Work on Mara-Revelstoke Auto Road Starts This Week

A force of men started work on the completion of the Revelstoke-to-Mara auto road this week. It is promised that the short piece of road to connect up the roads already built will be completed in a few months, and the road will be opened to auto traffic this fall.

Completion of this auto road will open up to the people of Revelstoke a beautiful driveway into the Okanagan Valley. This has long been desired and we may look for a great influx of people from Revelstoke way as soon as they can travel this way.

Considerable repair work and grading must be done on the stretch of road along Mara Lake which was slashed and partly graded three years or more ago, as this road has had little work put upon it since it was opened.

The road from Mara to Enderby by way of Grindrod, is already in good condition, but the east road as far as Grindrod requires a lot of work put upon it if it is to be used by autos. The probability is that it will remain a secondary highway and that the main highway from Enderby to Salmon Arm will receive the greater attention from the Department. This would mean that attention should be given to the road from Salmon Arm highway to Grindrod and thence to Mara.

Whatever step the Government takes in this direction, one thing is certain, the road to Revelstoke from the Okanagan is now assured and we may look for big things within the next year or two as a result of the development of auto intercourse between Revelstoke and the Okanagan.

STEEL WILL SOON BE LAID

J. L. Ruttan Thinks C. N. R. Line Will Be Finished

Much doubt has been expressed if the C. N. R. from Kamloops to Kelowna ever will be built. So many delays have been permitted and so little done in the matter that people directly interested have about given up hope.

As a matter of fact the farming interests of Grand Prairie do not care a soo about the road. They are almost exclusively large stock ranchers and prefer walking their stock to market centres. However, there are other interests, and the general development of the country through which the C. N. R. runs demands that it be finished.

J. L. Ruttan was in from his lumber mill at Falkland a few days ago. He is particularly concerned about the early completion of the road. While he allows for some doubts, conditions, he says, point to the completion of the road this season. Thirty carloads of steel landled in Kamloops last week, and he has the assurance of one "in the know" that construction engineers have left Ottawa empowered to start work and drive to completion as early as possible.

LICENSED TO PAY TAXES

This is a free country. You are free to pay taxes. But in order to pay taxes, if you are in business or are a manufacturer, you must first buy a license. This license entitles you to pay a business tax. It isn't a license to do business for you already have paid that license to the local authorities. You also already have paid taxes to the Provincial authorities to do business. Therefore, you pay the license to the Dominion authorities for the privilege of paying taxes to the inland revenue collector. And, it seems, there are deputy inland revenue collectors and deputy deputy inland revenue collectors without number, each one of which is prepared to take your tax money. One day we get an imperative demand from one to pay our taxes to him. Next day another, a deputy deputy collector sends us equally imperative demand to pay our tax money to him. Really, it is difficult to tell just how free a fellow is in this free land of ours. First you are taxed by the local authorities to go into business; then you are taxed by the Provincial authorities after you get into business and lastly you are taxed by the Dominion authorities for staying in business and taxed again if you make anything out of the business.

It is all very much all right of course, but where is it going to end?

TO PLAY IN KAMLOOPS

The local Lacrosse Team will play Kamloops on July 1, (Dominion Day) at Kamloops.

A successful lawn social was held on Wednesday of last week by the ladies of Ashton Creek at the home of Mrs. Bawtree to help raise funds for the building of a new school house. Thanks to the generous support of everyone in the district and of many friends in town, a total of $40.60 was obtained.

PRETTY JUNE WEDDING

A very pleasant event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Kerr Smiley, Deep Creek, on Monday, May 30th, at 11 a.m. when their eldest son, Geoffrey Hooper was united in marriage to Miss Mabel Armstead of Birkenhead, Shetshire, England, she having arrived from the Melita the Friday evening before.

A number of guests were present to witness the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. M. D. McKee of Salmon Arm, Mrs. McKee also being present.

The rooms were tastefuly decorated in lilac and white flowers, and on a side table were to be seen many of the beautiful presents received.

The bride who was supported by the groom's sister, Mrs. S. A. Gorle, wore a dress of white crepe-de-chene, and long veil with wreath of orange blossom. The groom was assisted by his brother, Leonard, and Mr. S. A. Gorle gave the bride away.

After refreshments were served the happy couple motored to Vernon, where they would take the boat for points down the lake the following day.

A HINT TO BOB

The Shevlin Equalizer says: We thank the Okanagan Commoner (B.C.) for the kind remarks made about us in a recent issue of that snappy little weekly. Our regards to the boys, Harry, and tell Constable Bailey to buy himself a sheep dog to help keep the cows in the country where they belong.

Summerland is to have this fall the best of the many good apple displays ever exhibited here. This means a good deal, as Summerland has long had the reputation of putting on the best apple show in B. C.

The Mara Day Picnic Proves Most Successful

The people of Mara ecliped themselves in their picnic on June 3rd. Weather conditions were most favorable and a big crowd gathered to enjoy the day in the old time spirit of fellowship. Other celebrations, more pretentious, may be held in the Okanagan, but none can take the place of this Mara Day picnic nor aid so much in the development of that spirit of community enjoyment There is something distinctly Maraistic about this Kelvin Grove picnic; there is a wholeheartedness about it, a genuineness, a free-and-easiness, that makes everybody the better for having attended. Last Friday's picnic was a surprize to many who were present for the first time. They little knew the ideal nature of Kelvin Grove for picnic purposes, nor could they realize the glad welcome awaiting them from the hospitable people of Mara.

MORNING SPORTS

From 9 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock in the evening there were sports of some kind being pulled off by the committee in charge, and it ought to be said to the credit of the committee men that the many items on the program could not have been handled better.

A long program of children's races occupied the morning hours. Then lunch was served, when everybody seated themselves in a circle in the shade of the trees surrounding the play ground and were served by the men and women in charge. This was a delightful feature of the day.

AFTERNOON SPORTS

After the dishes were washed and an hour enjoyed in social intercourse, the men's and women's races were called. Every event was of interest for the reason that everybody joined in the sport and had a good time themselves and made fun for others. Nobody was too proud to run, or to jump, or to thread a needle or drive a nail.

Think of it, there were 16 women joined in the nail driving contest. They were divided into fours and each woman had to drive three nails in a piece of timber long enough for the four to kneel beside. Then the winner in each batch of four had to 'drive" off and in this there was a tie, which meant another nail for two to drive. In all there were 62 spikeized wire nails driven by 16 women, more or less excited, and, would you believe it, there wasn't a thumb cracked. That's a record. Jim Bell was one of the Judges. He watched the proceedings from a distance which seemed to us dangerously close, and sweat a bucketful for the contestants doing the work.

Another event which was more than usually interesting was the old men's race. In this Jas. Emeny and Uncle Arthur were given a handicap of eight or ten paces. When the "going" started Mr. Massey, the winner, simply walked away from the field and slowed up to see who was following. In hundreds of races in the Old Country and in this Mr. Massey never has been beaten, though an old man, he retains a swiftness and strength that none of his age can reach.

In the tug-of-war between Mara and Grindrod there was some heavy pulling. Grindrod won the first pull, but in the second and third they couldn't budge the anchorman of Mara, Jim. Bell, who has pulled in this position for many years.

The women of Mara and Grindrod were next to try their strength on the rope, when Mara won in two straights This was followed by the boys' tug-of- war which closed the day's sports.

Refreshments were again served by the ladies of Mara, assisted by the menfolk, and preparations then were made for the dance in Mara Hall that night.

There was a record crowd in attendance this year, some 80 to 100 autos being parked in the shade by the running course, and every visitor was enthusiastic in praise of Mara people and the generous spirit in which the whole affair was given. There were booths there where ice-cream, fruits, candies and light drinks could be purchased but other than this the "eats" were served free and plentifully to everybody.

An Asset to the District

"It is delightful. I had no idea there was such ideal picnic grounds as these in the country." If this expression was heard once on the grounds at the Mara picnic last Friday, Mara Day, it was heard hundreds of times, voiced by Enderby people who attended the annual picnic for the first time. They were delighted by the hospitable treatment received from the people of Mara, and were surprised at the beauty and natural suitability of Kelvin Grove as a picnic place. And many expressions were heard suggesting that the grove be set apart as a permanent grove for picnic and recreation purposes. It was agreed by all that the location is ideal, and the thought seemed to be that the grove should be underbrushed to a greater distance from the clearing, and tables and seats provided under the shade trees. It was recognized that Mr. Kellett, owner of the ground, could not be expected to do the clearing at his own expense, nor could the people of Mara be asked to undertake the cost alone. It should be borne by the people of the district, it was the opinion of many. It was recognized that the grove is a most valuable asset to the district as a whole and that, if the owner would undertake to set it aside as a permenent recreation grove, for picnics, etc., and have it reachable by the old Sicamous road, it would be in the interest of all for the work to be done by popular subscription. It is not known that any such plan could be arranged, and we are simply repeating the remarks of many visitors to the grounds on Mara Day. It does seem to be a great loss to the locality to have such an asset and to have it so little known and so seldom utilized. Perhaps the suggestion of so many may bring about some concrete action.

Miss Laut's Message to Canadians

No more important message could be given the people of Canada than that being delivered on the Rocky Mountain circuit of the Canadian Chautauqua by Miss Agnes Laut, and there is no person better fitted to deliver that message than Miss Laut. Born a Canadian, and being one of many thousands, kicked out of Canada to the States on the toe of necessity, she has acquired the happy faculty of seeing the mighty possibilities of Canada from the view point of America, and can fully realize how much we have need for a bigger, broader vision of Canadian nationalism.

"I believe in the one big union," she said, "that of labor and capital, of East and West, of imperialist and anti-imperialist. I believe in the one big union of a unified Canada, with her eye on the one star, her natural destiny; to hold in peace the freedom she has gained in war."

Miss Laut spared neither our politicians or the people in her criticism of their lack of vision, lack of faith, lack of initiative, lack of back-bone to lift and carry the responsibilities which must be borne if Canada ever is to take her rightful position in the world. We are too prone as a people to follow the tag-end of our neighbors to the south of the line, or to look across the ocean for our national policy, instead of shaping it in the interest of the great Dominion. We allow our political leaders to play parochial politics with national issues in a way that is shameful. Miss Laut asked the old, old question: Why is it: Canada is older in years than the United States, and has resources as great if not greater than our cousins, yet while their country has grown in development and increased in population to one hundred and ten millions, Canada has been content to jog along with a population now reaching seven or eight millions, and with a corresponding lack of development.

This message was augmented on the following day's program by the Rev. Dr. Gordon, who, in closing an inspiring address on "Grit, Grace and Greenbacks," held Canada up as the one bright spot on the universe where "character" must count if the Dominion is to occupy the important position to which she is divinely appointed as the key-stone in the arch that must in future bind Great Britain and America into one mighty people, one divine influence for peace and fellowship in the world.

The thought upon which these inspiring lectures were based, was, as to nationhood, that the outlook in British Columbia and in the Dominion —in each community—is what we make it. If we believe in the intrinsic stability of ourselves and of our country; if we realize our problems and meet them with confidence; if we think of progress instead of stagnation; if we prove our faith in ourselves, our community, our province and our Dominion by giving our support, our thoughts and our time to putting our weight behind them; then no one can doubt the outcome.

Dropping Millions Into the Ocean

Canada is having rather aa awkward time in her effort to pay the costs of operating the "gift" navy sent over from England. Really Canada has as much use for a navy as the average Canadian has for a fan in midwinter to keep the flies off After all the subterfuge and camouflage, so thoroughly understood, we all of us know why the "gift" was made by the Mother Country. We will pay the upkeep, alright, but all the same we realize that the Canadian navy, as a fighting proposition, is a joke. It isn't large enough to be of any real service and is too large and costly as a plaything.

The other day in the Dominion House, the Hon. Mr. Ballantyne, Minister of Fisheries and Marine, was reluctantly forced to ask Parliament for $2,500,000 with which to maintain the naval "gift" and pay the wages of its personnel of six hundred men, of whom less than two score are Canadians. The objections of Dr. Michael Clark of Red Deer and the Hon. W. S. Fielding, formerly minister of finance, were emphatic. The latter condemned the "gift" as a "white elephant" and the action of the government in accepting it as deserving of reproach.

Representatves of the Farmers' Progressve party condemned the navy as useless and needless to Canada and deprecated the waste of such a large sum of money, comparing it with the appropriation of agricultural needs and promotion. Undoubtedly the opinion of the majority of the people of Canada is that such an expenditure thinks the Farm and Home, of Vancouver, is an exact parallel to pouring a similar amount right into the ocean.

Obsolete Medical Ac

Dr. Downing, of Downing's sanatorium, Vancouver, was before the court the other day and was fined $10 and costs for practicing healing contrary to the Medical Act. There is no law to prevent any person from practicing law or medicine provided he does not charge for his services. Dr. Downie is a chiropractor. He has performed many wonderful cures at his sanatorium, and undertook to put an advertisement in one of the daily newspapers. This is the finding of the court as quoted in the press: "I must admit that I am unsympathetic towards the Act, but I think the Act has been passed against any human being who dares to advertise that he is a curative agency of any sort or description, especially when that human being goes into the witness box and admits that he makes his living out of it."

Isn't it odd for medical men, usually pretty well informed, to adhere to the ancient custom regarding the propriety of advertising for business? They freely adopt all manner of little stunts to give publicity to their profession, and take advantage of any little "dodge" that promises to give them publicity. But when it comes to the legitimate line of advertising, for which they have to pay, this is not permissible on penalty of a fine by the court.

HOW FAST DO TREES GROW?

One of the things most necessary to know in regard to Canadian forests is how rapidly they grow again, when cut down or burned over. Most of the European countries have this knowledge in fairly complete form and are managing their forests accordingly, but European figures cannot be applied to Canadian forests. Each country must make up its own growth-tables. Information on this subject is being gathered in different parts of Canada. One of these scientific studies of the rate of tree-growth is being made by the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior at Petawawa, Ontario, in the heart of the Ottawa valley. Plots of different kinds of trees are set apart, and the rate of growth in these measured and recorded. The effect of thinning, trimming, and draining upon the growth is also studied, so that in a comparatively few years data will be available which will be of the greatest value in the management of Canadian forests and woodlands.

Men will not worry about their religion any more than they worry about their digestion when they fully realize that life in all its manifestations is divine, and that it is as much God's work to do your every-day duty to the best of your ability as it is to preach and pray.

Just so long as parsons continue to separate the secular from the sacred, just so long will civilization continue to grope in the dark. It isn't anchorage we need so much as God's great open sea and faith to set sail thereon.

Crop prospects were never brighter in the Okanagan than this year. It is predicted that about 6,000 cars will be required to handle the harvest.

THE ONLY WAY TO FIGURE IT OUT.

You have to pay taxes. That's right, you'll be fined if you don't. But you cannot, that is, if you are a business man you cannot, pay taxes unless you have a license. If you pay a license to pay taxes as a manufacturer, you can pay taxes as a manufacturer, but if you have to pay more taxes than a manufacturer you have to have another license to pay the taxes that you ought to pay, or have to pay more than the taxes that your license as a manufacturing taxpayer entitles you to pay. Otherwise you will be fined if you don't pay them, and you'll be fined if you do pay unless you first pay for a license to pay them; and then, again, you will be fined if you don't get a license so that you can pay the taxes and so avoid being fined for not paying the taxes just because you didn't have any license to pay them. What are we talking about? Darned if we know. Ask the Dominion Government. It has taxation experts just out of the bug-house while we haven't been there—yet. —Ridgetown Dominion.

THE PAINTFEST

The air is fragrant with the taint of turpintine and linseed oil, for everyone is using paint, according to the rules of Hoyle. And this I hold to be a sign that Jonah has gone overboard; trade brightens up, the outlook's fine, and normalcy will be restored. Ill fares the land whose people say, "We can't afford to paint the barn," who see the fence all dingy gray, and do not seem to care a darn. For years the people have been bent beneath a load of care and woe, and so they would not spend a cent for any brand of paint we know. Their load was great, they had the dumps, and there was no relief in view; unpainted went the cistern pumps, the cowsheds and the hencoops, too. While things were thus I always said, "Our land will have its ugly sores until we buy Venetian red and paint their roofs and cellar doors. All optimistic spiels are bosh, and normalcy is out and down, and talk of progress will not wash when shabby houses fill the town." But now the sign for which I yearned is evident in every grad, the smell of linseed oil's returned, and it has made all boosters glad. Men seek the paintshop with the cush, the kopecks and the iron men, and then they ply the useful brush and make the old shacks young again.—Walt Mason.

Big Fruit Crop Predicted

"The fruit crop in the Okanagan Valley will be at least 25 per cent bigger this year than last," said Mr. F. W. Peters, general superintendent British Columbia Division, C. P. R. on his return to Vancouver after a trip through the Valley. "There was some late frost about a week ago, but while this possibly damaged some early vegetables, it has not touched the fruit crop at all" continued Mr. Peters. "The frost was not general but was confined to the extreme north end of the Valley. We have plenty of rolling stock earmarked to handle the heaviest crop this year. Of course it is impossible to say at this early date whether anything will turn up to change this condition, but so far it looks clear sailing."

Some Mule!

In a certain country village there was a mule that a farmer had picked up cheap, as an army castoff. This mule was the most obstinate of all mules. Arguments, cussing and beating were of no avail.

"Stubborn?" inquired one man.

The farmhand in charge of the mule wiped his forehead. "Stubborn!" he ejaculated, "Why, mister, that mule is so awkward-tempered that when his hind legs are pushing, his front ones are walking backwards."

Camp Mayo

A silver-bearing area, which comprises 1,000 square miles and which assays up to 7,000 ounces of silver to the ton, is being developed by the Guggenheims in the Yukon. Ore is being shipped which assays 200 to 700 ounces per ton, with stringers of carbonite that go 1,700 to the ton. All that is handicapping this district, known as Camp Mayo, is the shortness of the open season on the Stewart River, and it may be necessary to build a railway to adequately handle the output.

Big Coal Deposit

In giving evidence before the Fuel Committee at Ottawa, J. G. Scott, chairman of the B. C. Skeena Coal Co. stated that the coal field, situated on the upper Skeena, had a total area of about 1,200 square miles; that the quality of the coal is anthracite and semi-anthracite; the estimated quantity to exist on the 47 miles controlled by his company is very large, and that the building of 150 or 180 miles of railway would give this valuable deposit an outlet to the Prince Rupert, Victoria and Vancouver markets.

Is Canada to Bar The Door?

Labor leaders and the Labor Press want immigration stopped. Lobbyists have been busy at Ottawa for some time picturing before members the fearful results in unemployment that would likely follow if Canada does not bar the door to immigration. The unemployment situation is not a new problem. Winnipeg and Canada have been dealing with it annually for the past twenty years. Any excess in unemployment at the present time is due to the fact that the public stopped buying goods made dear by too high a cost of production, in which labor figures largely. There is abundance of work in Canada and there will be plenty for everybody to do — immigrants and all — for years to come. The present difficulty is that capital will not gamble on the present high cost of production. Therefore it is not the scarcity of work that is causing the trouble but the scarcity of capital.

The propaganda that Labor leaders have been spreading in the Labor Press is of an entirely selfish and class distinction. The phase of the immigration question considered by them, is how will immigration affect Labor supply, or to be more concrete, how will it affect wages? Labor leaders speak of possible immigration aggregates that will likely flood Canada, but they never eliminate the 30 to 40 per cent. of women, school children, and under, included in immigration totals, that do not enter the labor market. Statistics show that of every twenty male immigrants over 21 years of age, the average is about three skilled laborers, ten unskilled workers, and the other seven of professional and miscellaneous occupations. What would Canada have done in pre-war years without immigration? Where will Canada be if the resolution now before the Ottawa House "that all immigration be suspended until a normal condition of affairs is established," is considered. There is a general impression that the only immigrants Canada needs, are those going directly on the farms. That is true, but will the immigrant coming to Canada go directly to the farm? Mr. W. S. Bennett, member of the United States Immigration Commission, who worked two and a half years investigating the question of immigration abroad, challenges any statement that the cities are the wrong place for the immigrant, so far as the immigrant is concerned.

Mr. Bennett goes on to say that the Immigration Commission found the fact to be that 98 per cent. of the immigrants in a general way, and sometimes very specifically, know what employment they are going into before they leave their homes, their wives and other dependents. The reason why the immigrant goes to the cities, Mr. Bennett explains, is that he has a better chance to earn a little ready money and that there are also opportunities for him, if he is of a foreign tongue, to talk to men of his own people, who speak his language, which is most essential during the time that he is learning the English language and the local situation. "If the opportunities on the farm are greater than those offered in the city, the immigrant will soon find it out and act accordingly," says Mr. Bennett.

Mr. Bennett asks the question should anyone blame the newly arrived immigrant for going to the place where he finds compatriots, a place of worship, and helpful surroundings for him to get the right start in a new land. If he cannot speak English, he has an opportunity in the first few months to gain a wider knowledge of Canadian conditions from people of his own birth who are always to be found in the cities and towns. If when the immigrant first lands he is not trained or even equipped to go out on the prairies to settle down and get a living from the soil, what is the use of sending him out there to become a disgruntled and dissatisfied citizen? Immigration is a problem of great consequence to the people of Canada to-day. Immigration has a great influence on industry and on our prosperity which is the basis of revenue for the government. The public generally, should seriously protest against any governmental action which would prevent the entry of desirable immigration into Canada. A constructive policy of selective immigration is needed and it is up to Canada to establish a constructive policy based on a careful examination of conditions here and abroad to the end that it may safeguard our interests and promote the general welfare, regardless of any one class.

Canada needs new people, needs them badly, on the farms and in all lines of industrial activity where it is now almost impossible to get men to do the great amount of necessary rough labor to keep industry moving. Certainly, there are people who should not be permitted to come into the country, because in the very nature of things their admittance means conflict and radical social disturbance in our midst. Canada already has its share of this class.

Canada is not the congested country that Labor leaders would have people think. Canada covers an area of 3,603,910 square miles. Now let us deduct one-third, or say 1,200,000 square miles of what might be classed at present, as undesirable or unproductive areas. This leaves a basis of approximately two and a half million square miles. Canada could absorb the entire population of the British Isles (England, Scotland and Ireland) and then have 350 less people to the square mile than now exists in the Old Land. Placing our present population at 10,000,000, that means an average of 4 people per square mile in Canada. If this two-thirds of Canada were as densely populated as France, we would have a population of approximately 482,500,000 people and yet France is not a densely populated country. It has substantially a thrifty, farming population; it has forests and large unoccupied areas. If this two-thirds of Canada were as thickly settled as the United Kingdom, we would have a population of over 65,000,000 people. Taking Canada's greatest immigration year (1913) as a basis for computation, it would take over 250 years for this country to become as thickly settled as even the United States —not counting the natural increase.

We don't have to go abroad for comparisons. Let us take the provinces of Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia. If the four Western provinces were as thickly settled as these two Eastern provinces, we would have a population West of the Great Lakes of over 27,000,000 people and to settle this many people it would take above 135 years with as great an influx as we had to the West during the banner years of 1911, 1912, 1913 and 1914 — not even taking into account the natural increase. Here is the situation in so far as Western Canada is concerned. Speaking in round numbers, Manitoba has but six people to every square mile, Saskatchewan, two to the square mile, Alberta less than two, and British Columbia practically only one to the square mile. Giving every possible allowance for waste land and reducing our square mileage down to productive areas the very suggestion that immigration should be curtailed in any restrictive capacity at all, permits of no basis for argument.

The population per square mile for Great Britain and Ireland is 374. The population of France taken by the census of 1913, gave 40,412,220 or a population of 193 persons to the square mile. In 1912 the population of Belgium was 7,510,418 and the population per square mile was 658 persons. The population of the German Empire in Europe in 1911, was 60,100,000, or a population of 311 to the square mile.

In face of the above, is there any wonder why the people of Great Britain, of France, and of Belgium, should not be turning their eyes to a country such as Canada where the possibilities for the future are so great? Is there any reason why as a part of the Great British Empire, we should close our gates to the people of Great Britain especially, or to the people of France, Belgium or the United States, from whence so many desirable citizens have come to us. In the interests of the country, we should have a constructive and not a restrictive policy of immigration. — Employers' Association of Manitoba.

MARA ITEMS

An outfit came down from Vernon last Thursday to make preparations to commence work on the Mara-Sicamous road. They are now assembling camp equipment and we understand will rush it to completion. This is very agreeable news to residents.

Mr. Thomas of Smith Camp left by train for the coast on Sunday via Sicamous to take part in a mining deal that is pending for some of his property.

The many friends of Chas. Coell were pleased to see him again as he returned from Vernon where he underwent an operation some time ago, While he is not fully recovered he is making good progress and will in time recover his usual health.

Cyril Rosoman, our Postmaster has been under the weather for a short time with a sort throat, but is now able to get around again.

Gerald Little wheeled down from Vernon on Friday to join with his old school chums in the days celebration. He returned on Monday.

Miss Carefoot came down from Summerland on Friday to spend a few days here. Miss Olgy Massey who takes a leading part in local events also came from Summerland.

The usual monthly meeting of the Mara L. U. F. was held on Monday night. Owing to wet weather there was not a good turn-out, but quite a lot of business was attended to. It is expected Dr. MacDonald, M. P. P., will be present on Saturday evening to discuss the resolution which was sent some time ago.

Miss Irene Cadden and Jack Graham are to be married next Tuesday at Vernon. While this has been expected for sometime the definite date was only decided a few days ago. The bride is a native daughter and greatly esteemed by her many friends here. She always took a prominent part in all the social events. Jack Graham, the groom, is also well known who resided here several years ago with his parents and brother and after having done his bit overseas returned with his brothers and bought a portion of the Cadden homestead and has resided there ever since. At present he is engaged as engineer on the Rogers Steamboat on Mabel Lake. We all join in wishing them the best of good luck, health and happiness.

EFFICIENCY IN THE POLE YARD

The pole yard of the Okanagan Sawmills, where the Columbia Flouring Mills used to stand, has been equipped with platforms and carrier chains run by electric motors, which have a handling capacity of 1000 poles a day from the water to shipping piles. The poles are directed by a man with a pikepole from the water and "nosed in" to a chute at the bottom of which runs an endless chain with a doubled toothed "snag" placed at regular intervals. The "snag" hooks the pole by the nose and starts it up the chute. It is carried to the platform chains. These carry it to the piling platform, and when the pole is carried along to the pile of its length it is tossed out by a man with a canthook and rolls down the gang chute into the pile. The whole operation takes but a few minutes and is done with ease by the man handy with a canthook, greatly reducing the cost of handling and easing the work for the man.

THE DOG FIGHTS HIS WAY

Every group of dogs in the Eskimo country has its "king" which is generally the strongest and boldest of the group. He has achieved his honors by the right of might and he is always first in everything. The lot of the Eskimo dog is a hard one. In the first place he has to earn his living by drawing sledges. In the next place, food is so scarce that a dog is usually hungry, even hungry enough to eat his harness, or indeed, any bits of skin and leather he can find. To prevent this the men rub the leather cords with tar. But in order to live at all, an Eskimo dog has to fight his way.

Heaven, like hell, is a habit. Acquire it.

WHY NOT GROW OUR OWN SEED?

The United States and Canada jointly import about 3,000,000 pounds of alfalfa seed from Europe annually. This is bad enough but there is a worse feature.

Aside from European imports, Canada annually imports large quantities of this seed grown in the United States. The two sources of imports at present supply us with a large share of our requirements which could easily be grown in Canada and particularly in British Columbia.

Alfalfa seed production opens up a promising and profitable field to all who will enter and observe the reasonable laws of agriculture.—Farm and Home.

Miss Delphine Patchett entertained a number of Grandview Bench friends at her home near Armstrong on June 3rd.

A few Bench people took in the Mara celebration on the third and all report a fine time and lots to eat.

ORIENTAL OWNERSHIP OF LANDS

The survey recently undertaken by the Provincial Department of Agriculture to ascertain the number of Orientals owning land within the Province has revealed a far worse condition than was suspected by the most pessimistic. Altogether there are 10-80 Asiatics engaged in agriculture; including land owned and leased they control 26,918 acres. The land owned outright by Orientals totals 14,050 acres and is held by 492 Japanese and 116 Chinese; of the leased land, 103 Japanese control 1781 acres and the figures grow apace. The Chinese specialize in truck growing and the Japanese in the production of small fruits.

These figures will surprise some people who were inclined to take the matter of Orientals very seriously. Residents of the Fraser Valley can testify as to its importance but there are few white people remaining in some parts of the Pacific Great Eastern and Lillooet areas to tell anything of it there; they have been supplanted by asiatics.

Something must be done in the immediate future in the matter of regulating the ownership of land if we are to keep white men and their families on the land in areas where at the present time they are being systematically surrounded by Japanese and Chinese and forced to move out or sell out because of the unfitness of such neighbors whose ideals and standards of living are so far below those of the average Canadian's. Premier Meighen, to whom a copy of the report has been forwarded, is expected to request of Great Britain that Canada be given full power to control the matter of land ownership when he attends the Imperial Conference this month.—Farm and Home.

SURE THEY ARE

"Only fools are sure of everything," asserted the argumentative husband.

"Oh, I don't know about that, dear," reasoned his wife.

"Oh, don't you?" he retorted. Well I do. I'm jolly well sure of it!"

And the little woman simply smiled and went on with her knitting.

Mr. Indian insisted on getting the receipt. After making it the editor wanted to know why he was persistent about wanting a receipt. The Indian said: "Me die some time, go to big gate and Saint Peter ask if I been good Indian. I say yes. He say, did you pay debts?" I say yes. He say, did you pay editor for paper?, I say yes. He say where is receipt? I no have it. I have to run all over hell to find you and get receipt."
