MacKelvie Wins by Increased Majority; Liberals Win East

Dominion returns at noon, Dec. 7th: (complete) Liberal, 118; Conservative 59; Progressive, 54; Labor, 2; Socialist, 2; total 235.

The election of J. A. MacKelvie in Yale Riding is conceded by a majority of 575 or thereabouts. Last year Mr. MacKelvie's majority over Col. Edgett was 389. In Enderby last year Edgett polled 195 against MacKelvie 81. On Tuesday Sutherland polled 240 against MacKelvie's 160. There was about this proportion of increase in the vote all along the line. Vernon last year gave MacKelvie 898, and Edgett 571, while in this contest the vote was 844 for MacKelvie and 541 for Sutherland, a slight falling off in either case. In Kelowna, Sutherland's home town, MacKelvie polled 478 against Sutherland's 922. Last year Grindrod gave MacKelvie 17 and Edgett 43, while this year the vote was MacKelvie 29, Sutherland 83. Mara gave MacKelvie 13 and Edgett 64 last year, and now gives MacKelvie 21 and Sutherland 69. The vote at Armstrong last year was MacKelvie 248, Edgett 344; while it was in this contest MacKelvie 343, Sutherland 431.

The weight of Penticton's vote, as well as that of all the lake towns except Kelowna, went to MacKelvie, at Summerland a majority of 132, and Penticton a majority of 391.

The quick and obliging service of the Okanagan Telephone Company to its patrons and the public in giving the returns was much appreciated. "Huple yet to hear from," is a phrase coined a long time ago, and after every election in years past the world has been kept in suspense a day or two or three waiting for the results to come down. Not so this time. A telephone was installed at Huple a few weeks ago, and the result of this election's polling was known in Vernon twenty minutes after the poll was closed: MacKelvie 5, Sutherland 29. Last year it went 26 for Edgett, every ballot going against the Government.

His First Chance

"What do you know of women's work?" fiercely queried the lady orator.

"Is there a man here," she continued, folding her arms, "who has, day after day, got up in the morning, gone quietly downstairs, made the fire, cooked his own breakfast, sewed the missing buttons on the children's clothes, cleaned the pots and kettles and swept the kitchen? If there is such a man in the audience let him rise up, I should like to see him."

In the rear of the hall a mild looking man in spectacles timidly arose.

He was the husband of the eloquent speaker.

This was the first chance he had ever had to assert himself.

There's only one thing that'll mix with business, an' that's printer's ink.

GOING UP FAST

Despite Bad Weather, Splendid Progress Made on Rink-Hall

Weather conditions the past week have not been favorable for rapid work on the Enderby Rink and Agricultural Hall, and yet, good progress has been made. All of last week was occupied in putting the bents for the truss roof together, twenty-eight of them. These were finished on Monday, and are now being placed in position. The trusses which go on top of them, will be in position by the end of the week and then rapid progress will be seen.

It is confidently believed by some that ice will be made by Christmas, and skates are being sharpened preparatory for the opening. It is not wise, however, to expect too much under prevailing weather conditions. If we get skating early in January it will be as much as can be looked for. Foreman Grant is pushing the work as rapidly as possible, and the city decided at a special meeting of the Council Friday evening to lay water on the ground as early as the work can be done after the arrival of the pipe from the coast.

NORTH DEEP CREEK

Mr. and Mrs. Jeoffery Smiley are going to spend the winter with Mr. J. K. Smiley.

Mrs. J. K. Smiley left last week for New York, where she hopes to spend the winter with her youngest daughter, Dorothy.

R. Johnston visited his sons here last week.

Misses. E. and A. Phillips, of Salmon Arm, visited their parents here on Sunday.

The children are having their annual Christmas tree and concert on Friday evening, Dec. 16th.

Mrs. G. Barney has returned to her home after spending several weeks in Vernon, where she underwent medical treatment following an operation, at the Jubilee Hospital.

Mr. Harvie and Mr. Dodd were business visitors to Salmon Arm on Monday.

Local News and Comment on Men, Things and Events

Christmas decorations are appearing in the stores.

And the next day it snowed—as well as the day before.

Wilson's variety store reports Xmas business starting early and in most encouraging volume.

Foster's forecast indicates that the storm period of this week will be followed by higher temperature about the 10th.

The annual meeting of Enderby Local, United Farmers, will be held on the evening of Dec. 15th, for the election of officers.

It is estimated there are still 250 cars of apples in the Okanagan, including Salmon Arm, to be shipped as the market improves.

A number of Enderby Knights of Pythias are joining with Vernon to go to Lumby Saturday night to institute a lodge of 35 members.

Wonder where that fellow got the idea that "Canada needs Meighen?" The idea may be allright, but why didn't Canada know it in time?

The Provincial Legislature was prorogued on Saturday last, after being in session since October 18th. Fifty-four bills were passed, and no beer-by-the-glass bill.

The two thousand and thirty-twoth solution of the Irish problem was flare-headed in the newspapers this week. Another crisis may be looked for when the sun comes out.

Mrs. D. J. Welsh has taken over the high-school classes at Summerland following the resignation of C. W. Matheson, to carry on until another teacher comes after the Christmas holidays.

The meeting held in Farmers' Hall last Thursday afternoon for the purpose of discussing the question of organizing a city club in Enderby, was attended by but few citizens, and it was the opinion of those present that this was the most inopportune time to take up the matter, and it was laid over six months.

R. J. Jones, home from Vancouver a week or two, returned to the coast on Friday much improved in health by the short rest in the Okanagan.

Mrs. Arthur Teece won the luncheon cloth raffled by the Catholic Ladies Aid last Saturday. The returns from this bazaar netted the Aid funds $150 or more.

Another lot of personal greeting cards will be printed on Saturday by the Walker Press. All orders received up to noon of Saturday will be included in that day's run.

Enderby's basket ball teams went to Armstrong last Saturday week, and enjoyed three games with the local players. Next Saturday the Armstrong teams will play here, in the Drill Hall, and parents and friends will be privileged to see the sport.

At the regular meeting of Enderby Lodge No. 35, K. of P., Monday night, the following were elected officers: C. C., Arden Bush; V. C., Geo. Graham; Prel., Thos. Cameron; M. W., Ben Folkard; M. A., E. A. Winter; K. R. S., H. M. Walker; M. F., R. J. Coltart; M. E., John Burnham; I.G., G. Sveen; O. G., R. N. Bailey.

Mary Pickford in "Suds," at the Opera House next Tuesday and Wednesday, will be the last show until Christmas Day. This is said to be this charming little actress' best. It presents her in a new roll entirely, though it is hard to visualize Mary as good in any character as she is in "Daddy Long Legs." "Suds," promises to get a full house.

A. A. Rogers returned from Minneapolis on Monday. He came by way of Winnipeg, stopping over there and at Calgary a few days, and says that he found general conditions far more promising at these points than he had anticipated, and believes indications point to considerable building there as soon as weather conditions will permit.

"FREE STATE OF IRELAND"

Splitting Hairs Over Pledge of Allegiance Finally at an End.

The stumbling block in the way of an agreement over the Irish question, has been the refusal of Sinn Fein to subscribe to the oath of allegiance to the King. At last a form of words has been found which satisfies both parties, and the recognition of Ireland as an independent state is said to be clear. The difficulty was obviated by suggesting an oath pledging allegiance to the Free State of Ireland, to the Empire and to the King." The principle at last adopted by the government is said to have been that of trusting Ireland fully and giving her full power of decision without hampering her by conditions. A governor-general with the same powers as the governor-general of Canada, will be appointed. The British navy is to enjoy the facilities of Irish harbors in peace and war times. The free state is permitted a military force in the same proportion to its population as in Britain. The condition previously insisted upon that there must be free trade between Great Britain and Ireland is said to have been dropped by the government and Ireland is given freedom regarding tariffs. The delegates of the Dail Eireann, however, explained that it would be to Ireland's advantage to have free trade between the two islands and that she would adopt this voluntarily.

MEETING OF RETURNED MEN

A meeting of the Returned Men will be held in Farmer's Hall, on Thursday, Dec. 8th, at 8 p.m., to discuss various matters pertaining to our interest, and the starting of a Returned Men's Club in Enderby.

All please attend. "In unity is strength." A. D. GLEN.

On the Open Road with Hank Reklaw

"I accept the verdict of the people. I have no further comment to make." These were the words of Premier Meigen, uttered Tuesday night when the result of the elections was known. They express the character of the man. A penetrating mind, and a statesman, defeated by his friends. Premier Meighen has had to bear the defeat that should have been borne by Sir Robert Borden, on whose retirement Meighen had to take up a burden no man could hope to carry. It was that of the "inner circle," pampered and grown fat on war contracts and special privileges, and insistent upon holding on after peace came. Possibly had the Prime Minister instituted a clean up immediately on taking up the mantle laid off by Borden he then could have had the people behind him. But the inevitable was postponed. He dared not face the task; the clean-up did not come—now it has been made.

Time was, in Canada, when the people were prepared to follow their political leaders into any tariff revision contest they had a mind to put up to them. They'd get out and howl to beat the band for a tariff or for free trade, depending on which side of the fence they stood. But, not so today. The tariff scare is no longer effective. The people understand as never before that any tariff levied to protect certain classes, or certain manufacturers, is an indirect tax upon themselves—the many—for the benefit of the special class—the few. And, rightly or wrongly, they feel that the protected class in Canada have not played the game fairly. The feeling is abroad, and was given expression to at the polls, that our manufacturers have taken, and are taking, an unjust advantage of the protection given them by the tariff, and are draining the pockets of the people to the limit of their ability to pay. And any party in power must suffer the consequence of having had anything to do with framing the tariff laws which have been abused or turned against the people.

In a contest resulting so close as this one, it is difficult to know for a day or two exactly what the standing in the House will be. It is conceded, however, that MacKenzie King will have 118 out of the total membership 235. This gives him a majority but not a working majority. He will probably win a few of the eleven seats yet to be heard from. The Conservatives are conceded 48, and the Progressives 58 seats. Since these figures were reported, four seats more are conceded Conservative, with only seven in doubt. It can be seen from this how slim the Liberal majority will be, and a coalition would not be surprising.

The prominent position assumed by the Progressive party, with 58 members elected, is indicative of the trend of Canadian politics. The farmers of Canada have always been Conservative. They remained Conservative until the Union Government was formed, and it became, in common belief, at least, the party of the manufacturers and special-privilege class. Then was formed the Progressive, or people's party. And it is to this party that Canada will look to for the new spirit of Canadianism that must work to a cleaner political life.

As was stated in these columns early in September, there never was any serious doubt as to the election of Mr. MacKelvie in this riding, though Mr. Sutherland gave him a hard run. It was recognized at the outset that in the campaign of a year ago Mr. MacKelvie made a clean, open fight and won on the merits of the contest, and in his initial sessional work he took up in an able manner with the various departments at Ottawo, the many issues which are agitating the people of his constituency. And it was generally conceded that to him should be given the opportunity to complete the work started. It may be said, speaking locally, that in the matter of Indian reserve, Mr. MacKelvie placed Enderby's case before the Indian Department and received the assurance that this case was the clearest and best presented the Department had before it, and would receive action if it should be decided by the Government to take over any Indian reserves to be opened for settlement.

Water-Power Development

In the discussion relating to the proposed development of hydro-electric power at Shuswap Falls by the people of the Okanagan, organized as a unit for that purpose, many sidelights are reflected upon the main issue which help to concentrate thought bearing upon the project. We find much in the reports of the Canadian Conservation Board which is an aid to the fuller understanding of the proposition. For instance, British Columbia has three millions of horsepower available from her rivers and streams. Of this sum, there are 269,620 horsepower developed. By far the greater amount of this developed horsepower is for use in paper and pulp mills, comparatively little being used for light, heat and other power.

The amount of this developed power owned and operated by municipalities for light, fuel, etc., is of little importance and hardly worth mentioning. Private companies, for the most part are doing what should be done by municipalities for their people. Speaking in connection with the effort then being made by the Coteau Power Company to get control of the waterpower at Coteau Falls, on the St. Lawrence, Senator Edwards in 1918 said: "If there is a country in the world that will have to solve difficult problems after this unfortunate war is over, Canada is that country; and it behooves Canadian to study and understand the real condition of affairs. Unfortunately, Canada has lived for many years in a fool's paradise as to its natural resources. We are not possessed of the inexhaustible natural wealth that our people generally believe we have."

At that time, in opposing the general tendency of our men in power to give to American companies control of Canadian waterpowers, the Conservation Board quoted this passage from Pinchot's report to his Government on the control of waterpower in the United States, which is as applicable in Canada:

"Whoever dominates power, dominates all industry. Have you ever seen a few drops of oil scattered on the water spreading until they form a continuous film, which put an end at once to all agitation of the surface. The time for us to agitate this question is now, before the separate circles of centralized control spread into the uniform, unbroken, nation-wide covering of a single gigantic trust. There will be little chance for mere agitation after that. No man at all familiar with the situation can doubt that the time for effective protest is very short. If we do not use it to protect ourselves now, we may be very sure that the trust will give hereafter small consideration to the welfare of the average citizen when in conflict with its own."

Taxation and Industry

The time is approaching, if not already here, when we shall have to scrap either our taxation laws or the industries of the country. Already many industrial concerns have closed doors and stopped producing, and many more are preparing to follow. Our unemployed number hundreds of thousands. Our industries on the brink of ruin and unproductive. In this respect we do not differ greatly from the United States and the European countries.

"Lack of market," "People will not buy," "No demand;" these are some of the reasons given for the slump. But, looking around the corner, we can see another and perhaps the prime factor. Six months ago industry in the United States faced the same problems which we must face in Canada. In July President Harding made it clear to his party leaders in Congress that he wanted a tax program adopted which would lift restraint from business initiative, and congress has had to scrap the tax laws which imposed such burdens upon business.

We need to scrap certain tax laws in Canada, otherwise we shall be without industries in a comparatively short time. Our taxation laws are simply becoming unbearable, and industry after industry is left crippled and dying. There is no incentive to capital today, nor to anyone, either to continue in business or to initiate new enterprise. The rake-off taken from business by both our provincial and dominion governments, and the ever-increasing demand for lower prices, leaves no margin on which business can be conducted in safety. The results already are to be seen in the closing down of one mill after another, and company plants standing idle or ceasing altogether. Industry, "the goose that lays the golden egg," is being throttled by a pernicious system of taxation that makes men more free of burden as non-producers than as producers, and which penalizes industry.

Scrapping the Anglo-Japanese Alliance

A Washington despatch says the Anglo-Japanese Alliance is scrapped. But listen: instead of a two-party alliance, we now have a four-party alliance—the United States, Great Britain, Japan and France—who have entered into an undertaking to jointly keep the peace of the Pacific.

Another important point in the Far Eastern discussion in the arms conference was won by China in the committe of nine powers, Great Britain, Japan and France agreeing to retire from much of the leased territory of China. Japanese representatives, it is reported, have agreed on the part of Japan to give up their territorial holdings in Shantung and have offered to bargain for their retirement from their special privileges in Manchuria. M. Viviani, for France, expressed willingness to retire from Kwan Chow Wai, the French leased territory, and British spokesmen are said to have followed with a proffer to give up the British leased territory of Wei Hei Wei.

In this connection, what Frank H. Simonds says in relation to the Anglo-Japanese Alliance, in the December Review of Reviews, will be of interest: "The fact is that the Anglo-Japanese Alliance has been a partnership in which the British profits have been enormous. I do not think it is too much to say that on the whole the great gain up to date has been British. Originally constructed to meet the Russian menace, which was then the dominant factor in the Far East, it was continued when Germany became the threat to British security. As a consequence of this alliance Great Britain was able to remove her first-line units from the Pacific to the North Sea and confront Germany. In the course of the World War Japanese fleets swept the Pacific of German raiders, patrolled the sea lanes vital to British trade, and even contributed useful naval assistance in the Mediterranean.

"Today the British have no interest which would be disadvantaged by the continuance of the Alliance. There is political pressure in many parts of the Empire insisting upon the dissolution of the Alliance as an obstacle to Anglo-American friendship. British interests unmistakably would be best served today by the denunciation of the Treaty of Alliance, provided there were an honorable method of accomplishing this result. Unhappily, the honorable method is not discoverable. British prestige and British self-respect would suffer incalculable injury if at the behest of a third power and in the pursuit of selfish interests alone, Great Britain should now divorce a partner who on the whole has served her well, even if Japanese policy in recent years has done violence to the spirit of the compact, with infinite profit to Japan. In this situation the British policy is clear. Lloyd George has frankly suggested that there should be substituted for the Anglo-Japanese Alliance an Anglo-American-Japanese association in the Pacific. Even in Japan there is no longer any illusion as to the real value of the British Alliance. Tokio perceives as clearly as London or Washington that in a conflict between Japan and the United States Great Britain would be at least neutral, and in all human probability an ally of the United States before the conflict had continued long. To be thrown off violently and publicly by Britain would be an injury to Japanese prestige and pride which would be resented forever. On the other hand, there is little reason to believe that there would be any considerable Japanese hostility to a translation of the dual alliance into a tripartite association."

Setting Politics to Jazz Music

Here and there in the Okanagan, in the political campaign just ended, the campaign committee of one of the candidates insisted on sending an orchestra along with the candidate when he addressed his meetings, and provided music for dancing at the close of the speaking. Naturally, the meetings were largely attended, for today the world is in a jazzed state of mind, and a free dance taken with your politics has a very sedative effect and will draw a crowd anywhere anytime. But the idea of having to do this is a new one. As a campaign stunt, it is up-to-the minute. But it is a question if it is wise as a vote-getter, for even a jazzed world has its sober moments when it prefers its political speakers and political literature set on a higher plane.

Canada's problems today are too serious to be treated lightly. The heart sickens at so much in life that is not real. From our politicians and men seeking to serve as legislators, the people want to hear something constructive, not destructive. They'd like to hear something inspirational set to "Onward Christian Soldiers," instead of so much that is debilitating set to the music of "I Know Where the Flies Go." They might take their jazz with or without their politics, and will dance whether they eat or think, but when it comes right down to voting they leave their jazz behind.

The Provincial Government is to be commended for providing in the estimates for $445,000 to be spent on additional University buildings, to be erected as soon as possible.

Dr. A. R. Baker says he will resign from the local government service, as a result of the charges made last week in the Provincial House

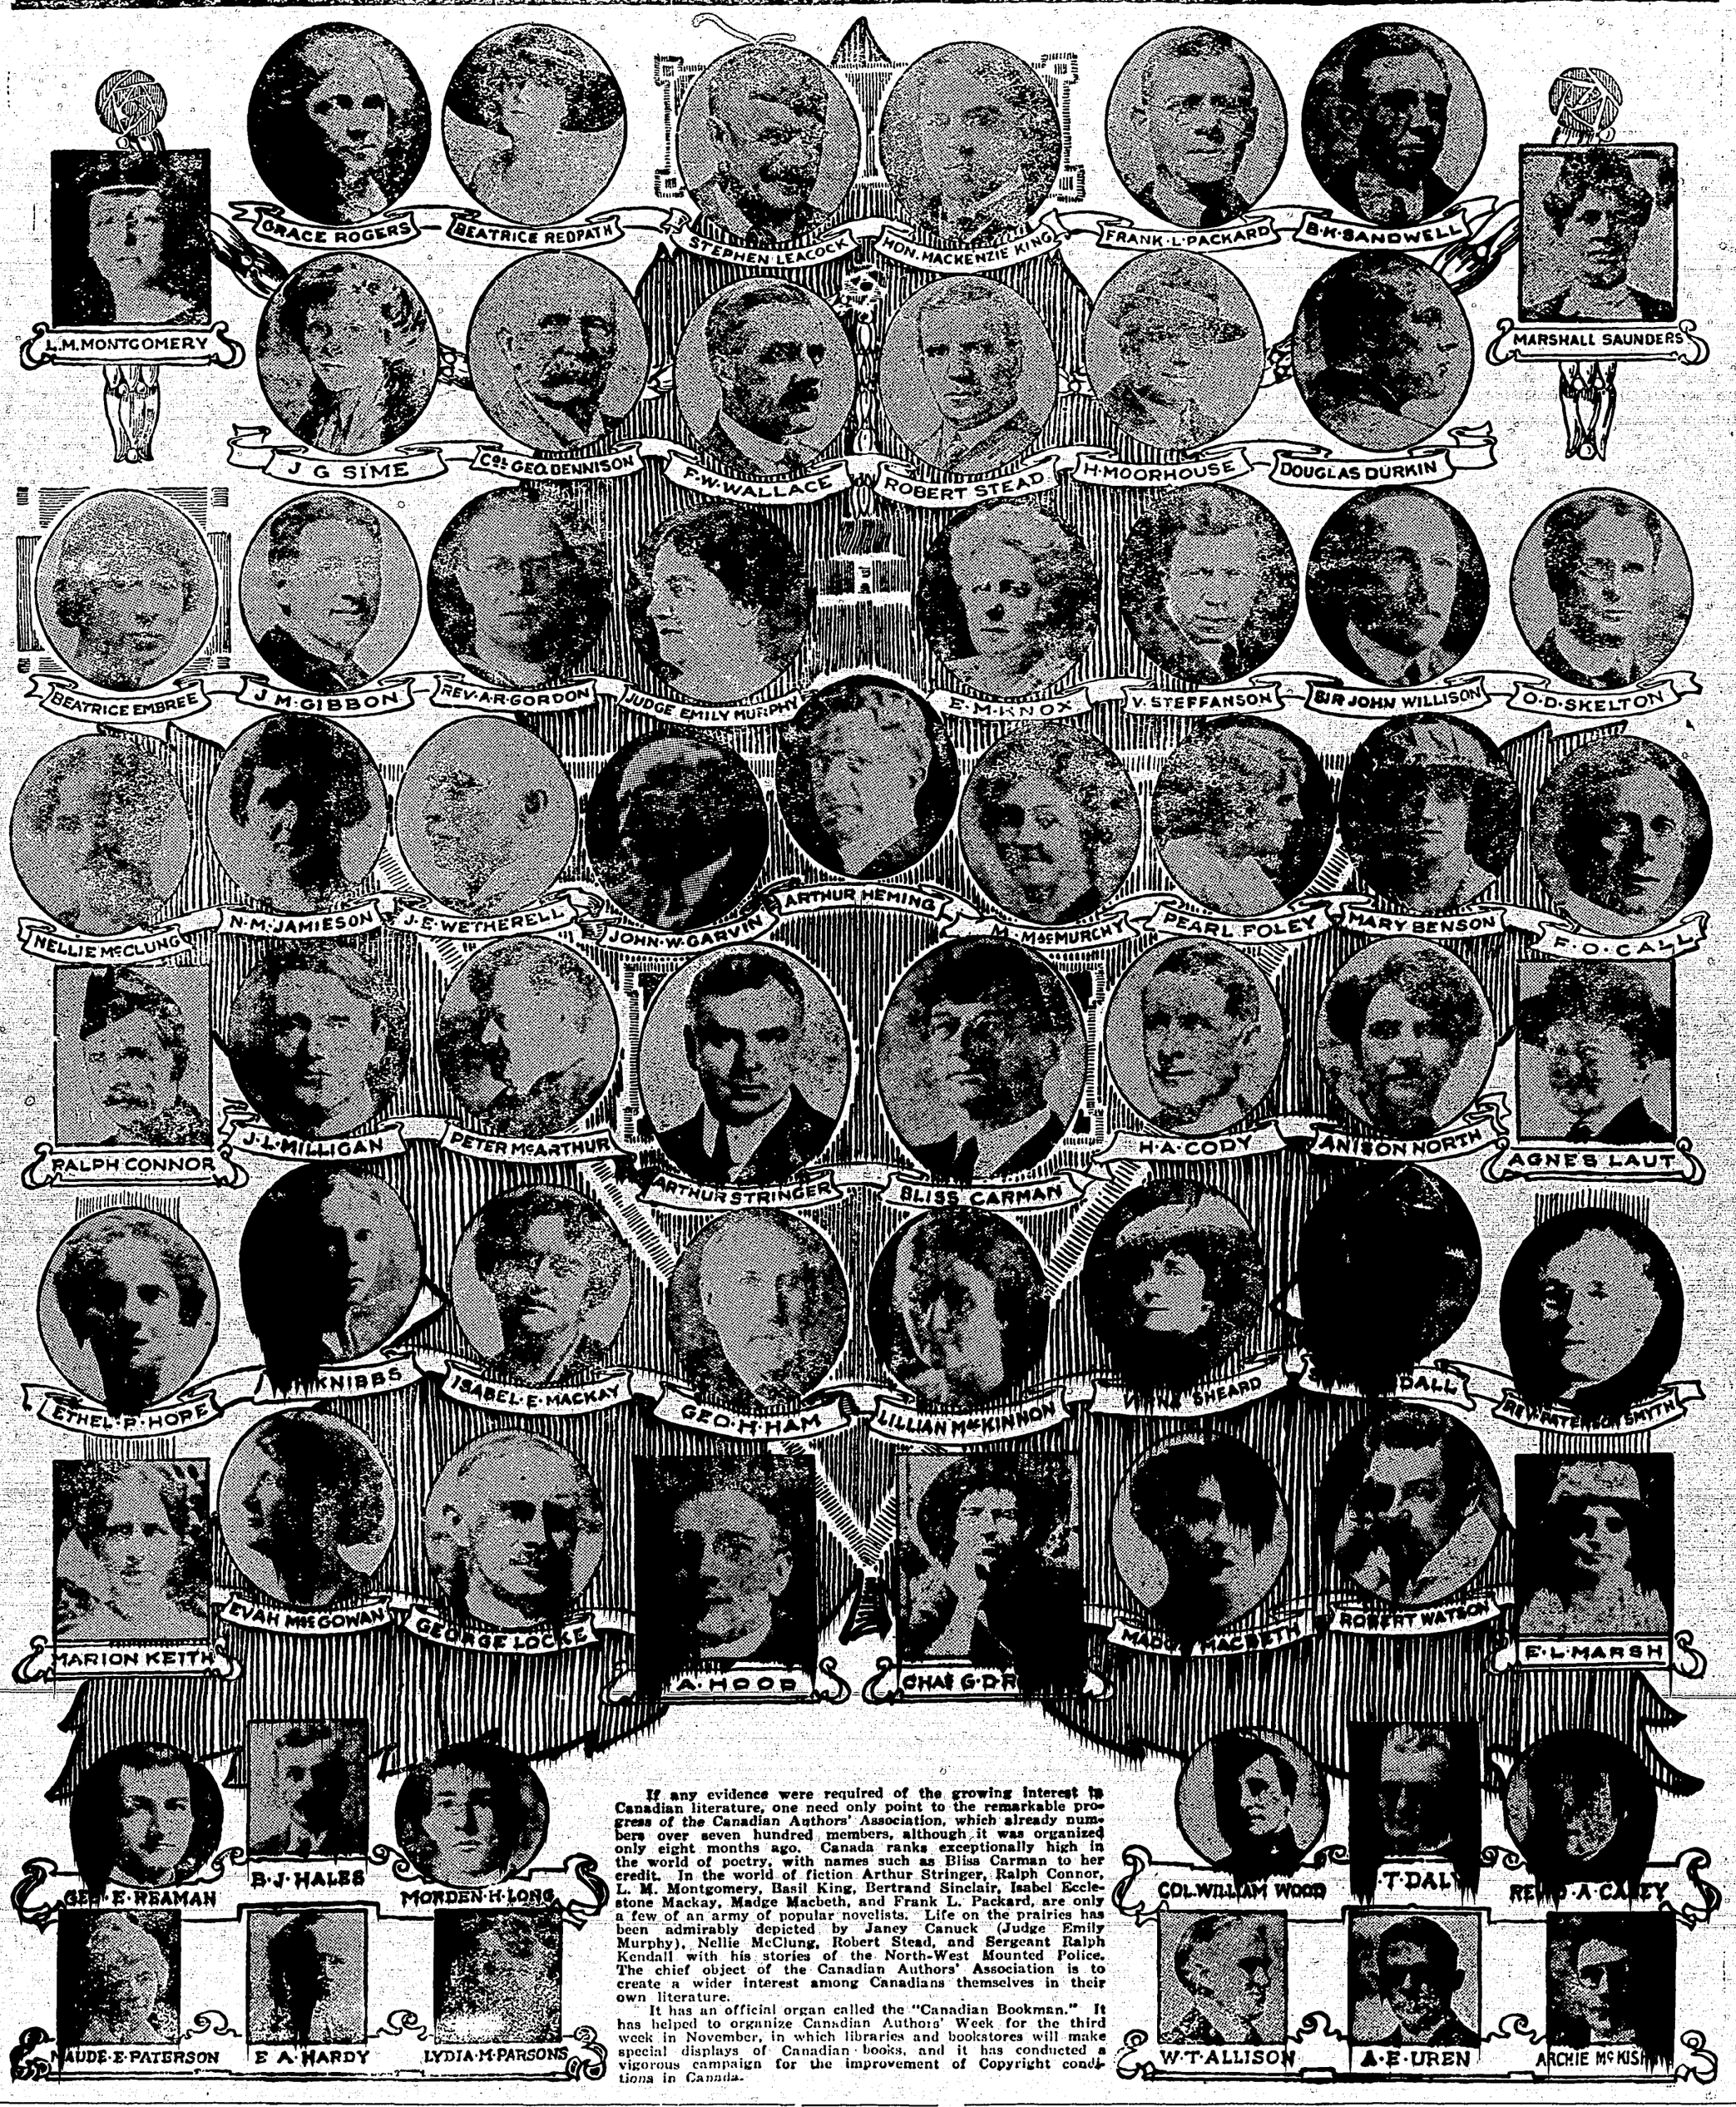
SOME CANADIAN AUTHORS OF TO-DAY



If any evidence were required of the growing interest in Canadian literature, one need only point to the remarkable progress of the Canadian Authors' Association, which already numbers over seven hundred members, although it was organized only eight months ago. Canada ranks exceptionally high in the world of poetry, with names such as Bliss Carman to her credit. In the world of fiction Arthur Stringer, Ralph Connor, L. M. Montgomery, Basil King, Bertrand Sinclair, Isabel Ecclestone Mackay, Madge Macbeth, and Frank L. Packard, are only a few of an army of popular novelists. Life on the prairies has been admirably depicted by Janey Canuck (Judge Emily Murphy), Nellie McClung, Robert Stead, and Sergeant Ralph Kendall with his stories of the North-West Mounted Police. The chief object of the Canadian Authors' Association is to create a wider interest among Canadians themselves in their own literature.

It has an official organ called the "Canadian Bookman." It has helped to organize Canadian Authors' Week for the third week in November, in which libraries and bookstores will make special displays of Canadian books, and it has conducted a vigorous campaign for the improvement of Copyright conditions in Canada.

A raw lemon works wonders when brasswork is very dirty. Rub the stained parts and wipe off almost at once with a clean flannel.

A simple cure for catarrh is to occasionally sniff up the nose some salt water—a teaspoonful to half a pint of warm water.

When polishing furniture wring out a cloth in hot water and wipe over the polished surface before applying the cream. The result will be a high polish that will not finger mark.

Fruit stains may be removed from table linen by moistening them with camphor. If treated in this manner before they are placed in water the stains will disappear after the linen has been washed.

If new patent leather shoes are rubbed all over with a little vaseline put on with a piece of soft flannel, and polished, they will never creak.

MARA ITEMS

Mr. and Mrs. J. Graham spent two days at Vernon last week on business.

Mara Local held their usual monthly meeting last Monday, when considerable business was disposed of.

Harry Coell has returned from Vernon, having finished work for the season in connection with fruit shipments.

The Rev. Father Crowner, of Armstrong, paid a brief visit last week to Mr. Wm. Cadden, who has been seriously ill for some time.

Major Feilden is receiving congratulations on the arrival of another son. Both Mrs. Feilden and child are doing well, in the Enderby Hospital.

Matt Weir, who has been seriously ill for sometime, has so far recovered that he has accepted a position as blacksmith at Langley Prairie, and left for that place on Monday.

Fred Dean and Wm. Coell were up from Vernon this week, stopping over for the voting. They have a little work yet to do at Vernon before coming to Mara for the winter.

A meeting of the various committees in connection with the Xmas tree shows that arrangements are well advanced, and, judging by the enthusiasm displayed, it promises to be far ahead of all others.

GRINDROD NOTES

Mr. Goddard was in Grindrod a few days this week.

C. S. Handcock spent a few days in Vernon on business last week.

Miss H. Monk came home from Vernon to spend a few weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Monk.

A delegation of five ladies went to Enderby last week to buy for the Xmas tree. They brought back with them one of the finest selection of toys yet bought.

C. S. Handcock was the returning officer for Oct. 6th, G. D. McEwen polling clerk and G. H. Wells and R. R. Clarke agents. One hundred and thirteen voted out of the 154 enrolled, one ballot being spoiled.

While waiting for the dominion election returns on Tuesday night a number of people gathered at the G. F. Hall and spent the evening in singing, cards and dancing. When no further information could be obtained the enjoyable evening was brought to a close by singing the national anthem.

Reason Germans Hold Ruhr Distrist

When speaking of the recent proposal to occupy the Ruhr district, Premier Lloyd George said: "I must first point out exactly what occupation of the Ruhr would mean. Before the war the output of coal in the Ruhr valley was the largest production obtained in any single coal field in the world. It was considerably over one hundred million tons. It contains every quality of coal for every conceivable purpose for which coal can be used. Two thirds of the whole of the German iron and steel production is in the Ruhr Valley. The importance of the region may be gauged by the fact that last year 25,000 railway trucks of fifteen tons were loaded every day in the Ruhr, double the number of goods trucks handled daily by the Nord Railway in the great industrial valley of France. During the war the Ruhr Valley was Germany's great arenal for guns, for shells, for gas, and the industrial development of South Germany depends almost entirely upon the coal of the Ruhr. With the Ruhr gone, industrial Germany withers."

K. Imanaki expects to leave for Japan early in the New Year, where he will spend some time with his children.

SOCIAL CLUB ORGANIZED

First Meeting of St. George's Church Association Very Successful Affair

At a meeting held in Parochial Hall, St. George's Church, Nov. 23rd, some 14 members of the Parish being present, the advisability of forming a club for social purposes was given unanimous support. After Rev. C. A. Blay outlined the purposes and suggested possible programs, a general discussion took place, and committees were formed to take care of details. It was agreed unanimously to hold an inaugural social on Dec. 1st, and combine business with pleasure, in order to obtain the views and ideas of others who were present at the first meeting. This was done, and the social proved highly successful, from both business and pleasure aspects. Details were gone into and a somewhat lengthy discussion prefaced the consumption of plenty of delicate refreshments.

Officers elected were: Patron, Rev. C. A. Blay; hon. president, Mrs. Harrap; president, E. A. Winter; vice-president, Mrs. B. H. Morris; secretary-treasurer, W. A. Andrews; executive, Mrs. Morton and Mrs. Blay.

Twenty-five enrolled their names, and promised to try and obtain additional members. At a subsequent meeting of the officers, it was decided that the entertainment for Thursday, Dec. 8th, should take the form of progressive whist and it is hoped that a good crowd will put in an appearance.
