NEWS OF THE WEEK FROM OUR EXCHANGES

A huge mountain lion has been seen frequently of late in the vscinity of Borton's camp near Morrissy. Several persons have seen the animal but hunters have gone out after hsm have invariably returned without his scalp. The cougar makes a noise like the crying of a baby and his cry might tempt some soft-heated perso within rage of his flying leap. Ordinarily the cougar will not attackhumans, but when it is hungry it is not particular as to its meat.—Fernie Free Press.

During the first week of March the Granby smelter at Grand Forks treated 23, 674 tons of ore 23,015 tones being from the Granby mines and 659 tons from other proderties. In the same week Granby shipped 261,000 pounds of blister copper.

During the period from January 1 to March 7 Granby treased 219,-686 tons of ore 213,825 tons from Granby mines and 8,541 tons from other properties. In the same period Granby has shipped 3,2 08,-995 pounds blister copper to the refinery.—Greenwood Ledge.

R T. Lowery, editor and financier of the Greenwood Ledge came in on Tuesday and sdent a day in town, renewing old acquaintances and seeing if the burg is still here. This the first time Br'er Lowery has visited this camp in the past four years, because as he says we are on such a darned side track it takes up too much time to come in, even if a Kaslo visit is always a pleasurable diversion. With the completion of the railway, however, he hopes to call oftener, as he always has a soft spot for Kaslo, having founded two papers here in early days. One of these, the first one, set him back in the hole about $1,500 but he managed to catch up on his loss with the second one, which was started after the cheap silver snowlide had passed.—Kootenaion.

NOTICE!

The present Lessee, Editor and manager of the Creston Review, A. B. S. Stanley begs to state that he has not been responsible in any way for the sending out of notices threatening court procedure for delinquent subscribers. He has only had to do with this paper since July 1st 1913.

At the same time he would appreciate it if those who owe from that time would come in to see him about the matter as it costs considerable to get out the paper and money is scarce.

HOUSE OF QUALITY READY FOR BUSINESS

In view of the volume of business done during 1913 having increased so heavily over that of 1912 we are making arrangements to enable us to handle more satisfactorily the increase that will surely take place this season.

It has been the one aim of the management of t is house to do the very best it could for the growers as evidenced by the results of the past seasons.

Comparitive results for years 1912 and 1913 will prove to the individual grower that this house has realized the top prices for fruits and vegetables. Moreover each year gives us better knowledge of the business and the trade with whom we do business. For the year 1914 the prospects are reasonably good and given quality with quantity we will be able to do the very best for you.

Therefore, Fellow Ranchers, It is dollars that count. We guarantee to get the best possible prices for you and we solicit your business for the year 1914 and are now ready to book up the same.

NOTICE RE GARBAGE DUMPING GROUNDS

Captain Forrester is in receipt of a communication from Government Agent Cartmel at Nelson in regard to the garbage dumping ground, in which he is instructed to post a notice to the effect that dumping garbage of any kind in that locality is prohibited. "As I consider the dumping of garbage at that point a menance and a public nuisance."

The letter goes on to say that "definite orders have not as yet been received regarding the proposed dumping ground at the slough picked out by Dr Henderson and myself but same may be used temporarily at any rate."

For those who have occasion to dump garbage it would be a good idea to interview Dr. Henderson who is the health inspector for this district, and find out from him the place decided upon for the future dumping ground

PUBLIC MEETING FOR WEDNESDAY EVENING

A meeting was held in Mercantile Hall Thursday evening for the purpose of discussing the date of our annual celebration. It was decided to celebrate on May 24th and another public meeting is called for Wednesday evening April 29th for the purpose of appointing committees and making final arrangements. There ought to be a good turn out to this meeting as all should be interested in the celebration of our national holiday.

FOREST RESERVES AND THEIR USES

A Forest reserve is not an area of forest land where no trees whatever are allowed to be cut. The object in setting aside the land for the reserve is not to prohibit cutting altogether, but rather to regulate the cutting and generally to treat the forest so that a continuous crop of timber may be taken off the area instead of having it cut over once or perhaps twice and then feft waste.

Experience in other lands has demonstrated that such a continuous crop of fores ttree can be grown, and the setting aside of forest reserves is one of the first steps taken in the introduction of such a policy in this country. Crop after crop can be taken off the area—of course at widely separated intervals for half a century is a short period indeed to allow for a crop of timber to mature.

The primary object of a forest reserve is thus to provide for a perpetual supply of timber. Another important object of the reserves is to protect the water supply, both the domestic supply for towns and cities and also the supply to be used for the generation of power. The effect of forests at the head waters of streams is to regulate the flow so as to make it constant throughout the year—not a torrent in spring and a nearly-dried up stream bed in the heat of summer. To be valuable as a source for power a stream must furnish a constant and regular supply of water. Very low water in a stream from which a town or city derives its water supply has often meant a great deal of sickness (perhaps in the form of an epidemic) for the people of that place. Where the forest is, the snow melts more gradually in spring and the rains of spring and summer soak into the ground, which acts like a sponge, and flow off more gradually than where the forest is removed.

In hilly and mountainous regions the cutting off of the forests has often led to the washing away of the soil. This has made it impossible for the forests to grow again. Good examples of this may be seen in the nieghborhood of the Appalachian Mountains in the United States.

Some resves are important as well in furnishing recreation for the people but the two essential objects of the reserves are those of providing for a perpetual crop of timber and of protecting the water supply for power and domestic use.

DOUGLAS FIR, THE TREE WITH A FUTURE

There are trees in Canada whose commercial importance is clearly on the wane. According to one of the latest bulletins of the Dominion Forestry Branch, the value of the white pine lumber cut in 1912 was one and a half million dollars less than in 1911. The cut of hemlock decreased twenty-seven per cent; that of cedar decreased thirty per cent and tamarack, the lumber production of which has decreased over forty per cent in the last two years, bids fair soon to become commercially extinct. Of thesix leading tree-species in Canada Douglas fir was the only one whose lumber production incresed in 1912. In the province of British Columbia alone, Douglas fir formed oaer 67.7 per cent of the total lumber cut, and British Columbia is at present by far the richest timber province in Canada, containing, according to some estimates, one-half the merchantable timber wealth of the Dominion.

This remarkable tree attains a height of over two hundred feet with a trunk ten to twelve feet in daimeter, forming, alone or mixed with hemlock, great forests extending four hundred miles north of the International Boundary. Its natural range extends in Canada to the eastern foot-hills of the Rocky Mountains in Alberta, where it grows to a heaght of 130 feet and a diameter of four feet, and is considered one of the most important timber trees on the Dominion Rocky Mountains Forest Reserve, which covers an area of nearly 21 000 square miles.

It is also widely distributed throughout the western United States, being able to stand considerable clsmatic variation and being practically immune to insects or fugus diseases.

Dr. C. S. Sargent, one of the greatest authorities on American trees, describes the wood as hard, durable, and largely used for all kinds of constuction. According to a recent Dominion Forestry Branch publicatifn on the "Wood using Industries of Ontario," it is increasing in popularity in that province for decorative purposes as "it has an attractive grain and figure which readily lends itself to staining." Douglas fir construction timber is shipped to all parts of the world.

The Douglas fir has been introduced into Europ with great success and large forests have been planted which are now yielding handsome profits. Germany and France purchase every year large quantities of seed from the Indians in British Columbia.

A. B. S. Stanley - - - Lessee, Editor and Manager

Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance in to his annual Budget report said anong other things:

"I desire," he said, "to affirm the adherence of the Government to a fiscal policy of reasonable protection to Canadian industries, including of course, the great basic industry of agriculture. The policy is the historic National Policy of Sir John Macdonald, inaugurated by him and continued by his successors down to the present time. We believe it is the best, indeed the only, and in a sense the inevitable policy for Canada. situated as it is geographically and in the existing conditions of the world today. Under that policy Canada has prospered in the past, and will continue to prosper in the future. We believe it is the true policy for Canada and for every part of it if we are to regard as desirable stable business conditions and a diversified national life throughout the Dominion."

Regarding the recent death of Sir William White the Rossland Miner has the following to say:

Sir William Whyte went to California from Winnipeg about the middle of February, suffering from pyelitis and a complication of diseases. It was thought he had a chance of recovery in the climate of San Diego. His death was unexpected, even by his physicians.

Sir William Whyte was probably the most distinguished private citizen in Western Canada, and for many years one of the most trusted officials of the C. P. R. His health had recently appeared excellent, and, although his age was somewhat advanced, his friends looked forward to an unusual career for him, owing to his singular position in the country. On several occasions, however he had been seriously ill. One of these attacks prevented his departure for London last Spring, at which time he proposed making a journey around the world. At the time of the termination of his active connection with the C. P. R., in 1911, he gave as one of his reasons for his retirement his desire to preserve his health. Unexpected weaknesses existed, however, and to one of these he succumbed.

Sir William Whyte had resided in the west for a little more than 25 years. During this entire period he was in the service of the Canadian Pacific railroad, with which company he will be permanently identified in the history of the west. He went to Winnipeg as general manager, eventually becoming the vice-president in charge of western lines and finally the western director. He was born in 1843 at Dumferline, Fifeshire, Scotl nd.

ENGLAND'S CHAMPION OARSWOMAN

Miss Lucy Pocock, holder of the woman's single skull championship of England, is now teaching the women students of the University of Washington, at Seattle, how to row the Eton stroke, and if rumors are to be beleived, is making great progress.

Miss Pocock is twenty four years of age and was born at Pudding-ton-on-the Thames, where she learned to row from her brothers, Dick and George, both champion single skullers. Miss Pocock now has four eight-oared crews under her instruction and an interclass race has been planned for the Spring. Coach Conibear, who is whipping the regular varsity into shape for the regetta at Poughkeepsie next Spring also acts as advisory coach for the women's crews and says that Miss Pocock is making remarkable progress with her charges.

AN AID TO MEMORY.

Merely Make an Appointment With Your Subconscious Mind.

You have often read that if you want to awaken at a certain hour in the morning you have only to impress your subconscious mind with that hour upon retiring and you will awaken at the appointed time without difficulty. Perhaps you have tried the experiment and been successful.

I have discovered a way by which the method can be extended and made still more successful.

Supposing you want to remind yourself of something of importance that you need to do early on the following day. You might write it down and put the memorandum under your watch or fasten it to the pincushion on your dresser, but it is a bother to have to use a mechanical memory tickler for such a purpose. It is like using crutches to walk with. What is your memory good for if it needs bolstering up constantly by this sort of expedient? You can teach your memory better habits.

Here is the way: Say to your subconscious mind at night, "When I am putting on my shoes in the morning I shall remember that I am to do so and so," describing the thing you wish to recall to mind.

By connecting your affirmation with a specific act like putting on your shoes you give the mind a sort of peg to hang the mental record on, and you will find the results will be more positive. Of course you can if you wish substitute any other act connected with the morning activities for that of putting on your shoes. The important thing is to make your affirmation positive and specific by connecting it with some act that you perform every morning.

You see, you are making an appointment with your subconscious mind to meet you at a certain place with certain reminders, and it is very necessary that the meeting place should be a familiar one and clearly understood. It should stand out sharply in the impression you give your subconscious mind, and then the recollection will be correspondingly sharp and clear. The more familiar and common the act with which you hitch up the affirmation the better.—William E. Towne in Nautilus.

There is nothing more frightful than ignorance in action.—Goethe.

PROBLEMS OF CIVILIZATION.

We Are Too Stupid and Narrow to Solve Them, Says Shaw.

We are a stupid people, and we are a bad looking people. We are ugly, we have narrow minds and we have bad manners. A great deal of that is due to the effect of being brought up in a society of inequality. I know perfectly well what happened to myself.

I can remember one of my earliest experiences in life was my father finding me playing with a certain little boy in the street and telling me I was not to play with that little boy, giving me to understand that he was a very inferior and objectionable kind of little boy. I had not found him so. I asked my father, "Why?" He said, "His father keeps a shop." I said to my father, "Well, but you keep a mill." Therefore my father pointed out to me that he sold things wholesale and that this little boy's father sold things retail, and that consequently there was between me and that boy a gulf which could never be respectably bridged.

When you are brought up, as you inevitably are in a society like ours, with that sort of blasphemy being continually dinned into your ears; when you are taught to be unsocial at every point and brought up to be unsocial, then any little chance that your natural endowments at your birth may have left you of being able to grapple with the enormous problems of our modern civilization—problems that demand from you the largest scope of mind, the most unhesitating magnanimity, the most sacred recognition of your spiritual and human equality with every person in the nation—is utterly destroyed. That is why I doubt whether these problems can be solved by us, brought up in that way. To solve them you need a new sort of human being.—George Bernard Shaw in the Metropolitan Magazine.

Quick Justice.

There is scarcely any crime in New Zealand, largely because they make a strenuous effort there to arrest, try, convict, hang and bury a criminal within two weeks of the commission of his crime, if this be murder, or, if not a hanging offense, to get him as quickly as possible into a disagreeable prison, where he will have to work hard and fare upon bread and water.—New York World.
