DESTROYED BY LIGHTNING

The severest electrical storm of the year visited the district Sunday afternoon, accompanied by a heavy downpour. In and about the vicinity of Mabel Lake, several small cloudbursts played havoc with the roads, and detained some of the pleasure-seekers who motored to the lake from Enderby, until the following morning. Lightning hit at several points in the hills, and on the Indian reserve the mission church was struck. An hour or more later the belfry of the church broke out in flames, and soon the church was burned to the ground, together with the priests quarters adjoining the church. The old building situated 75 feet south of the church was saved by the Indians, together with the seats and other furnishings of the church.

The Indians of the reserve were convinced that a whiteman set fire to the building; some even going so far as to say that they saw two men come up to the church and one of them go into it and climb to the bell tower, then come out and one of them ride away on a wheel in the direction of Armstrong and the other walk away in the direction of Enderby. Other stories quite as improbable were told, apparently in all sincerity. They even went so far as to follow the man on the wheel, and to send for the Provincial and City Constables and demand his arrest. The man accused quickly proved the absurdity of the Indians' claim. He happened to be the first person to pass the church and gave the alarm, at the same time setting to work to help the Indians remove the church furnishings, afterward continuing on his trip to the Stepney ranch.

The Indians cannot be made to believe that the fire came from the clouds. "The High Tiyee" would never set fire to his own house, they say; and place the blame upon the "white man devils."

The loss is a severe one to the reserve Indians. The total value of the buildings destroyed will be in the neighborhood of $3,000.

RESIGNATION ALREADY IN

Dear Sir: I wish to inform you that I sent in my resignation as a member of the Enderby School Board about a month ago.

Yours sincerely, A. FULTON.

Calgary, July 11, 1914.

Friends of the Cottage Hospital who contributed to the "shower" given by the Ladies' Auxiliary, are wondering why no acknowledgement has been made by the ladies. We understand it is the intention of the Auxiliary to issue a statement to the public when, no doubt, due acknowledgement will be made for all contributions received.

IDEAL FOR DAIRYING

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Dorsey and children, of Waterville, Wash., visited Enderby the week-end by auto. Mr. Dorsey is a grain farmer of the Big Bend country. He is managing 17,000 acres for one of the grain growing companies of the Big Bend, and in addition has his own 640 to handle. Wheat is the principal cereal crop, and this is handled on so large a scale that acreage does enter into the question after plans are laid to handle the first few thousand acres.

This was Mr. Dorsey's first trip into the Okanagan. He was more than pleased with conditions here. But what struck him hardest was to see such an ideal country as the Enderby district for dairying, with so few of the farmers into it. It was, to him, remarkable to see how readily white clover grows in this district. On the hilltops, sidehills, and in the valleys and bottom lands—everywhere he looked—he found white clover growing so abundantly. Where this is found, he said, the men who are familiar with the work of raising dairy herds believe that they have the ideal thing for cows and poultry and such side-lines as naturally go with these agricultural branches.

And he believed that, no matter how good this portion of the Okanagan may be for fruit and grain, it would never reach its best until the farmers of the district got into the dairy business in earnest and established their creameries, egg collecting stations, etc., through which all could co-operate in the handling and marketing of their produce.

UNITED GROWERS DOING WELL

Step into the Vernon offices of the Okanagan United Growers at this season, and you will find all hands and the chief busy as bees, amid the hum and click of typewriters and sundry record keepers. Manager Robertson is one of the busiest men of the office staff, with the requirements of every department at his finger end, and an eye on the business at every turn.

Questioned as to the season's outlook, Mr. Robertson said it was fully up to their expectations. In marketing the early fruits, etc., the Central Agency had met with very good success thus far, and these were the most difficult of all fruits to handle. He saw no reason to believe but that the record of the Growers this season would be one of credit to that association and the District.

Mr. Robertson is particularly anxious to see the growers of the Enderby district co-operate in the matter of dairy and poultry products. He impresses one with having a thorough knowledge of market conditions, and when he says there is an unlimited demand for the products that Enderby district is best adapted to produce, one cannot but regret that our growers are not better organized so as to take advantage of the market requirements.

"We do not wish to be judged by any single individual case, nor any series of individual cases. We will be judged on the season's operations and in this way only," said he.

MERRY WEDDING BELLS

The marriage of Miss Cobb and Mr. Chapman was solemnized by the Rev. Comyn Ching, at All Saints Church, Vernon, on Thursday last, in the presence of a few intimate friends and relatives.

The bride, attired in blue silk colienne, with hat and veil of Point d'Alencon, and carrying a shower bouquet of white carnations (the gift of the bridegroom), was given away by her cousin, Mr. R. Hadow.

Miss Sybil Salt, in white and blue with hat to match (to whom the brdiegroom's present was a gold and pearl brooch), officiated as bridesmaid. Mr. Chapman was accompanied by Mr. Gosnell as best man.

The ceremony was followed by a celebration of the Holy Communion, in which the bride, bridegroom, bridesmaid and best man participated. Mr. Dubec was at the organ and ably played suitable music, terminating with the Wedding March as the bridal procession left the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Chapman made a brief stay at Okanagan Lake points, returning to their new home, "Wykeham," Loon Lake, yesterday.

JULY 16, 1914

HON. MARTIN BURRELL

It will be a great pleasure for many citizens of Enderby District to have the opportunity to meet the Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, on his arrival in Enderby to-day. The meeting to be held this afternoon in the Enderby Opera House, is not of political significance. It has, indeed, nothing to do with politics. It is Mr. Burrell's wish to meet the people—his friends—of the Enderby District, not to talk politics, but to tell them as he alone can, of the service he has endeavored to render as a member of the Ottawa Government, and to learn from them, first hand, how he can be of further service to the constituency he has represented so well.

Mr. Burrell is not a politician. He is a bigger man. He is an idealist that makes his dreams come true. His practical legislation in the interest of the agriculturists and fruit men, has won for him an honored position in the foreranks of the leaders of his party, and as such the citizens of Enderby District, regardless of party affiliations, will delight to greet him.

It is easier to damn than to forgive, and, since "man makes God in his own image," he teaches, and is more ready to believe, that God has chosen the lesser virtue rather than exercise the greater.

PREMIER ROBLIN'S MAJORITY REDUCED

Latest returns from Manitoba give Premier Roblin a majority of four, as the result of the elections held there last Friday. Premier Roblin's majority in Dufferin, which was 456 at the last election, was cut down to 127. Four out of the six Winnipeg seats went Liberal.

This result was not entirely unlooked for by old-line Conservatives in touch with political affairs in Manitoba. Strong as Premier Roblin has been, and popular as he still is, yet, there were so many things, even within the ranks of his own party, against which he had to fight, that some even went so far as to doubt his ability to carry with a large enough majority to control the next parliament. Speaking of the result, Sir Rodman said:

"Although the Government has had its majority seriously reduced, it will continue its progressive and beneficial conduct of the Province's affairs with a sufficient majority. Its opponents had not been able to criticise its railway, immigration, agricultural and financial policies, and this was an evidence of the government's soundness. The things we have reason to regret is that the seeds of dissension and distrust have been sown so abundantly by our Liberal friends that the government majority has been reduced. However, we hope to win back the support that has been withdrawn."

KEEPING DOWN NOXIOUS WEEDS

The Department of Agriculture is taking more active steps this season than ever before to keep down the noxious weed pest, and has prepared a circular letter dealing with its eradication which should be in the hands of every farmer and land owner. But no matter what steps the Government takes in this connection, there can not be much headway made without the active co-operation of those whose interests are most at stake. With this co-operation, and the active recognition by each individual holder of land, cultivated and uncultivated, that upon him and him alone rests the responsibility for keeping his own place clean, the work of cleaning up disricts would not be at all impossible. Indeed, where this recognition of responsibility has been followed by concerted action on the part of the land holders, the pest has been overcome in many districts in a very short time.

And in no other way can this much sought-for condition be achieved. At no period in the history of agriculture has the noxious weed problem been solved by any other method. Determined personal work on the part of all is the only way. There is no magic way. The Government can do no more than point the way. The rest remains with the men on the land.

I would be obliged if you would call the attention of farmers and land owners generally in your district, says the Deputy Minister of Agriculture, to the necessity for waging a vigorous campaign against noxious weeds, which are becoming so prevalent in many of our best farming districts throughout the Province.

All Provincial constables and forest guards have been again appinted as agents for this Department towards the enforcement of the provisions of the Noxious Weed Act. In addition, noxious weed inspectors have been appointed in different districts of the Province, whose duties will be to carefully go over their districts, see that farmers and land owners are taking the necessary steps to destroy the weeds growing on their lands, and in the event of non-compliance with notices served on him, to institute proceedings against them.

The Department is determined to use every legitimate effort to have the provisions of the Act strictly enforced, and we look for the whole-hearted co-operation of the farmers themselves in this most important matter.

I would also draw your attention to the attached statement, which has been drawn up in the Department, with regard to the noxious weeds which are listed in the Act. Methods of destruction are outlined, and I think that the publication of same would be of material benefit to the agriculturists of the Province:

The following table shows that weeds may be divided into three classes: annuals, biennials and perennials. (1) Annuals complete their growth in a year. The prevention of the formation of seed for one year, followed by careful cultivation to kill all young plants, will soon eradicate annuals. In addition to this, all seed in soil should be encouraged to germinate in order to complete control. (2) Biennials require two seasons to complete their growth, the flowers and seeds being produced during the second year. Due notice should be taken of this fact when fighting weeds of this class. (3) Perennials are plants which continue to grow for many years, being propagated by underground root-stalks, stems, etc., as well as by seeds. The aim in fighting perennials should be to prevent any growth from being made, hence starve the root systems.

There is no known weed which cannot be eradicated if proper measures are taken. Never allow seeds to ripen, and if they do, encourage them to grow so the plants may be killed by cultivation.

Annuals

Russian Thistle, flowers July-September; control by harrowing grain crop as late as possible; hand-pull weeds from waste places; prevent any seed from ripening.

Wild Mustard: flowers June-September; seeds August-September: control by planting clean seed; rotate crops; induce dormant seed in soil to germinate by giving good cultivation; hand-pull.

Tumbling Mustard and Ball Mustard: Flower June-August; seed, July-September; control by same treatment as Wild Mustard.

Stink Weed: Flowers, May until frost comes; seeds, July until frost comes; destroy plants before seeds ripen; encourage seed in soil to germinate and then kill young plants with harrow.

Ragweed: Flowers, July-September; seeds, August-November; hand-pull from grain fields and mow from roadsides before seed ripens.

Blue Bur or Stick-seed: Flowers, June-August; seeds July-October; sow clean seed; hand-pull from waste places and mow young plants to prevent formation of seed.

Dodder: Flowers, June and July; seeds, August and September: Sow clean seed; hand-pull when it appears and if in patches cover with straw and burn.

Wild Oats: Flowers in June and July; seeds, July and August; Rotation of crops, with clean cultivation of the hoed crop; induce seed to germinate in spring and then kill young plants.

Biennials

Bull Thistle: Flowers, June-August; seeds, July-September; plough or cut down before flowers open; in pastures cut below crown of plant. Prevent formation of any seed for two years.

Perennials

Canadian Thistle: Flowers, June-August; seeds, July-September; Plow or cut down before flowers open, or mow then and plow as soon as new growth appears; use short crop rotations.

Perenniel Sow Thistle: Flowers, June-August; seeds, July-September; Prevent leaf growth by plowing field frequently, or by digging plants. Use cultivated crops.

Couch or Quack Grass: Flowers, June; seeds, July-August; Plow shallow in June, remove root-stalks, use cultivated crops.

Summer Pleasures in One of the Dominion's National Parks

Situated in the Rocky Mountains National Park of Canada, Banff the Beautiful is one of the world's greatest tourist resorts. Alighting from the C. P. R. train one is met by a number of rigs and busses to convey him to the hotel he may select. This point having been settled, there are many places of interest and beauty to be visited. Take for example the drive around by the celebrated Bow River Falls, and then doubling back to Tunnel Mountain, and climbing to its summit by way of the Corkscrew Drive, and descending again close to the buffalo corral, where some of the finest specimens of this species may be seen. From there continue the journey to the Cave and Basin, the natural open-air sulphur spring. At this latter point the Government has erected comfortable accommodation for those wishing to enjoy the benefits and the delight of hot sulphur water bathing.

Should a person desire a sulphur bath of higher temperature, then let him visit the upper hot springs, situated on Sulphur Mountain, where commodious bathing places have been erected, and where the water is from 15 to 20 degrees warmer than at the Cave and Basin.

The trip to the observatory on the top of Sulphur Mountain, is well worth taking, and may be made either on horseback or on foot. The trail is easy and well-defined, and the view grand.

Sun Dance Canyon is also within easy driving distance, and is another of the beauty spots of this favorite resort. Five miles from Banff lies the mining villiage of Bankhead, reached by a good road running along the base of Mount Rundle. Here may be seen the anthracite mines operated by the Bankhead Mines Ltd. It is here that a million-dollar plant and equipment was put in for the purpose of manufacturing briquettes.

Thirteen miles from Banff by a good wagon road lies the town of Canmore. In making this journey one passes those curious natural objects known as the Hoodoos, and approaching Canmore comes within sight of those fine peaks, the Three Sisters.

Close to the bridge across the Bow river is situated the Government building, and the animal cages. In the former is housed a fine collection of birds and beasts, whilst in the latter may be seen the living animals of the district, such as bear, mountain lion, lynx, badger, raccoon, kit fox, red fox, etc.

The scenery of Banff must be seen to be really appreciated. Mere words cannot adequately describe it. But, not only in the summer time is this point worthy of a visit. In the winter there is excellent skating and curling to be had, and the grandeur of the snow clad mountains cannot fail to impress one.

Coming westward, the next stopping place is Lake Louise, without doubt one of the most beautiful spots in the Canadian Rockies. Back from the railroad, three miles from the station, is situated the C. P. R. hotel, directly on the shore of Lake Louise, and facing the Victoria Glacier, a solid mass of snow and ice.

Lake Louise is about 2 1-2 miles long by 1 3-4 miles wide, and on its surface is reflected the snow-clad peaks and the dark green of the wooded slopes. It is quite safe to say that never does the surface of the lake appear the same for fifteen minutes at a time. The best time to see this beautiful lake is at sunrise. Just imagine if possible seeing snow-clod Victoria surged with a delicate rosy pink; then look into the surface of the lake, and here is reflected the whole scene, surrounded by the green of the forest slopes.

Taking the trail from the hotel up to the Bee Hive Mountain, one reaches first of all Mirror Lake, and standing at the lakeside, you may obtain a splendid view of the magnificent Bridal Falls, over which the waters from Lake Agnes flow. Climbing the stairway beside the falls you reach Lake Agnes, otherwise known as the "Lake in the Clouds," and here get a view of Lake Agnes Mirror Lake, Lake Louise and the Bow Valley, with the Bow river flowing along like a thin silver thread. The climb up Mount Saddleback is an easy one, and may be made nearly the whole way by ponies. The trip out to Moraine Lake in the Valley of the Ten Peaks is over a well-made carriage drive, but the trip by the trail more than repays one.

Rev. Dr. C. W. Gordon's description of all who do not believe in his policy of "Banish the Bar," as "indecent citizens," leagued with "the organized forces of vice and crime" must have been inspired by the New Testament. In Christ's day about seventy-five per cent. of the Jewish religious world seems to have been composed of Rev. Dr. C. W. Gordons. They were all very good people. In fact, they were so good that they had a monopoly on all virtue and left the rest of the population without any.—Winnipeg Post.

TOWN AND COUNTRY

That everybody is healthier in the country than in the city is so frequently asserted as an absolute fact that nobody ventures to question it. Yet the very curious statistics collected by Dr. Fremantle, a country medical officer in England, would seem to leave it a very even question. It is curious to learn from these statistics that the town child has markedly better teeth than the country one, and is much less subject to adenoids and enlarged tonsils. Eyesight is worse in the country than in the town schools, but, in the latter, there is a larger proportion of stammerers among the very young, whereas, when the age of twelve is reached more country than town children stammer or lisp. Deafness is much more common in town than in country children, but the percentage of tuberculosis and rickets are about the same for both. One very strange fact is that mental deficiency is found to be more common in the towns than in the country while the proportion of children suffering from insufficient nutrition is very much larger in the towns than in the villages. Altogether the report is most interesting. It seems to show that the attention received by the town child more than makes up for the less healthy surroundings in which it lives, and that the tax of town life is rather upon the brain than upon the body.

VILLAGE SAYINGS

Some people are so timid that they are never impudent except to friends.

One of the greatest accomplishments in the world is to be able to back up the minute you find yourself going wrong.

More people seem to be reaching that desperate frame of mind where they don't care if the neighbors do know what they do on Sunday.

The better you get acquainted with a man and his wife, the more surely you discover that they are a little afraid of each other.

One rich man's son who has all the money he can spend, and nothing to do, will spoil ten young men in the course of his life.

I have often been severely criticized because of failure to appreciate a song as much as the girl who sang it.

Don't depend on the Committee; do it yourself.

Take an occasional chance; the sure things are all tied.

When you go on a journey and exspect someone to meet you at the station, and no one does, ever notice how funny you feel.

A mummy is defined as an unobjectionable person whose morals are not questioned.

Today's work is a preparation for tomorrow's.

BOLD YOUNG THING

Marie Lloyd, the clever English comedienne, recently said to a reporter who was interrogating her about her custom-house troubles:

"Your questions are becoming too direct. You are like the young baronet.

"A young baronet, at a dinner party, sat beside a young countess whose arms were particularly white and beautiful.

"I was vaccinated yesterday," the countess said during the course of frozen punch and Russian cigarettes that preceded the game.

"Vaccinated, eh?" said the baronet, and, screwing in his monocle, he stared at both her fresh, round arms intently. Then he added:

"Where were you vaccinated?"

"In London,' said the countess, with a cold little laugh."

A GOOD LISTENER

A ring of the telephone attracted the attention of the office boy.

"A lady wishes to talk to you, sir," he said, addressing the senior partner. The senior partner took up the instrument and stood at the phone for several minutes, a very tired and bored expression on his face. Then he laid the receiver down and went back to his desk.

Twenty minutes later he went to the telephone, said a few words, and hung up the receiver. Then he turned to his partner, who was looking at him in a mystified and puzzled way.

"It was my wife," he explained. "She was still talking and hadn't even missed me."

Not of the Safety Type

When the train stopped at a little southern station the northern tourists sauntered out on the platform. Undea a scrub oak stood a lean animal with scraggy bristles. The tourist was interested. "What do you call that?" he enquired of a lanky native.

"Razor-back hawg."

"Well, what is he doing rubbing against that tree?"

"He's stropping himself mister; jest stropping himself."

Helped the Clock Out

"I was in an awkward predicament yesterday morning," said a husband to another.

"How was that?"

"Why, I came home late, and my wife heard me and said, 'John, what time is it?' and I said, 'only twelve, my dear,' and just then that cuckoo clock of ours sang out three times."

"What did you do?"

"Why, I just had to stand there and cuckoo nine times more."

Judge a woman by her looks, a man by what he does and a merchant by his advertisement.

UNFAIR CRITICISM

No one has a right to complain of fair criticism, but, in order to manufacture party capital, the Liberals frequently attack the Borden administration in a very unfair manner, and in such a way as to injure the credit of the country. Here is a Liberal paper declaring that "for some time back, since the Tories came in, the stocks of British India have actually stood higher in the London market than those of Canada;" adding that "things have come to a pretty pass when we have to take our hats off to the Hindoo during our borrowing trips to Lombard street."

Had the editor turned to any book of reference on financial subjects, he would not have made this blunder. Indian stocks occupy a singular position in the market. The London Economist, in a recent article on British and Colonial stocks, says:

"Indian stocks are generally included in the Consol group itself, although they are not specifically guaranteed by the British Government, as are Irish Land Stocks, Transvaal Threes, and Local Loans. Still, India is not a self-governing country like Canada, Australia, or South Africa. The prospectus of the last Indian Government 3 1-2 per cent. stock issue did not contain the proviso usual in Colonial stock prospectuses, to the effect that the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom is not liable, directly or indirectly, for the loans of the Colonies. It is generally accepted, therefore, that the British Government has at least a moral obligation with regard to Indian finances, and for this reason Indian stocks command a higher price than Colonial stocks."

By all means, let our Liberal friends belabor Mr. Borden for all the sins of which they imagine him to be guilty, but why, in order to injure him, injure the country.

STAND WITHOUT HITCHING

The motor car was standing very still by the roadside, like Harry Tate's in his sketch. "Trouble?" asked a bystander. "Yes." "What power car is it?" "Forty-horse." "What seems to be the matter with it?" "Well, from the way she acts, I should say that thirty-nine of the horses were dead."

Prferred Sausage

"What kind of meat have you this morning?" asked the husband of the butcher.

"The best steak we have ever had, sir. Here you are, sir, as smooth as velvet and as tender as a woman's heart."

"I'll take sausage."

She Was Not Observing.

"Miss Kneehi has no visible means of support," snapped the envious one.

"Hm," grunted the observing male, "guess you never saw her on the street on a rainy day, did you?"—Hardware News.

Climbing in Society

"You folks are being taken up by society, aren't you?"

"Well, we don't believe in bragging, but we know three ladies who smoke cigarettes."

Losing Saving

A penny saved is not always a penny earned. Sometimes it is two pennies lost. The merchant who spends nothing on advertising loses much more than he saves.

The money spent for plate glass windows is not looked on as lost; nor is the money spent on better interior lighting.

Anything that increases favor, that adds to sales, that multiplies customers is very properly regarded as a good investment.

Advertising is a good investment—just as plate glass windows are. Advertising sells more goods to more persons than shop windows do.

Cheerful Guidance to a Happier, Healthier Life
By the Philosopher-Physician
GEORGE F. BUTLER, A. M., M. D.

When a spring is wound up all the time it soon loses its tension, and the machine it controls works poorly. That masterful machine, the body, has one masterful need, relaxation.

A man living temperately out of doors on plain fare (assuming a superior vitality to start with) has the best chance of enjoying strong and glowing sensations. The feeling as if a fire burned brightly inside, as if a live happiness and tingle danced round with the blood, is best manufactured out of keen appetite worked up in fresh air, and a sound stomach, with abundant muscular life behind it all. No one can have this feeling all the while. It is the thrill of supervitality, and is intermittent. But whatever one can get of it, it pays for all it costs, no inebriety sensation approaches it in completeness of satisfaction gained; not whisky nor wine intoxication; nor coffee exhilaration, nor cocaine hyperaesthesia, nor opium narcosis—nothing equals the exhilaration of perfect health. But when people attempt to get this fire sensation by putting fiery things inside their bodies, they are doomed to the greatest of disappointments. There is an uneasy excitement period while the fiery thing attacks the palpitating nerve; later comes a long period of stale and leaden exhaustion in that nerve, and the sensation of life meanwhile dulls and darkens correspondingly.

The Summer Camp

A joyous time in wood and copse,
To wander free from morn till night;
O'er grassy vales and mountain tops,
And back to camp a welcome sight:
With the purling brook hard by.

The forest bids with open arms,
To nature seekers one and all:
Partake in full of all her charms,
So rich in life that ne're can pall:
And the bubbling brook hard by.

Does not a scene so bright and free,
Bespeak a meed of thought and care;
A constant call to you and me,
To breed no devastation there:
With the sparkling brook hard by ?

A careless fire, the smoker's match,
The growth of centuries is doomed;
With sickening haste the giants catch,
The pleasing views for aye entombed:
And the brooklet now is dry.

We have a duty, sacred trust,
The young and old, the small and great;
For each one may, he can, he must,
Protect our woods from such a fate:
And the babbling brook hard by.

New Pre-emptor's Maps that Should Prove Valuable to Settlers

Three new pre-emptor's maps, covering the Nechaco, Chilcoten and North Thompson districts, have just been issued by the surveys branch of the Department of Lands. These maps form part of a series of ten covering approximately 100,000 square miles of land, and will prove of great assistance to intending pre-emptors. They show the lands surveyed to date in the sections covered, the tracts available for pre-emption being shown in pink, while those taken up are indicated in white. The surveyed areas shown in pink and the unsurveyed land shown in the same color can be pre-empted at the office of the Government agent of the land-recording division in which it is situated. It is necessary to stake the unsurveyed land and describe it according to meets and bounds in the application. The surveyed tracts can be applied for without staking, being described in the application number.

Maps have already been issued in this series showing the lands for pre-emption in the Fort George and Tete Jaune Districts. It was in these districts that 80,000 acres was opened to pre-emption last month, and over three-quarters of this land remains open. The new maps cover the areas adjoining that embraced in previous ones; the whole series are drawn to connect with each other.

Nechaco sheet shows the territory westward of the Fort George District, extending to the Hazelton division, and embraces the great interior lake basin, and the Nechaco, Endako and other fertile valleys. The North Thompson sheet shows the land adjoining the new C. N. R. and extends northward from the railway belt to the territory embraced in the maps previously published. It includes the Canem Lake, Bridge Lake and Bonaparte districts of eastern Lillooet and southern Cariboo plateau and valleys. Another map, the Quesnel sheet, is being completed, which will cover the territory between that embraced in the Chilcoten and North Thompson sheets. This series of maps published by the Department of Lands describing in detail the topographic and other features of the Fort George, Fort Fraser, Skeena, Cariboo and Peace River land recording divisions, will prove of great value to intending settlers.

An exchange sums up the reason for the high cost of living in the following manner: We throw away ashes and buy soap. We raise dogs and buy hogs. We grow weeds and buy vegetables, and catch ten cent fish with a four dollar rod. We build school houses and send our children away to be educated, so that the boys will be able to hunt 15 cent rabbits with a forty dollar dog; and the girls may be sufficiently educated to do fancy work and play the piano, while mother washes the dishes. Yes, these are hard times.

Dr. C. C. James, of the department of agriculture at Ottawa, was the speaker at a largely attended meeting of the Canadian Club last night. The subject of his address was "The Romance of Agriculture," and the principal feature of his remarks was his advocacy of the growth of alfalfa in place of wheat in the West.

"Alfalfa is a name to conjure with in the future," said he, "and much will depend on its cultivation in the future years."

Sinning Against Your Home Town

DO OUR MERCHANTS SIN AGAINST THEIR HOME TOWN?

We have shown what happens to Enderby when we patronize the mail order houses.

We have shown what happens to our local merchants when we do not patronize them.

Now what happens when the merchants do not co-operate with the producers in the handling of their (the producers') products?

Correspondence by readers of this series of articles reveals the following: "We have had difficulty in disposing of such commodities as fruit, vegetables, butter, eggs, etc. The merchants evidently prefer to import these commodities from other points for exactly the same reason as consumers, at the present time, send to other places for clothing and other mail order commodities."

A wheel is as strong as its hub.

The business section of any community is the buy—the barometer of prosperity—of progress.

And if the different business interests of the town do not work together—the hub is weakened and the "spokes of prosperity" feel the strain.

Just as the local merchant depends on the people of his home town for support, so do the producers of our food products depend on the merchants' co-operation.

If such were not the case, we would see more farms "to lease" or "for sale."

The producers have put time, labor and money in their business, just as the merchant has done with his store, and for the merchant to stop his support in favor of an outside producer, is a heavy sin against his home town.

The discouraging of agricultural investments, and manufacturing concerns in the local field, is the same as taking the backbone out of any community.

And don't forget that the producers' trade is no small item in the year's total sales.

Every year finds the farmer's personal and home needs increasing. This is due, to no small extent, to the magazines, farm publications and the newspapars the farmer reads. Also as business increases with him he wants more comforts for himself and family because he can afford them. And nine cases out of ten he will spend his money at home because by so doing he is helping his own property increase in value as the town prospers.

But if he cannot sell his products he cannot afford these comforts and necessities.

It is a well-known fact that fully 65 per cent of farmers who patronize the mail order houses do so either because they cannot get what they want at home or that the town tradesmen do not offer them any co-operation.

Such a spirit on the part of the people of any town is bad—they are sinning against their home town—against themselves and their own interests; because it makes the farmers feel that evidently their interests are of no account to the town people, so why should they put themselves out to help the town progress?

This is the last article in this series dealing with the farmer and the local merchant. Is it necessary to show any more why the local merchant should co-operate fully and at all times with the producer?

B. C. RETAILERS' ASSOCIATION

At the recent convention of the Retail Merchants' Association of B. C., held at Vernon, the Enderby association was the only association in the Okanagan that was not represented. The Retail Grocers' Review's correspondent says of the success of the convention:

"The Vernon convention was the most successful and useful meeting of merchants I have ever attended. Enthusiasm pervaded the whole of those present, and I believe a vast amount of good has been accomplished for association upbuilding."

Speaking editorially, the Review adds: "Personally I enjoyed the meetings very much; both in size and in enthusiasm they were encouraging. Nothing succeeds like success, and nothing brings about success quicker than enthusiasm. I feel absolutely certain of the future of the Retail Merchants' Association Nothing can hinder its growth now but the absolute indifference of our merchants, and no one who was at Vernon will believe that possible. So I have this one message to every merchant who reads this: Get in; you cannot afford to stay out. This association is an established success."

Fat Cabbages Make Fat Calves

Under this suggestive headline an Enderby citizen writes The Press in this fashion:

"In these days of hard times when business is dead, the man who is going to succeed is the man who can create business. It is interesting to note some of the bright schemes that are being worked. For instance, one or more of the hardware merchants of the town seems to have hit on a neat little idea for creating a demand for fence wire. It looks as though they all had entered into an agreement with some rancher in the vicinity, who owns three sleek heifers, whereby the aforesaid heifers are allowed to roam the streets and convince the garden owners that fences are no longer a luxury put a necessity. I hope this is as good business for the rancher as for the merchant or merchants. Whether it is or not will depend on who pays the fines. Anyway, the heifers are getting fat and the cabbages, that are left, will bring a better price from lack of competition. Also, the gardeners are getting excited, which is, presumably, a good thing in these dull times, while the hoof prints in the lawns will be an appreciable start when we commence to bore for oil.'
