DEVELOPMENT OF INDUSTRIES

Efforts Being Made by Minister of Industry to Induce Manufacturers to Locate in British Calumbia

Special Correspondence of The Sun.

Victoria, March 7.—For the avowed purpose of protecting the coal mining industry in British Columbia, Hon. William Sloan, minister of mines, has announced his intention to work for the imposition of a larger tax on fuel oil used in this province. Recently he stated that the use of oil meant the displacement of 1,000,000 tons of British Columbia coal and the loss of $100,000 to the exchequer annually in revenue Following requests made several years ago, the federal government imposed a small tax, but this, Mr. Sloan claims, has not been large enough to be effective, although it has netted Ottawa a large income. Now he proposes a provincial tax to be levied on consumption, the legal department having given the opinion that such a course is within the rights of the government.

Premier Oliver is optimistic over the outcome of British Columbia's fight for cheaper freight rates, and accompanied by G. G. McGeer, counsel for the government, will make another trip to Ottawa following the prorogation of the house of commons. At this time Premier Mackenzie King has promised that the matter will receive the full attention of the federal cabinet.

As the result of a round-table conference held in Vancouver Tuesday, attended by Hon. T. D. Pattullo, minister of lands, the chief forest branch officials, and a delegation representing the timber interests of the province, it has been decided to plan a revision of timber royalties. The present "Royalty Act" was passed at the initiative of the timber men, who considered it an iron-clad arrangement that for forty years would ensure the payment of very modest royalties by the timber men. The minister points out that on account of fluctuating values of currency and other conditions, the act threatens to work out differently from what was anticipated and gives indication of imposing a royalty so high that the timber interests have become alarmed. He states that it is the desire of the government to protect the industry as much as possible and yet at the same time obtain for the province a reasonable return from time to time of any increases in timber values.

Such progress has been made on the completion of the Sumas reclamation project that Hon. E D. Barrow, minister of agriculture, announces that the government will offer for sale this year some 3000 acres of reclaimed lands, the finest in the lower Fraser valley. Officials of the federal government are making an inspection of the work, and when they are satisfied the Dominion will turn over to the province the reclaimed lake-bottom lands, in extent 12,000 acres. Nearly 30,000 acres of high-class land will be available for farming purposes when the work is finished this year, and the cultivation of this area is expected to decrease materially the importation of foodstuffs into British Columbia. Despite adverse criticism and the pessimism of the doubters, the project has offered no unusual difficulties and success is now assured.

Special efforts are being made by Hon. John Hart, minister of finance and of industry, to induce manufacturers to locate in British Columbia. The department has prepared a list of industrial opportunities particularly appealing to capital, and the finest chances exist in nearly every branch of industry. Lumbering, mining, fishing and agriculture are all promising fields for new concerns and accurate information is being furnished to large numbers of prospective operators and settlers.

BEEKEEPING

Anyone intending to start beekeeping must have a fair knowledge of bee behavior and what the bees require. A thorough knowledge of modern methods is not necessary to make a start; indeed, this knowledge can only come through years of practical experience. The wider one's exderience the better beekeeper one becomes. It is essential to be able to apply knowledge promptly and to do the right thing at the right time. The business of beekeeping is one of details and one th t requires specialists. To gain the knowledge required, it is advisable for the prospective beekeeper to spend at least one season with a good beekeeper if at all possible. If this can not be done much may be learned by attending short courses in beekeeping at any of the colleges, reading good books on the subject or visiting neighboring bee yards as often as possible.

When ready to take up the business the first consideration is one of location. A good location is one that will produce a fairly continuous supply of pollen and nectar from early spring until fall, with at least one source that can be depended upon for a heavy crop. Transportation, avoidance of overcrowding, and shelter from winds are other factors to bear in mind when choosing a place for the apiary. Locality will also determine the system of management, the equipment used and kind of honey produced.

Whenever possible the beginner should purchase one or two colonies of Italian bees with tested queens in his own district. These should be in modern hives. The hive in common use is the ten-frame Langstroth, although some beekeepers now prefer a larger hive carrying twelve frames, or the ten-frame Jumbo, which is a deeper hive.

Bees can also be bought in one, two or three pound combless packages, and if obtained early enough in the season are often equal to overwintered colonies. No one should make the mistake of purchasing package bees until he has hives and other accessories in readiness.

In addition to the colonies of bees a supply of supers is necessary for the storage of the crop, the equivalent of three deep supers being allowed for each colony. Queen excluders, bee escapes, smoker and veil are necessary. If increase is desired a few complete hives should be on hand for this purpose. There are several manufacturers of bee supplies that send out catalogues on application, and by studying these the beginner should have no trouble in choosing the supplies he might require. It must be borne in mind, however, that the equipment purchased should be modern and suitable for the purpose it is intended for; also to keep it standard. The importance of a small beginning with as little expense as possible can not be too strongly urged.

MINE MAY BE FORECLOSED

Probably Preliminary Action to Purchase of Copper Mountain Property by the Granby Company

Vancouver, March 8.—Evidently as a preliminary to the sale of the Copper mountain mines to the Granby Consolidated Mining & Smelting company, foreclosure proceedings were launched in supreme court Tuesday by the trustees for the bondholders The Equitable Trust company of New York is plaintiff and sues as trustee on a bond issue of $2,500,000, the alleged arrears of interest making the total claim approximately $2,800,000.

The defendants are the Canada Copper Corporation, Ltd., Lucius W Mayer, Allen H. Rogers, Casimer I. Stralem, Neuman Erb, Esdras L. Grover, Arthur Ronaghan and H. R. Van Wagener, all of New York.

It was recently announced that the Granby company had come to terms with the Canada Copper Corporation and its bondholders for the purchase of the Copper monntain mines and details of the proposed plan of operation were given out a few days ago by H. S. Munroe, general manager of the Granby company, through the Vancouver Sun.

Mayers, Stockton & Smith are the solicitors for the Equitable Trust company in the foreclosure proceedings begun on Tuesday and E. C. Mayers is counsel for the Granby company.

One of the claims appended to a 50-page statement of claim is for an injunction restraining the defendants from dealing with the property pending outcome of the foreclosure proceedings, but this is stated to be a usual form in such cases.

WATER ASSURED IN NO. 2 UNIT

Definite Announcement Made That Money Is Available for Completion of the Unit

E. C. Henniger, M.P.P., and Dan McPherson, who returned from Victoria Wednesday evening, state that they were successful in obtaining a definite statement from the government that the money for the installation of No. 2 unit of the irrigation system would be available as soon as it was required.

About $2000 have already been spent on the installation of the pump foundations, and about $40,000 more will complete this unit. The unit comprises about 500 acres of irrigable land under cultivation.

It is supposed that the irrigation district trustees will take immediate steps to start work on the unit as soon as winter breaks up. The unit can be completed in ample time to irrigate this season's crops.

FRIDAY, MARCH 9, 1923

All the speakers at the Provincial party meeting on Friday evening disclaimed being politicians. However, Commauder Lewis, a few seconds after making this disavowal, made the confession that he could pass an examina tion in British and Dominion politics, and that he had a passing acquaintance with provincial politirs; Mr. Stewart's flow of oratory was surely not acquired while he was engaged in milking cows, and General McRae spoke as fluently and smoothly in his heart-to heart talk as a man selling Texas oil shares. Perhaps these qualifications are ouly preliminaries to becoming a professional politician.

An air of pessimism pervaded the meeting concerning the present conditons generally in the province. All the charges and counter-charges made by the old parties against each other in the heat of the last general election were revamped and hurled at the audience as gospel truths. The speakers deplored the patronage system, yet they appealed to the electors to vote the new party into power in order that a clean sweep might be made Under the new party creed this may be called conistency. The government of the day was character zed as inefficient and lacking a constructive policy. Wonderful phrase—to juggle with! What is its meaning? Is it not to develop the resources of the provinee and to enact laws that will inure to the benefit and happiness of the people? Where is there a provincial government in Canada today that has done as much to develop its resources and placed as advanced legislation on its statute books as the Oliver administration? None of the farmer governments of the prairie provinces can lay claim to coming anywhere near the Victoria government in this respect, and it is unreasonable to suppose that a farmer administration in British Columbia would do any better.

Mr. Stewart deplored the excessive cost of the Okanagan irrigation and soldier settlement project. This item should come uuder the head "constructive policy." Let us take a look at its cost and its possibilities. Twelve miles of solid concrete flume, eight feet wide at the top and five at the bottom and seven feet deep, has been constructed from Okangan lake southward. Eight miles more will complete it and bring it to to the international boundary line. Up to the present time about $2,750,000 has been expended on the system, including a costly concrete reservoir at the base of the lake. This sum also includes the purchase of 22,000 acres of land at $16 per acre. Twelve thousand acres of this land is suitable for agriculture and horticulture, the balance being good pasture land. It is estimated that the cost of the completed system will be a little over $3,000,000. The land with water is selling for $300 per acre. This will bring $3,600,000 back to provincial treasury. Water users are now paying $6 per acre, and they are allowed thirteen acre feet per annum. When a water municipality is formed this charge will be cut down to $2 per acre. The government will get back every cent it has put into this project and the province will be richer in production; and a large stretch of territory that would otherwise have been waste land will be dotted with happy and prosperous homes. Does that come under "constructive policy," or is it merely wasting money foolishly?

One of the speakers made a comparison of the legislative cost per capita in British Columbia and the prairie provinces, maintaining that the people here had to pay a much higher price to their legislative branch than the people in the prairie provinces paid. We have no means of verifying this statement at present, but it is probably correct. It is quite natural that the cost per capita for this service should be higher in a sparsely populated province than in a densely settled province.

British Columbia's bonded indebtedness seems to be the primary cause for the pessimistic views expressed concerning things in general by self-styled reformers. All the speakers Friday evening paid due respect to this subject; and likewise all of them forgot to mention the fact that a large portion of this debt has been created by the government borrowing money and reloaning it to districts for industrial, irrigation and general development purposes. The Grand Forks irrigation municipality and the people in the Okanagan and in other sections of the province know that this money has done good work. They also know that eventually it will find its way back to the public treasury. No better proof of the province's financial soundness is needed than the fact that the government is able to borrow money at a lower rate of interest than any other province in the Dominion. Money lenders are not sentimentalists.

It has become fashionable to rave at the high taxes, and the Provincial party missionaries were no exception to the rule. Taxes are high—damnably high. But it is our opinion that the people themselves are responsible for this state of affairs in this province. They petitioned the government for experts as teachers in every branch of industry, and now, when the time has arrived for paying for the maintenauce of these teachers, they kick. Personally, we could get along better with fewer experts and lower taxes. Bnt there is another way to look at this question. Everything that the ordinary person uses has doubled in price during the past few years. Why expect taxes to remain stationary on a pre war basis?

The speakers seemed to think that the new party had an advantage over the old parties, because it had no past record that the electorate could delve into. To some parties a past is a disadvantage while to others it is a decided asset. Anyway, the Provincial party can not escape comparison between the present British Columbia government and farmer governments in other provinces.

Notes, Notions and Notables

A clerical friend in the east had written a minister in Alaska inquiring whether the reports that he had heard about the cold in Alaska were true. The minister wrote back as follows: "I see by your letter that you wish this information for a lecture which yon are to give, and for this reason I am sending you only facts, entirely reliable. There was a fire here a few days ago in our principal hotel, and there was a man trapped in a room on the third floor with no means of escape, the lower floor being a solid mass of flames. He had just about decided that he was a 'cooked goose' when his eyes happened to catch a glimpse of the water pitcher. With a sigh of relief he threw open the window' which he had been compelled to keep closed on account of the fire and smoke below, and after carefully pouring the precious liquid from the pitcher in a stream over the window-sill, he placed the pitcher on the floor, climbed out the window, and, amid the cheers of the cheers of the crowd, slid down the icicle to the ground and safety."

Difficulties are things that show what men are.

A man is never sure whether a woman believes what he tells her, or only makes believe.

Best jndges of human nature wonld rather make money out of it than fun of it.

There is one attempt in which failure is unforgivable—the attempt to be funny.

CONSERVE YOUR SIGHT

THE STRAIN of modern civilized life falls heaviest upon the eye, the hardest worked and most neglected of all the human organs. The constant need of close-range vision; the continual exposure to the glare reflected from pavement and buildings or from high-powered electric lights, all expose the eye to terrific strain. Many suffer from eye strain without being conscious of it. Have your eyes examined and know. We are admirably equipped for this work.

Here and There

Banff.—J. B. Harkin, Commissioner of National Parks, has announced that the formal opening of the Banff-Windermere Road, work on which was concluded last year, will take place on June 30. The ceremony is to be held at Vermillion Crossing, half way between Banff and Windermere, motors leaving both ends of the road early in the morning to meet at that place. The suggestion has been made by R. R. Bruce, of Invermere, that the National Park be named "Columbia National Park," and the road leading up the Columbia Valley from the boundary to Golden be named the "Canadian Columbia Highway."

Victoria.—Motorists will have a new circuit trip available with the completion in May of the high-powered motor ferry now building at Yarrows. Not only will Island and Mainland be linked by the operation of this craft, but the Canadian Pacific will have the steamer "Charmer" engaged in the purpose farther north. The "Charmer" will operate between Vancouver and Nanaimo, furnishing accommodation for all types of cars. With the new ferry in service, a new circuit will be made available—from Seattle via Bellingham to Sidney, thence to Victoria over paved road, to Nanaimo over the Malahat, thence by the "Charmer" to Vancouver and down the Pacific Highway to the border line and Seattle again.

The motor ferry will have ample height between deck to allow for all classes of cars. During the busy season it will make two round trips every day. The vessel will be fitted with observation rooms and open deck spaces to give tourists every opportunity to enjoy at their ease the fine scenery through the channels between San Juan, Lopez and other islands of the San Juan archipelago.

St. John, N.B.—The Canadian Pacific freighter, "Bolingbroke" recently brought from London the largest import cargo to reach St. John since the war. She was crammed to the hatches with more than 4,700 tons of general merchandise. Capt. E. Landy, who is in command, said that he had never carried a more valuable cargo and expressed great satisfaction that not a single package had been lost. Included in the cargo were silks and other valuable dress goods, dry goods of various descriptions, perfumes and many other expensive commodities. A cargo of this kind makes lots of work for the longshoremen.

Vancouver.—Carrying a record shipment of Canadian apples to the Orient the Canadian Pacific 16,850-ton liner, "Empress of Asia" recently sailed.

On opening the crates in the Oriental ports the consignees of past shipments have found that the apples are as fresh as if taken from the tree. This is partly due to the fact that at this time of the year the perishable cargo only gets one day of tropical heat during the whole voyage across. The "Asia" took approximately 350 tons of this commodity in her holds, the largest consignment of apples to go through the Narrows this season for the Orient.

Many of the "conveniences of travel" do little else but litter up the traveling bag.

GRANBY WILL MAKE EXTENSIONS

Vancouver, March 3.—Concentrates from the Copper mountain property recently acquired by the Granby company will be sent to Trail to be smelted, it was announced yesterday by H. S. Munroe, general manager of the Granby company, on his arrival here from Anyox. The property has not yet been actually taken over, he said, but as soon as the transaction was completed he announced that minor alterations would be made in the mill so that it could be worked to its capacity of 2000 tons a day.

Conjectures that the concentrates would be taken to the Anyox smelter were denied by Mr. Munroe, who said that such a procedure would be most uneconomical.

About 400 men would be employed in the mill and mine, he said, and although the mine was sufficiently opened up to enable it to be worked at the capacity of the mill right away, he announced that additional development work would be undertaken

Mr. Munroe stated that work would be under way within two months on the 1500-ton concentrator which is to be built at Anyox to handle varieties of ore that can not be put directly into the smelter,

Several new properties in the Portland canal district are under development by the Granby company at present, Mr. Munroe stated, including two in the Bear river district behind Stewart. Satisfactory results had been obtained in the work carried on during the winter on the Sunshine group, he said, and as soon as weather permitted the George group, about twenty miles inland, would be diamond-drilled.

The Outsider group at Maple Bay, he announced, had been developed to the point where it was now decided to equip the property, and actual mining would be in operation before snowfall, he predicted. Docks and an aerial tramway would be built during the coming summer. Between 30,000 and 40,000 tons were already blocked out, he stated.

The Objects of this Institution, for which Incorporation was recently obtained, are: "To provide a Home and Refuge for Baby and Infant Blind; to provide free Scientific Care, Training and Maintenance; to Save the Lives of even a few of the many of such unfortunates, who, for the lack of such service, perish every year; and to return these little ones to their parents, at school age with normal, healthy bodies and sound minds."

This is a large and greatly needed Child Welfare Service. Careful enquiry at the Government offices in the verious provinces reveals the fact that there are at the present time nearly 250 Infant Blind in the Dominion. Nothing has yet been done for those helpless little ones. In the United States, 16 years ago, the first home was opened in New York City; they have now homes in 13 States, all doing excellent work. In England, some time ago, Sir Arthur Pearson organized "Sunshine House," Chorley Wood, for Blind Babies, and he claims that it is the only one in the British Empire. Let us have the SECOND in Canada. To reach this worthy end money is urgently required. Fifty Thousand Dollars is the present objective of the Board. While the Home is to be located in Ottawa it will take in the Baby Blind from every province, so that this APPEAL for funds will be Dominion wide, and an early and generous response is confidently expected. Cheques should be made payable to the Canadian Blind Babies Home Association. All remittances will be promptly acknowledged.

HORSESHOES OR HAIRSPRINGS?

Five dollars worth of iron made into horseshoes had a market value of ten dollars. Converted into needles that five dollars worth of iron becomes worth six thousand eight hundred dollars, but when made into hairsprings for watches it is worth two million dollars.

We may all be compared with that original five dollars worth of iron--what we make of ourselves--how valuable we become--depends upon ourselves.

Most of us are content to be in the horseshoe class. A few reach the rank of needles, but how rare is the man who can be classed as a hairspring--the man who makes the most of every talent he was born with--who not merely takes advantage of every opportunity but, Napoleon like, creates opportunities.

One step won't take very far,
You've got to keep on walking;
One word won't tell folks who you are,
You've got to keep on talking;
One inch won't make you very tall,
You've got to keep on growing;
One little ad. won't do it all,
You've got to keep them going.

Brown started out without a cent;
He's rich now and still rising;
Some say 'twas luck; some say 'twas pluck;
HE says 'twas advertising.

His Degree

Eli Brown, a dark impressive figure in his long, black clerical coat, a gift of the rector of St. James', had come, says a writer in Harper's, in answer to a post card of mine, asking him to whitewash my back fence.

"Ise done moved, Miss Ma'y," he said, when he had explained to me that he could not do the work that day, since noon service at St. James' necessitated his presence at the organ bellows, "an' I reckon I'll jest leave my card so you kin know whar to sen' for me when you wants me ag'in."

With an expression of dignified gratification he unfolded a scrap of a church announcement leaflet that he had pulled out of the pocket of his waistcoat ond handed me a card with the words, "Eli Brown, E.O.B., 50 Fenchurch street."

"What do these letters stand for?" I asked.

"Why, Miss Ma'y, all de quality in our congregation has letters after their names. Dr. Price, he has D.D., Dr. Simmon has M.D., an' there is LL.D. for some of 'em and U.S.N. or dat Yankee off'cer, an' coase I naterally has 'em, too"

"But what do they mean?" I insisted.

"Now, Miss Ma'y, don't you know? E. O. B.— Episcopal organ blower. Dat's what I is."

Repartee, the "artless art," seems really to be a gift, and he who has it is fortunate indeed. In the Nineteenth Century Sir Edward Sullivun relates this bit of sparkling conversatton that once passed between Cardinal Vaughan and Dr. Adler, the chief Jewish rabbi.

The two men were seated next to each other at luncheon. "Now, Dr Adler," said the cardinal, "when may I have the pleasure of helping you to some ham?"

The rabbi replied without a pause, "At your eminence's wedding!"

It was not a rabbi but a bishop—Dr. Potter of New York—that once replied neatly and unhesitatingly to a question that must have been almost as startling as the cardinal's. A lady had asked him wny in pictures and statues angels are always represented as women or as young men without beards or moustaches.

"Oh," replied the bishop, "everyone knows that women naturally inherif the kingdom of heaven, but men get in by a very close shave."

A Pardonable Mistake

After Mr. Smith had raked his yard, says the Argonaut, he took the accumulated rubbish into the road to burn. Among the neighbors' children who came flocking round the bonfire was a little girl whom Mr. Smith did not remember having seen before. Wishing with his usual kindliness to make her feel at ease, he beamed upon hear, and said heartily, "Hello! Isn't this a new face?"

A deep red slowly submerged the little girl's freckles. "No," she stammered, "it isn't new. It's just been washed. That's all."

WINNIPEG'S HISTORICAL MUSEUM

1 and 2—Corners in the Hudsons' Bay Company's historical museum at Winnipeg. 3—An old-fashioned turn-spit, on which for many years the roasts were cooked at the H.B.C. port at York Factory. 4—A model of the "Nonsuch," the ship that brought the first H.B.C. adventurers to Canada.

FOR a comparatively young city, Winnipeg has many points of interest. None is more worthy of a visit than the historical museum that has there been established by the Hudson's Bay Company. The great company's history is the history of Canada's West, and no institution is better equipped to present the earliest history of that land in the manner that the Hudson's Bay Company has chosen.

The value of museums as an educational agency is now only beginning to be more generally realized. What book or series of books could give so comprehensive, so vivid or so unfailingly correct a view of the world's past ages as a few days spent among the treasures of the British Museum. The idea grows in Canada as educational facilities grow. McGill University has its fine museum and the Royal Ontario Museum at Toronto, it will surprise many to know, is one of the world's finest. Its already splendid buildings, soon to be enlarged, is overcrowded with a wonderful store of historic treasures which visiting scholars from abroad never fail to visit.

The object of the Winnipeg exhibit is to depict by means of relics, pictures, documents, models, etc., the history of the Hudson's Bay Company, the life of the fur trade, the story of the pioneer settlers and the customs, dress and industries of the aboriginal tribes. The exhibit is at present set up at the company's store at Winnipeg, and while not nearly as large as it may be expected to become, already occupies a series of rooms in that establishment.

The following principal divisions of the exhibit have been made for convenience: Early History, Furs, Indians, Life in the Service, Forts, Posts, and Stores, Fights and Wars, Land and Settlement.

From the time the natives of Hudson Bay welcomed the first H. B. C. ship in 1688 the Company has been on intimate and friendly terms with the Indians, and the exhibit of Indian relics will thus be of unique interest. This will be of all the greater value since Indian skill in handicraft is even now almost only a memory of past days. The other sections of the museum will tell the tale of the entry of the white man into the West, and the up-building of isolated trading posts that have become important and fast growing cities.

The photographs reproduced herewith give an excellent idea of the splendid beginning this exhibit has made. One item of particular interest is the splendidly built model of the "Nonsuch Ketch," the first Hudson's Bay Company ship to arrive in Canadian waters. Prince Rupert and associates outfitted two ships, the "Eaglet" and the "Nonsuch." These ships sailed from Gravesend, on the Thames, near London, in June, 1668. The "Eaglet" turned back from a point near Hudson Strait, but the "Nonsuch" proceeded and on September 29th, 1668, anchored in the South of James Bay. Then and there a fort was built and named Fort Charles, and the river flowing into the Bay was named Rupert's River. Owing to the cargo of furs brought back by the "Nonsuch" in the summer of 1669, a charter for trading rights was applied for and resulted in the charter granted by King Charles the Second, on May 2nd, 1670, to Prince Rupert and his associates forming the "Governor and Company of Adventurers of England Trading into Hudson's Bay." And thus began the great Company.

The exhibit includes a large number of important and exceedingly interesting documents and maps, as well as a large collection of tools, household utensils, and weapons of by-gone days.

The later history of Western Canada is the history of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the building of which resulted in the creation of a nation west of the Great Lakes, and these two great institutions are still at work at their task of nation building, and preserving the history of Canada's past. The Canadian Pacific has also established an historic museum at Lake Windermere, B.C., in memory of David Thompson, the explorer of the Rockies.
