Ask Reasons for Dismissal

It is understood that the Dominion Government has dispensed with the services of Major G. Moberly, representative of the Pension Board at Vancouver. No reason was assigned and Major Moberly and his friends are at a loss to understand what has actuated the authorities. Officials from Ottawa recently inspected the office and are stated to have expressed every satisfaction with the way the work was being administered. At the various returned soldiers' organizations in the city nothing but praise is heard of Major Moberly's work and it is understood that several telegrams have been sent to Ottawa by the organizations asking that the Major be given a satisfactory reason for his dismissal. Employees at the local pension office were just as surprised as Major Moberly to hear of his sudden suspension.—Vancouver Province.

The final draft of the program for May 25th Celebration at Enderby has been made by the sports committee. The day will be a greater success even than the celebration of last year—provided the weatherman does not meddle with our Okanagan weather. The parade in the morning to the grounds promises big things, both as to decorated autos and vehicles, floats, etc., and the general enjoyment of the gay pageant.

The following prizes are to be given: Decorated auto, 1st, $10; 2nd, $7.50; 3rd, $5.

Decorated Bicycle and rider, $5, $3 and $2.

In addition to the events, baseball games, foot races, etc., advertised last week in the Commoner by the celebration committee, an exhibition game of lacrosse will be played between Armstrong and Vernon.

In the Enderby Opera House a special Charlie Chaplin film—the last and best of this popular comedian—will be shown afternoon and evening, together with another film of the better-class. The usual confette carnival will be participated in at the conclusion of the day's sports, followed by a dance in the Opera House.

TRACTOR DEMONSTRATION

Mr. Leary Shows What Can Be Done with a Wee Giant and a Sale Quickly Follows.

With the carload of Ford cars received the past week by Dan Leary there came a Fordson tractor. On Tuesday Mr. Leary drove the tractor to Mr. H. Swanson's farm and there gave a demonstration. In heavy clay soil he drew two 14-inch plows cutting 7-inch furrows. So successfully did he handle the machine, and so well did it behave under every test put upon it, that Mr. Geo. Wollen made the purchase of it before going home.

The Fordson tractor is one of the little giants. It has a width of 51 1-2 inches, is 88 inches in length and 58 inches high.

Splendid Entertainment

Capt. Hambly gave a very pleasant evening's entertainment in the Enderby Opera House in the interest of the "Y" campaign for funds last Wednesday evening. Capt. Hambly wishes the Commoner to publicly express the appreciation of the military department of the Y.M.C.A. to the proprietors of the Opera House for their generous action in placing the building at his disposal for the demonstration of hospital entertainment, and to the general public who attended. The collection amounting to $45, is being sent by Rev. Mr. Gretton to the National Council treasurer for work in the military hospitals.

GIVING FINE SHOWS

Enderby Opera House Company Trying Hard to Make the Better Class of Shows Pay.

Next to running a newspaper in a small town so as to make it pay its way and leave a profit on the plant investment is the problem of running a picture show in a small town and give the higher-priced films. The local men who have taken hold of the Enderby Opera House and are endeavoring to give the better class of pictures, are deserving of the most cordial support. The proposition is not an easy one. We have frequently,—all of us—heard the remark, "Why don't we have the better-class of picture performances in Enderby"—and the same remark applies probably in every small town. The answer is easy: Because it will not pay. The "better-class" of pictures cost too much for a single performance in any small town or city. They can be made to pay only where two or three "runs" of the films can be made in an afternoon and evening. To do this there must be picture fans enough in the town to give a paying audience at each performance. The cost of running the show, and of the films, is as great for an audience of ten as for an audience of 200.

However, the Enderby Opera House Company is trying hard, and to date it can be said the company has succeeded in "breaking even" on the high-priced films. This with the price of admission placed at 50c and 25c. "The Third Floor Back" and 'Tarzan of the Apes' were pictures greatly enjoyed, but as money-makers for the Opera House they were not anything to become enthusiastic over.

These better-class of pictures will come once a month, while at the weekly Friday night performance, the best of the lesser-priced shows will be continued. Enderby movie patrons are supporting the project well, and the local men in charge are doing all that is possible to make the proposition "go."

New Buttermaker at Creamery

Mr. C. W. Trimble, from Red Deer, Alta., the new buttermaker employed by the North Okanagan Creamery Association, took charge of the Armstrong Creamery this week. Mr. Batey, who managed the buttermaking the past year or more, sent in his resignation a few weeks ago, and the resignation was accepted by the board of directors. It was pointed out at a meeting of the patrons of the creamery, held in the City Hall at the time, that Mr. Batey had endeavored to do too much in order to economize in the operation of the plant, and in so doing had done himself an injustice. A helper is now to be employed to enable the buttermaker to devote more time to the management. Certain repairs which were demanded at the meeting of the patrons, have also been, or are to be, made, and the plant put on a footing where it can be operated in competition with other creameries which are reaching into the district.

Evangelical Service will be held in Knob Hill Methodist Church on Sunday May 18th. at 3 p. m, led by W. C. Ross, All denominations welcome.

Closer Co-Operation from Farmers View Point

A writer in the Agricultural Journal for May appeals for closer co-operation among farmers, particularly in the work on the farm, and in the buying and selling end. This writer appeals for a general wholesale store, run co-operatively by the farmers and in their interest, through which, he argues, better prices could be obtained than is possible under existing conditions.

The other day an Armstrong farmer, a man of large commercial experience as well as an agriculturist who has made good, said to the Commoner representative: "What we farmers want is a general store in Armstrong similar to the S-A-F-E at Salmon Arm. And we are trying for it, whether we succeed or not."

Whether co-operative general stores are the best thing for the community is still a disputed point. We may or may not see such an institution established here. But the fact brought out is that our farmers are thinking for themselves, and the seed of co-operation is planted in them even if the fruits of co-operation have not yet materialized. We have had other evidences of this recently in many farmers approaching the Commoner in commenting upon the attitude of the merchant who refuses to patronize the Commoner unless the Commoner will discontinue the acceptance of advertising from the Hudson Bay of Vernon. They see in this demand on the Commoner an effort on the part of the merchant to close the columns of the local paper to any business house offering prices and service to the community in competition with himself.

With men, co-operation in some degree dates back to the beginning of time. Man, the protector, early learned the lesson "Unity is strength," and from physical safety, as civilization developed, came business safety, or trade-union, or co-operation. Co-operation, literally working together, is something of which our farmers are only in the experimental stage. And, in fact, as a community, we have almost everything to learn in co-operation. We have had co-operation in the selfish sense—one set of the community in conflict with another set, and the co-operation for selfish ends in the little bickerings which live and die in a day. We have had a lot of this kind of co-operation. What we should have now is co-operation of the broader type—a working together, not to suppress competition, but to openly and honestly meet it—to get the best and to give the best in us in support of the larger community.

In this work, the women of our country homes as well as of the homes of the town, have an import part to play. A country-woman, speaking of her experience, says: "Sitting in judgment on her neighbor is one of the country-woman's besetting sins, and this soul-edifying habit will, if I mistake not, be her greatest stumbling block in effort for co-operation." Continuing this writer says: "The community spirit has never been encouraged by the primitive woman; in the old, old days of the East, a few adventurous and social spirits went so far as to have quilting bees, but these were frowned upon by the pre-eminently capable housekeepers who were in no way slow to comment on 'such lazy, shiftless ways of getting work done.'"

"The women of British Columbia have now the franchise, and it behoves them to see that they no not wrap their talent in a napkin and bury it.

"As I have said before, I believe the solution of our labor and other difficulties must come through social, business, and political co-operation, legislative amendments and the ability to take advantage of the labor-saving devices that are being improved and multiplied yearly.

"At one time I had a neighbor who was a veritable Jehu to drive, and as someone remonstrated with her for urging her horse so unmercifully up hill and down dale, she made the enlightening retort: 'Well, what does he want to be a horse for?' This is about the attitude of the ordinary townsfolk toward the pioneer farmer. While at a friend's the other day I noticed this pertinent little motto above the dining-table: 'All things come to him who waits—on himself.' And I can tell the farm-woman of British Columbia that little will come to her unless she learns to wait on herself. I always did admire that toad who when he fell into a bucket of cream worked so hard in his efforts to escape that he at last churned butter, and so with solid footing hopped out on terra firma.

"It is now time that the farm-woman was commencing to think as to what she intends to do with her vote; it is now time to put away past prejudices and look the present situation fairly in the face. The woman who remarks with a virtuous air: 'Our family were always Conservative, and, of course, I could not vote otherwise', and the plaintive creature who repeats: 'That John has always been a Liberal, and I just couldn't kill his vote.' These women are tied to the past and prejudice, and are too narrow or weak to help in any community good.

"Elections will come in the future no doubt, as they have in the past, and the prosperous high-powered car will again draw up at the gate of the pioneer farm, and the inevitable quartette or trio will alight. These are the local political czar and his satelites. They will admire everything, from the old pig in her alfalfa-patch to the baby in the cradle, and the spokesman, somewhat less human than our fiction friend, J. Rufus Wallingford, possibly an ex-real estate exploiter, who is looking for a rocking-chair Government appointment, will tell you that you 'live like kings.' (Though when one thinks of it, these are not healthy times for kings either, so there may be some truth in it) 'that the man and woman who live next to nature in God's great open are the mainstay of this vast and mighty country of ours.' But as you watch the powerful car fast fade in the distance, do not let yourself become sinfully proud; you will not see that car again at your gate until the next election.

"Do not mistake me. This is not party; it is type; and, pitifully enough, both parties are condemned with such. But I believe that the fate of such machine string-pullers is as truly coming as that of John Barleycorn or William Hohenzollern

"But there are men in both parties interested first and foremost in the real welfare of the country. Men who are giving themselves in a most unselfish degree to the solving and untangling of the problems that surround the country home. It is to these men the women must look for enlightenment as to the rural needs of the country at large, and with her own eyes observe her own local conditions, and weighing all in her own judgment, as she would her own family affairs, give whole-heartedly her individual and collective effort for the betterment of the country home."

BIG STRIKE OF ORE NEAR REVELSTOKE

That there are millions of tons of high-grade ore lying practically at the doors of Revelstoke is being daily demonstrated by the Silver Creek Mines, Ltd., the owners of the Woolsey group on Silver Creek, near Albert Canyon, a few miles east of here, says the Revelstoke Herald. Continuing that paper says: "Mr. Woolsey and two of his men, who have been employed at the mine all winter, have been in the city recently, and their reports show that the tunnel along the underside of the big vein has been run in over 100 feet and a cross-cut of the vein made at that point, with the result that they have shown up over fifteen feet of milling ore and 20 inches of clean ore, which is a high-grade silver-lead ore running well over $100 per ton. This work proves beyond question that the ore is continuous throughout the whole width of the immense vein which traverses the property both on the east and west sides of the creek. In addition to this large vein, there are four other veins on the property which have not as yet been explored, but which give promise of proving just as rich as the main vein.

"The work done to date proves the ore to be fully 600 feet vertically below the upper outcrop and blocks out an immense body of ore, much of which can be shipped without concentrating.

"This property has been visited in the past by at least half a dozen engineers, all of whom expressed the opinion that it is by all means the biggest showing of ore they have seen in Kootenay, and the work now being pushed is proving that their judgment was correct.

"The adjoining claims, staked last year by Gus Hedstrom and Ole Sandberg, have been taken over by a company, who will begin development on them as soon as the snow is gone, it being expected that work will begin not later than May 15th. The showing on these claims on the surface is just as promising as that on the Woolsey group and much clean ore can be shipped from them right from the start. The name of the new company will be the Albert Canyon Silver Mines, Ltd., and is officered by local men, some of whom are interested in the Woolsey group.

"The citizens of Revelstoke will be delighted to hear of the continued success of these companies, as it means so much to the prosperity of this community. Their operations have already served to draw attention to this district as a good field for mining operations, and when these mines get into full swing the impetus that will be given to trade here will be felt by every businessman in the community. It will lead to the early establishment of other industries here or near here. There are several large deposits of mineral known to exist within easy distance of the city, and all that is needed is some man or set of men with the "sand" in them to take hold and draw the attention of capitalists to them."

An excellent way to mend broken china or glass is to melt alum in an old iron spoon over the fire and apply to the broken parts. When dry these articles can be washed in hot water and the cement will hold rigidly.

Every farmer and every artisan should bear in mind that the home merchant and home business man are absolutely necessary for the development of the town or district.

FAMOUS PEOPLE
BY FANNIE M. LOTHROP

MADAME CURIE

The Famous Discoverers of Radium

All the known radium in the world could be put into a tablespoon, yet this less than an ounce of the magic metal has set the scientists of two continents guessing at this new conundrum of nature. The answers are very wonderful, very stimulating, but very unsatisfactory, so far as the theories are concerned, that seek to explain this rebel element which seems to defy so outrageously Nature's strictest laws. To M. Pierre Curie, a modest chemist, and his wife, belongs the honor of discovering the miraculous metal.

They are poor, hard-working people, consecrated to science, caring little for wealth or fame or position. Reserved and conservative, they speak with extreme caution as to their discovery made in 1898; although the non-scientific world has just awakened to the revelation in the past two years.

In a little, old-fashioned house at the extreme end of Paris, near the outer boulevard, whose criminals have given the section an unsavory name, lives the devoted couple with their one child and M. Curie's father, who is also a famous chemist. Some years ago Mlle. Sklodowski, a poor Polish girl, went from Warsaw, her native town, to Paris to study. She had talent and pluck for the double fight against poverty and opposition. Her first triumph was when she entered a competitive examination for higher mathematics. Her success was so overwhelming that the other competitors were eclipsed and eliminated. Not having money enough to enter one of the regular schools, she entered a municipal working-class institute, where M. Curie directed the laboratory. Soon she was his assistant and a little later his wife.

Some of the experiments of Becquerel on the radio-activity of uranium specially appealed to her, and she determined to experiment on the refuse ore of pitchblende, from which uranium is taken. It was then considered worthless, like the culm of our coalfields. She drew her husband into the search and it took four years to get enough traces of this metal, worth three thousand times its weight in pure gold, to show its properties. Her paper on radium won for her the degree of Doctor of Physical Science.

As a grain of musk will perfume a room for a century or more, constantly throwing off fine particles without decreasing its weight, so radium bombards the ether with light, heat, energy, and half a dozen other marvellous effects, without appreciable loss, and in a thousand million years it would have lost only one-millionth of its bulk. It is the Andrew Carnegie of the metals, constantly giving but never growing measurably poorer.

MEN WHOSE WORK IS MAKING UNITED FARMERS OF B. C. A SUCCESS

The farmers of B. C. are slow in taking hold of the United Farmers organization. They know in a general way what has been accomplished by the United Farmers of Alberta, of Saskatchewan, of Manitoba, and recognize what might be done in British Columbia for the agricultural industry if once organized throughout the Province and its members working co-operatively to bring about better conditions. They know none of these organizations which have become so important in building up the industry they represent has reached its present position of usefulness without hard pioneer work on the part of the early members. They know the early members of this organization will have to undertake the difficult tasks here in connection with organizing the district. Perhaps this is why many farmers are declining to join the organization, yet admitting the importance of it, as well as the need of it.

However, there are men coming forward who will complete the organization in every locality, and eventually we shall have in British Columbia an organization similar in effectiveness to that of the United Farmers of the Northwest.

At the head of the organization at the present time is Mr. R. A. Copeland, of Lumby. The following sketch of the president, which appeared in a recent issue of the B. C. Farmer will be of interest to our readers.

President Copeland, United Farmers of B. C.

For a number of years Mr. Copeland was a prominent resident of Kelowna, later moving to Lumby, where he takes a leading part in the various activities of that particular community as well as of the Okanagan Valley. Mr. Robt. A. Copeland was born at Winchester, Dundas Co., Ont., on June 15, 1864. He is the son of the late John Copeland, a farmer who came to Canada from the north of Ireland about the year 1845 and took up a farm near Winchester. His wife was Arabella Timmins. After living there eight years the family moved into Grey County and settled on a heavy bush farm in the Township of Proton. In 1882 James Copeland visited Saskatchewan with the view of locating in the West. Having satisfied himself in this respect, he decided in 1884 to dispose of his Ontario farm property and to move to Summerberry, Sask. His family consisted of three sons and eight daughters.

In the spring of 1884, Mr. Copeland took up his first homestead south of Summerberry. In 1885 he took part as a volunteer in putting down the Northwest Rebellion. In 1887 he was married to Miss Isabella McDonell and moved to Grenfell. Twenty years later, having attained a position of substantial influence, he decided to come to B. C. and selected Kelowna as a place of residence.

During his ten years' residence in the Orchard City, Mr. Copeland took an active interest in social, agricultural, commercial and municipal matters and evinced a keen desire to promote clean sport. He served six years as city alderman and occupied the position of chairman of the Board of Works, Police Commissioner, etc. For two years he was superintendent of the irrigation works, and during two years he was manager of the Glenmore ranch, a farm of over 1,400 acres, on which mixed farming and fruit growing were carried on.

When the war broke out Mr. Copeland was anxious to enlist, but on account of age his services were declined. Failing in that endeavor, he decided to secure a farm and do a farmer's share in the great struggle by aiding in the production of the necessary foodstuffs. He purchased a fine 320-acre farm of good bottom land near Lumby and during the last few years has certainly made good. Last year he grew 90 acres of grain, 300 tons of timothy hay, 140 fat hogs, and has 120 head of cattle besides 8 pure-bred Shorthorns. He intends to specialize in Shorthorns and Berkshires.

Mr. Copeland's father died at the age of 85 and his mother at the age of 75. His family consists of five sons and four daughters living, three children having died. The two eldest sons and daughters are married, and Mr. and Mrs. Copeland are the happy possessors of five grandchildren.

Mr. Copeland is a member of the A. F. & A. M., the L. O. L. and I. O. O. F., and a past master of the first two. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church, and in politics is an independent.

Secretary McTaggart, United Farmers of B. C.

In Mr. W. E. McTaggart, President Copeland has a very able lieutenant. Mr. McTaggart was born at Clifford, Ont., 26 years ago. His parents moved west to Manitoba in 1899 and to Vancouver in 1907. He is the only surviving son, two brothers and a sister having died while he was quite young. He attended the public and high schools of Vancouver until 1912 when he was selected as a member of the High School Cadet Corps that toured Australia and New Zealand in that year.

After his return he was employed on the reportorial and editorial staff of the Vancouver Province. As a commercial editor his articles on marketing, co-operation and general agricultural subjects attracted widespread attention and the Provincial Department of Agriculture was prompted to offer him the position of Fruit Markets Commissioner. This position he held until 1917 when he accepted an offer to join the staff of the Grain Growers' Guide, the official organ of the Grain Growers of Manitoba and Saskatchewan and of the United Farmers of Alberta. Later in the year, he enlisted for overseas service but was discharged as being unfit. He had been rejected every few months from the spring of 1915 on account of a deformed left elbow, but being determined to go overseas he did so in connection with the Y. M. C. A. Unfortunately he was ill all the time he was in England, and returned to Vancouver in January of this year.

Resuming his journalistic career, Mr. McTaggart assumed the duties of editor of the B. C. Farmer, which had, a year previously, become the official organ of the United Farmers of B.C. After the annual convention of the United Farmers at Kamloops last February he was unanimously selected as provincial secretary by the new board of directors.

He is a young man with a big future. His ability, education and experience should stand him in good stead. His many friends especially among the farming fraternity of B. C. will anticipate with confidence the success of the efforts he is putting forth in his present sphere of action.

Why the Man was Mad

This man was mad. He entered the drug store and demanded that the proprietor should show himself. "See here—look at my head," he cried

And there, on top of his very bald head, was a pronounced protuberance. "Look at that!" he shouted; "that is what that — stuff did for me, and it is growing bigger every day!"

In anxious haste the druggist began to investigate. Soon he emerged triumphantly from behind the prescription-case. "I've found it," said the druggist. "I had a new clerk and he gave you a bottle of my Bust-Developer, when what you wanted was my celebrated Hair-Restorer!"

"STOP, LOOK, LISTEN"

Over in Princeton, B.C., a strike has been in progress a number of weeks, but very little has been heard about it in the press of the Province. The workingmen are striking for an 8-hour day. The Vancouver Critic says the only reference to the strike in the daily press "is that a detachment of Northwest Mounted Police have been sent there, and that the strike is the work of I. W.W.'s. The press ignores the justice of the men's demands for an 8-hour-day, and thinks it stands in with the Mauufacturers' Association of Canada by an endeavor to kill public sympathy for the men, by saying it is the work of I.W.Ws.' The Critic further tells the story of what it has been told by one "in the know." It is said to be a fact that a number of influential businessmen of that city were plotting to have the Mounted Police railroad a number of union leaders our of Vancouver with a warning never to come back.

"We trust that the unexpected publicity given this by The Critic will nip the conspiracy in the bud, and we are willing to be called a liar and disturber of the peace, if we have been able to frustrate this devilish scheme."

Did you ever hear of the woman who consulted a lawyer and explained that she wanted a divorce if she couldn't get it, and if she could, she didn't want it? Well, that is just the idea and policy adopted by some people in regard to the home town paper.

There is only one thing worth fighting for, talking for or writing for—and that is freedom.

GLENEMMA NOTES

(We are pleased to have our Glenemma correspondent with us again after prolonged illness, and we hope to read his very newsy letter more frequently hereafter.—Ed.)

A batch of railway men arrived to-day (May 9) and lumber is being hauled to use with tents, etc., for a camp at R. Sweet's place. Only to think, that the long-looked-for railway is actually started at last! Seems almost too good to believe, after a person has waited 28 years for it! But we feel sure it will be a very great boon to the whole country it traverses, and, with the exception of a few small rock-cuts here and having to make the large swing back towards Kamloops from Ducks to make the rise of 1700 feet between Kamloops and Albert Duck's place, which lies 17 miles east of Kamloops and 3 miles south of Ducks Station, C.P.R., the other difficulties in the way are comparatively small.

We are now having the mail service running from Armstrong to Falkland and return on Tuesdays and Fridays, which gives the mail carrier, Mr. Fred Harding, more time for his other duties, as the mail is now carried by motor instead of horses for the summer months.

We are also having a stage going through from Kamloops to Vernon each day, which picks up passengers, and also another motor stage leaves Vernon for Kamloops each day except Sunday, carrying and picking up passengers enroute.

Mr. J. C. McKenzie has discovered a fine quartz ledge, ore from which assays $126 in gold, copper, etc., and only needs the railway to give the transportation facilities which will enable him to make it a very profitable mining proposition.

A meeting of the ratepayers of the Salmon Valley school was held at the school house on Saturday, May 3rd, to consider purchasing a new school site. As the secretary, Mr. Sydney Scott, was absent, Mr. A. J. Heywood was appointed secretary. It was moved by Mr. R. McDonald, seconded by Thomas McAchenay, that Mr. J. O'Neil take the chair.

Moved by Mr. Freeze that the business be proceeded with re. new school site.

Moved by J. Kneller seconded by T. McAchenay that all votes on new school site be taken by ballot. On a vote beingtaken 17 ballots were counted for the proposition and 9 against.

Moved by J. Kneller and duly seconded that the voting on the new school site be postponed for three months to give the soldiers now away a chance to vote. The motion was carried, 21 in favor, 4 against; one bollot spoilt. School Inspector Anstey was present, being driven out by Mr. Fred Harwood, of Vernon. Messrs. Petrie and Freeze were scrutineers.

GRINDROD NOTES

Don't forget the free dance at Grindrod on Friday.

Mrs. Mary Kile leaves this week for Seattle, to live some time with friends there.

Seen at Grindrod on Monday, for the first time since the war, a real, genuine Bo—a real dandy. We were wondering who let him loose.

Once again the mill here is running at its best. Mr. Tomkinson procured an engine from Armstrong and after altering his mill a little he managed to get it to run fine.

The Northern Okanagan Farmers' Institute will hold the following competitions: Wheat, 1 acre; mangles, 1-4 acre, farm garden, not less than 1000 sq. yards. Cup and cash prizes for wheat; cup and cash prizes for mangles; cash prizes for farm garden. Fifty cents entrance fee to each competition. Not less than five entries to each competition. Send entry to J. Monk, Secretary, Grindrod.

Fred Dean and his sister, Mrs. Collison, and family are making preparations to move to Penticton, where Mr. Dean has obtained a position with the fruit union for the season.

Harry Blurton came down from Vernon and left on the evening train for Malakwa to close up the season's trapping, which he claims to have been very successful.

John Cadden arrived home a short time ago, having partly recovered from a crushed foot received while working in the C. N. R. yards at Calgary last winter, Mrs. Cadden and children having arrived some days previously. It is their intention to develop the old homestead.

Decay in teeth is caused by the fermentation of food lodged between or upon the surfaces of the teeth.

This fermination is caused by bacteria, and in their growth acids are formed which attack the lime salts which compose the bulk of the tooth structure.

A considerable cavity may be formed in the tooth before its presence is made known by a toothache. Then the dentist is obliged to perform a long, difficult and often painful operation.

Twice a year visits to a dentist, having the cavities filled when small and before the tooth is badly injured, saves much in time, trouble and expense.

Importance of Poultry

The statement recently accredited to one of the Dominion's most prominent poultry experts to the effect that if everyone did his duty in the matter of keeping hens, Canada's war debt could be speedily wiped out with the revenue derived from this source, has given to the humble fowl new distinction as a national asset. That it has already been tried and tested in this capasity with the best results is evidenced in the case of Denmark and come nearer home in Prince Edward Island, where co-operative egg-selling has become mere or less of a fine art.

To explain the origin of the "egg-circles" which are operting in different parts of Canada today, and which are the greatest stimulus that poultry-keepers can have, it is necessary to turn to the commercial history of Denmark. It was between 1865 and 1870 that Denmark opened up an egg export trade with England. After a time it was found that the farmers were holding back eggs so as to receive the higher prices that prevailed in a falling off in the quality of the eggs and a corresponding decline in trade. Some far-sighed men, seeing how fatal the tendency was, formed societies for the collecting and selling of the eggs, so stamped and numbered as to show from whom they came. This was really the nucleus of co-operative movement in the handling of eggs, and it resulted in the restoration and growth of Denmark's trade with Great Britain. Indeed, the yearly average went up from 95 ton in 1895 to 4,661 in 1912. Prior to the formation of these societies France had the bulk of Britain's egg trade, but by failing to espouse the co-operative system, the trade was dwindled.

The co-operative egg circles, as we know in Canada, are nothing more or less than associations organized among farmers for the purpose of marketing egg frequently and regulary through a common medium, the object being to maintain the quality of eggs as they leave the farm and to place them in the hands of the consumer in good condition and with dispatch.

It is estimate that before the adoption of the co-operative system, Canadians lost between five and six million dollars annually as a result of carelessness in the handling and marketing of eggs. This condition no longer exists, however, and where circles are in opertion farmers are consistently making money on their hens. Prince Edward Island with it few thousand inhabitants, has perfect the system and sets the pace for the whole Dominion with it egg circles. Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia, and Alberta have been progressive in this direction, but for various reasons little enthusiasm has been shown for poultry raising in the other provinces.

Plenty of Caribou Meat

The Dominion Parks Branch of the Department of the Interior has made a very extensive investigation as to the possibility of utilizing vast herds of barren-land caribou to supplement the meat supply of the Dominion, according to the report of the Commissioner of Dominion Parks J.B. Harkin, in the annual report of the Department of the Interior for the last fiscal year, which has just been issued.

As stated in the report, it is estimated that there are at least 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 caribou in the north. As a food, caribou meat is of a first class quality. The hide when tanned is equal to the best chamois. It is only a question of time, the report states when these vast herds will consitute a valuable asset to the Dominion.

"The only difficulty in the way of the utilization of these animals to-day," the report continues, "is one of transportation. After full investigation, it was felt that whiie, undonbedly, caribou meat could be brought out now at fairly reasonable prices, the meat situation in the Dominion was scarcely such as called for immediate action. The caribou today constitute a great meat reserve for the country."

Too Much Voice

Bowler admired his wife immensely, and incidentally his wife's singing. At a party, when Mrs. Bower was asked to sing "There is a Garden in my Face," the husband glowed with pride.

It didn't matter, though she had a face like that of a hippopotamus and a voice like an elephant. He sat beaming as she sang.

When about half way through he whisperd to his neighbor:

"Doun't you think my wife's got a fine voice?"

"What?" said his neighbor, who was a bit deaf.

"Don't you think my wife has a fine voice?"

"What?"

"Don't you think my wife has got a fine voice?" roared Bawler

"Sorry said the other, shaking his head. "That awful woman over there is making such a frightful row I can't hear a word you say."

Make The Returning Soldier Welcome

THIS is an important hour for Canada. The nation is entering on a new era. It is passing from war to peace. Let us start this new era right. There are thousands of soldiers returning from overseas. The Government is doing all in its power to get these men back to civil life.

It is giving a War Service Gratuity—more than any other nation—to keep the soldier going till he gets a job.

It gives him a pension—where his usefulness is impaired by his service.

It teaches a man a new trade when his service unfits him for his former trade.

It gives him free medical treatment when illness recurs, and supplies free artificial limbs and surgical appliances.

It is bringing back to Canada at the public expense the soldiers' dependents now overseas.

But the Government, however willing, cannot provide the personal touch needed in this work of repatriation. That must be given by the people themselves.

The men who went from these parts to fight in Flanders deserve a real welcome home—the best we can give.

In most towns committees of citizens have already been organized to meet the soldiers and their dependents at the station, to provide hot meals, supply automobiles, afford temporary accommodation when necessary.

In addition, many other towns are organizing social gatherings to give public welcome to returned men after they have been home a few days.

After he has rested, the soldier must be provided with an opportunity for employment. In towns of 10,000 population, Public Employment Offices have been established to help soldiers, as well as war-workers, secure good jobs quickly. Where these exist, citizens should co-operate. Where they do not exist, the citizens themselves should help put the soldier in touch with employment.

* * *

The fighting job is done. It has cost many a heart-burning. But it has been well done. The least we can do is to show our appreciation in no uncertain manner.

Don't let the welcome die away with the cheers.

MARSHALL SAUNDERS

The Popular Canadian Author.

If the temperature of an author's popularity can be measured by the mometer of sales, then surely the most popular writer in Canada is Miss M. Saunders, whose "Beautiful Joe" has sold 400,000 copies, and been tran into Swedish, German and Japanese.

At her grandfather's house in Milton, Nova Scotia, Miss Saunders wa in 1861, the daughter of a clergyman, and a descendant of the John Alde mortalized in verse by Longfellow. Her early days were spent in the bea land of Evangeline where the very air seems redolent of romance and historic ories. When she was six the family moved to Halifax, and there she receiv foundation of her education in private and public schools until fifteen, wh was sent to a boarding school in Scotland and thence to France to put some ing touches to her education.

On her return to Nova Scotia she taught school for a time and then into literature. Her first short story brought forty dollars, but she soon r that real success could not be plucked like a rose in a garden; she must pay th in years of observation, study, training and practice. She spent several ye foreign travel, as a post-graduate course in experience, and then returned to Scotia, ready for the serious work of her life.

In 1894 the American Humane Educational Society offered a prize o for the best story illustrating kindness to dumb animals. Miss Saunders deter to compete for it. She spent six months in writing a story, the backgro which was largely autobiographic and the spirit pervading it her own intens for animals, the silent appeal of their helplessness finding ever a sympathet in her heart. The committee of award in giving the prize to her book "Be Joe," said: "the author has genius, heart and insight. It is an admirable and should have an immense sale and become a standard for all libraries, yet this sweet, sympathetic study of dog life, despite its splendid endors went begging among the publishers for six months before it was accepted Saunders having availed herself of the privilege of forfeiting the prize mone retaining her manuscript.

When published, it gave her a place in the very front rank of writers of stories. Her "Tilda Jane," a simple, natural, pathetic yet humorous story a new character to the charming literature of childhood. In her ambitious "Rose à Charlitte," she gives a delightful portrayal of the life of the Acadi the historic country around St. Mary's Bay, a realm of idyllic romance, trials and sorrows seemed to sanctify and purify the people to higher thin

GERMANY GETS PEACE CONDITIONS

The peace conditions of the Allies were delivered to the German delegates the past week. The opinion of no two commentators is the same on these conditions. Some characterize them good, others bad; but all admit that they strip Germany naked, and then, as the London News puts it, after stripping the nation naked, they ask her to turn out her pockets. These differences of opinion are doubtless because of the varied interests involved. There is bitterness on the part of Italy, also of China, and of France. France claims to be ruined by the peace, for it leaves her to shoulder the load of her war debt of three hundred billion dollars. However, as Dr. Dillon puts it: "Three members of the secret council are alleged to be coming around to the opinion that their labors will be wholly vain unless Germany can soon be brought into the League of Nations; that her co-operation will make the difference between the success and the failure of the scheme and that whenever feasible, without impairing the Allies' interests, this circumstance should be borne in mind and everything savoring of a vindictive spirit be excluded. The delegates are firmly convinced Germany will spoil Russia unless she can be pressed into the folds of the League of Nations and Russia's fate, being a cardinal point of the Allies' policy, every effort is being made to bring Germany within the Leauge."

This would seem to be the desire of the German leaders themselves—that they be allowed to become part of the League of Nations, and as a member, make such reparations as have been demanded by the victors. In accepting the conditions of peace, the spokesman of the German delegates said in this connection: "The sublime thought to be derived from the most terrible disaster in the history of mankind is the League of Nations. The greatest progress in the development of mankind has been pronounced and will make its way. Only if the gates of the League of Nations are thrown open to all who are of goodwill, can the aim be attained and only then the dead of this war will not have died in vain. The German people in their hearts are ready to take upon themselves their heavy lot if the bases of peace which have been established are not any more shaken."

The Vancouver Province says a hasty reading of the geographical terms dictated to Germany may lead the reader to suppose that the nation is almost wiped off the map. The column or so of renunciations which Germany is ordered to make looks like national effacement. Outside of Europe it is so. But within Europe Germany is left with all the territory occupied mainly by Germans. Alsace and Lorraine are to be given up, but if the inhabitants of these provinces are both French and German there is no doubt that they prefer to be French, and have so preferred during their 48 years under the German flag. The greatest surrender of territory is to the Poles, who have been German subjects by conquest and now demand independence. At Danzic there is a compromise and there the population is divided. If Germany has to make some surrender to the Bohemian state the same rule holds. So it does to the fractions which she may give up to Denmark and Belgium. The Saar Valley is peopled by Germans and the mineworkers are not French. But this is not a territorial award. It is simply a reparation in kind for the destruction by the Germans of the French mines. It does not appear yet that there is any intention to make the dwellers in this region French subjects."

Which House Dominates Your Block?

SOMEWHERE in "Every community" is a house which always smiles at you. It is always a little more cheerful looking than the others, brighter, better kept, and—well painted.

Inside that house lives a good citizen and a good neighbor. His house is so inviting that it is like a hand stretched out to you.

You are bound to feel glad that its owner lives near you.

Somewhere else in "Every-community" stands another house. Its owner has become discouraged. He has quit trying. He has lost his ambition and gradually has accepted his fate as a down-and-outer.

You know that this is so, because his house says so. It is dingy, beginning to crack and sag, and is unpainted.

Its owner is not a good citizen. He has not done his share. His house stands out like a "sore thumb." It robs a whole neighborhood of legitimate real estate value. Buyers of new houses avoid its neighborhood.

Care of Harness

It stands every farmer in good stead to use all the care he can with his harness. Not only is leather exceedingly high in price but it is mighty hard to get.

The usual job of oiling a harness is one that is dreaded. I have read so many times about how to take the harness all apart and unbuckle every strap then wash in luke-warm water and soap and keep in a warm place, and with a cloth saturated with the oil go carefully over every piece. All this is right, but how many farmers who are using a harness practically every day in the year have the time or the notion to do that sort of job.

My plan is to take a harness at a time and clean off the mud and sweat the best you can, take the straps out of their keepers and go at it with a good oil with blackening in it.

Instead of the cloth soaked in oil I take a two-inch brush and a saucer or small pan and apply it that way. It is quicker, gets into the cracks much better, and keeps your hands clean while you work. Then, if there is time take another harness and do the same. Hang the collar and bridle separate, and the rest of the harness over a rope that is adjusted to suit your height. After a few hours go over the job and wipe off the excess oil and apply more where it shows need.

If you have time and want the harness to look better all around, get a small can of enamel and go over the metal parts. It dries in a few hours, and then the entire harness looks fresh and new.

It is important to pick vegetables at the right time. If picked while the sun is at its height, they are more or less wilted and do not keep so well. This does not apply to beans. They should not be handled while wet or they will rust.

Sawyer's home-made candies win and hold friends. When in Armstrong try some.

HEROES ALL AROUND

All the boys liked Donald. He was strong and handsome and as sunny as a June day. So when he came into the school yard and gave wee Luigi a push and a shove all the boys gathered around in a circle.

"Luigi hasn't any right to wear a flag," exclaimed Donald; "he's a foreigner."

Luigi stood very still. He covered the little flag with his small brown hand. "This is my flag too," he said, in his soft, slow voice.

But Donald was the leader of the boys and they all shouted: "No, no; you're just a Dago."

Then the bell jangled and jingled, and the boys filed into school. An hour later the doctor came. He whispered to the first-grade teacher:

She stood in front of the children and said: "Now you must be good and obey Doctor Forbes."

The doctor knew Donald. "Come out here, Donald," he said pleasantly. "Im going to vaccinate you."

But Donald whimpered and hid his head on his desk.

"I though you were a true-blue American," said the doctor. "Well, who is brave enough to come?"

Somebody stirred in the very back seat and stood up. The children turned to see who it was. Luigi came down the aisle.

He bared his arm and let the doctor scratch it without a murmur. He smiled as the doctor covered it up, and the other children and the teacher clapped for his pluck.

Donald was second. His cheeks were red and he hung his head, because he let Luigi have his chance to be brave.

After that all the children were brave and quiet. At recess Donald rushed up to Luigi.

"You're the best American in our room," he said stoutly, "and you have the right to wear our flag because its yours, too."

Luigi's great black eyes sparkled and his cheek grew red. "Thank you," he said. "Lets play we'er a regiment of wounded soldiers, because we've all got bandages on our arms."

So up and down and all around Luigi and Donald marched and the other little soldiers fell in behind them.

An exchange tells about Jones, mad on the pictures. Jones went every night. One evening he ran against a friend, who asked him where he was bound.

"Pictures, old boy," said Jones

"Why not have a change and try the music hall tonight with me?"

"No thanks, old chap, must go to the pictures; I go every night."

"Some attraction there?"

"Well, it's giving away a secret, but you see," said Jones, "there's a topping film on: two lovely girls disrobing by the side of a river prior to having a dip, and just as their last bits of muslin are being removed a train dashes by in front of them, but the train is sure to be wrecked one time."

Pea Soup

The congressman for a wetern state had received some eight or ten applications for peaseed from some constituents, and when more came he wrote: "I am sending you the seeds, but in heaven's name what are you doing with so much pea seed? Are you planting the whole state with peas?" "No" the answer come back, "We are not planting them; we are using them for soup."

SUNSHINE SERMONS

Cheerful Guidance to a Happier, Healthier Life
By the Philosopher-Physician
GEORGE F. BUTLER, A. M., M. D.

Many a man fails because he has not backbone enough to get out of the rut, he hasn't the courage to break new ground, or to work at anything whatsoever with the stimulus of hope only. He must be bolstered up by certainty, supported by the walls of his groove, else he can do nothing; and if he cannot get into his friendly rut, he lets himself drift into destruction. The man who dares not travel at right angles to the rut, who dares not follow his own independent judgment, is a mere element of a human being, and is borne about the world an insignificant cipher, unless he desperately fastens by accidental cohesion to some other floating and supplementary elements, with which he may form a species of corporation resembling a man. Dare to be different; dare to take a decisive step, to carry out your plans and ideas yourself. Fight your own battles, make a new road if necessary. Ask no favors of anyone and you will succeed a thousand times better than one who sticks in the old beaten path and who is always beseeching some one's influence and patronage. The time has gone by when success can be gained by a too conventional and timid man. Aren't you tired of the rut, tired of walking in file, as convicts walk together in stripes? Cultivate enough individuality to refuse to be sewed up in the universal patchwork. The onward sweep of progress in this age has prepared the way for non-conformists. Why not get into line?

The Okanagan Automobile Club and Good Roads Association

WHAT IT STANDS FOR

The OKANAGAN AUTOMOBILE CLUB AND GOOD ROADS ASSOCIATION as an organization is interested in the matter of good roads, ferry transportation, elimination of danger points, and sound legislation for the motoring public, and this is a question which should commend itself to every owner of or driver of an automobile, as without same automobile touring would not hold the pleasure it undoubtedly does to the man who operates the universal (which is the best name the serviceable Ford can be classed under) or the heavy touring car.

The Okanagan Automobile Club is always willing to co-operate with any organization for the advancement of its objects and has no fear of competition from any other organization. Its emblem will be recognized by all similar clubs at the Coast and Inland, and the display of same always entitles the owner to every courtesy which can be extended, and in this respect it is warmly reciprocated, visiting members of other clubs receiving similar courtesies from officials and members of the Club.

Any person of either sex, especially those driving a car for personal business or pleasure, willing to abide by the laws and regulations governing motor traffic, is eligible for membership, and whilst deriving benefit himself from his own efforts, he is also benefitting those who are associated with him, which is a matter of satisfaction to the majority of men, whereas, the motorist who fails to join an association which is working for his benefit, but accepts all improved conditions as a matter of course, is the first to resent being told in simple language that this is so, nevertheless.

The Club dues are very inconsiderable and well within the reach of any person driving an automobile. Full particulars can be obtained upon application to the directors or to the Secretary, P. O. Box 267, Vernon, and in the interests of automobiling in this Province every Okanagan motorist not already a member is urged to align himself at once with the Association, which proposes to do much good work.
