SIXTEENTH YEAR—No 39 GRAND FORKS B. C., FRIDAY, JULY 27, 1917 $1.00 PER YEAR

MEETING OF THE CITY COUNCIL

Chairman of Water and Light Committee Says Water Is Being Wasted

Mayor Acres and Ald. McArdle, McCallum, Schnitter and Webster were present at the regular meeting of the city council on Monday evening.

Poundmaster Woodhead addressed the council, stating that he did not consider the 50 cents per day allowed by the pound bylaw a sufficient amount on which to feed impounded animals. No action was taken by the council.

W. K. C. Manly asked, on behalf of the Grand Forks Canning association, for a grant to cover the association's taxes on its property. As the property would be affected by this year's tax sale, the council did not take any action in the matter. It was apparent, however, that the members present did not favor granting the request, in view of the fact that the property of many worthy but needy citizens would have to be put up at tax sale this year.

City Engineer Reid reported that he had made temporary repairs to the reservoir, and the leakage had been almost entirely overcome, but there was considerable seapage from the 12-inch pipe leading to the reservoir, and he suggested that a man be employed for a day or two to prospect for the break. On motion of Ald. McCallum and McArdle, Mr. Reid was authorized to endeavor to find the break in the pipe and to repair it at as small an expense as possible.

John Simpson thought that there were not sufficient hotel accommodations in the West end for the railway people, and he would like to see the Pacific reopened. The mayor stated that the matter had already been dealt with by the license commissioners.

Mayor Acres stated that a convention of automobile clubs was shortly to be held at Princeton, and he thonght it would be a graceful act to send the members an invitation to visit this city before they returned to the coast.

The mayor stated that the third anniversary of the commencement of the war would occur on Saturday, August 4, and he favored a proper observance of the occasion by the citizens. On motion of Ald. Webster and McCallum, he was authorized to secure a hall and to make arrangements for a meeting similar to that held last year.

The chairman of the finance committee reported in favor of giving the insurance on the contents of the city hall to F. R. S Barlee, as his figures were lower than those of other insurance men. The report was adopted.

Tenders for redecking the Fourth street bridge were received as follows: R. J. Logan, 14½ cents per lineal foot; John Hall and E. C. Peckham, 19 cents; Wm. Bonthron, 10 cents. On motion, the work was awarded to the lowest tenderer.

The chairman of the water and light committee reported that an enormous amount of water had been used lately, and he was convinced that a large portion of it was being wasted. He did not like to resort to the extreme measure of employing a special policeman to enforce the sprinkling regulations, but in his opinion some step of that nature would soon have to be taken. After discussion, it was decided to postpone action for a short time.

The chairman of the parks and cemetery committee urged the draining of McCallum's stough more effectively than it is at present. On motion of Ald. Schnitter and McCalium, the chairman of the health and relief committee was instructed to ascertain the cost and, if he deemed it advisable, to have the work done.

The board of works was authorized to close the Fourth street bridge while it is being replanked.

The city clerk reported that small reductions in the assessment of B. Lexuime's lots had been made by the county court, but that the assessment on the improvements had been confirmed.

The tax collector was authorized to accept installments as payment for taxes.

Ald. McArdle was granted leave to introduce the mayor's remuneration bylaw. It provides for a remuneration of $300 to the mayor. It was advanced the third reading stage.

Ald. McArdle was granted leave to introduce the aldermen's indemnity bylaw. The bylaw provides for an indemnity of $175, with a reduction of $7 for each non attendance at meetings after an absence from two meetings. It was advanced to the third reading stage.

MINISTER OF LANDS VISITS CITY

Addresses a Meeting of Ranchers Interested in Irrigation

Hon. Mr. Pattullo, minister of lands in the Brewster government, and Mr. Young, controller of water, arrived in the city at 8 o'clock on Wednesday evening from Phoenix in J. E. W. Thompson's car. Only a few hours' advance notice of their coming had been received here, but the ranchers were hastily notified and an informal meeting was arranged for in the board of trade rooms that evening to discuss with the minister the irrigation problem, which is at present a vital issue in this valley. Considering the short notice of the meeting, the attendance was gratifying.

E. C. Henniger, president of the local Liberal association, who acted as chairman, in introducing the minister to the audience, briefly outlined the objects of the meeting.

Mr. Pattullo said he and Mr. Young had visited the valley to study the question of irrigation and to obtain the views of the residents rather than to make speeches. It was the intention of the government, however, to do everything it could to assist the agricultural industry, as it fully realized that the permanent prosperity of the province depended more on the tillage of the soil than on any other industry.

J. T. Lawrence stated that an irrigation system that would irrigate all the land of the valley was urgently needed. The proposition was too big for the farmers to finance it, and they appealed to government to investigate the subject and to suggest a workable scheme. In his opinion, a feasible method of irrigating the valley would be to start a ditch seventeen miles up the North Fork. Enough water could thus be obtained to irrigate 30,000 acres, and water could be put on the bench lands as well as the lowlands. The lower part of the valley could be irrigated from Smelter lake. If this scheme was adopted, he thought there might be a chance of supplying the city with water, from which source a substantial annual revenue might be derived.

Mr. Young, replying to a question, said an indebtedness against land of $30 per acre for irrigation purposes was not an unreasonably amount. By the repayment of $3 per acre per year the principal and interest would be liquidated in about twenty years. Before the war broke out the government of the day had made plans to come into the valley and take stock with a view of assisting the farmers to install an irrigation system, but of course the war had upset the plans.

John Simpson suggested damming the main river at Danville and bring the water across the line. It would be cheaper, he said, than to bring it from the North Fork. He asked to minister if such a system would conflict with international law. Mr. Pattullo replied that a system is in operation in Saskatchewan.

Robert Mann endorsed Mr. Lawrence's plan, as it would irrigate all the bench lands.

Neil McCallum said irrigation overshadowed every other question in the valley. With water the valley would be the garden spot of the province; without water, the full fruits of the farmer's labors were uncertain in dry seasons.

H. C. Kerman said irrigation was badly needed, and he felt sure some good would result from the visit of the minister and Mr. Young.

C. C. Heaven hoped for good results from Mr. Pattullo's and Mr. Young's visit, and trusted they would find time to visit all parts of the valley before they left the city.

John Donaldson spoke along similar lines, and congratulated the people of the district upon having a live representative at Victoria in J. E. W. Thompson.

Mr. Pattullo followed these speakers, and spoke at considerable length. It was quite apparent from his speech that the minister was friendly toward an adequate irrigation system for the valley, as on several occasions he emphasized the fact that the basis of the permanency of any community was agriculture. Personally he viewed the scheme outlined by the speakers with favor, but he could promise nothing on the part of the government, as there was yet no law on the statute books authorizing governmental aid irrigation projects. He thought it was quite probable that such a law would be enacted at the next session of the legislature. He himself would support it. When the law was passed, the government would take immediate action. He made it clear that any irrigation project the government might decide to aid would have to be paid for in the end by the ranchers. The minister dwelt at length on the financial status of the province, which he compared to the condition of a man the day after he had been on a big spree. Capitalists and financiers everywhere were discouraging the floating of any more loans by the province, and in order to meet current expenses the government had been forced to put on what he termed the iniquitous surtax. There was no other means of escape. To have kept on borrowing would have brought the province to bankruptcy. He prodicted that before the war ended the federal government would control the borrowing of money by the provinces and municipalities. In closing, the speaker reminded the audience that the majority of the press of the province were hotile to the government, and a great many matters were misrepresented and magnified. Stories of dissensions in the cabinet were assiduously circulated. He was pleased to say that there had never been a government at Victoria in which the members had acted with more unanimity than in the present one.

J. T. Lawrence thought the minister had taken the right spirit of the irrigation situation in this valley, and commended his remarks.

Yesterday Mr. Pattullo and Mr. Young and a party of local men were driven through the valley in Mr. Henniger's and Mr. Thompson's cars. All the local industries and a number of large ranches were visited. A short trip was also made up into the North Fork country. At the end of this jaunt, Mr. Young stated that as soon as he returned to Victoria he would send an engineer out here to investigate our irrigation problem. Those who accompanied the visitors on their trip through the valley say that they have reason to believe that an irrigation system will be installed here in time for service next summer.

The visitors were taken to Cascade last night in a motor car by F. J. Miller. At that point they took the train for Nelson.

GRANBY HAD A GOOD YEAR

Net Earnings for Last Fiscal Year Approximately $5,500,000

The Granby Consolidated Mining, Smelting & Power company made net earnings of approximately $5,500,000 in its fiscal year ended June 30, according to preliminary estimates, says a Boston report. This is compared with $4,100,000 in the preceding fiscal period. The earnings of the last year are equal to about $36 a share, against $25 in the 1915–16 year. Dividends paid during last year amounted to $9 a share, necessitating the disbursement of $1,349,864, while bond interest encrooched further on the surplus of the year.

Copper production showed but little change from the previous year, a slight falling off being indicated in the smelter returns for the twelve months just ended, the total being 41,312,884 pounds of copper against 42,498,083 pounds in the preceding year. Last February the company encountered hard sledding on account of the extreme cold weather, particularly at Anyox, which cut production materially. The Grand Forks plant was forced to close down early in April in consequence of a fuel shortage, although the situation has since cleared up.

Granby has been spending large amounts of money during the last few years in building up its new plant at Anyox to the point where it can be regarded as one of the best equipped and most economically operated of any of the western copper plants. The management has plans for more of these improvements and additions to be installed during the fiscal year just started which will call for further large expenditures. In the meantime the capital stock has been placed on a $10 annual dividend basis, sinking fund requirements fully and easily met and bonds outstanding reduced in amount and surplus account strengthened substantially.

It is trying desparately hard to rain. So far the atmosphere has been refreshed to a considerable degree, and garden truck and vegetables have benefited slightly. If it should decide to rain some more, it might prove to be the salvation of the fruit and potato crops, although it is rather late to do the grain much good.

FRIDAY, JULY 27, 1917

As it seems to be certain that a general federal election can not be avoided this fall, it is to be hoped that the campaign will be made as short as the law will allow. There should be no excuse for exposing our internal affairs to our enemies.

At the irrigation meeting the other evening none of those in the audience believed in a "dry" policy. If the overseas soldiers' vote was as unanimously "wet," no change need be expected in our liquor license regulations.

An editor in the States grumbles because an advance announcement was not made of the sailing of the United States regulars for France. If the man is not in the employ of the kaiser, he should be confined in a home for feeble-minded people.

Conditions in Russia are now closely allied to the reign of terror in Paris during the French revolution. For some time past the country has been of but little assistance to the allies, but the rule of blood and iron inaugurated by Premier Kerensky may bring the army and the people to their senses. When that occurs, which we hope will be soon, Russia will again become a factor in the war for liberty, and the strain on the western front will be greatly relieved.

The new Russia will retain the old flag, which has three horizontal stripes—white, blue and red. A few years ago the imperial emblem, a black eagle on a yellow field, was placed in the upper left-hand corner of the flag, but the provisional government has ordered that it be removed.

Why not turn our poultry yards into munition factories? Hens are expert shell makers.

Like the Liberty Loan, the Red Cross war fund was heavily oversubscribed; but nevertheless, if our response to the appeal had been as generous in proportion to our population as the response of Canada was to the corresponding cry for help, we should have given $180,000,000 instead of the notably smaller sum that we did give.—Youth's Companion.

It must be gratifying to our citizens to learn that is there considerable mining development now being carried on in the North Fork country without the attendant "boom." A mining boom is as bad as a real estate boom. Both increase prices beyond the intrinsic value of properties, and when the collapse comes the country is left as depleted financially as a forest is of trees after a forest fire. And the worst feature of booms is, that it is usually the poor man, who can not afford to lose his hard-earned money, who is fleeced. Capitalists and financiers are too wise to be caught in the maelstrom of fictitious values. Hence it is obvious that the promoter of a boom is an enemy of a community, while the man who, by his own industry, labors to improve his property, and endeavors to dispose of it at its real value, is the main factor in giving permanency to any mining camp or farming district. For this reason the men who are now developing their properties in Franklin camp are doing more for the district than a thousand glib-tongued promoters, with alluring literature and promises of quick and enormous returns, could do.

The world war has taken so many producers from the sources of food supply that the world's consumption of food is greater than the amount available, and, consequently, food reserves are being rapidly depleted. Millions of men are actively engaged in warfare and in the supply of munitions and equipment. They are fighting our battles and we must provide their food. Canada will produce all the food we can consume, but Canadians have never been known as a selfish race. Our allies, therefore, are depending upon us for help and our people will unquestionably respond with generous hand. The time for planting for 1917 is past, but the time for harvest is yet to come. There is very often much waste at this time, due, in many instances, to the lack of a demand at market prices. Fruit, especially, supplies much of this waste, and yet, while this waste is taking place, many families are compelled to go without it for lack of means to pay the market prices. Local organizations could easily arrange to bring the consumers in touch with this surplus fruit that it might not be wasted. The use of such perishable food, which would otherwise be wasted, will held to increase the supply of exportable food. There is also much waste in the kitchen and dining rooms of Canadian homes. The waste in bread alone is a considerable item. Bread has been looked upon as one of the cheaper staple foods and little care has been taken to prevent its waste by drying up, the discarding of crusts, etc. A little thought will show what this waste amounts to when the cumulative result throughout Canada is considered. Sir Robert Borden has said that Canada is in the war "to the last man and the last dollar." Canada is also in the war to the last pound of food. Canadians are their brothers' keepers, and will feed them, cost what it may. It is necessary, therefore, that we practise economy of the food supply. It is better to deny ourselves from choice than from necssity. There is no denying that there will be a food shortage, and the present is the time to put into practice thrift and rigid economy in the use of food.

The people of this country should not consider that 1917 will be the only year that rigid economies must be practised. There is no knowing at this date when the war will end, and even after it has ended there will be urgent need for Canada's surplus of food for many months while Europe is being regenerated.

A Slight Reservation

Miranda was an incurable optimist and the embodiment of kindliness. She would never admit that anything was wrong with anyone, although sometimes facts pushed her hard. Her young mistress had many suitors, and the latest recruit to the ranks could boast as little in the way of good looks as was humanly possible.

"Grand looking chap, isn't he, Mirandy?" queried Miss Annette's mischievous brother, when the guest had departed.

Miranda teetered perilously between truth and charity. "Co'se he is," she answered presently, with dignity. "Han'some gintleman—han'some gintleman."

At that point honesty got the upper hand. "'Cept'n," she added conscientiously, "fer his features."

Took Him Literally

A clergyman in a remote part of the Scottish Highlands was speaking at length to his congregation of the many things round us that are shrouded in mystery and of which we know little. As he warmed to his theme, he became eloquent, and frequently repeated the oft-quoted saying of Goethe, "More light! Oh, for light!"

His surprise may be imagined, says the Scottish American, when, after one of those utterances, the old beadle, who had been dozing since the commencement of the sermon, woke with a start, then got up, tiptoed softly into the vestry, seized two additional candles and, ascending the pulpit stairs, placed them beside the two already there, and in a loud whisper, heard all over the church, exclaimed:

"Ye maun do wi' these, for there's nae mair."

NEWS OF THE CITY

E. E. W. Mills, who has been manager of A. D. Morrison's jewelry store for a number of years, will leave on Wednesday next for Drumheller, Alta., where he will engage in the jewelry business. Mrs. Mills preceded him to that city last week. Mr. Mills is said to be one of the most efficient workmen in his line of business in province, and he will undoubtedly make a success of his new venture. The Sun hopes that he will amass a huge fortune, because if the war lasts many years longer it may become necessary for us to float a million dollar loan in the future. The people of Grand Forks will regret to lose the Mills family, as they have been excellent citizens. J. C. Taylor, of Vancouver, who was formerly employed in Mr. Morrison's store, and who has a high reputation as a first-class workman and salesman, will succeed Mr. Mills here as manager of Mr. Morrison's store.

After playing an engagement in Greenwood for several weeks, J. Peck MacSwain has departed for the coast.

A number of forest fires were reported as being rampant in the North Fork country during the early part of the week. For a day or two no news has been received from them, and it may therefore be assumed that The Sun's leased wire has been damaged by the flames.

Charles Nelson, of Danville, has sold his farm near that place to a Mr. Gardner from Fairfield.

Ivan Virgel Hall, Edward Gylenin Roberts and Warren Oliver Denbeigh, of Danville, and Nathaniel McMillan, of Grand Forks, have been drafted by the United States for military service.

A public library has been established at the Kettle Valley post office.

The Phoenix mines resumed operations last week with about 250 men.

Coolgardie Smith is inspecting his claims near Hazelton.

No. 3, Vol. 1, of the Granby News, apparently published at Vancouver by the Granby company, has reached this office. It is an interesting publication, containing much information about the Granby company and a complete list of the company's employees, besides much reading matter of a general nature.

Among the members of the American colony at Phoenix who have left for the United States and have enlisted are R. E. Lee jr, J. R. Darnell, J. Carnahan and B. C Culver.

The government of the United States, considering the obstacles it has to overcome, is making marvellous headway in preparing an army for the European battlefields. One army division, a force of marines, and nine regiments have been ordered to the front, and 12,000 are now in France; 10,000 doctors have been ordered to France and England; 40,000 men are being trained as officers, 3500 warplanes are being built and 6000 aviators trained. Within three months the United States will have a big army in France, and that they will make themselves felt against the Hun is beyond a shadow of a doubt.—Ladysmith Chronicle.

This is compared with 3,159,284 pounds in May and 3,775,140 pounds in April and 2,814,780 pounds in March. The production for June and May was made solely at the Anyox smelter, the Grand Forks plant having been suspended in those months.

The production of June has a net value of $545,567 on a basis of 29 cents for the metal and 11 cents a pound for production. This is at the rate of $3.50 a share on the issue of 149,985 shares, or $42 a year, but these figures are subject to deductions for other costs.

The production for July is likely to be increased as a result of the resumption at Grand Forks. Grand Forks produced 748,348 pounds in April and 1,086,348 pounds in March.

KING GEORGE THANKS PEOPLE OF CANADA

OTTAWA, July 22.—His majesty the king has sent the following message through the Canadian government to the people of Canada:

"I learn with deep gratification of the effective steps being taken in the Dominion of Canada toward providing those increased supplies of food which are adequately essential to the defeat of the enemy devices and to a speedy and successful termination of the war. I have no doubt that the self sacrifice displayed on the battlefields of France by my heroic Canadian troops will find its counterpart in the efforts of those who at home in the Dominion are devoting themselves to this work. All those thus loyally engaged contribute in an important measure toward securing victory.

"GEORGE, R.I."

August 4th is the third anniversary of the war. Last year and the year before a public meeting and council was held, and a resolution that the war be continued to a victorious end was moved and passed This year, owing to prevailing conditions and also that August 4th falls on Saturday, many of the smaller are holding a meeting during the day. I have decided to follow this course, and would ask all citizens to meet at the City Hall on Saturday, August 4th, at 11 a.m., when the resolution will be endorsed.

The different churches have been asked to deal with this subject on the following Sunday.

Sure! High Heels Cause Corns But Who Cares Now

Because style decrees that women crowd and buckle up their tender toes in high heel footwear they suffer from corns, then they cut and trim at these painful pests which merely makes the corn grow hard. This suicidal habit may cause lockjaw and women are warned to stop it.

A few drops of a drug called freezone applied directly upon a sore corn gives quick relief and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts out without pain. Ask the drug store man for a quarter of an ounce of freezone, which costs very little but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet.

This drug is an ether compound and dries in a moment and simply shrivels up the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. Clip this out and pin on your wife's dresser.
