FROM ONE MAN'S POINT OF VIEW

ENDERBY voters have had ample opportunity for hearing Duncan Ross and Martin Burrell, and of measuring the two men. If any man conscientiously wishes to cast his vote for the best man, he should not have any difficulty in deciding. Martin Burrell has character stamped upon every line of his face, and back of every word a man speaks. He shows none of the ear-marks of the politician; he is head and shoulders above that, and in him we see the statesman. In his speech he is fair, calm, clear and convincing. He says nothing by innuendo; and never strikes below the belt. He is a man that fears no one, and of whom no one need be afraid. A born Englishman, he stands boldly up and declares himself against a cowardly ruse of any kind, and would prefer to go down in defeat rather than take a mean advantage of an opponent. Mr. Burrell's address was by long odds the clearest, sanest and fairest of the campaign. And he held his audience on every word. He has the happy faculty of expressing himself with candor and conviction without giving offense. He wins the sympathies of his audience by proving himself capable of fighting his own fight without them. He does not play upon the prejudices of his hearers, and asks no unmerited favors. He plays the game fairly and squarely, by placing before his hearers the proofs of his argument and leaves it to the good judgment of his audience. Mr. Burrell has always been a favorite with an Enderby audience, and his speech this week not only bound closer the ties of friendship but won for him a position in the hearts of his hearers that will impel them not only to vote for him but to work for him.

IF ever a man had good reason for kicking himself, that man is Duncan Ross. His deferred election ruse has been a serious proposition and will no doubt cost him his seat. British fair play is demanded of men in the West. This is the way the Similkameen Star, which professes to be a Liberal paper but declines to support Duncan Ross puts it: "Any man who is afraid to meet his foe on equal ground has already admitted that he deserves censure rather than praise." And thus speaks the Nelson News: "The people of Yale-Cariboo will not be misled by any bluff that Mr. Duncan Ross will be taken into the cabinet if he is elected. They know that a man who was so fearful of defeat in a straight fight that he deferred the election in order to secure, if possible, an unfair advantage is not the kind of man out of which cabinet ministers are made." If we have heard one we have heard a dozen men who claim to have supported Mr. Ross in the last election say that this time they are going to vote for him to stay at home.

WHAT is believed to be the first special train load of British Columbia apples ever shipped as a special was made up and shipped from Grand Forks Saturday last, and arrived in Vancouver Tuesday following.

Wednesday Opening Notice.

We, the undersigned, take this means of notifying our friends and patrons in and about Enderby that we have concluded to keep our places of business open every business day in the week. We wish to give no grounds for complaint; we ask your patronage, and are in a position to guarantee satisfaction, in price, quality and service. [Signed] Enderby Trading Co., A. MARTIN BURRELL MAKES TELLING SPEECH

We have been told by Liberal speakers that, while Martin Burrell is a man of spotless character, an eloquent orator and a man of undoubted ability, yet, they say, he is not a fighter. To Duncan Ross they give all the fighting honor, and from every platform in the Yale-Cariboo District the voters have been asked to return Mr. Ross to Ottawa, because "he is a fighter."

But Martin Burrell, in his address at Enderby last Saturday afternoon, simply fought Duncan Ross clean off the map. To compare the addresses of the two men is needless. Mr Ross, in his address last week, skimmed over the real issues of the campaign and endeavored to make political capital out of questions that were not issues in the campaign at all. Mr. Burrell took up the arguments of Mr. Ross and showed by quoting from Mr. Ross' speeches in Hansard that Mr. Ross was either talking for political effect regardless of facts or had completely reversed the order of his thinking, and had changed his mind on the important questions affecting British Columbia.

The Burrell meeting was without dispute the most enthusiastic of the campaign. The afternoon hour prevented many from attending, but the hall was crowded to the doors, and Mr. Burrell was compelled many times to repeat himself when his voice was drowned by the applause which greeted the climaxes of his argument. At the conclusion of the meeting three rousing cheers and a tiger were given for Mr. Burrell. Certainly, no candidate for any office was ever given a warmer reception than was given Mr. Burrell at Enderby, and if the meeting is any criterion of the voting today, Mr. Burrell will go out of Enderby with a majority of 40 or more.

Mr. Fortune acted as chairman of the meeting. Mr. Fulton, Commissioner of Lands and Works, was introduced as the first speaker. He came in the place of Mr. Cowan who was detained at Vancouver. Mr. Fulton stated that he came to show the true status of the Indian Reserve dispute. Mr. Ross, in his address at Enderby last week, stated that the Provincial government was entirely to blame for the unsatisfactory condition of the Indian reserve matter, and he said that his government had repeatedly endeavored to get the matter into court in order to find out just what rights the Provincial government had in the matter, and said further that the Dominion government had determined to submit the matter to the Privy Council whether the Province was ready and willing or not.

Mr. Fulton said he could not understand how Mr. Ross could make such a statement in face of the real facts, and accused Mr. Ross of being either forgetful of the real facts or deliberately trying to mislead. Through Mr. Fulton's department all business in connection with Indian lands in the Province is handled. Mr. Fulton has carried on all the correspondence that has passed between the two governments in recent years, and his statement of the case is so different from that made by Mr. Ross that it places Mr. Ross up a tree and would indicate that Mr. Ross either did not know what he was talking about or was giving pure "guff" to catch votes.

When the question of Indian reserves came up between the Dominion and the Province, Mr. Fulton said, the Dominion asked the Province how much land it would give the Dominion for Indian reserves. The Province replied, five acres to every Indian family of five. The Dominion asked for 80 acres for every family of five. The Province raised the allotment to 10 acres, then to 20, which amount was agreed upon by the two governments, with the proviso that the land should revert to the Province when it was no longer needed by the Indians. When the Indians decreased in population, the lands not used should come back to the Province. At the present time, he said, he finds that there are alloted to the Dominion government for the Indians a total of 525,000 acres. The Indian population of the Province is barely 24,000, hence the Dominion is holding 110 acres for every family of five instead of 20 acres, as was originally agreed upon. Last year Mr. Fulton wrote the Dominion government asking that a settlement be made with the Province so that they may be opened to white settlers. The reply of the Dominion government was, that there was a question as to whether the Province had any reversary interest in these lands and the Dominion declined to enter into any negotiations in the matter. Since then, the Dominion has applied to the Province for additional Indian land, and to this application Mr. Fulton has replied on behalf of the Province, that since the Dominion has seen fit to dispute the reversary rights of the Province, the Province declines to listen to any more applications for Indian land from the Dominion, and suggesting that the sooner the matter is brought into the courts for settlement the better. Two letters have been written the Dominion government since then, asking the Dominion to submit the matter to the courts and no answer has been received from either of these letters. Finally the Province has prepared a case and will submit it to the full court sitting at Vancouver this month, and the Dominion has been asked to defend the issue, but no attention has been paid to the request up to the present time.

Mr. Fulton also referred to the Kian Island matter and contrasted the attitude of the Provincial government with that of the Dominion, showing wherein the interests of the Province were safeguarded by the Provincial government when the agreement was entered into with the Grand Trunk Pacific. In closing, he referred to the Conservative successes in the Province, and asked the support of th voters for Mr. Burrell on his strength as a man capable of standing shoulder to shoulder with Mr. Cowan, elected in Vancouver; Mr Barnard, elected in Victoria, and Mr. Taylor, elected in New Westminster. He said Mr. Ross was promising favors from the Dominion in case he was returned, but he believed the Province did not need to ask favors. What our representatives need to ask for is our rights as a Province, and he believed our Conservative representative would be in a better position to demand these than were the the silent seven Liberal representatives in the last parliament.

Mr. Burrell was loudly applauded when he took the platform. Mr. Burrell said on opening that he failed to see in any of the reported speeches of Mr. Ross a single argument that would appeal to an honest voter who asked no more than his rights and was prepared to give a square deal. He took up Mr. Ross' reported statements, made throughout Yale

Cariboo, and answered them one by one. He stated at the outset that he would not make a statement that was nit supported in the pages of Hansard, and his faculty for turning Mr. Ross' own reported speeches to answer Mr. Ross' own statements, pleased the audience greatly. In the matter of better terms, he said that, while Mr. Ross is claiming this to be a question of no importance, and put out as a vote-getter, still, Mr. Ross had, while on the floor in the last parliament, favored better terms until his chiefs had imposed upon him the duty of keeping silent. Since his leaders have refused to permit him to talk on the question of better terms, Mr. Ross has contented himself by declaring that we of British Columbia have no case; that the Dominion has already given us more than we as a Province are entitled to. He declares the cry of better terms is a fake, and says that we have already been paid $5,000,000 more than we paid in. The position taken by Mr. Ross in this matter is not the position taken by such good Liberals as J. A. McDonald, M.P.P., who has, with other Liberals at his back, been fighting for better terms for British Columbia ever since the question was raised. And Mr. Laurier himself has conceded that owing to British Columbia's peculiar geographical position and the vastness of its territory, this province is entitled to better terms. And, quoting from a speech made by Mr. Ross himself, we find him saying: "So far as B. C. is concerned, its chief function is to contribute funds to be expended in other provinces."

Mr. Burrell considered the Jap the greatest menace to Canada of any or all of the yellow people. When the Conservative party was in power, the federal government submitted to Canada for approval or rejection the treaty proposed between England and Japan allowing the Japs to enter Canada without restriction. The Conservative government refused to accept the treaty unless Canada were allowed to have the benefit of the restricting clause. When the Laurier government came into power, the same treaty was submitted to Canada, and after much delay, Mr. Laurier agreed to accept the treaty unconditionally, and in so doing gave over to Japan the power to dictate terms of restriction. He referred to the numerous Natal acts passed by the Province of B. C., all of which were sent back by the Dominion government with the statement that they could not be allowed to become law owing to "Imperial reasons." When the Japanese treaty was up before the house for approval, the only Liberal from British Columbia that spoke against the treaty was Mr. Kennedy, of New Westminster, and he was cast out by the party for daring to do so.

Mr. Burrell referred to Mr. Ross' position on the Aylesworth bill, which promised to disfranchise thousands of voters. This bill, he claimed, was the most iniquitous legislation that the party ever attempted to put through, and yet, in all the long months devoted to fighting it, Mr. Galliher of Kootenay was the only Liberal from B. C. who dared question the purpose of it. Mr. Ross tried his best to have it pass. In his closing remarks favoring the passage of the Aylesworth bill, Mr. Ross is reported in Hansard: "It would be cowardice for us not to pass this bill, notwithstanding the onslaught of the opposition." But the fight against the bill was so bitter, that, in spite of the large Liberal majority, the Government failed to push it through.

When the American fruit growers were attempting to have the tariff on American fruit wiped out, Mr. Ross was not in Ottawa to look after the interests of his constituency. He was out in British Columbia, stumping for Mr. McDonald. And were it not for the interest of the fruit men, who had to fight the battle alone and unaided by their member, the tariff on fruit from the other side would have been removed.

Concluding his speech, Mr. Burrell referred to the cowardice of Mr. Ross in having the election in Yale-Cariboo deferred. But it was readily seen that his remarks in this connection were unnecessary. The audience showed in every possible way its recognition of the cowardice and its resentment toward the perpetrator. Mr. Burrell said he was confident the people of Yale-Cariboo would show their resentment at having this political ruse worked upon them, and he felt confident of election. He said he did not have post-offices, telephones, and other government favors in his pockets to offer as a bait to the voters, but he promised that should he be elected, he would honestly and conscientiously strive to serve the District to the limit of his ability. He said he would not be a silent member when British Columbia's interests were at stake.

Hospital Talk

Five Enderby cases are booked for the Vernon hospital this month, which means, roughly, $600 or $700 transfered from Enderby to Vernon. Thus it goes. Enderby has had four resident physicians in as many years. Good physicians come to locate here. In a year or so they move to other fields. Why?

This question was asked last week. The answer was so easy everybody guessed it. Enderby people are compelled to go to Vernon and take hundreds of dollars out of Enderby, because Enderby has provided no place where the sick can be taken care of. The movement inaugurated by the ladies of the town, for a hospital for Enderby is the wisest effort that has been put forth, not only from a humane standpoint, but from the point of business as well, and it is hoped that the public meeting to be held in a few days will be attended by everybody having the welfare of Enderby at heart. So long as we provide no place for maternity and general hospital cases, we can not complain if our people go elsewhere for treatment.

Presbyterian Bazaar and Sunday School Entertainment

Thanksgiving Day was bright and warm—an ideal day for thanksgiving festivities. In the early afternoon the band gave a much appreciated concert from the bandstand, and then adjourned to the Presbyterian Church where they gave several selections for the benefit of the church bazaar, there in progress.

The bazaar proved to be a success. The fancy work counter made a noise like a groan under the weight of pretty and useful things; the candy booth looked too sweet for anything tucked away in the cozy corner; and the refreshment tables enticed many of the sterner sex to partake of the dainties there offered. The proceeds from the bazaar sales amounted to $110.

In the evening the Sunday School children's entertainment was given in the basement. It proved to be quite as great a success as the bazaar. Ted Hopkins was financial agent for the affair, and as such saw to it that the good things, including the price of admission, fell alike upon the just and the unjust. Nobody escaped his watchful eye. And as a result, the ladies who handled the affair are jubilant, having taken in $71 for the church fund.

Rev. Mr. Campbell officiated as chairman, while Mrs. Crane handled the music, and Mrs. Hendrickson, Mrs. Glenn, and Miss Wheeler directed the children. When this is said it is hardly necessary to add that the exercises went without a hitch. Promptly at 8 o'clock the exercises began, and at 9:30 "God Save the King" was sung.

The boys and girls taking part in the drills and motion songs richly deserve all the praise bestowed upon them, on their own behalf and on behalf of the ladies through whose untiring efforts the children were brought to such splendid self-possession. If one feature of the entertainment is to be pointed out as being especially pleasing it is the sweet baby simplicity of the wee tots, Marjorie Bell and Alma Matthews. Their unconscious acting in the motion songs convulsed the house. Following is the program as rendered:

Greeting Song ..... School
Recitation, "The Free Seat," ..... Florence Nichol
Drill, "Sunbonnet Babies," Children
Song, "Sunbeams," ..... Rena & Dorothy Dunwoodie
Motion song, "God Loves," ..... Girls
Recitation, "Prayer & Potatoes," ..... Edna Greyell
Song, "How Many Miles," Winnie Bell
Song, "Johnnie's Trade," ..... Boys
Handkerchief Drill, ... Ten Girls
Recitation, "The Dishes," Grace Miller
Song, "Jumbo," Dorothy Dunwoodie
Song, "Oh, What a Clatter," Girls
Recitation, Big Dipper, Marjorie Taylor
Song, "Invalid Dolly," Little Girls
Song, "The Owl," ..... Boys
Motion song, "God is Love," Girls
Song, "Leaf by Leaf the Roses Fall," Florence Nichol
Hoop Drill Song ..... Girls
God Save the King

Miss Edna Greyell won much praise by her pleasing rendition of the recitation allotted to her; the recitation and song by Miss Florence Nicholl, and the recitation by Grace Miller and the song by Winnie Bell, were also exceptionally well given. The little ones all did well.

An Honest Grit Paper

The Princeton Star is a Grit paper and enjoys advertising pap from Ottawa, yet its editor has the courage to speak as follows:

"Any man who is afraid to meet his foe on equal grounds has already admitted that he deserves censure rather than praise. To court defeat one has only to play the coward. The most that should have been done was to put nomination day ahead so that every voter in the Dominion could vote on the same day. No other country in the civilized world would countenance such a monstrosity as a deferred election.

"Mr. Burrell has an unsullied reputation and has the respect of every man and woman in the riding, two things that will easily offset the unfair advantage his Grit opponent may have in a deferred election.

No matter what government or party in power Mr. Burrell will creditably represent the people and easily accomplish as much for the Princeton district as any government supporter. He does not descend to personalities or indulge in low insinuations, his plane of oratory being far above the average. . . . . Any government with a large majority behind it is bound to become top heavy, and must, sooner or later, totter to ruin of its own unwieldy proportions. Political corruption thrives best where the grafter maggots are most plentiful. Therefore, it would seem to be the part of wisdom for the voter to keep down large majorities in the house as much as possible. The deferred elections and at leaat two by-elections now in sight afford a fitting opportunity to the voter to equalize the present towering majority of Sir Wilfred. And this can be done without impairing his normal strength, for it is a well known fact that the premier would feel relieved if some vigorous weeding were done by his own followers in the elections of Yale-Cariboo and Kootenay. Two 'political dynamiters' from B. C. is rather more than a man of Sir Wilfrid's serene and placid temperament cares for."

"East is East, and West is West"

Much has been heard about the inability of the Canadian government to exclude the yellow races and especially persistent has been this cry when British Columbia has passed exclusion laws and they have been vetoed by the Dominion government. That this cry is not going to be permitted to block legislation along these lines much longer, is becoming more apparent daily. A splendid article in The British Export Gazette, the leading trade journal of the United Kingdom, indicates that the question is receiving serious consideration by the powers that be. Taking Mauritius, an English island in the Indian Ocean, as an example the Gazette says:

"Mauritius is an example of how the white man has been entirely displaced by the invasion of Asiatics. That island has been over-run with them, and they include almost every nationality known in the East. We are not, of course, without sympathy for those Asiatics who are British subjects, and at first sight it seems an anomaly to exclude them from trading in any of our Colonies whilst granting this privilege to the European because he happens to be white. But, as Kipling somewhere says—

East is East, and West is West.

"In the line we have quoted is summed up the whole gist of the matter. The two races are irreconcilable, and cannot live on the same plane with each other. The question is proving a thorn in the side of the Transvaal and Imperial Governments, as it did in pre-war times, but in the end the Asiatic must go, for as the Natal Colonial Secretary recently stated, this class of trader is eating into the very vitals of our Colonies, and just as the question is becoming acute in Zanzibar and South Africa, so it will be elsewhere—it has already become so in Jamaica—and where the law does not exclude such undesirables, however regretable it may be that the innocent may have to suffer for the guilty, the next best thing is for European merchant houses, of whatever nationality, to stop all credit or other facilities for competing with the white races."

"Enderby is a charming villiage with city airs. When Paddy Murphy shook the snow of Sandon off his feet he came here, and now owns one of finest brick hotels in the country. Whiffldig Personals

From the Whiffldig Observer.

Looks like rain as we go to press, but sometimes it don't rain at Whiffldig when it looks like it.

It is quite coolish these nights and frost can be saw almost every morning by them as are up early enough to see it, which hardly anybody in Whiffldig is. Ye editor is now sitting in his shirt sleeves with the office door open.

Skunks or something has been stealing Widder Skinner's hens. They have took seven already and now the widder ain't got only five hens left includlng two roosters.

Personals is very scarce this week, and ye editor would thank any person hearing of any personals in our midst to bring same to us from week to week so we can publish them in the Observer and thus fill a long-felt want. If the personal is a personal of yourself, don't hesitate to bring it in—nobody else does.

Labor sometimes needs to be protected from its fool friends.

Butter-making

If any butter maker makes butter that she's proud of, it's good business for her to let the world know where it came from. Nicely printed vegetable parchment butter paper, and printed with an alkali ink that won't run, will do it. The Walker Press can furnish the finest vegetable parchment, the finest ink that won't run, and the finest quality of printing. If you can furnish the finest butter, you'll have a winning combination.

Wednesday Closing Again

Ed. Walker's Weekly: Sir: Will you permit me to reply to W. Allan Dobson's communication in last week's issue of your paper. I am not trying to attract attention to myself, therefore I prefer to sign myself "Deep Creek." I do not withhold my name through cowardice; I only asked the merchants of Enderby a simple question, and one which I believe many of my neighbors would like to see answered. Mr. Dobson does not speak for the merchants of Enderby, and his communication only expresses his personal opinion about the farmer, "pet of the gods." Your merchants who have dealt with the farmers long before Mr. Dobson's time will, I hope, know what it means for us to drive to town through the mud and snow of fall, winter and spring, and perhaps they can imagine our feelings when we do so on a Wednesday and find the stores closed. When we do so once, the next time we will drive to a town where the merchants are not so overworked.

DEEP CREEK.

It is not a new revelation we need, but the spirit illumination of the old revelation.

Under the Pines

UNDER THE PINES is the daintiest little magazine published in Canada. It is issued by H. M. Walker and costs but 50c a year.—The Ledge.

A Magazine Published Monthly

UNDER THE PINES is not a picture book. It is a Magazine, clearly printed and of convenient size, arranged and prepared to give to the reader a richer experience and fuller conception of life. It is published primarily to assist men and women as good and as bad as you and I to grasp life in its fuller meaning and learn in and through the simple duties of life the best way to live and serve. It can't hurt you, and may bring you into much peace and comfort. It is

A Magazine of Candor and Truth

A Magazine that touches man at his best and leaves him thinking better of himself and his fellows. It lives to be conscientiously true to Life at its best, and to develop in the individual a completer knowledge of the Cosmic Self. It aims to make man full-grown in his ideas, his expression and his work, and to contribute to his Ego by drawing off his vanity. Life's realities are its steps to Heaven—in the here, now and to-morrow.

Something to Make You THINK and DO

Appears in every number and if you are not satisfied with what you get, tell us so and get your money back. "Broaden your life, elevate your mind, increase your faith and remove all bitterness from your nature, and you will be drawn to people that will not disappoint." Make yourself necessary.
