
Enderby, B.C., December 3, 1914 AND WALKER'S WEEKLY Vol. 7; No. 40; Whole No. 342

ENDERBY NEWS IN BRIEF

Wee Mary Murphy was seriously ill the past week, but is again able to wield the scepter over the King Edward.

There will be a meeting of the Hospital Auxiliary at the home of the president, Mrs. Reeves, at 3.30 p.m., Thursday, Dec. 3rd.

Many Enderbyites participated in the dance given in Grindrod school last Friday night, and all enjoyed immensely the hospitality of the Grindrod folk.

The Enderby Alfalfa Products Co. this week installed a new engine and grinder of largely increased capacity to handle the increasing business.

The Provincial Poultry Show will be held at Vernon this year, opening on the 8th of December and closing on the 11th. Many Enderby birds will be shown.

A. Smithers was again successful with his show birds last week, at Kelowna, where his White Rock cock carried off 1st and special, and his Houdan cockerel 1st, and pullet 2nd.

Methodist Church services: Morning, at 11; evening at 7.30. Morning subject, "Elijah, or the Right Use of Passion." Evening, "Can Men Remain Neutral." Sunday school at 2.30.

Mrs. H. M. Walker received the sad intelligence this week of the death of her aged father, at Glenwood Farm, Ont. Dr. Walker visited Enderby some three years ago, and spent several months here.

Ed. Dill distributed some choice pieces of venison among his Enderby friends this week. He shot a fine specimen in the vicinity of Mabel Lake, and retains a very fine pair of antlers as his share of the sport.

All persons intending to visit the Provincial Poultry Show at Vernon next week, 8th to 11th, are urged to purchase a ticket one way only, and secure from local agent a standard certificate, which must be handed to the secretary on arrival at Vernon.

The first of the buildings of the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. R. Lawes, to be erected on Enderby Heights, was put in position by Contractor Russell the past week. It will be followed, in the spring, by the residence and other outbuildings.

There was a game of basket ball in the armory last evening between the Northsiders and Southsiders of Cliff street, which was won by the Northsiders. This game was followed by another between the young ladies of the town, which was fast, furious and intense, and very interesting to the spectators.

Another Enderby landmark is disappearing. Mr. Woods is tearing down the old home of Geo. R. Lawes, which has looked down upon the town from the head of Cliff street from the earliest log-cabin days. It is Mr. Woods' intention to build for himself an ideal home on this ideal home-site.

The body of Mr. Frank Hassard, Sr., was brought in from the coast on Monday to Armstrong, for burial. Deceased had been in failing health for some months, and had been at the coast for treatment since early in the summer. He was one of the early pioneers of Armstrong, and a citizen greatly respected by the community.

News from War Zone Increasingly Nil

122nd day of the war.
83rd day of Battle of the Aisne.
51st day of Battle of Flanders.

Seldom since the war began have the reports from all quarters been so vague as they have come from the front the past week. Little news of a dependable character has been given out, and it is difficult to judge what progress has been made in either theatre of war.

The early part of the past week very optimistic accounts came through telling of a sweeping victory over the Germans by the Russians in the vicinity of Lodz and the Vistula River, in Poland, but the official report from Petrograd has since shown these reports to be unreliable, and the victory hoped for still in the distance. The British press still contends that a Russian victory on a colossal scale still is possible, though the enemy in the vicinity of Lodz is still fighting furiously and have broken the cordon encircling them, and as reinforcements are coming to them, the issue is not yet decided.

In Belgium, the Germans are reported to be on the defensive, with the Allied forces pushing the offensive desperately. Some despatches say the Germans already have begun to fall back from their rear entrenchments, but the official statements do not mention this.

Impressions of the journalists who are fortunate to get actually into the fighting line are that the battle of Flanders is over and that the German offensive has spent itself. German officers, they report, predict a sensational attempt to invade England, not through France at all, but direct from some German port.

Violent fighting was in progress along the Yser canal on Tuesday, according to a telegram from Sluis. The inhabitants of all villiages within an hour's march of the Yser battle front have been sent away.

Reports from Galicia indicate that the Russians are pushing the Austrians back into Cracow. The Austrian line of retreat is strewn so thickly with dead that the Russians have no time to bury them. The cold is so severe that the bodies are frozen.

King George visited the battle front in France-Belgium this week.

Count Von Moltke is reported to have sufficiently recovered from his illness to return to the front to take up the directing of the enemy forces.

Drastic Regulations in Force

London, Dec. 2.—New regulations for the defence of the realm are consolidated in an act published last night, giving the Admiralty and the Army Council virtual power to abrogate all ordinary liberties of all subjects. The act invests the authorities with absolute powers to do whatever they think necessary for defence. All rights of private property disappear for the time, and the leaders of the defence forces have power to take any land or buildings, or commandeer any factory or workshop, and to clear the inhabitants from any district.

Unlimited power of search and arrest are given. Rights of trial by judge and jury cease, and a court martial is given power to inflict on any civilian punishment by death or penal servitude for life, or any lesser penalty.

The Government has, however, through the Lord Chancellor, promised that no civilian British subject shall be deprived of his life by a court martial until parliament meets again. These drastic regulations, six months ago unthinkable, are today taken as a matter of course by all classes. Lord Halsbury, however, says the proposals of the bill are the most unconstitutional things that were ever put into effect in this country.

Have Germans Scotch Coast Base?

London, Nov. 30.—Suspicion that the Germans have a base for submarines, a supply station for aeroplanes and wireless apparatus in remote parts of the Scottish coast may be founded on fact. The activities of the German navy far from its own coasts, which have enabled it to scatter mines off the north of Ireland and to sink the super-dreadnought Audacious by mine or submarine, furnish ground for that theory. The Government has given it sufficient belief to circulate placards in Scotland offering a reward of $500 for the discovery of any base for hostile supplies of petrol or hostile wireless.

"A NIGHT OFF."

This laughable farce-comedy will be given in the Opera House on the evening of Dec. 18th, by local talent, in aid of the Canadian Patriotic Fund. The comedy will be given under the management of Mr. Stocker, and, judging from the interesting rehearsals which are now being held two and three times a week, the people of Enderby will be given a rare treat on the night of the 18th. Special arrangements have been made with Messrs. Bobbs & Johnson, by which the use of the Opera House is given at a nominal figure. Following is the cast:

Susan, "the Brassiest,"..... Miss Francis Mowat
Procol, Usher at the University,.... Mr. Harry Grindon
Justinian Babbitt, Professor of Ancient History in the Campdown University,.. Mr. R. L. Stocker
Angelica Damask, his eldest daughter,.... Miss Elliott

Two More Battalions from B.C.

Colonel Ogilvie, of Victoria, district officer commanding, has received instructions from Ottawa to resume recruiting for two more British Columbia battalions totalling 2200 men, and it is expected that the necessary arrangements will be made for a start within the week. Vancouver will be asked to contribute one battalion of about 1134 officers and men.

FEES REDUCED

I beg to advise that the Department of Agriculture has decided to reduce the fees for pruning and packing schools this year, to $1 for Pruning Schools and $2 for Packing Schools, and I would be obliged if you would inform the members of your Institute accordingly.

I would call your attention to the fact that no school can be held unless there are at least eight entries for Pruning Schools and twelve for Packing Schools.

Pruning School diplomas. The Department will issue diplomas to pupils of Pruning Schools who are recommended by the instructors as possessing the necessary qualifications to perform or supervise practical orchard pruning. As a high standard will be set and maintained, the diplomas will stand as certificates of competence in this work.

Yours truly,
WM. E. SCOTT,
Supt. of Institutes.

KILLED BY A RUN AWAY

Hulcar in particular, and the Northern Okanagan generally, suffered a severe blow last Saturday night, when by a distressing runaway accident a few miles from his home Mr. Donald Matheson was thrown from his rig and instantly killed. The team ran home, and the son, suspecting that some serious injury had befallen his father, went in search of him. He had proceeded to the hill on the road from Armstrong, about two miles form home, and there found the body of Mr. Matheson by the roadside. The skull was crushed in, apparently from striking a tree or stump in the course of the fall or run-away.

The funeral service was held at the Presbyterian Church, Armstrong, on Monday.

Few men in the Valley were better known than Donald Matheson, and none more worthy of respect and esteem. He was a man big in ideas and heart, and strong in all that goes to make a character worth while.

NOW IS THE TIME TO GET TOGETHER

The thought has been expressed by some that this is the time to play the bear—hibernate. It is the greatest mistake in the world. In all small towns in the west, where we have little or no manufacturing industries developed, business will be quiet enough without making it worse by crawling into a snug corner and there staying for the winter. There is much that can be done in the way of preparing for the prosperous times that are sure to come this way just as soon as the war ends, if not before. There are many things that can be done better just now than at any other time, and every little improvement in the development of the town—every hour's of labor expended this winter—will bring big returns next summer; and, this winter, will give employment to men who will need the work.

It is pleasing to see that a few of our property owners see the logic of this position, and are at this time tearing down to built up anew on a better and more substantial basis. Buildings are berenovated, home grounds improved, and unsightly buildings removed. This winter will be a splendid time for just such work to be done. Men to do the work are not hard to find, and they will give good returns in labor for the wages paid.

And in the purchase of property, this is the best time one can have. Sacrifices are being made, the present owners needing money. The man who can find the purchase price will have little difficulty in buying property at prices that would have been snubbed a year ago—and would be refused a year from now.

There could be no better time to advertise the resources of this district than right now. Men in the Northwest and at the coast are seeking to get away from the cities and on to small farm land, where they will be able to raise most of what they require for the table. This district abounds in just such small holdings, and if the price were made right there would be no difficulty in interesting prospective buyers.

MORE LIFE, LESS "FAD"

While the churches throughout Christendom are bemoaning the fact of a lack of interest in church work and a decreasing attendance, the world is witnessing more real work along religious lines than ever. There is almost an utter indifference everywhere to church Christianity, yet at the same time there is witnessed the most profound development of every independent movement for the betterment of man along the lines of the real spirit of the Teacher of Galilee.

There is a reason. While the demand has been made for cleaner political life, better social conditions, truer fellowship, and a broader humanity in all branches of life, the church has ignored these demands and devoted itself to preaching and talking of the world beyond the grave. Much preaching and talking will get the world nowhere. To arrive, we must do. And while the church has been doing so much thinking and talking about it, the world outside the church has been doing it.

While the church has closed its eyes to the practical needs of the people and devoted its time to talking and preaching of things and conditions that may or may not exist, the great practical world has passed beyond preaching and into another stage of development—the doing of the thing. And there is a vast, unnoticed religious sentiment growing up outside of the church that is dealing in a practical way with the real things of life.

SHOULD WE BE DOWNHEARTED ? NO ! !

"I WILL DO NOTHING TO KILL"

Dr. Alfred Salter, a well-known social worker in Bermondsey, London, and a Labor party candidate, has written the following statement of the duty of the Christian citizen. It appeared first in the Labor Leader, and the Friend has now reprinted it as a special supplement:

"Behind all human actions and motives there is a philosophy or creed, and behind all actions and motives that affect us deeply there is a religion," says Dr. Salter. "What a man thinks or does at times like these depends on what his religion is. Every man has a religion, though he may not know it.

"There are only two main religions in the world though each of them has many forms: (1) The religion which trusts in the power and ultimate triumph of material forces—faith in materialism. (2) The religion which trusts in the ultimate triumph of spiritual forces—faith in God.

"Assyria, Babylon, Egypt, Persia, Rome, Spain were all mighty world powers that conquered by relying on material force. By each of these in turn the claims of love, of mercy, of brotherhood, of the sanctity of human life, were treated with scorn as contemptible weaknesses, and the advocates of such claims were suppressed or laughed out of court. All these military empires in their day and generation were omnipotent. Nothing could stand before them. All have perished and gone—but the word of the Lord endureth for ever.

"My religion is the Christian religion. I may misunderstand or only partly understand it, but I must speak as I have been given light. If in my bottomless heart I want to know what I should do under any given circumstances I must ask myself what is God's command on the subject and what would Christ do in my place. In the matter of this war I must try to picture to myself Christ as an Englishman, with England at war with Germany. The Germans have over-run France and Belgium, and may possibly invade England by airship and drop bombs on London. What am I to do?" Am I to answer the Prime Minister's call, make myself proficient in arms, and hurry to the Continent to beat the Germans off?

"Look! Christ in khaki, out in France thrusting His bayonet into the body of a German workman. See! The Son of God with a machine gun, ambushing a column of German infantry, catching them unawares in a lane and mowing them down in their helplessness. Hark! The Man of Sorrows in a cavalry charge, cutting, hacking, thrusting, crushing, cheering. No! No! That picture is an impossible one, and we all know it.

"That settles the matter for me. I cannot uphold the war, even on its supposedly defensive side, and I cannot, therefore, advise any one else to take part in what I believe to be wrong and wicked for myself.

"What is the result of such a policy? If I refuse to fight or support measures of defence then I may get shot by the enemy as an act of war, or I may be shot by the authorities of my own state as guilty of treason. Very well. I say deliberately that I am prepared to be shot rather than kill a German peasant with whom I have no conceivable quarrel. I will do nothing to kill a foe, directly or indirectly, by my own hand or by proxy. So help me, God. Never! If the Socialists of Germany had felt able to take this line, there would have been no European war."

ARE YOU THE QUITTER

"You're sick of the game!" Well, now, that's a shame,
You're young and you're brave and you're bright;
"You've had a raw deal;" I know, but don't squeal,
Buck up, do your 'best' and 'just' fight.
It's plugging away that will win you the day,
So don't be a piker, old pard;
Just draw on your grit, it's so easy to quit;
It's the keeping-your-chin-up that's hard.

It's easy to cry that you're beaten—and die;
It's easy to crawfish and crawl;
But to fight and to fight when hope's out of sight—
Why that's the best game of them all.
And, though you come out of each gruelling bout,
All broken and beaten and scarred,
Just have one more try—it's dead easy to die,
It's the keeping-on-living that's hard.

—Robert W. Service.

The objects of this organization are: "To collect, administer and distribute a fund for the assistance, in case of need, of the wives, children and other dependent relatives of officers and men, residents of Canada, who during the present war, may be on active service with the naval and military forces of the British Empire and Great Britain's allies." Thus, those who will benefit by the Fund are the dependents, not only of Canadian volunteers and regulars, but also of British army and navy reservists, and of French, Belgian, Servian, Russian and Japanese reservists who have joined the colors and left dependent relatives in Canada; these soldiers are fighting side by side for a common cause, and their families are entitled to equal consideration.

Under the direction of the central organization at Ottawa, and making allowance for differences in the cost of living, the scale of distribution to those entitled to assistance will be approximately the same throughout Canada.

ABOUT FEEDING ALFALFA MEAL

The two essentials in food for animals are Protein and Carbohydrates.

Protein furnishes flesh, blood, muscles, nerves, feathers, horns, wool, etc., for the animal.

Carbohydrates furnish the heat for the body and build up the fat tissues.

Alfalfa Meal analyzes better than bran, containing more Protein.

Alfalfa Meal is the cheapest, most palatable, digestible, and most economical form of Protein: that is, it is the cheapest form of sacked feed.

It is palatable, as horses, cows, hogs, sheep and poultry relish and thrive on it.

It has been proved by scientific feeding experiments to be the most easily digested.

The economy of feeding the Meal in place of alfalfa hay is self-evident:

(1) The stalks and leaves are ground together, doing away with the waste of stalks as often happens when feeding alfalfa hay.

(2) The amount of storage space required by the Meal is one-fifth that of hay, thus permitting a better supply to be kept on hand, which is a valuable consideration when combined with the original low cost and better freight rates. One car of Alfalfa Meal contains nearly two cars of alfalfa hay.

HOW TO FEED ALFALFA MEAL

Horse—A Meal mash every day, either straight or with the daily grain feed.

Milch Cows—The Meal in place of bran, as a dry or wet mash, and with a feed such as corn or barley.

Hogs—A dry or wet mash of Meal.

Sheep—The Meal in any form. They will thrive on it straight.

Poultry—Will thrive and lay well on the Meal when fed as a mash.

A Comparative Table

	Protein p.c.	Carbohydr'ts p.c.	Fat p.c.	Ash p.c.
Alfalfa Meal	16.6	34.0	1.5	7.6
Bran	15.4	42.2	4.0	5.8
Middlings	15.6	50.0	3.8	2.7
Oats	11.8	47.3	4.8	3.0

BRANDING OF DAIRY BUTTER

The Dairy Industry Act, 1914, is largely a revision of Part VIII of the Inspection and Sale Act, which Part it repeals. The underlying principle of the law is protection to the consumer, the honest manufacturer and the honest trader. The whole object of the law is to prevent misrepresentation. No reasonable practice is interfered with.

A new sub-section in the Act deals with the weight of butter as put up in prints or blocks. This subsection reads as follows: "No person shall sell, offer, or have in his possession for sale, any butter moulded or cut into prints, blocks, squares or pats, unless such prints, blocks, squares or pats are of full net weight of one-quarter pound, one-half pound, one pound or two pounds at the time they are moulded or cut. Nothing in this paragraph shall be held to apply to butter in rolls or lumps of indiscriminate weight as sold by farmers."

The regulations made under the authority of the Act came into force on September 1st, and provided that when dairy butter is put up in blocks, squares or prints and wrapped in parchment paper the paper shall be printed or branded with the words "Dairy Butter," in letters at least one-quarter inch square, in addition to any other wording that the buttermaker may desire to use. There is nothing in the Act or regulations to prevent the use of the word "Separator" in addition to the words "Dairy Butter," but no such grade of butter as "Separator" is recognized by the law. The Butter Act of 1903 defined only two grades, namely, "Dairy" and "Creamery." The Dairy Industry Act of 1914 defines a third grade as "Whey" butter. Buttermakers may use any form of printing or branding, including the words "Dairy Butter," which is not inconsistent with the definition of dairy butter. Butter in rolls, crocks or tubs is not required to be branded.

The definition of dairy butter is found in section 3 of the Act and is the same as it was in the Butter Act of 1903. It reads as follows:

(d) "dairy" means a place where the milk or cream of less than fifty cows is manufactured into butter;

(e) "dairy butter" means butter which is manufactured in a dairy.

The exact wording of the sections of the regulations that deal with this matter of the branding of dairy butter reads as follows:

"No person shall cut or pack dairy butter into blocks, squares or prints and wrap such blocks or prints in parchment paper unless the said parchment paper is printed or branded with the words "dairy butter."

"No person shall knowingly sell, offer, expose or have in his possession for sale: (e) any dairy butter packed in boxes similar to those used for the packing of creamery butter unless such packages are branded "Dairy butter; (f) Any dairy butter packed, moulded or cut into blocks, squares or prints and wrapped in parchment paper unless such parchment paper is branded "Dairy butter."

The full text of "The Dairy Industry Act, 1914," and the regulations made thereunder are published as Bulletin No. 42, Dairy and Cold Storage Series, which may be obtained upon application to the undersigned or to the Publication Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Economic Epigrams

This is the kind of world struggle where the last ounce of real fighting strength is going to tell. Every ounce of goods made in Canada that you buy will be as telling as a bullet on the ranks of the enemy. It adds to our resources and depletes theirs. The Canadian soldier, given equipment and training, is as good as any soldier in Europe. Don't you think the Canadian mechanic that lives in your own town is as good a workman as the man who helps to support some other flag? Why not buy what he makes?

It isn't necessary to feel benevolent over buying things made in Canada. You get better value for your money in most cases and the fact is that if you don't spend your money that way the chaps who earn the $300,000,000 of annual Canadian wages will stop sending their money your way, and then what?

The British war office is placing orders for goods in Canada. Why not line up with Kitchener and do a little Canadian-made buying yourself? — Canadian Manufacturer.

Kept it Dark

Mother—Lucy, did you tell God how naughty you were last night?

Lucy—No, ma; for I was ashamed to let it out of the family."

They All Had Worn It

"Maud was afraid the girls would not notice her engagement ring."

"Did they?"

"Did they? Six of them recognized it at once."

The Fun in Bridge

"Of course, you play bridge only for fun?"

"Of course," answered Mrs. Spangleton, "but it isn't any fun unless you are playing for money."

The "Mysterious Muddling" of the British Empire Puzzles the World

The St. Louis Republic publishes this appreciation of "the strange British Empire that 'muddles' along:"

"When Germany and France, with their highly centralized and logically wrought out governments, have contemplated the fabric known as the British Empire, they have smiled smiles of disdain.

"If ever there was an instance of 'muddling along' through decades and even centuries, taking things for granted, avoiding issues, extemporizing expedients and working always for the object immediately in view with scant reference to any principle of outward consistency, it is supplied by the history of the making of the British Empire. This is a strange gathering together of crown colonies, dominions, protectorates, a commonwealth, dependencies—and India. India is directly ruled by the crown. Jersey, Guernsey and the Isle of Man are governed under their own laws, but certain officials are appointed by the crown. Canada and Australia are both self-governing, but the senators in Canada are appointed by the governor-general, while those in Australia are elected. There is a secretary of state for India in the King's cabinet. And all graduations of self-government may be found in the more than ninety units of the British Empire.

"This fearful and wonderful fabric has no central body. There is no 'Bundesrath' or imperial council. No collective action of its units is possible. The relation to them of the Mother Country is illogical, ill-defined. To the foreigner accustomed to the federation of the American States or the units of the German Empire the government looks planless and ineffective.

"All of which is preliminary to the observatinon that there is not at the present moment any more effective institution in the whole world of political fabrics than the British Empire. Whatever its machinery lacks appears to be supplied by its spirit. The defects of its body are made up for by the unity of its soul.

"The fact cannot be gainsaid that England, who does not begin to be as logical as Germany or as systematic as France in matters of government, has nevertheless the knack of making men step out of their own free will to die in her defence. She has the gift of keeping alive, across tumbling seas, round half a world, the undying bond that unites the heart to home. She has shown herself indifferent to the possession of the taxing power over her colonies—but what matters it? Those colonies willingly tax themselves to send her warships and their sons seize their rifles in times of strife to go to her aid. She has the wisdom so to train and guide the swarthy children of alien races, and even the foes of yesteryear, that they put their living bodies between England and England's enemies. She has a fearfully muddled theory of government, but her practice of government lays hold on the deepest things in the soul of man.

"As we contemplate this wonder of an empire which is an empire of the spirit, an empire whose philosophy of politics is all wrong, but for which the costliest things within the gift of man are poured out without stint, we are moved to wonder whether this is a prophecy of the future. Will the states of the coming days make more of the spirit and less of the machine? Will they reek less of constitutions and bills of rights and fabrics of government and more of the invisible things which touch the soul?

"We do not want to seem to degrade a high theme; but English plum pudding holds the key to the mystery.

"English plum pudding never saw the day when it was worth the eating. It is soggy; it is greasy; it is flavorless; it tastes like the roller composition, compact of glue and molasses, which every country printer knows. It is unworthy the good fruit spoiled in its making and the good spirit burned beneath it when it is brought to the Christmas board. It will not compare with the dark suet pudding of Missouri. Yet English plum pudding is eaten on Christmas not only from Land's End to John o' Groat's House but in Manitoba, in Khartum, on the sides of the Himalayas, under the orange groves of New Zealand, where December is June, and in the blistering humidity of the Straits Settlements. Why? We cannot tell. But eaten it is. And English hearts, from London to Melbourne and back again, answer to the strains of "God rest you, merry gentlemen," and English eyes grow dim with happy tears. The British Empire is unscientific. It is unreasonable. But it is mighty, with the greatness of the soul."

GENERAL RED TAPE BUSY

The British press continues to complain of the policy of news suppression carried out by the War Office. The British Weekly, which ranks among the government's most influential supporters, makes an emphatic protest. It says:

"General Red Tape has won all along the line. As the shroud of darkness falls upon the dying year, so it descends upon the war by land and sea. The War Office and the Admiralty insist upon being allowed to do their part without co-operation, without devolution of labor, and practically without criticism. If General Red Tape and his staff give us victory, they will be vindicated. If they fail, it will be seen they have been laying up wrath for themselves against the day of wrath."

Unquestionably, says F. A. McKenzie in the Vancouver Province, the government's policy of concealment is carried further every day. War correspondents were never hunted so remorselessly; even Scotland Yard is being employed to extirpate them as though they were criminals.

The Glasgaw Evening Times says: This week the German wireless news was heavily censored before publication was permitted, and for some inexplicable reason, all reference to the work of the British army were excised from the official French review of four months of the war isued the other day. French war correspondents, and those of neutral countries are allowed to go into the firing line, but representatives of the British nation are still debarred; yet this is our war and we are paying for it."

NOT WORRYING

A London despatch says: The British Government, while regretting its naval losses during the war, is apparently in no fear that its predominance in number of fighting craft will be threatened seriously.

"Britain can lose a super-dreadnought every month for twelve months without a single loss to the enemy," said Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, in the House of Commons, "and yet be in as good a position of superiority as she was at the outbreak of the war."

Mr. Churchill added that there was no reason for nervousness or alarm regarding the British navy or the effectiveness of its work. The French navy, he said, has complete command of the Mediterranean, while the Japanese are in control of the Pacific.

As Parlow Plays

THE tone of the Violin is exceptionally difficult to reproduce. Its richness and lusciousness depend on over-tones, so soft, so delicate, so fleeting, that the ordinary "talking machine" can neither record nor reproduce them.

But Mr. Edison—the wizard—the inventor of the Phonograph, the wonder of the musical world—accomplished the seemingly impossible in

The new EDISON PHONOGRAPH
(THE INSTRUMENT WITH THE DIAMOND POINT)

So perfect are the Edison methods of Recording—so perfect are Edison instruments and records (which you may have in your own home at small cost) that the violin records become the violin of Ole Bull and Joachim. All the richness fullness, softness—all the throbbing, heart-appealing tenderness—all the luscious tones and overtones—float from this amazing instrument just as the great artists achieve them on their priceless violins.

The new Edison Phonograph has the dismond reproducing point, unbreakable and long playing records, superior motors and construction, concealed horns, and the Cabinets are made in true Period styles, in perfect harmony with the finest furniture.

INSTITUTE CONVENTION

The following letter is self-explanatory:

To secretaries of Farmers' Institutes: re Annual Convention:

Sir: Owing to the present war, and consequent financial depression, the Provincial Government is compelled to take every step to eliminate all expenditures other than those that are absolutely necessary, and to conserve their resources by all legitimate means.

I have accordingly been instructed by the Hon. the Minister of Agriculture, to notify all Institutes that the Central Convention of Farmers' Institutes will not be held as usual this year.

Institutes are invited, however, to send in any well-considered resolutions which they would otherwise have submitted for the consideration of the Convention, had it been held, and these will receive the most careful attention and consideration of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture and this Department.

May I express my regrets that the present state of affairs has made it necessary to eliminate this year this most important gathering of delegates of our Farmers' Institutes, a convention which has constituted a farmers' parliament that, by its annual deliberations, has accomplished very much good, and proved its value as an advisory board to the Provincial Department.

I am, sir, your obedient servant,
WM. E. SCOTT,
Supt. of Institutes.

Dominion Government Building Wheat Elevator at Vancouver

The action of the Borden Government in calling for tenders for the building of a terminal elevator at Vancouver similar to those at Moose Jaw and Saskatoon is proof of its intention to follow up this policy in an energetic and comprehensive manner until the needs of Western Canada are, in this respect, fully met. It anticipates, also, the movement of grain out through the Pacific ports, which is bound to result through the opening of the Panama canal.

The great increase in the acreage that is sure to be sown to grain next spring is an evidence that the Government did not too soon embark upon its elevator policy. This fall the Government elevators in Saskatchewan, besides handling a considerable quantity of farmers' grain, will probably handle several million bushels of seed grain. This of itself will be a great service at a time when it is much needed. This year the elevator machinery will be got into shape, next year it will be ready for the heavy demands that are certain to be made upon it through the flood of wheat.

In the three prairie provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta the acreage sown to wheat this year was 10,500,000. Many good judges say that next year this will be increased by one-third, and one of the best informed of Saskatchewan's ministers says that the increase in that province will be fully 50 per cent. Placing next year's acreage at 14,000,000, this means that, allowing for an average yield per acre, the total yield through the prairie provinces will not be much less than 250,000,000 bushels.

To handle quickly this great volume of grain will throw a heavy strain upon Western transportation and grain-handling facilities generally. As a result the terminal elevators will be much required. This will be particularly true should untoward weather conditions prevail. Several years ago thousands of dollars were lost through damaged grains, the greater part of which could have been saved had adequate elevator hospital accommodation been available at various points throughout the country.

The European war is bound to throw upon the Canadian West a demand for grain such as was never experienced before. One dollar and fifty cent wheat is in prospect. This has already been anticipated by the preparing this fall of vast new areas of land for the sowing of grain in the spring. But to grow grain and have it handled in such a way that the producer will get the most out of it are two different things. This, however, will now be rendered possible by ample accommodation provided at terminal elevator points. Canada today leads the world in elevator accommodation; that is, in proportion to population and grain acreage, and she leads the world also in grain-handling equipment. And this, thanks to the efforts of the Borden Government. The terminal elevator policy will stand as a monument to its foresight. Never before was it so true that the Canadian West is the grainery of the British Empire.

Colonel Lowery has been counting the fortunes he has made in the newspaper business, and he says it takes about twenty years to count a billion dollars at the rate of a dollar every second.

GENERAL FRENCH OPTIMISTIC

Field Marshal Sir John French, commander-ni-chief of the British forces in the field, speaks in an optimistic vein concerning the position of the Allies in a report issued Nov. 30th by the official press bureau. The report covers in a general way the activities of the British troops from Nov. 11 to 20.

Summing up the situation in concluding his report Field Marshal French says:

"As I close this despatch, signs are in evidence that we are possibly in the last stages of the battle from Ypres to Armentieres. For several days past the artillery fire of the enemy has slackened considerably and his infantry attacks practically have ceased. In remarking upon the general military situation of the Allies as it appears to me, at the present moment, it does not seem to be clearly understood that the operations in which we have been engaged embraces nearly all of the central part of the continent of Europe, from the east to the west. The combined French, Belgian and English armies in the west and the Russian army in the east are opposed to the united forces of Germany and Austria, acting as combined armies between us."

TO BE NAMED "CANADA"

Mr. Winston Churchill announces that one of the fifteen new battleships to be completed in 1915 will be named "Canada," in recognition of what Canada is doing to support the Empire's fighting strength. The battleship to be named for Canada was building at Elswick for Chile at the outbreak of the war. She is a super-dreadnought, mounting ten 14-inch guns, firing shell at the rate of two per minute. These guns are mounted in five turrets. The vessel has also 16 6-inch and four 3-inch quick firers, besides a number of smaller guns and also four submerged tubes for torpedoes. She displaces 28,000 tons and has a speed of 23 knots.
