ENDERBY AND DISTRICT NEWS

Wonder what Premier Brewster is going to do about that Vancouver plugging?

Sir Robert Borden is to make a tour of Canada immediately in the interest of National Service. He will be in Vancouver on Dec. 15th.

St. George's Church services: 1st Sunday in Advent: Grindrod, Mattins and Holy Communion, 11 a.m.; Mara, Evensong, 3 p.m.; Enderby, Evensong, 7.30 p.m.

The next meeting of the Woman's Club will be held at the house of Miss Forster, Enderby, on Wednesday, Dec. 13th, at 2.30 p.m. Paper by Mrs. Woods. Discussion of business arrangements for meeting.

A public meeting of the Canadian Patriotic Fund will be held in the City Hall on Thursday, Dec. 7th, at 8 p.m. Any person wishing to ask any questions about the administration of the Fund please attend.

Another Trench Comfort Club whist drive will be given in K. of P. Hall on Friday evening, Dec. 15th. Admission, 35c. Anyone wishing to knit sox for this club can get yarn at the residence of Mrs. Mackay, on George street.

Mr. J. Hill, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. S. Teece from Winnipeg the past few weeks, to recuperate, is enthusiastic over the very favorable weather conditions found here as compared with what he left in Manitoba.

W. H. Moore arrived from Saskatchewan on Tuesday, with a carload of effects. Mr. Moore has been to Enderby before and, having got a taste of Okanagan, comes back for a whole meal. He will locate on a farm property close to town.

The draft voters' list, as required by law, has been posted at the door of the City Hall for inspection of the public. If entitled to a place on said list, and your name is not there see the Clerk, or apply to the Court of Revision on Monday evening next.

According to a New York statement, the British Government has now an outstanding indebtedness in the United States, in the way of treasury bills, long term bonds, exchequer bonds and external loans, to the enormous amount of $13,730,000,000.

We can sympathize this week with the Hedley Gazette editor. He tells of an exciting week there—just such a week as this here, only we didn't have the dog fight: "This has not been a newsy week. In fact, nothing of importance happened except a dog fight in which Toby was the principal actor, assisted by three bull terriers, two cockers, several collies, yaller dogs, the two Sandys and Moses."

Messrs. Gregory & Ashton, who operate the Armstrong opera house, gave a movie performance in Enderby Tuesday. It was their intention to continue the performances each Tuesday evening for the winter season, and more frequently if the business warranted it, but, owing to the many counter attractions billed for December, they have concluded to postpone the commencement of their new service until after the holidays. They intend to give the Triangle and Famous picture plays in Enderby, which are recognized to be the best on the market. These are the most expensive of films, and in order to be shown at a profit must have a larger patronage than that of the past year

A respresentative of the Salmon Arm Farmers' Exchange was in the Enderby district the past week interviewing the farmers who have a few cows, with the object of getting the cream output of the locality for the Salmon Arm creamery. The proposition is being considered of running a motor delivery, covering the district between Mara and Enderby and around Deep Creek by way of Hullcar. This system, if it could be successfully carried out, would solve a big problem for the small producer—that of getting his cream to market. It would also solve another problem which the businessmen of Enderby cannot afford to ignore. If the S. A. F. E. can collect the cream from this district it can also deliver merchandise from the S. A. F. E. to the farmers' door—and at S. A. F. E. prices.

BY-ELECTIONS IN FEW WEEKS

Hon. H. C. Brewster will appeal to his electors in Victoria week after next. The nomination date is fixed for Saturday, Dec. 16th, and polling, if any, for the following Thursday, Dec. 21st. The sentiment in Victoria is entirely in favor of allowing the Premier to be re-elected by acclamation. The same dates set for Victoria will apply also in the case of the two seats in Vancouver, as well as Nanaimo, Dewdney, Greenwood and Cranbrook. In Prince Rupert the dates fixed are Saturday, Dec. 23, for nomination and Saturday, Dec. 30, for polling.

BOARD OF TRADE MEETING

A meeting to complete organization of the Enderby Board of Trade was held in the City Hall last Friday evening, with the following citizens present: Messrs. Winter, Williams, J. Folkard, Ryan, Davies, Hartry, Oppertschauser, C. Reeves, R. E. Wheeler, A. Teece, Cowan, Curry, Rosoman, Gifford, Adams, Mack, G. E. McMahon, Speers, Welsh, Skaling and Walker.

The following officers were elected: President, H. M. Walker, vice-president, C. B. Winter; Secretary-treasurer, A. C. Skaling. These officers were chosen to act as the executive to transact business between meetings for the board.

The membership fee was placed at $1.00, payable annually. A number of those present immediately signed up and paid the annual fee.

The elected officers, together with Mr. Rosoman, were named a committee to draft a constitution to be reported to the board at its next meeting.

A letter was read from the Vancouver Milling Company in answer to an enquiry from the board, stating that the company had no intention at the present time to start the grinding of flour at the Enderby mill, but would, however, operate the elevator in connection therewith for the benefit of the farmers of the district who had grain to sell The company intimated that it was its intention to have a local buyer in the field to handle next season's crop.

The feeling of the meeting was strongly in favor of getting together in the interest of the community, not only on strictly trade lines, but for the consideration of the larger issues with which the country as a while is faced, with an idea of preparing for and finding a solution, as a community, of the difficulties with which we are confronted.

Mr. Welsh and Mr. Rosoman spoke strongly in this connection, and the feeling of the meeting was unquestionably in favor of bringing into the board meetings questions much broader than those purely of business and trade interest.

Judging from the spirit of the meeting, the Board of Trade promises to be the means through which much good can be done. As boards of trade, like all other bodies, commercial and otherwise, become just what the members make them, it was intimated that the new board would accomplish just what its members would decide to accomplish and were prepared to work together to accomplish.

The next meeting of the board will be held in the City Hall Friday evening, Dec. 15th, when questions of interest will be brought up for discussion.

LATEST WAR SUMMARY

The great battle for Bucharest has almost been decided in favor of the Teuton forces. Rumania's attempts to check the advance of the Central Powers have been unsuccessful and the Teutons are pushing ahead on the roads to the capital. The Rumanian and Russian forces have been thrown back over the Argesu river, immediately north of Bucharest, and on the north and west the enemy armies are pressing close to their goal after what Berlin terms a great victory. In the Carpathians and in Eastern Transylvania the Russians have won local successes, and in the Dobrudja the Russians continue to batter fiercely at the enemy lines. But there is no longer any doubt, says London, of the failure of these movements to divert the Teutonic commanders from the campaign against Bucharest, or even to change any of their carfully-laid plans.

Arthur S. Draper, cabling to the Vancouver Province, says the Allies are plainly chagrined at the way in which they have been out-manoevred by King Constantine in Greece, who has placed them in the position of attackers while he nominally remained on the defensive throughout the developments of the last week. The Greek forces occupied the dominating positions in the vicinity of the Greek King's palace—positions which the king had been told by the Entente commander would be occupied by the Allied troops—and when these troops went to take the positions it was found they were defended by Greek troops. A battle raged all of one day to gain possession and in the evening the troops of the Entente returned to their quarters. It is reported that the number of killed and wounded on both sides was considerable. Since this fighting, it is reported quiet has been restored, though it is apparent the Allies are resting on a sleeping volcano. "It would cause no surprise here," says Draper, "if the next step would be the taking over of the reins of the government of Greece by the diplomatic representatives of the Allies."

PREMIER ASQUITH RESIGNS

London, Dec. 5.—The resignation of Premier Asquith is officially announced. It is understood that Mr. Asquith will advise the King to entrust to Andrew Bonar Law the formation of a new ministry.

Note of Warning Sounded

After suggesting that the people choose new rulers through a general election, the Manchester Gaurdian on Dec. 4th, in commenting on the cabinet situation, sounds this note of warning: "There are in fact two crises, for the crisis in the Ministry is but a reflection of the crisis in the war. The crisis in the war amounts to this: That the progress of events and succession of bitter experiences have at last brought to the minds of most men the fact that we are not winning the war, and the further conviction that with the present methods of waging war we shall never win it."

Quaint and characteristic was the publication of the Penticton Herald Junior, which appeared as an appetizer at each plate laid at the supper spread for the newspapermen at the Incola Hotel on their recent gathering there. Quaint, because of the color of its hair, and characteristic because it had none. It was a masterpiece of genius, wit, humor decollette, and other things mentionable and unmentionable. It did honor to the enterprise and esprit de corps of Editor McDougall and his staff of good fellows. After reading the Penticton Herald Junior there was not much left to be said. Just to mention a few, here is something heavy from the Junior which goes to prove all that we have said:

"Walter Davidson, the doggendest fool in the country, got stung Sunday night by a small girl."

"Uncle Josh wore the seat out of those fine pants reading the Bible."

"He was gored by an infatuated bull."

"For Sale—A good hen now laying eggs also new potatoes, fence posts and russet apples."

"This is an editorial. What is more, it is serious editorial. It deals with the question of aviation. Not only the way the warring aviators mount skyward, but also the manner in which other things are going up. For instance, the cost of living, the price of paper and the skirts the ladies are wearing. It is simply shocking. When are we to see the end? This will be a serious matter for all of us. We must endeavor to keep paper and printing prices, living costs, and other things, down."

Slowly, very slowly, the world is beginning to realize the fallacy of private ownership of public utilities. Recently the Philadelphia Inquirer said of railway conditions in the United States: "We are reaching an impasse in railroad matters. There are 38 states with 38 different commissions having to do with the railroads. On top of the thirty-eight is the federal organization known as the interstate commerce commission. Here is confusion of a deadly nature. The railroads would be much better off if they had a single boss. To avoid government ownership there should be federal control. Incorporate the roads. Give the interstate commerce commission full power to regulate rates and equal authority to fix wages. Send deputies between managers and men to the commission for adjustment. Under such conditions the commission, if it found that wages should be increased, would be able to determine just how the iicreased expense of the roads should be met. To this we must come some time, and why not now?"

A week or two ago, London, the metropolis of the world, was posted, during the night, by huge posters signed by the head of the War Office, calling upon the people of England to pray for divine help to the soldiers of Britain fighting at the front. This request was significant enough, but more significant is the first big thing to happen since that call for prayer was issued. It is obvious the Lord knows where to place his finger on the Empire's weak spot, from the general shaking up which we see coming to the Government, and particularly the war council. The failures that have come, the blunders that have been made, the mistakes, missteps, the vacillating and wavering, have all been on the part of the men in control of the Government and the War Office. The cost of "muddling through," both in man power and in wealth, have been enormous; and thus far we have got nowhere. Not because of any lack of fighting ability, nor because of any shortage in war munitions or the ability to procure war munitions; not because we have lacked man power in the field. But because the efforts of the army have been misdirected. If this shaking-up in the War Office comes in answer to prayer, then let us have more of it.

SATURDAY HALF-HOLIDAY

At the convention of newspapermen at Penticton, last week, one of the questions of public interest which came up for discussion was that of a Saturday half-holiday. It will be remembered that when the Provincial Legislature passed a law making a half-holiday each week compulsory on all retail merchants, the question of day became an important issue. At Vancouver and Victoria a vote was taken, and the advocates of Saturday won at the polls. Elsewhere in the Province no day was set, but the law requires one half day in the week to be so observed until the approaching municipal elections are held, when the question of day is to be voted upon.

The newspapermen from all the towns in the Okanagan and the Interior represented at the convention, stated that in their town the mid-week half-holiday has been a failure, as a holiday. The stores, it is true, have closed their doors, but the mid-week afternoon off has been anything but a holiday. On the contrary, the mid-week closing has very largely killed the holiday spirit amongst the people, the mid-week half-day off doing no more than check business and disturb trade, at the same time making it impracticable to hold the old-time Saturday afternoon sports which have been such a harmonizing factor in the life of all the communities in past years.

The same results, it seems, have been obtained in each of the towns of the Interior where the mid-week half-day off has been observed. Not a single town reported the mid-week half-holiday satisfactory. It is now generally admitted that to attempt to make a compulsory half-holiday on a day of the week which it is impossible for the public schools, the banks and all public institutions to observe, is to attempt the impossible. Not only is it attempting the impossible, but it deprives the public of the right to observe the half-holiday on a day of the week which can be made a holiday. To argue that a mid-week holiday is more convenient for the retail merchants is to put the mark of class-legislation on the face of the half-holiday law. There is the larger question at stake—that of the harmonizing influence of the holiday and the holiday spirit, without which any holiday legislation must finally result in failure, as well as the disruption of business conditions.

The spirit of the newspapermen of the convention, as representatives of the towns from which they came was strongly against the mid-week half-day off and in favor of Saturday.

OKANAGAN DRAINED OF MEN

A week or two ago a resolution from the Armstrong Council was read before the Enderby City Council, which the Council was asked to endorse, urging the formation of another battalion in the Valley, to take recruits particularly from the farms. The resolution was not endorsed. A similar resolution was read before the Councils of the other cities of the Valley. At Kelowna the Council did not favor the resolution, it being the opinion that the district had already been drained of men in such a way as to greatly cripple farm industry, it being pointed out that had this season not been an exceptionally dry one, thousands of dollars' worth of produce would have been lost in the Kelowna district through the impossibility of securing labor to harvest it. It was decided to communicate with one of the larger coast cities suggesting the expediency of passing a resolution in favor of a form of conscription which would raise the required number of men for the army in those districts where the absence of such men would not seriously affect the local supply of labor or the business of the country at large. The attitude of the Kelowna Council on the question is similar to the stand taken by the Summerland council.

SLAUGHTER OF THE INNOCENTS

"Do you think war will ever be abolished?"

"Think! I know. Why, sir, we are going to abolish war if it takes every last man on the face of the earth."

Often a profound truth is spoken in jest. And that is what the funny man in Judge did when he wrote these lines. The greatest sufferers in the European war have been the small nations. Five of them—Belgium, Serbia, Montenegro, Albania, and Poland—have been almost totally wiped out. Two of them—Rumania and Greece—are on the point of destruction. Others—Holland, Switzerland, Denmark, and, to a lesser extent, Sweden and Norway, are in constant peril. The cataclysm, after two years and a half, is still raging unabated, with no definite sign of peace. But peace must come, some time, if for no other reason than universal exhaustion.

We all talk glibly of fighting "to the end." End of what? End of our man power and our financial resources? End of Germany, or England, or France, or of all combined? End of what? At the same time we hear the leaders of all governments at war telling about certain conditions under which they are prepared to talk peace. The Central Powers are prepared to quit fighting provided the Entente Allies will replace the shipping lost to Germany and Austria through the war, give back those African colonies, and agree not to modify their commercial policy in any manner hurtful to the Central Powers. Similarly, if Germany should offer to England, to Belgium, and to France, and to Italy, the land it has taken from them, the ships that have been sunk, pay a reasonable indemnity for the men who lost their lives and for the men diverted from productive to destructive occupations, and give some guarantee against another outbreak, England and the rest would also be willing to quit.

Now each side wants the other to pay the costs of the war, and neither is prepared to do so. All are sick of fighting and the awful carnage, but none can afford to admit it, or to agree to the terms of the other. However, each side is submitting terms—terms, of course, which the other will not accept, but still terms. When the war started, it will be remembered, the enemy was for looting London and we were for burning Berlin. But this kind of talk has entirely disappeared, which indicates that there is a slow returning to sanity on both sides.

NATIONAL SERVICE WEEK

There is to be a national service week in Canada. The date will be announced shortly by Mr. R. B. Bennett, M.P., Director of National Service. It probably will be the first week in January. One of the features of the week will be the issuance of a card to every man in Canada. This card will have printed on it a number of questions regarding national service, and must be filled in and returned by all men between the ages of 16 and 65. The questions are as follows:

1. What is your name?
2. How old are you?
3. Where do you live? Province.
4. Name of city, town, village or postoffice, street number.
5. In what country were you born?
6. In what country was your father born?
7. In what country was your mother born?
8. Were you born a British subject?
9. If not, are you naturalized?
10. How much time have you lost in the last 12 months from sickness?
11. Have you full use of your arms?
12. Of your legs?
13. Of your sight?
14. Of your hearing?
15. Which are you, married, single or a widower?
16. How many persons besides yourself do you support?
17. What are you working at for a living?
18. Whom do you work for?
19. Have you a trade or profession?
20. If so, what?
21. Are you working now?
22. If not, why?
23. Would you be willing to change your present work for other necessary work at the same pay during the war?
24. Are you willing, if your railway fare is paid, to leave where you now live and go to some other place in Canada to do such work?

Two millions of these cards will be issued and it is understood that the services of the Canadian Postmasters will be requisitioned to issue them. The object is to secure an accurate inventory of the number of men available for vital industries, such as agriculture and munition manufacture.

EXPERIENCES OF AN AIRMAN IN WAR

Writing in a recent letter to his mother, Flight Lieutenant Jas. Glen gives a very interesting account of his experiences in the late raid by British airmen on Obendoy, the home of the Mauser rifle, which lies over 100 miles across the Rhine, over the Vosges and the Black Forest. A brief account of this undertaking was chronicled in the press through the French communique at the time the raid was pulled off.

Lieutenant Glenn says it is a heart-breaking country to fly over on account of no landing grounds. "Everything mountain sides and heavy forest beneath you all the way over and home again." This was the biggest raid of the war, counting the number of machines engaged and distance covered.

"We left the ground in flights of five bombers and two fighting machines to a flight at noon. As each flight attained its height of 2000 feet it formed into a horizontal "v", similar to the formation of a flock of geece in flight, the front machine being a thousand feet below the two rear fighting machines, and the others from left to right in direction of flight 150 feet or more above the preceding machine. This is to protect each other from attacking machines, the rear machines being able on account of their height to dive on the hostile machine attacking, and also to give greater immunity from shell fire. You see a shell fused to burst at the altitude of the front machine would not touch any of the others.

"We crossed the lines at a great altitude and were shelled heavily with shrapnel and high explosives, 'H.E.' as they are called, but continued on our way untouched, but scared stiff. There were two French squadrons ahead of us. These were passed over at the Rhine, where we were again shelled heavily. I thoroughly enjoyed seeing these squadrons being shelled to blazes, as they were lower than we and drew most of the 'A.-A.' fire. A Fokker nosed alongside, but eased off and left us for the easier meat of Colon. After leaving the Rhine we crossed the Black Forest unmolested either by hostile machines or 'Archies' and, seeing our objective several miles ahead adjusted our sights and when the signal light shot up from the leading machines we formed into a line and dived until we were just clear of the factory chimneys, everyone releasing their bombs over the biggest of them. We just unloaded about five tons of bombs on the place, and it looked quite sickly as we galloped away to the tune of machine guns, shrapnel and 'H.E.s'.

"Some of the other boys had their machines damaged, three being compelled to land in Germany, but I was untouched. The French lost four machines and we shot down six German machines with our guns. Some day, let me tell you!

"The return was more or less uneventful. The usual shelling at the Rhine and the lines and a few scraps with Fokkers, which dived every time we turned on them. They haven't the internals God gave a goose. They sneak up below and from behind and endeavor to shoot you up the rear. One is first aware of their presence, unless watching like a hawk, by the pop-pop-pop of their machine guns and their tracer bullets flaming past. We surely don't lose any time in turning on them and giving them a burst or two. Sort of eases your bad temper.

"I can't describe the emotions that pass through you on a stunt like this one. There are times when you are so absolutely scared stiff you can't get your breath, especially when a shell breaks close enough to jar you. Again, there are moments when you could absolutely eat the heart out of anything that comes in your way; and what a feeling of elation when your bombs flame out below and you can see you have blown hell out of things in general. It's worth a good many 'H.E.s' under your tail.

"I think a few months of this would develop a person into a savage, and it surely will either make you or break you. It will be either tother or which.

"Give my kind regards to the Enderby people."

In a later letter Lieutenant Glenn says, "Our commander had an autograph letter from General Joffre yesterday congratulating the wing on the organization and the excellent work we have done since leaving our base." He says they have pretty well covered the entire line in France from Verdun to Switzerland, and they had somewhat to do with the French offensive that resulted in the capture of the Duonfont and Vaux forts.

"This is real war up at this end of the line," says he. "The thunder of the guns just naturally keeps the windows in the cabin rattling day and night. The only time we lose it is while we are in the air and the motors deaden the noise."

Lieutenant Glenn concludes: "We are the only British airmen attached to the French army, so anything reported in the French official communique regarding the work of the airmen belongs to us."

NO USE FOR MONEY

Canada doesn't know much about running a war. How should we? But we have the men who can fight when they have to. There is much we shall have to learn about it if the war is to go on another year or two. While we are paying our boys at the front higher wages than any other soldiers in the field, and our Patriotic and other Funds are also contributing millions of dollars to buy comforts and smokes for the men and to aid in providing for the dependents left behind, we are told by statistics of the Vienna postoffice for the first two years of the war that nearly $100,000,000 has been sent from soldiers at the front to their families at home—savings from their wages. This is due, it is claimed, to the fact that the men in the field are so well supplied with the necessary things to eat, drink and smoke that they have no use for money.

All of which may have a lesson for us, or it may not. The Austrian is probably as poorly paid as any soldier on earth. In peace times he gets six cents per day. In war time, he probably gets twice this amount. If the postoffice statistics here given are correct it goes to show that men the world over are much the same. In the heart of every soldier there is a warm spot for the place he calls home and for those dependent upon him. If we could know what our Canadian boys have done in the two years they have been away, the figures, on a proportionate basis, would eclipse those reported above.

OUR TOWN

If you meet a man who is down in the mouth, who thinks that his town is all wrong; just take him aside or out for a ride, and hand him this quaint little song: There are fancier towns than our own little town; there are towns that are bigger than this, and the people who live in the tinier town all the city amusements miss. There are things you can see in the wealthier town that you can't in the town that is small; and yet, up and down, there is no other town like our own little town after all. In the glittering streets of the glittering town with its palace and pavement and wall, in the midst of the throng you will frequently long for your own little town after all. You measure a town, not by money, or miles that its border extends; the best you can have, wherever the town, are contentment, enjoyment and friends. If you'll live and work and trade in your town, despite of the fact that it's small, you'll find that the town—your own little town—is the best little town of them all.—Walt Mason.

When the Federal Reserve Board of the United States warned the American banks against investing in foreign treasury notes, thus upsetting the scheme of the Entente Allies to float another hundred million loan in America, Japan immediately comes forward and provides $50,000,000 for the service of Great Britain in the United States.

"Tell your wife about it"

The Rev. Bob. Jones, the evangelist, says that "up to the present period attention usually was attracted to a woman's head, now it is attracted to her feet." The Rev. Bob failed to say whether it was the size or what.

A New York philosopher is credited with saying that "if the men had to do the washing for a week there would be more washing machines than automobiles."

And now the mayor of Alton, Ill., has notified the women and girls of that town that they must not wear shadow draperies or so-called "see-more" gowns. It is hard for some of these ol-fashioned mayors of back-woods towns to see any beauty in shadow-forms, or to recognize what this era of woman's rights on the globe has in store for us.

The chief of the Bureau of Entomology of the Department of Agriculture at Washington says there is no reason why people should not eat bugs excepting that they do not do so. Some scientists say that insect broth is appetizing.

The nights are growing a little chilly and the days are not as warm as they used to be. But what we started out to say was that Wall street bet heavily on Hughes, and Wall street, you know, "has never missed a guess"—excepting.

One husband says these women just wear freak clothes because the other women do, which if true, would account for the incoming of this short skirt period. Each season they are becoming a little less.

"When I said my prayers last night Ma, didn't you hear me ask God to make me a good boy?"

"Yes, Bobby, I did."

"Well, He ain't done it."

Some women prefer martyrdom rather than give up their belief, especially if it is one involving a four shoe on a six foot.

King Soloman, "in all his glory," was only the Brigham Young of his day.

DISGRACED PARLOR SOLDIERY

The Vancouver World tells this pathetic bit of life as witnessed on the streets of that city in connection with a returned soldier:

"He was a returned soldier, apparently proud of the army coat he wore over a civilian suit, and equally proud of the 'active service' button and a badly crippled leg. He was limping along up Hastings street, and without a doubt the heavy khaki great coat kept him warm, even though it did look incongruous when worn with a cloth cap. Out stepped a brigade police sergeant who had no returned soldier button and no great coat, and forthwith the crippled returned man had to limp along with the provost sergeant belonging to some home defense battalion, to brigade headquarters. At the brigade office the returned man was informed by the brigade sergeant-major that he must either wear full uniform or none at all, and that in his present state of habiliment he was a 'disgrace to the army.' Neither the provost sergeant nor the brigade sergeant-major had been to the front—if he had, perhaps he would have understood why the crippled little 'returned' man swallowed hard and made no reply as he limped out of the brigade office and went 'somewhere' to lay away the old army great coat and face the cold without it."

MY BANK ACCOUNT

My bank account is very slim,
Sometimes there is no balance there,
But there are shoes on little Jim
And ribbons gay in Sylvia's hair.
And there's a smile on mother's face
And happiness around the place,
And if the laughter only stays
The cash can go its several ways.

I put my money into smiles
And cakes and sweets and little gowns,
And dresses in the latest styles
And anything to scatter frowns.
And tho' it doesn't show in gold
That can be used when I am old,
It's drawing interest every day
In laughter and in childish play.

CANADA'S WAR TRADE

Canada's trade is increasing at the present time at a most prodigious rate and this year will see all records shattered and the high water mark of Canadian commercial achievement. The figures for the twelve months ending September recently issued show a total of over two billion dollars. This includes shipments of coin and bullion, but even after subtracting these the total is $1,738,204,256 against $935,254,443 for the same period of 1915, and $1,000,063,499 for 1914, the largest previous figure.

This year Canada will have a balance on the right side of the ledger in the trade account of nearly three hundred and fifty million dollars. The total imports for the twelve months ending September reached $685,278,605, against exports of $1,052,925,651.

ARMSTRONG CREAMERY

The Armstrong creamery is now producing some 800 pounds of butter per week. Forty-one cents is the price now being paid for butter fat, and this rate will be increased within a week or two. The total output of the creamery until the summer months has been sold in advance and at a price that will bring the farmers from 40c to 45c for their butter fat all winter and spring. A change has been made in the secretaryship, Mr. Hassen having resigned and Mr. Sage appointed in his place, to take effect Dec. 15th.

Wants Old Crop Wheat Flour

A Winnipeg dispatch says the startling report has been received there that the British Government has decided to take no more flour from Canadian mills made by the new crop of wheat. Only old wheat flour will be accepted. There is no old crop wheat in the country. This will be a blow to Canadian mills and will affect flour prices downward.

School Exercises

A most enjoyable entertainment was given at Annieville school, near New Westminster, recently on behalf of the Belgian Relief Fund, when the pupils under the able guidance of their teacher, Miss Fenton, gave a number of songs, patriotic pieces, etc., which were highly appreciated by a large audience of parents and friends. The school was artistically decorated with evergreens, flags, lanterns, etc., the work of the school children, and drew unstinted praise from the audience. The sum of $48.30 was realized, the whole of which will go to the Belgian Relief Fund. The pupils and their teacher are to be congratulated on the excellent program provided, and congratulated also on the excellent result of their efforts. Miss Fenton was the recipient of a lovely bouquet of carnations from her pupils. Com.
