Sewer connection regulations ready

Gibsons Municipal council is about ready to announce its sewer connection requirements now that the sewer system has reached a point where house connections can be made.

First of all, septic tanks and rock pits must be emptied and back-filled with dirt to prevent possible cave-ins. Public health regulations require ten feet separation between the house water service and the house sewer service line.

Preparation of the trench for the sewer will be done by a contractor hired by the house holder. All phases of the construction will be supervised by an inspector.

All costs paid for by the householder will cover the area from the property line to the house connection.

The following type of pipe conforming to current ASTM specifications are acceptable for service connections:

(a) Cast iron-soil pipe CSA approved;

(b) Asbestos-cement building sewer pipe with O-ring joints;

(c) Vitrified clay - flex-lox joints, glazed, extra strength;

(d) Polyvinyl chloride — CSA approved, rigid pipe with rubber gasket joints or other approved method of jointing.

Cast iron must be used:

(a) Where house sewer is less than 30 inches from the foundation wall;

(b) Where there is less than 18 inches of cover or under a driveway where there is less than 3 feet of cover;

(c) Where the sewer passes through the abandoned septic tank in which case the granular material filling the septic tank shall be compacted to 95% ASTM density.

Sewer connections shall be bedded in granular material extending from 4 inches below the bottom of the pipe to 6 inches above the top of the pipe. The bedding material shall be relatively free of clay or organic material and shall have a maximum stone size of ¾ inch.

The grade for the sewer connection pipe shall be a minimum of ¼ inch per foot of run.

More detailed information will be available for the public from a mailing piece which will be sent out by Dave Johnston, municipal clerk.

It is estimated the sewer connection at the street line will cost $150 and that the cost to the householder from that point to the house will depend on the distance the house is from the street line. It is estimated the average cost of connecting the house to the system could run from $250 up according to the nature of work to be done.

Hospital society challenged

Why is the public not allowed to attend annual meetings of St. Mary's Hospital Society Director Rita P. Relf, of the Regional District Hospital board asked at the March meeting last Thursday of the Regional hospital board.

Her contention was that as the hospital is financed by taxpayers money the public should be able to attend annual meetings. At present only members of St. Mary's Hospital society attend the annual meeting.

It was explained to her that the hospital is the responsibility of the society. It was society members who negotiaed for construction of the present hospital.

The society is registered under the provincial Societies act and it was with it that the provincial hospital officials negotiated to set up a new hospital for this area. The land, donated by Sechelt Indian band and the hospital premises are registered in the name of the society.

Director Frank West who looks after the financial affairs of the hospital maintained that the board now had enough work to do without assuming the responsibility of running the hospital. At present the Hospital board, which is merely a name change for the Regional district board, looks after the financing only. Other matters are tackled by the St. Mary's Hospital Society board which meets regularly and will present its yearly report at the end of the Society, Monday April 16.

Better water service required

The Regional District water committee has been advised by Works Supt. G. Dixon that the plastic line now serving Selma Park Road is inadequate and building now taking place will require better servicing.

The full cost of linking an eight inch main between Highway 101 and the main on the reservoir line would be about $6,300.

The water committee agreed that an eight inch ductile pipe should be installed from the main at the top of Selma Park road to the lots requiring service, and added to as required.

A recent fire in Davis Bay area resulted in Sechelt Fire Department desiring a meeting with Regional board officials to get the water situation clarified.

The committee, on the subject of fire hydrants, agreed that two should be installed after discussion with fire departments involved.

Board unable to help!

The request from Mainland Southwest for a $6,500 grant from the Regional District board to cover the costs of tourist publicity for this year, was turned down by the Regional District board.

This amount was suggested at the February meeting by Mike Ovenall, director of tourism for Mainland Southwest, a government sponsored organization for the support of tourism. Chambers of Commerce in Gibsons and Sechelt provided annual sums of money in support of the booklet. Now greater efforts must be made publicly to match grants which the government will provide.

The Regional Board's turndown of the request was based on the point that it had no function to make grants, it served summer residents anyway, and was not in the tourist business.

Subdivision activity showing increase

If the creation of new parcels of land by subdivision is an indicator of development activity on the Sunshine Coast then the area appears to be growing by leaps and bounds, E. R. Cuylits, planning director informed the Regional District board at its March meeting Thursday of last week

F. A. Reyburn, building inspector in his monthly report said building continues stronger than ever with February reaching a value of $510,000. In all to date this year building figures total $1,183,400. The total for the same period to the end of March last year was $736,200.

Mr. Reyburn drew to the board's attention that the build ing department workload was becoming an almost impossible situation. As more construction takes place, he reported, more time and field inspections are required. Counter and telephone enquiries are causing delays in the issuance of permits and the answering of correspondence.

Works Superintendent G. Dixon reported deposits had been made for sewer installations on a 12 lot Roberts Creek subdivision, also a six lot subdivision at Davis Bay. Outside of operations by the Regional District Board there are persistent rumors of considerable activity this spring in the Langdale district.

Building trends as reported by Mr. Reyburn showed the heaviest activity in the Pender Harbor to Sechelt area and was valued at $797,400. The area from Sechelt to Port Mellon building figure totalled $386,000. Mr. Reyburn also reported he had seven permits on hand with a value of $191,000.

Works Superintendent G. Dixon in his report to the board said 400 feet of 6 inch line was laid along Chaster road to serve three lots and deposits were made on 12 subdivision lots in Roberts Creek and a six lot subdivision at Davis Bay. Estimates were also gven for subdivisions in Wilson Creek, West Sechelt and Roberts Creek.

Ling favors Cantonese style cooking

(By ED THOMSON)

Jm Ling, the christian name given him by Baptist missionaries in his homeland China, was born Ping (Peace) Ching (Clean), is a fireball of energy and enterprise.

Born 23 years ago in an inland province of China, educated in Hong Kong, he came to Canada, first as a student at B.C. Institute of Technology, and later as a landed immigrant. Jim then made it to Port Mellon where for the past three and a half years he is employed working on technical control.

Jim Ling's activity doesn't stop within the workaday world. He is a firm believer in recreation also a keen athlete. Under the adult education program, he organized an evening adult volleyball class of 15 to 23 players on Monday evenings at the Elementary School.

Next year, he hopes to coach a men's team to take on Vancouver volleyball squads. In this he is well equipped, having played the game since grade nine back in Hong Kong and more recently as coach of Victoria's BCIT team which won the provincial volleyball championship in 1971. Badminton also occupies part of his time Wednesday evenings with a mixed group of 25 on the three courts in Elphinstone's gym.

Not content with purely recreational diversions, Jim is organizer and instructor of a popular course in Chinese gourmet cookery — Cantonese style It started on Jan. 31 with a single class of 15, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, 7:30 to 9:30 in the Home Economics room of Elphinstone school. Attendance is now 54 and the course extended to include Japanese cookery, conducted by Miss Yoko Chance, from Japan last year, and a third instructor, Miss Diane Ling, teacher at Roberts Creek Elementary school.

Jim reports all three classes are doing exceptionally well with well sustained attendance The instructors are home-trained amateurs.

Ling favors Cantonese style cooking, although he concedes Peking cuisine is very good, particularly the flavorful and succulent Peking duck. He served his apprenticeship as a boy, assisting his mother and father in preparation of the family meal, especially on feast days. Yoko is from the same family school of home instruction and Diane, Vancouver born of Chinese parents, was always at her mother's elbow when cooking was in progress.

The course concludes in April. It consists of ten lessons. The registration fee is $15 for the course, $10 for registration and $5 for ingredients.

With all this round of activity one would think Jim Ling would be uptight at the end of the day. Not so, he simply calls on the wisdom of his Oriental ancestors and relaxes.

Roberts Creek marina turned down

J. G. Warn's application for rezoning of an area at the mouth of Roberts Creek from Residential to commercial for marina purposes was turned down by the Regional District board meeting last week.

Director Harry Almond reported he had received a petition from Roberts Creek area residents objecting to the proposed zoning. The planning committee noted that the objection was consistent with the opinion of the advisory planning committee.

Further the planning committee recommended a letter to the department of lands urging that the foreshore lease at Roberts Creek be cleared to standards of the federal and provincial fisheries agencies.

In a letter to the board signed by Sharon Craig, Lockyer Road, she wrote: Many residents of Roberts Creek are aghast at such a loss of what would make ideal park land. Also we are concerned over the ecological damage that would ensue from the disturbance of the creek and the oil and gas which would be spread to the one sandy beach left to the residents.

"We strongly urge the Regional board to purchase this land for a park and would hope the most important function of the Regional board would be to search for and purchase suitable lands for parks and green belts."

Locals first

Local people should have first priority in obtaining leased land. This is a recommendation which the Regional District board will place before the provincial lands department.

The issue came up at last week's board meeting when the planning committee after recommending local applicants first, requested a list of areas for leasing be forwarded to the Regional District so the information could be passed on within the area, prior to posting the information with the land commissioner.

Mayor, alderman, differ

Mayor Walter Peterson and Ald. Ted Hume expressed opposing views on Bill 132, the Public Officials Disclosure Act, at Tuesday night's council meeting.

The mayor maintained it was discrimination against people holding public office. They take the oath of office when elected, and that should be enough. "This bill is calling us a bunch of crooks," he said.

Ald. Ted Hume supported the measure 100 percent maintaining that an honest person had nothing to be concerned about. If they have nothing to hide they have nothing to worry about. He added he certainly supported the bill. The issue came before council when the UBCM executive asked for council comment.

Gibsons annual Sea Cavalcade will seek a substantial increase to its last year's $500 grant, Ald. Hugh Archer advised council when reporting on Sea Cavalcade committee activities.

A lands department application for an extension to Smitty's Marina water area and a lease renewal from R. Hammond were discussed. Smitty's application was approved on a one year basis. It had been held in abeyance due to possible harbor development but the lands branch will not consider further delay through abeyance. The Hammond lease was also approved on a one year basis.

The commission from the sale of motor vehicle licenses has been raised from three to four percent by the provincial motor vehicle branch. This will increase the village take more than $100 yearly.

Ed Hauka requested a road extension to his property off Shaw Road. Council decided that as it did not plan such work in that area for the present, Mr. Hauka, planning to build, will be able to arrange a trail to his land.

Outdoors Unlittered (B.C.) presented council with the idea of an anti-litter week May 6 to 12. Council decided on its own Clean-up week, April 22 to 29, in conjunction with Sechelt's clean-up week, same dates.

IDB seminar for businessmen

Industrial Development Bank officials in conjunction with Sechelt's Chamber of Commerce will hold a business management seminar at Lord Jim's Lodge April 10 from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The program will contain such subjects as small business financial statements and the impact of an expansion of the business on them.

The seminar will include brief presentations and illustrative case studies of interest to owners, operators and managers of small businesses and persons who expect to own and operate a small business.

Canada's guinea pig!

The Toronto Globe and Mail has taken a look at British Columbia's Bill 42, the Land Commission Act and has decided that compensation as far as agricultural land is concerned is the remaining sore point.

However the paper's editorial writer finds there is some good in the measure. The editorial concludes in this manner:

"The Act, nevertheless, is improved by the amendments. Perhaps if they had been included in the original bill, the public uproar which ensued could have been avoided; but more probably not. The government may merely, like other governments have done from time to time, have introduced an unpopular measure in a highly unpopular form, so that when the least acceptable parts were corrected by amendment, the medicine would slip down without too much public objection.

"How British Columbia accepts the medicine in its new form will be of interest in all provinces. Each must eventually do something about the preservation of farm land and the use of land generally. British Columbia is Canada's guinea pig."

The West appointment

Election of Director Frank West of the Sunshine Coast Regional District as a member of the Municipal Finance Authority of British Columbia, if put in proper perspective, is a distinct privilege for the Sunshine Coast. We have a direct representative on the province-wide Municipal Finance Authority.

There are larger municipalities or Regional Districts which carry heavier weight in municipal affairs than does the Sunshine Coast. Be that as it may the financing of the Regional District and its hospital and other institutions has felt the hand and mind of Frank West on its operations. He is also in a top position as financial adviser to Canadian Forest Products at Port Mellon.

The Finance Authority is composed of seven representatives, four of which are mayors in their respective communities such as Victoria, North Vancouver and Burnaby.

During the last two years the authority has sold bond issues valued at $44.9 million for regional districts and municipalities at rates lower than they could obtain on their own.

There is no way of brushing aside the capabilities of Mr. West when it comes to discussing financing or digesting a financial situation. So let us on the Sunshine Coast offer our respects to a man of such stature he has been selected to serve as a director on a finance authority which affects quite a large section of B.C. populace.

Steven hitch-hikes to new home

BY STEVEN LEE

New Zealand's North Island stretches 300 miles beyond Auckland into an area known as the winterless northland. It was here that the country was born and it is here I begin my explorations.

The first European settlers arrived in New Zealand in the early 1800's and established themselves in the far north around the Bay of Islands. The pioneers occupied themselves in farming (agriculture flourished) and in trade with the whaling vessels. They had come from Australia and Europe - but, unlike the Australians, came by choice and not exile. By 1840 their numbers, territory and trades had swelled. Missionaries and arms traders poured into the new land and brought disaster to the Maori civilizations, (intertribal war, chaos and death to a land that had known peace and prosperity for generations.

Meanwhile, Australian and British interests grew. A British governor was sent from New South Wales to Waitangi to safeguard the interests of British settlers. Several other European powers also had interests in the area, and the Americans were never far away.

On Feb. 5-6, 1840 the Great Chiefs of the North Island Maoris gathered in front of Governor Hobson's residence at Waitangi to decide their fate Hobson proposed that the chiefs sign a treaty which, in effect, would deprive them of their own sovereignty to Queen Victoria. In return, the Crown would guarantee the Maoris possession of their held lands, forests and fisheries and bestow to them the rights and privileges of British subjects.

After much debate, and in the interest of ending the anarchy that raged throughout their land, the Maori chiefs signed the Treaty of Waitangi and pledged their loyalty to Victoria, Empress of India, and New Zealand became a new colony within the Empire.

The first thing I had to learn about hitch-hiking in New Zealand was finding the right side of the road to stand on in order to obtain a ride in the direction I wished to go. It sounds simple enough but New Zealanders drive on the left-hand side of the road - with the exception of downtown Auckland at rush hour.

Despite handicaps I was extremely lucky with rides. In half an hour the great urban sprawl of Auckland had disappeared to be replaced by some of the world's most beautiful countryside; rolling hills, forests, pastures - or as New Zealanders call them paddocks and unending miles of cliffs and sand beaches.

An hour north of Auckland lies Warivera. Here the Pacific cuts into the land to form a small pleasant cove. Around it are high steep hills that release a small stream into the sea. The road winds down from the hilltops, touches the head of the cove, and then climbs back up into the hills. Every inch is thick in dense green forest but for a small cluster of buildings between the sea and the road. On this spot are to be found some of New Zealand's many natural hot springs. The spring water has been fed into a series of pleasant cement swimming pools, each pool a different water temperature.

Surrounding the pools are a multitude of aromatic tropical blooms and rustling palms. The afternoon sun hovered above the hibiscus as I slipped into the steaming muscle-relaxing water.

On the road again towards Northland's major town of Whangari. (After many strange looks from efforts such as whang gary I learned the correct pronunciations of fanga-ray.)

Early February was the beginning of a major drought that is continuing at the time of writing. Northward it became hot and dry; the grass golden yellow and the trees still under a heavy coat of dust. Inland, the climate took on Sahara characteristics with clumps of fern and stunted trees in the parched fields adding to the Kenya highlands effect.

The highway worked its way inland through the hills and grasslands and then eastward again toward the Pacific. About 20 miles south of Whangarei the highway reaches the crest of the uplands. This is Pilbrow Hill.

The land sweeps down from Pilbrow Hill like a massive apron to the sea. Meadows and forest cover the landscape in a descending patchwork of gold and green until the patterns meet the clean white line of Waipu beach and the dark blue Pacific beyond.

This was the scent that became the home and resting place of much travelled Nova Scotian settlers who came to New Zealand from the Maritimes over a century ago.

On to Whangaree for a short stop. A city of 30,000 people, it is the main commercial centre north of Auckland. The trading and business nub for the surrounding dairies, mixed farms and sheep ranches, it is also the home of New Zealands major oil refinery at nearby Marsden Point where giant tankers bring crude oil from overseas. The city boasts a thriving boat industry and is world reknown for its building repair and refitting facilities for sailboats and yachts - acclaimed to be the best such facilities in the South Pacific.

Inland again from Whangarei to the town of Kawakawa by way of little travelled winding country roads. There are no towns or villages between the two points and the environs are occupied only by sheep and sweet smelling forests. This is the land of the giant Kauri tree that rivals California's redwood Sequoias in enormity, and, like the Sequoia, has almost vanished through man's greed and abuse of nature.

From Kawa kawa to the coast once more to Paihia and Waitangi. Friendly and fascinating Northlanders had brought me to the doorstep of this historic sight on the very eve of, what the Prime Minister would proclaim the next day as New Zealand's National Birthday.

Paihia clings to the shore as if the sea, in a generous mood, had sucked it from the very depths and flung it to the base of the green wooded hills behind. A narrow winding road climbs through the hills from Kawa kawa and drops to the Bay of Islands. Here, where that road touches the warm waters and the sparkling sands and where it clings to the waves for two miles, lies the village and its 200 citizens.

At the end of the road on a headland that juts out into the Bay is Waitangi, a park that's mostly forest, the Treaty House that was Governor Hobson's residence in 1840, and the lawns that form the Treaty grounds.

The warm clear sea, the white clean sand, the polished exotic shells that sparkle underfoot in the sun, and the hills of twisted Pohutu Kawa trees are as much a part of Paihia as the Post Office, the Bella Vista Restaurant and the Grocery store. Gibsons has grown away from the sea; Sechelt has turned its back upon it - but Paihia belongs to the ocean.

Paihia was to become my first home in New Zealand and I could not have chosen a better sight. Ideal climate, spectacular setting and friendly, sincere people who made a visitor feel immediately at home combined to ensure a memorable stay.

Within 24 hours of my arrival the peace and obscurity of Paihai and Waitangi would be for a short time, broken. I soon found myself at the stage of festivities and at the focal point of the nation's attention, the anniversary celebrations.

Open fields best for kites

B.C. Hydro urges all parents to cut out the following Kite Flyers Code, and impress on their children the necessity to observe these simple safety rules.

Fly kites only in an open field or park, well away from powerlines, transmission towers and poles.

Use perfectly dry string, never wire or metallic string.

Never try to remove a kite should it catch on a powerline, tower or pole. Release the cord immediately.

Don't use any metal in making a kite.

Don't fly a kite on or near a road or highway.

Never fly a kite in wet or stormy weather.

Have fun -- but always remember the safety rules!

Flotsam still floating menace

Debris is still floating in Howe Sound. Mayor Walter Peterson of Gibsons drew the attention of the Regional District board to the problem at its January meeting.

He brought it up at Gibsons council meeting Feb. 6 maintaining that as the forestry branch of the provincial government obtained revenue through logs being in water, the branch should be able to afford a cleanup.

So the forestry department was approached by letter and so far nothing has happened.. However the Regional District board was informed by letter read at last week's board meeting that the federal deartment concerned has passed it on the Navigable waters branch for consideration.

Dr. Gemmill to Winnipeg

Dr. D. L. Gemmill has announced his resignation from the Coast-Garibaldi Health unit of which he is secretary. He has accepted a position with Winnipeg's municipal organization.

The announcement was made in the following letter:

"The next meeting of the Coast-Garibaldi Union Board of Health will be held in the Health Unit office, Gibsons, on Wednesday, April 18,

"The pressure of work on the Health Unit staff during recent weeks necessitated postponement of the regular March meeting so that important work was completed on schedule.

"I have resigned as director of the Coast-Garabaldi Health Unit to accept a position with the City of Winnepeg. The new appointment is for May 1. I hope to have information concerning my successor for the April meeting.

"My decision to leave British Columbia has been made for personal and family reasons. It comes at a time when I personally feel that great things may be in store for public health in this province, and I shall have regrets about leaving the health branch and leaving behind such a fine staff.

"The Coast-Garabaldi Union Board of Health has given me excellent support during my term as director. I have come to know many of you very well, and I wish to express my thanks and appreciation for the cooperation and congenial way we have attempted to work together to solve our common problems."

Talks continue

Talks are continuing between the Regional District board and the Petroleum Association over one bulk terminal to replace the present ones at Sechelt, Davis Bay, Gibsons and Hopkins Landing.

Several sites have been suggested for the bulk terminal and it is expected a report will be produced by the association giving the industry's evaluation of relocation possibilities.

Parliament Hill

(By HARRY OLAUSSEN
Federal NDP Candidate)

Allegations that unemployment insurance recipients are being tricked and coerced into disqualifying themselves have been brought to the attention of members of Parliament.

Hundreds of benefit control officers have been double-checking UIC claims all across Canada since last year.

Recipients are asked a series of questions and are required to sign a statement written by the officer describing their availability, efforts to obtain work and other related factors

Often people don't understand the questions and the result is a signed statement full of unintentional halftruths

Here in the riding of Coast-Chilcotin men and women, living in isolated areas, or areas in which few employment opportunities exist, are required to show proof that they are actively seeking work with the result that many have been disqualified due to overzealous investigators. To me the act discriminates against such people.

It is unfortunate that the ones who have taken unfair advantage of their unemployment insurance benefits are always in the spotlight, while a great number of people, many of whom have written me, find themselves in impossible situations with families to support and hardly any mon ey to live on. These are the pathetic cases that are all too often ignored by those who are prone to criticize the Unemployment Insurance Act.

Now it doesn't help to register with Manpower for a job. I'm told that in itself is not sufficient. A person gets some kind of form in which he has to register the names of the employers to whom he went, the date of seeking work at those places of employment and the response. All of which is fine if you live in Vancouver and there are a number of employers that can be reached within walking distance. But if you live in the smaller communities of this riding the situation is quite different.

First the claimant has to travel some distance to find these potential employers. Then, he or she has to be prepared to move from the home community to the place of employment. Such is not the case if one lives in Vancouver and doesn't have to move himself and his family if a job is found in the area.

The only suggestion I can make to people who are disadvantaged by this discriminatory system is to go to every employer you can, even though that employer may not employ people with your skills, and notify the commission of this. If your skills are as a can nery worker you may have to apply for work in a sawmill. If you are a logger try applying for work in a bakery even if you don't know anything about baking. In other words, do not restrict yourself in anyway as to kind of work or place of work. This is the only way you can do it if you don't want to be disqualified.

If anyone has any problems regarding his or her unemploy ment insurance do not hesitate to write to me c/o House of Commons, Ottawa, giving me all the details such as social all the details such as social insurance number, reason for disqualification, non-payment of benefits, etc. Whatever the circumstances, I will look into the matter and try to do something about it.

Road system draft prepared

A preliminary draft for a new arterial road system has been prepared and is now under review by members of the study committee, E. R. Cuylits, planning director for the Regional District board informed last week's board meeting. The study committee is made up of governmental, municipal, environmental and other officials.

Once the review has been completed the draft report will be presented to the Regional District board's technical planning committee for its consideration.

In the meantime pressure is being applied by Area E (West Gibsons) advisory planning committee, R. Derby, president and J. Gurney, vice-president. They ask by letter for information:

"We have become extremely concerned at the lack of information and apparent progress with the technical planning committee's study of the relocation of Highway 101. We fail to understand the considerable length of time which it has taken to complete a relatively simple study which by the terms of reference as we understand is merely to locate various accesses and co-ordinate the relocation with the local street system.

"Various unofficial reports have come to our attention that the committee is considering alternate locations for the relocation including the original route A. It is our understanding from the statistics presented and exchanges which took place at your meeting with the department of highways in October, 1972, that the only logical route for a Gibsons bypass was in the vicinity of the B.C. Hydro transmission lines. We assure you that any attempt to finalize a relocation on any route which deviate greatly from this location will meet wth the same rejection and failure as previous attempts to finalize this relocation.

"Local traffic conditions, especially in the tourist season, dictate that this relocation be settled quickly in order that construction commence as soon as possible."

Preservation of relics sought

The Archaeologcal Society of B.C. has asked the Regional District board to follow the lead of the Okanagan-Similkamten Regional District and its effort to preserve non-renewable archaeological resources.

A motion passed by the Okanagan board urged that comapnies constructing easements for pipelines, or roads, or clearing land for subdivisions where there are known Indian paintig stes, must be made aware that these sites must not be disturbed or destroyed. Further that trong recommendaions be made to the proper government authorities to change the routes so as to preserve the paintings, or that the rock or a portion of the rock containing such paintings be moved to a suitable location for preservation.

The Sunshine Coast board has taken the matter under advisement with action to follow.

TOPS warned to avoid gains

The keynote of Gibsons TOPS recent meeting was the election of what was termed young blood, to the executive. The election followed a luncheon with a floral head table centrepiece donated by John Harvey.

Members appreciate the work done by those who arranged the luncheon, prepared the food and set the tables. Besides the winning dieters, the new executive was congratulated along with TOPS queens both past and present. Members are invited to remember that no gains in weight are allowed this week.

Yacht club lease to be watched

With renewal of the Royal Vancouver Yacht club lease at Secret Cove coming up for renewal in 1974, according to information received by the Regional District board, the board will carefully watch pro ceedings in the leased area during the year. The board plans to object to the lease when renewal comes up. This occurred at a March 13 meeting of the planning board.

At a March 15 meeting of the planning committee Director Rita Relf, representing Area B (Halfmoon Bay) report ing on a meeting with representatives of the yacht club and said the club desires to be good corporate citizens and meet all requirements of the Regional District.

Director Relf complained that she was not at the March 13 meeting and registered her objection to that fact.

PROTEST BARGE ACTIVITY

Moving four houses from a barge onto the beach at Henderson Road, Roberts Creek, was brought to the attention of the Regional District board at its meeting last week. The board decided to write to the proper provincial authorities objecting because of the distur bance created to the beach area.

HOSPITALIZATION BRIEF

St. Mary's Hospital board is working on a brief based on questionnaires covering such subjects as ambulance possibilities, a clinic, intermediate care including home nursing and adult care, Director Frank West informed the Regional District board at its meeting last week. The brief will be sent to the minister of health for inclusion into the overall provincial health department summation of the views of hospital requirements.

Point of Law

(By a Practicing Lawyer
Copyright)

Q: Does Canadian law regard a foreign divorce as valid? The usual situation is that both husband and wife want a divorce but neither of them have committed adultery, which is a common, if not the usual grounds for divorce. The proposal usually is that one party will go to, say, Nevada, California or Mexico and obtain a divorce there, where the grounds are much broader and sometimes virtually non-existent, and then return to Canada.

A: Canadian law will usually recognize the decrees of a foreign court, if the decree is validly obtained by the law of the foreign jurisdiction. There are, however, several important exceptions in the law of marriage and divorce. One is that the petitioner, the person suing, must establish domicile in the foreign jurisdiction let us say California, and that such domicile must be established according to the rules of Canadian law and not according to the law of California.

The California rule may, for example, be that it is merely necessary to prove six weeks residence. The Canadian rule regarding domicile is that one must not only prove residence but a permanent intention to remain within the jurisdiction of the court out of which the suit arose.

If Mary Doe were, by the laws of California, to validly and lawfully obtain a divorce from John Doe, and Mary Doe was domiciled in Canada, the divorce would be completely valueless. The parties would thus still be married. Any other marriage contracted by the parties would be subject to being declared void in an action for annulment and either Joh or Mary Doe would also, under certain circumstances, be subject to prosecution for bigamy. There would also be no end of legal complications arising out of the birth of any children and inheritance.

Grade 8 basketball champs

Championship honors from the Grade 8 boys basketball tourney held at Elphinstone gym last Thursday and Friday went to Elphinstone S.

The tournament was the finale to a season of hard work and practice by each of the five teams involved in the grade 8 league. The league, organized by Mr. Harry Turner, is aimed towards developing the potential of future Elphinstone basketball teams.

In the tournament's opening game, Sechelt Elementary defeated Gibsons Elementary 46-27. Kelly Bodnarek played a strong game and led Sechelt with 14 points. High scorers for Gibsons were Randy Smith 15 and Wally Nygren 4.

Elphinstone edged by Sechelt Residence 37-31 in the following game. Calvin of Sechelt Residence led all scorers with an outstanding 21 points. Bruce Hansen had 16, Andy Alsager 13 and Brad Quarry 6 for Elphinstone.

Sechelt Elementary faced Elphinstone T in Thursday's final game. Kelly Bodnarek had 12 points and Bradley Joe 10 for Sechelt's final 36-28 win. Eric Clark scored 10 and Gordon Currie 7 for Mr. Turner's Elphinstone squad.

Gibsons Elementary basketballers chalked up their first victory of the season by defeating Elphinstone T 26-18 Friday. Gibsons had a lot of hustle, good offensive rebounding, and played a sound man to man defense game. They also tried to keep the ball away from Elphinstone's big man, Eric Clark, limiting him to only 6 points. Raymond Boser led Gibsons with 13 points and David Brackett added 4. Bruce Brannan was Elphinstone T high scorer with 7 points.

Gibsons Elementary met a strong Sechelt Residence team in the following game. It was Gibsons second game in a row but they put up a good effort against the much bigger and faster Residence team. Calvin Sparrow had 16 points and Eugene Dick and Willard Wallace scored 6 apiece for Sechelt Residence's final 45-26 win. Raymond Boser paced Gibsons Elementary with 8 points while Wally Nygren, David Brackett and Kyle Nygren hooped 4 points each.

In the final championship game Elphinstone S downed Sechelt Elementary 32-24. Elhinstone used one of their bigger players, Bruce Hansen, to effectively cover Sechelt's top scorer, Kelly Bodnarek.

The game was quite exciting in the second half as Sechelt drew close several times only to have Elphinstone score a key basket. "Andy Alsager contributed quite well to the team, as usual, despite a sprain ed wrist," Elphinstone coach Bill Sneddon said. Bill was captain of Elphie senior boys basketball team and has done a great job of coaching his own club.

Andy and Bruce both netted 12 points and team mate Brad Quarry scored 4. Sechelt high scorers were Kelly Bodnarek 10 and Rob Joe and Gordie Waters with 4 apiece. Each member of the winning Elphinstone S team received a small crest from tournament organizer Mr. Harry Turner.

Thanks go to the timers, scorers, referees, and all persons who came out and supported the teams.

Mobile homes to be defined

On recommendation of its building committee, the Regional District board will include a revised definition of a mobile home in its zoning bylaw.

The committee recommended the section should read "that a mobile home means a structure manufactured as a unit and intended to be occupied in a place other than its manufacture; which is manufactured in accordance with the National Building code of standards of the Canadian Standards Association and is so certified by the Canadian Standards association or a qualified structural engineer or a building inspector; designed for dwelling purposes; and is especially designed for movement along the highway from time to time."

The committee also recommended all mobile homes in mobile home parks which have not received CSA certification should be registered with the Regional District on or before a date to be announced by the building inspector and that these registered non-CSA homes be permitted to locate on individual parcels within the dstrict

The building committee noted that existing non-CSA mobile homes on individual parcels should not be permtted to relocate to other areas within the district. The committee recommended that advertisements be placed and mobile park operators be advised of this registration procedure.

Senior Citizens should apply

If you are single and 65 years of age or over with an income of not more than $220 per month or married with an income of not more than $400 per month, you may qualify for the Kiwanis Village Senior Citizens Housing.

For details and application forms contact George Cooper at 886-9344 or Ozzie Hincks at Box 815, Gibsons.

Construction of housing is underway. It is expected to be completed this summer. So any one who can qualify is urged to obtain and complete an application form as soon as possible so the screening committee's job can be eased.

This will allow the committee to make an early decision of qualifying occupants and enable them to have the earliest notice if successful.

Variance board action challenged

The planning committee of the Regional District board feels there are discrepancies regarding the procedure of the Board of Variance for the Regional District.

The complaint concerns whether the building inspector can be secretary of the Variance board. The Municipal act states no municipal employee or official shall serve on this board.

Another point stressed by the committee is that the act requires all decisions must be made in writing by all members of the Board of Variance.

The Regional District's bylaw states that the building inspector shall act as secretary to the Board of Variance This board is composed of three members and a secretary and is set up as an appeal board with power to act on matters dealt with by municipal councils or boards.

55 APPLICANTS

Fifty-five applications have been received by the Regional District board for the post of draftsman - technician. The board at its last meeting decided to whittle them down to a selected number so the board can arrive at a selection.

Relf objects

Recommendation by the Regional District board's planning committee that Cliff Gilker be appointed as a member at large to the planning committee drew a protest from Director Rita Relf (Halfmoon Bay)that as a member of that committee she was not aware of the meeting. The matter was turned over to the executive committee for study.

She also objected to the refusal of the committee to allow a member of Gibsons Wildlife Club to sit in on committee meetings, suggesting an analogy in the two cases.

Mr. Gilker who was one time chairman of the Regional District board has served as a member at large for some time. Under Regional board regulations members at large can be appointed for specific work.
