generally when the 100th birthday of Canada becomes a reality. As a nation we have reached a population of 20 millions of people and along with that growth an accompanying measure of problems and not all of them simple ones. The major problem, overshadowing all others is that of Quebec and the path it is travelling.

Today some 27 percent of the entire Canadian population is of neither British of French origin. Some 60-odd ethnic groups are represented among our people. This is evident in the fact that over 180 foreign language publications are produced in Canada in 27 languages.

Eighty percent of the population speak English and slightly over 30 percent French. This leaves a 10 percent leeway who speak both languages. One can only wonder what would happen if the 80 percent were as insistent about some of our national affairs as is the French-Canadian percentage. What would the minority do?

However, on the threshold of a New Year we must look forward to a society that is creating new problems while the authorities are striving to keep the affairs of the nation under control.

The coming year for the Sunshine Coast will not bring much in the line of general change. Both municipal councils and the school board are subject to the control created by tight money and will have to trim their sails accordingly.

The public will not be looking for heavy expenditures. Gibsons is committed to an improvement in its water system. That will be about enough for it to handle in 1967. Its mill rate may remain static. Sechelt, minus heavy expenditure, will manage on its present income and some effort might be made to increase the mill rate but it is expected council will do its best to maintain the status quo. The school board has its problems and will have some adept stepping to do during the year just to keep up with things — what with building restrictions, budget trimming and a growing school population.

However in spite of prognostications that might arise sounding a doomsday call for all on the Sunshine Coast and the rest of the world we shall more than likely conclude the year with wishing all a Happy New Year for 1968.

Minute message

There remaineth therefore a rest to the people of God. Heb. 4:9.

During Paul the Apostle's voyage to Rome, as recorded in Acts 27:28-29, the ship was driven up and down by the fierce winds and waves, until they had lost their true sense of position.

Finally, they made a wise decision, they took a fathom check to find whether they were heading for rocks of destruction or a haven of rest. Their wise decision avoided the disaster of losing many souls.

The storms of trials and temptations in this life, drive us fiercely up and down in life's journey. Therefore we too, before it is too late, should take a fathom check of our spiritual position, to determine whether we are heading for the rocks of eternal destruction or the haven of rest in Jesus Christ.

Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God. John 3:3.—Rev. Walter S. Ackroyd, Pender Harbor Tabernacle.

Independence for Le Grand Charles

(By JACK DAVIS Coast-Capilano M.P.)

As a delegate to the recent conference of M.P.'s and Congressmen in Paris I got a glimpse of the problems confronting NATO (the North Atlantic Treaty Organization).

And they are legion. Heading the list is the attitude taken to NATO by General Charles de Gaulle. Le Grand Charles has, in effect, decided to lead France out of NATO. Militarily speaking, France will now go it alone. But there is more to it than that. Canadian, American and British forces are having to leave French soil. Even the use of French air space is in the balance.

Think what that means! It means that the NATO alliance, geographically speaking, could be cut in half. It means that military aircraft taking off from Holland or West Germany will have to fly out over the Atlantic and into the Mediterranean via Gibraltar if they are to reach allied territory in Italy, Greece or Turkey.

General de Gaulle, in other words, is on the verge of chopping NATO's European operations in two. Only if he winks at the problem of pipelines and over-flights, can the NATO alliance continue to function in a reasonably efficient manner.

There are other difficulties of course. The Supreme Allied Command headquarters are being moved from Versailles to Belgium. NATO's own new muli-million dollar head office is also being abandoned. Next year's meeting of the M.P.'s and Congressmen from the 14 NATO countries will be in Brussels instead.

What does this French defection really mean? Where are we headed? It means, I think that Western Europe is really beginning to assert itself. It means, also, that de Gaulle, if he has his way will make Western Europe independent of America in economic as well as military affairs.

There are those like the West Germans who feel that the Western European countries, collectively, are not yet strong enough to form a second pillar to the North Atlantic Alliance. But the desire of Europeans to be more influential in world affairs is undoubtedly there.

France's move has its implications for trade as well. Eventually the U.K. will be permitted to join the European Economic Community (or Common Market). This it will do along with the Scandanavian countries Ireland and Portugal. When this happens, and Europe becomes one nation from a trading point of view, the idea of an even broader Atlantic community may tend to be undermined.

Continentalism, in Western Europe and America, will assert itself to an even broader extent and only if many of the internal economic differences of the new and expanding European union have been resolved, will it be possible for us to get on with the establishment of free trade on a trans-Atlantic basis as well.

COPYRIGHT APPLIED FOR

We welcome written questions on legal points from readers. If possible they will be answered in this column. Letters must be brief, signed and your address shown. Send to "Point of Law," c/o this newspaper.

Q. I received a speeding ticket and decided to pay the fine. I attended at the cashier at traffic court and he asked me if I was pleading guilty. I told him I wasn't guilty but was paying to avoid the time and trouble of a trial. He refused to take my money. Do I have to go through with a trial — Why can't I just pay the fine and get it over with?

A. Unless you are pleading guilty, you must be tried and found guilty before you can be fined. Our law will not allow a person to be punished for a crime unless it is clear that he is guilty. The fact that the accused wants to be punished, for the sake of convenience, or some other reason of his own, is immaterial. If, at your trial, you plead guilty and explain your motive to the magistrate, he will not accept the guilty plea but will order a plea of not guilty to be entered and the matter to be tried later. Moreover, if at the trial of a person accused of a criminal offence — after a guilty plea — it appears, in the course of the proceedings, from anything said by the prosecutor, the accused, or any witness, that would indicate that there is some doubt about the accused's guilt the presiding magistrate will order the guilty plea struck out and a plea of not guilty entered, and the accused must then be tried in the ordinary way.

False confessions and wrong guilty pleas are very common. Sometimes a person is paid to confess to another's crime. Some people from a perverted sense of loyalty, attempt to "take the rap" for another. Others, like yourself, understandably want to save time and trouble. Whatever the motive, our law will not permit a person to be punished until he has been found guilty.

OAK BAY LEADER

The school district 61 money by-law predicted here for 1967 is just about ready. Indications are that it will be put to the ratepayers in the spring.

According to present statutory requirement the board is limited still to the three-year program which has proved so inadequate in the past.

Isn't it time B.C. did away with school money by-laws altogether?

B.C. shares with Manitoba the dubious distinction of being one of two provinces in Canada which still requires ratepayers to approve such money by-laws. The other provinces have long since decided to build schools according to a plan which meets the need, not for just three years, but as far ahead as is practical.

The fiasco of the last money by-law put by the school district should be fresh in the minds of all of us. Practically every project increased substantially in cost over the period the by-law covered, requiring almost endless re-planning by the board's staff, and in some cases, dictating the actual amputation of some needed facility in order to meet the budget.

In the meantime construction costs have continued to climb. The additions which were not made last year must be made next year, at a staggering increase over the original estimate.

A minor example of what is taking place (which is far from minor to parents concerned), is the nonsensical on-again-off-again status of the Monterey kindergarten.

The original promise of a kindergarten was rescinded when the available money was too little to do the required job. Pressure from parents had the kindergarten reinstated last year, only to see it disappear again this year.

Example of the faulty planning under the present system is the need to improve toilet facilities at Monterey which were scheduled under the original building program but which were deleted from the plan by a money shortage.

The facilities are still required and must be built, but at a cost far in excess of the original. Meantime parents of kindergarten pupils are faced with organizing the same kind of pressure tactics which proved effective last year.

Isn't it time the school board's hands were untied so that they can get on with the job, subject only to the over-riding authority of the provincial government (which, incidentally, doesn't ask our permission to spend money on every new road).

William Balfour Davidson

William Balfour Davidson of Roberts Creek, who died Dec. 9, was born in Lancashire, England in 1887, while his parents were in temporary residence there. The family returned to Gatehouse-of-Fleet in the Galloway district Scotland, where he grew up. At the age of 16 he went to Glasgow and worked on the Caledonian Railway. In 1910 he came to Vancouver, from which a few years later, he enlisted and served overseas with the 16th Canadian Scottish. Soon after his return, he became a letter carrier, and remained with the postal service until his retirement in 1946 when he moved to a house on the beach at Roberts Creek.

A member of the United Church, he served first on the board of the Community Church of Dunbar Heights, and during his retirement served as an elder, and as a member of the committee of stewards and board of trustees of the Roberts Creek United Church.

He was a member of the Vancouver Athletic Club, and took an active interest in sports, playing football and badminton with exceptional skill. He also did a considerable amount of volunteer coaching of young people in sports. In latter years he was often out in his boat fishing for salmon.

As a young man he became a member of the Glasgow Masonic Lodge, and when he moved to Vancouver in 1910 he became affiliated with the Acacia Lodge No. 22, A.F. & A.M., of which he was a member for over 50 years. His lodge officers and fellow members attended the funeral service. Mr. Davidson leaves his wife, Mary.
funeral service at which Rev. W. M. Cameron of Gibsons United Church officiated in the Nunn and Thompson Chapel, Vancouver. Cremation followed. He leaves his wife, Mary.

Hector McDonald

Hector McDonald who died Dec. 16 was born on July 12, 1882, in Dresden, Ont., where he received his formal education. As a young man he went to California, and logged at Monticena and at Gray's Harbor.

He was in California at the time of the San Francisco earthquake. Coming in a windjammer to Vancouver, B.C., he worked there for a while, logging in the area now known as Shaughnessy Heights, and hauling coal, sand and gravel.

In 1906 he came to Gibsons, and logged near Cassidy's Landing. Owning property at the end of Mason Road in West Sechelt, he built a log house there, walking to and from Cassidy's Landing every week-end. Later he dismantled this log house and built another on the same property.

He constructed the Wakefield Inn, and on property of the late Mrs. Edith Clegg built several log cabins, including one for himself in which he lived for 17 years. He then went back to his house on Mason Rd., where he was residing at the time of his recent illness.

Mr. McDonald had a great love for and understanding of horses, and was happiest when working with his horses, especially in the logging industry.

The funeral service was held at Gibsons United Church, Rev. W. M. Cameron officiating. Burial was made in Seaview Cemetery.

ANGLICAN FUND

Contributions to the Anglican Church of Canada's World Mission Fund, established nearly three years ago, have reached a total of $1,828,282. Church officials expect the $2,000,000 mark will be exceeded by the end of the year. The special fund was started in 1964 to assist churches of the Anglican Communion in the world's developing nations.

B.C. book best seller

The province's official Centennial book, "British Columbia: Challenge in Abundance," has been an instant best-seller.

All copies of the first printing of 50,000 volumes have now been sent direct to subscribers and retail outlets.

Only 1,500 copies of a specially bound deluxe edition, which are being delivered by the printers this week, are now available.

L. J. Wallace, chairman of the provincial Centennial Committee which published the book as a Centennial project, announced that a second printing of the regular edition has been ordered. Copies are expected to be available soon after the middle of January.

The deluxe edition, which retails for $10 plus tax, may be obtained only by ordering direct from the Provincial Centennial Committee, Parliament Buildings, Victoria. It is bound in a two-tone buckram cover in rich brown and beige with the title stamped on in gold foil.

This special edition is limited to 1500 numbered copies and bears the signature imprints of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor G. P. Pearkes, Premier W. A. C. Bennett and Mr. Wallace.

Challenge in Abundance is a 160 page book containing 186 color and black and white photographs and 25,000 words of text In words and pictures it tells the story of contemporary British Columbia, its people and its affairs as they exist after 100 years of development.

Since the book was launched on November 17 at a luncheon attended by the Lieutenant-Governor, demand for the book has exceeded the supply coming off the presses. Sale of 50,000 copies within a period of five weeks is thought to be near a Canadian record. Normally in the Canadian book trade a book which sells between 5,000 and 10,000 copies is considered a best seller.

BY NANCY GAYLORD
FASHION CONSULTANT TO THE 160 SINGER CENTERS IN CANADA.

Pitch a tent in chiffon, crepe or drapery wool. NOT for camping but for dancing. Freely swinging from the shoulders with not a hint of body shaping, then dropping to a rippling bias hem. Anyone can wear it, no matter what shape you're "really" in. Truly a "Quickie" to sew, and as a bonus there are no fitting problems here. Sew brilliant in jade chiffon or dainty in pale apple crepe. Touch a little glitter to throat or hemline.

Sewing chiffon need not be difficult. Cut out on a flat, non-shiny surface with very sharp shears. Make narrow French seams and bias bindings instead of facings. Omit interfacing. To avoid puckering, stitch over tissue paper, which can be ripped away afterward. Tie thread ends instead of backstitching.

Where there's a shirt, there's a tie . . . long and skinny, fat and dotted, flowered or paisleyed. Wear with shirts sporting long pointed button-down collars and wide- wide cuffs, in spring prints or luminous neon stripes, in voiles and hopsack, silks and perma-press blends.

THE RULE OF THREE. Fabric costs $10? Then with careful style choice and good dressmaking, you can create a dress worth $30. One-third of a garment's value lies in the fabric; one-third in the style and fashion-rightness for you; one third in the workmanship. Sewing makes dollars and sense!

Zippers zoom in 'fly-front' style on pants, slashing diagonally across ski-jackets and boldly bared on raincoats. Zippers are a status symbol in Paris where really good skirts have two short zippers instead of the usual long one. Paris puts zippers in unusual places; off centre if there are no centre seams. Always, always, they are stitched in by hand with tiny picking stitches.

Etiquette

By IOBERTA LEE

Q. What have you to say about letters of condolence?

A. All too often this is a letter that is put off and finally never written at all, simply because you can' think of what to say. It is extremely thoughtless to let this happen, for in time of great sorrow the fact that one's friends are standing by can mean so very much. It isn't WHAT you say that's so important — it's the fact that you SAID it.

Q. Are silver crumb scrapers still in good use at the dinner table?

A. Yes, and very practical if the tablecloth is of plain damask. If, however, the tablecloth is of lace or embroidery, a folded napkin does a much easier and more efficient job of brushing off the crumbs.

Q. Would it be proper for an elopement or "runaway" marriage to be announced later by means of the customary engraved cards?

A. Quite proper.

Q. Is it all right to use informals in giving thanks for wedding gifts received?

A. Yes, so long as there is no greeting that substitutes for the written words of thanks and if the informal is conservative and of good quality paper. It should be sent, of course, first-class mail, sealed.

Q. Is it considered proper or in good taste to send a male patient in a hospital a bouquet of cut flowers?

A. Although not exactly "improper," cut flowers are usually sent only to women. A growing plant is the customary gift to a male patient.

Q. How does one properly eat a hard-boiled egg at the table — an egg that has been served in its shell?

A. Tap it gently with the blade of your knife, strip off the shell, then eat the egg with your fingers.

Q. Is it proper, when setting the dinner table, to put the butter on one plate and pass this around to your guests, or to put it on individual bread-and-butter plates?

A. This is more a matter of convenience than propriety. Usually it is more convenient to serve the butter on individual plates than to have your guests pass it around.

Q. How long properly does a young woman wear mourning for her father or mother?

A. Propriety no longer has anything to do with this, as it did in yesteryear. Now it is entirely a matter of a woman's feelings and choice. Most people today do not consider it necessary at all.

Q. Should candy be served to guests in its box, or in a special dish?

A. It's all right to offer candy in a box to guests in the living room — but at the dinner table it should be served in a dish.

Q. What do you think increases one's popularity as a conversationalist?

A. The ability to be a good listener. It takes perseverance to learn how, especially if you want to express your own view. Don't fidget, sneak glimpses at your watch, or stare into space, even if you're bored. Look the speaker in the face and give him your undivided attention. It's a nice feeling when someone else does the same for you, isn't it?

WHETHER THE SONGS are sad or bouncy, charming Pat Hervey gives them her personal touch on The Tommy Hunter Show, in color this fall on CBC television.

DEAR DORIS
advice from Doris Clark

Too young for horses

DEAR DORIS — I am 19 and wish to buy a horse. As I am working and earning my own living I can meet the financial responsibilities. I have $500 saved with which to buy it and all necessary equipment.

The problem is this: Do I need my parents' permission to buy a horse? They do not want me to.

Lover Of Horses

DEAR LOVER — At 19 you are still an infant in the eyes of the law; so you cannot contract to buy anything not considered a "Necessary." It would take a wild stretch of the imagination to thus classify a horse.

This is why a car salesman always insists that a parent join in the purchase agreement of a minor. If your horse dealer sells to you without this, he runs a risk, since he could not sue in the case of your failing to pay.

Then again, your parents must not allow you to acquire any "dangerous thing." Unless you are a past master at horse handling, it could be a plenty dangerous thing for you.

Better wait until you are 21.

DEAR DORIS — You might laugh at my problem but it sure isn't a laughing matter with me. I nursed both of my babies and after I quit I lost my figure completely.

I might be able to get used to it if it wasn't for my husband who keeps teasing me about it and giving out insults. If he sees another girl with a good figure he rants and raves and carries on.

When I tried talking to him about it he told me I shouldn't be so touchy.

No Figure

DEAR NO — What gives Faultless Freddie carte blanche to pull somebody else apart and then call her touchy?

It's a perverted sense of humor which works at deflating the other fellow. Your so-called loving husband needs to open up his narrow world and start thinking along more interesting lines — and I don't mean curves!

There are padded bras, which are fashions which help the figure. If you are underweight you can build up your diet. But most of all, the man who is supposed to care about you needs to improve his conversation.

DEAR DORIS — About borrowed books which are not returned, I have a suggestion. I keep a list of books loaned, time, name and address of borrower. And, on the first page of each book I place the following:

This book I lend with pleasure,
Pray read it at your leisure!
I only ask, my trusted friend,
That you'll return it at the end,
For ALL my books I treasure!

This works very well indeed.

Bookish

DEAR BOOKISH — Good for you. I'm glad to hear it works. It does seem a pity not to share a favorite book, but one hesitates when there is high likelihood of its never returning.

DEAR DORIS — Please help me, a mother of a teen-age boy who received his grade 13, and has a good job but boards at home. What amount of money should I expect from him?

He has all the privileges of our humble home and I wash and iron for him. We are farmers who are not financially well off. Kindly answer this so that both my son and I will be better aware what is done in other homes.

A mother who wants to play fair

DEAR MOTHER — We cannot set down an arbitrary amount. What he pays depends on (1) what he earns; (2) what he needs, including what entertaining he does; and (3) what it costs you to maintain your home and table.

The cost of living differs depending on whether you live in town or country, in the western or eastern or northern part of Canada. I suggest you find out what you are paying for everything (not omitting rent or taxes), then divide this by number in family; figure out his share and add an amount to cover, realistically, the appreciable service given in washing and ironing and cleaning for him.

You won't be unfair. Arrive at your final board amount in consultation with your son and his father.

Beauty hints

By LYNN CARTER

Q. Will you please suggest some home treatment that will aid in subduing or whitening little scars left on my face by acne or pimples?

A. Best is a consultation with a dermatologist. But if you wish, you can try this: Mix one ounce each of alum and lemon juice with one pint of rose water, shake well, and apply regularly to the affected skin with absorbent cotton.

Q. What are some general suggestions regarding the use of lipstick?

A. Since lipstick is the brightest spot of color on your face choose it with care. Never try to alter the shape of your mouth too drastically with it. Use a lipstick brush for most artistic and becoming effects, and follow the natural outline of the lips. Apply lipstick, blot with tissues, then reapply for long-lasting results. Or, after the first application of lipstick, dust with a little face powder, then add more lipstick.

Q. How can I add more body to my mascara, without of courses causing it to bead?

A. Try moistening your mascara with eye lotion or skin freshener, instead of the usual plain water.

Q. How can I, after shampooing my hair, soften it and cut any soapy film?

A. With a vinegar rinse . . . about four tablespoons of vinegar to three glasses of water . . . then rinse this well out.

Q. What is a good exercise for development of bust, shoulders, and arms?

A. Standing erect, legs together, arms extended sideways at shoulder level, swing your arms across your body, right arm over left arm, back to original position, then swing them across the body again, this time with left arm over the right arm. Keep this up quickly and vigorously, and in good rhythm.

Q. What is a good formula for an oatmeal facial mask or pack?

A. Mix into a pasty consistency three ounces of oatmeal, the juice of a lemon, and some witch hazel. Apply to face and throat, leave on for about 30 minutes or longer, then rinse off.

Q. What is a corrective and soothing treatment for dry, cracked lips?

A. Apply a mixture of ½-ounce each of lanolin and either glycerin or honey.

Q. How can I remove egg stains from an unwashable dress?

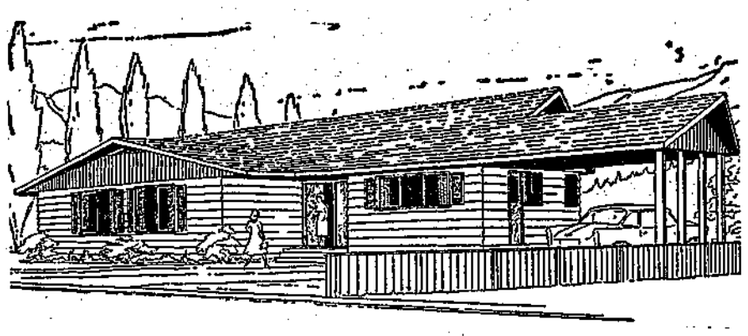
A. After the stain has dried, scrape off as much of the egg as you can with a dull knife, then work on the remains with some cleaning fluid.

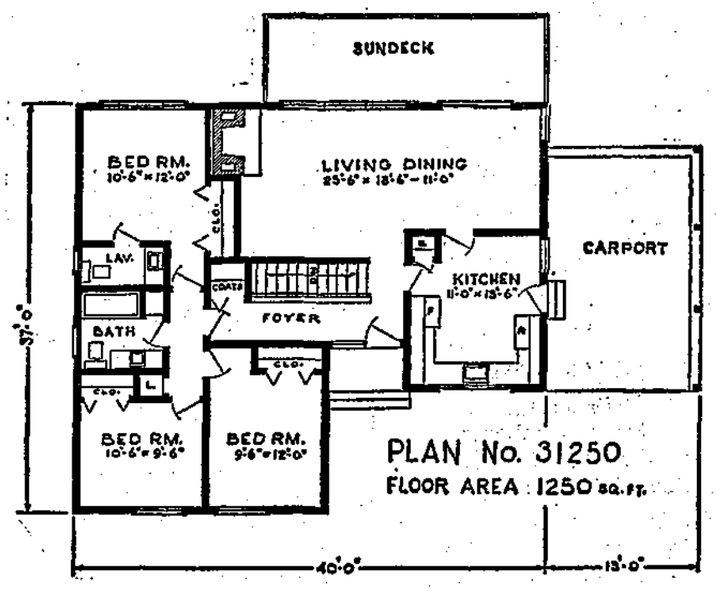
Q. How can I accentuate my eyebrows, which are practically invisible?

A. You might try using two eyebrow pencils, one brown and the other black. First, give your brows some short, soft strokes with the brown pencil, then follow with about a third as many strokes with the black. If this is performed carefully and deftly, you should emerge with a nice, natural-looking browline.

Q. My fingernails are very brittle, cracking and splitting much too much. What can I do about this?

A. This sort of trouble quite often is due to over-frequent applications of polish and polish remover. When the nails chip excessively, remove the polish, treat the nails with some petroleum jelly and hand lotion, refrain from the use of polish for several days, and then sit back and watch your nails recover.





A rear view home

Plan 31250 (copyright 117093)

Once again the problem of creating a rear view home with an attractive front appearance is overcome with droit touches by the designer.

This is an L shaped house, with the living/dining and one bedroom at the rear, kitchen and two bedrooms on the front.

To counteract the usual plainness found in such designs, the designers have used such adroit touches as vertical siding on the gable of the bedroom wing, contrasting with the horizontal siding on the rest of the house, shutters at the windows, and cedar shakes or shingles on the roof.

The floor arrangement of this house eliminates cross traffic through the rooms. The kitchen is efficiently planned with U shaped kitchen arrangement of cabinets, and is accessible from the carport.

An open wall is a feature of the basement stairs in the foyer while the bathroom features a large vanity and master bedroom has plumbing "en suite."

The living room is large, with an interesting fireplace located on the inside wall, leaving plenty of wall space for furniture arrangement.

A sundeck across the back of the house is accessible from the living room through sliding glass doors.

Built on a lot that slopes to the rear, the house is level with the street at the front, but with full depth at the back so that the recreation room under the living room can be open to a patio under the deck.

Warm contemporary styling makes this a plan that should appeal to home owners. It is designed to the standards of the National Building Code of Canada, for N.H.A. or conventional mortgaging, as desired. Blue prints may be obtained from the Building Centre (B.C.) Ltd., 96 Kingsway, Vancouver, B.C. Write for our plan book Select Home Designs enclosing 85c to cover cost of mailing and handling.

A daring young man who led the life of a saboteur

To almost everyone, New Year's has a particular meaning or a memory . . . of hope, expectation, regret or a deep sense of thankfulness.

It is in this last category that Sven Gisvold and his wife Betty find themselves. For it was in New Year's day, 1940, Sven, a Norwegian, patriot, soldier, underground saboteur and paratrooper was arrested in his home at Trondheim by the gestapo.

Even to this day the true story of Norway's gallant but hopeless resistance to the Nazi invaders, remains obscure. Little is known of the desperate struggle carried on by sturdy Norsemen like Sven, but it is to these men of the Viking breed, soldiers and civilians of Norway goes the credit for carrying on the fierce and unrelenting struggle against overwhelming odds and quisling betrayal.

Fighting every foot of the way from central Norway to Narvik in the north, first as soldiers and after the capitulation, following King Olaf's removal to England on a British destroyer, the real deadly business of warfare and continued harassment of the conquerors began.

MR. and MRS. SVEN GISVOLD

Sven, as leader of one of the many underground units, led his men and women too in dynamiting and setting fire to railway centres, bridges, army barracks, hydro, phone and radio installations, reporting enemy dispositions and assisting thousands of young Norwegians to escape to England and fight another day.

And so, on that New Year's day in 1940, Sven, betrayed by an old school friend, a German-born quisling was arrested and thrown into a narrow cell at the gestapo headquarters. His companion was a well known Norwegian actor, arrested for refusing to entertain the Germans. As there was only a single cot in the cell, the two whiled away the time playing chess, the winner was given the privilege of sleeping on the cot.

In spite of constant interrogation by the gestapo, Sven bided his time until the following May, then in company with several other fugitives, they broke out and headed for the west coast.

Arriving at the port of Aalisund, they discovered the presence of a flotilla of German U-boats in the harbor and a recently converted yacht, now a patrol boat just out of dry dock for its refitting.

The patrol boat was their objective. Scouting around the Grand Hotel where the German high command maintained headquarters, Sven with great unconcern, lifted the Admiral's hat and dress dirk off the hook outside the dining room and jamming on the headpiece at a rakish angle, headed for the harbor with his two companions close at his heels. They soon disposed of the guard, took command of the patrol boat and headed out into the murk of the North Sea with a German destroyer in close pursuit.

Fortunately the fog thickened and setting course for the Shetlands, succeeded in landing on one of the lesser islands. A British naval patrol took them in charge and so important was the information regarding the presence of a German flotilla in Aalisund, Sven was flown to London for interrogation. A commission in the Commandos followed, where he operated with the British and Scottish forces to the end of the war making many jumps into enemy held territory in France, Belgium and Holland, as well as his own country.

When an armistice was declared, Sven was actively engaged in purging the country of the invaders. The fact that he was hobbling around on crutches with two broken ankles sustained in a jump just prior to the cease fire, did not prevent him from becoming quartermaster general in charge of all food stuffs and supplies.

One of the highlights of this job was taking over and rationing the German high command's supplies of choice French wines and brandy, filched from the invaded countries and stored in vast underground cellars. Sven wouldn't comment on the many thousands of litres of German liquid loot he doled out to the liberating force, but he admitted there was enough to provide every soldier, sailor and airman in Norway with a generous supply of champagne, wines and brandy for the next several months!

Following the war, the family coal and fuel business wrecked beyond recovery by the Nazis, Sven hopefully set in to manufacture electric stoves but the shortage of materials and hampering government regulations, caused him and his wife Betty, a member of the British forces whom he had met in Scotland, to seek in 1953, a new life in Canada, first in New Westminster and then, in search of a more suitable climate, the Gisvolds came to Gibsons three years ago.

And so this New Year, Sven and Betty find they have much for which to be thankful — a place in which to live in peace after seeing most of the world. "We're lucky to be here in Gibsons — 1940 sure seems a long way off from 1967."

Hydro children have party

The Sechelt B.C. Hydro and Power Authority held their annual employee children's Christmas party on Saturday, Dec. 10 at the St. Hilda's Hall.

The party got off to a good start by having seven professional young entertainers from Vancouver perform for the group. They were under the direction and accompanied on the piano by Geneva Calangis, who is the sister of Helen Sinclair. The program, m.c.'d by Mr. F. H. Norminton, consisted of a variety of songs and dances performed by the three Webb Sisters, Pam and Kenny Burtnick, Dianne Szigety and Valerie Easton. The 45-minute program was thoroughly enjoyed.

Two comedy films were shown after the variety show, followed by little Johnny Branca who played a couple of Christmas tunes on his accordion. Carol singing was led by Eric Hensch who also sang Joy to the World as a solo.

The highlight of the afternoon for the children was the arrival of Santa Claus who presented them all with a gift, candy and oranges. Little Jimmie Smith won the huge Panda that was given as a draw prize and Dick Branca, Bill Billingsley and Tors Marsnas won the other three draw prizes. In attendance were 28 adults and 22 children. Refreshments were later served
