Mines of Boundary

Work Will Be Started Monday on the Minnehaha.

Prominent Mining Man Returns to Boundary---The Alameda, in Deadwood Camp, Has Been Sold to Minneapolis Parties.

Peter Pare and Joe Gelina will put three men to work on their group of four claims situated on Lime creek. Work will be commenced next Monday.

* * *

William Fowler, father of high-grade mining in the Greenwood district, returned last Thursday from a three months' trip to his old home in Scotland. He thoroughly enjoyed his visit to the land of the heather. He will resume work on the Defiance in a few weeks.

* * *

Mark F. Madden, president of the Providence Mining company, arrived in Greenwood last week from Chicago, and will remain in that camp for some time looking after his mining interests. Mr. Madden reports good times in the windy city after a rather severe winter.

* * *

H. H. Shallenberger, of Greenwood, recently sold to Minneapolis parties the Alameda claim, in Deadwood camp. The Alameda adjoins the Mother Lode on the south and is on the Mother Lode lead. The big compressor plant of the B. C. Copper company at its Mother Lode mine is near the Alameda line, and in excavating a site for the plant a body of good ore was uncovered. The purchasers will probably develop the property. With the expenditure of some money it is sure to develop into a shipping mine.

* * *

The first lot of the 21 ten-ton steel ore cars, ordered last December, have arrived at the Granby mines. They are the latest and best style of mine ore cars.

* * *

Foreman Trevorrow is the sole employee at the Snowshoe mine. Water is beginning to come up pretty well in the deep workings of this property.

* * *

New work is to be undertaken at the Oro Denoro, Summit camp, next month, which is expected to increase the tonnage of ore to 200 or 250 tons daily.

* * *

It is reported that the final payment on the bond of the Gold Bug, taken over by Greenwood men a few months ago, has been made, and that the mine is looking well.

* * *

A large part of the new work at the British Columbia Copper company's smelter is completed, and awaits the arrival of the converter and other new machinery ordered some months ago from the east.

* * *

It is not an infrequent sight to see either one of the Davenport locomotives, at the Granby mines, taking out a string of 20 or 25 mine ore cars of the new type now in use.

* * *

Geo. R. Caldwell, of Brandon, Man., has secuged a judgment of $9012 against the Golden Crown Mines, Ltd.

Sunset Saunterings

The Londale Theatre company closed a four nights' engagement at the Biden opera house last night to a good-sized audience. The play produced was Tolstoi's realistic five-act drama, "Resurrection." The play is not a very nice one, but it undoubtedly carries with it a strong moral. Miss Nellie Stark, the leading lady, portrayed the disagreeable character of Katusha Maslova in a manner that left nothing to be desired from a realistic point of view. Wesley Winthron, who took part of Capt. Ivan Ivanoff, is a first-class actor, and played his part very satisfactorily. The other members of the company possess more than average histrionic capabilities.

Ald. Neil McCallum came out to see the sun today for the first time three weeks, having just recovered from a severe attack of la grippe.

The sidewalk on the south side of Winnipeg avenue, between First street and the Winnipeg hotel, needs ballasting. At present it is like walking over a pontoon bridge, and pedestrians who have occasion to use it are liable to get sea-sick.

A progressive conundrum social will be held in the Methodist church Tuesday, March 29th, by the Young People's Epworth League. A program will be rendered and refreshments served. Be sure to come and bring your friends with you. Admission free.

W. K. C. Manly, the enterprising hardware and grocery merchant, is adding still another department to his store, viz., boots and shoes and gent's furnishings. The goods for this department are now at the depot, and will be opened up in a few days. Mr. Manly's grocery business is increasing right along, and his store is getting to be a popular one for all kinds of goods in that line.

The lecture delivered by Rev. Walter W. Baer, of Nelson, in the Methodist church last Monday evening, was well worth listening to. It was an able and interesting discourse on economic possibilities other than Socialism, and the audience followed him closely from start to finish. Unfortunately the attendance was not as large as it should have been, owing to the many counter attractions on that night.

Monday evening the theatre was packed, even standing room being at a premium, to see Miller's motion photography. The entertainment was an improvement on anything of the kind ever shown here. There was not one among the large crowd present but what left the theatre well pleased for the time and money spent.—Republic Record.

About nineteen member of the local lodge of Knights of Pythias went over to visit the Danville lodge last Tuesday evening, and report having had a splendid time. The Danville lodge entertained the visitors in royal style at a sumptuous feast. The local boys say it would be a difficult thing to improve on the spread. They made the trip in the Yale 'bus.

James Addison returned to this city on Wednesday from Calgary, Alta., where he has been engaged in the building and contracting business for the past year. He will move his family to that city early next month.

D. Wilson, government inspector of schools, arrived in the city on Monday and inspected the public school in this city. While in the Bounday he also visited the other schools in this district.

Bob Petrie is making preparations to move his stock of stationery, wall paper, etc., from his present stand near the postoffice to the store formerly occupied by W. R. Megaw on Bridge street.

The special Evangelistic services that have been held during the past two weeks in Knox church have been fairly well attended and very interesting. They were brought to a close on Thursday night.

Kootenay Presbytery meets on Friday night, March 25th, in Rossland, for the induction of Rev. H. R. Grant, B. A., into the pastoral charge of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church. Revs. Dr. Wright and J. R. Robertson are in attendance.

W. G. McMynn, government recorder at Greenwood, was a visitor in the city this week.

A C. P. R. crew is engaged in distributing new ties along the line between this city and Rossland. It is the intention of the company to put in new ties all the way from Midway to the Golden city.

Don't fail to see Miller's moving pictures at the opera house next Wednesday evening. Uncle Tom's Cabin will be shown by a complete set of picture. It is one of the latest things in this line of entertainments, and will please every one who witnesses it.

The services in Knox Presbyterian church next Sabbath will be conducted in the morning by the pastor, and in the evening by Rev. Dr. Wright, who will take for his subject, "Ohristian Citizenship."

Rev. W. R. Ross, who is supplying the Presbyterian congregation in Nelson, fell and severely sprained his ankle in that city last Tuesday. He is at present at his home in this city, and will be confined to the house for a few days.

James Seals, of Danville, met with a nasty accident the other day while on his way home from the Minnehaha mine. The brake on his wagon gave way and struck him on the mouth, knocking out several of his teeth and cutting open his upper lip so badly that the gash required a number of stitches.

B. Lequime, wife and family returned yesterday from Kelowna, where have been for the past two weeks.

W. J. Morrison, of the firm of Davis, Morrison & McLellan, general merchants of Coleman, Alta., arrived in the city yesterday on a business trip.

Mrs L. Y. Birnie, of Phoenix, spent last week with her sister, Mrs. Forbes Kerby, in this city.

The Methodists of Phoenix are taking the initiatory steps for the erection of a new church in that city.

Annual Convention

Interior District Liberal Council Met in Rossland.

Officers for the Ensuing Year Were Elected---The Next Annual Convention Will be Held in Greenwood.

The annual convention of the Interior District Liberal Council was in session Wednesday and Thursday in the board of trade rooms in Rossland. There was a good attendance of delegates from all sections of southern British Columbia, under the jurisdiction of the council. J. A Macdonald, the Liberal leader, presided.

Wednesday afternoon two important resolutions affecting the timber limits interests and the appointment of a Dominion minister of mines were discussed, but no definite action was taken up to the time of adjournment.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: Duncan Ross, of Greenwood, the Liberal candidate for Yale-Cariboo, president; John A. Turner, Nelson, vice-president; F. E. Simpson, Cranbrook, secretary-treasurer; executive committee, R. D. Ker, Greenwood; W. H. P. Clement, Grand Forks; Dr. Kerr, Rossland; Archibald J. Campbell, Ymir; F. J. Deane, Nelson; E. A. Haggen, Revelstoke; D. McVannell, Slocan; John Keen, Kaslo; J. F. Ashcroft, Cranbrook; Fred Stork, Fernie; W. C. Wells, M.P.P., Columbia; W. J. Snodgrass, Similkameen.

At the close of the convention the delegates were tendered a banquet by the Rossland Liberal association.

The next annual convention will be held in Greenwood.

Death of Mrs. Sheads

The death of Mrs. H. A Sheads, occurred Thursday forenoon at 10:45 o'clock at the family residence on Bridge street, came as a severe shock to her vast number of friends in this city, although it had been been known for some time that the chances of her recovery were extremely small. In the latter part of December last she was taken to a hospital in Spokane for medical treatment, and it was then found that she was suffering from cancer in an advanced stage, and although everything that the science of medicine could do for her was done, she gradually grew worse, and two weeks ago she was seized with the desire to return to her home to meet the end which she knew was inevitable. For a few days after her arrival here she rallied and her condition appeared to be somewhat improved, but she soon began to sink again, and continued to do so until the end, which came quietly and peacefully yesterday while she was surrounded by a devoted husband and a few of her most intimate friends.

Mrs. Sheads was born in Dubuque, Ia., and was 48 years of age. During her seven years' residenc in Grand Forks she won the esteem of all those who came in contact with her. At the time of her death she was lady commander of the local hive of Ladies of the Maccabees and a prominent member of the Rathbone Sisters. The sympathy of the community goes out to the bereaved husband.

The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the English church.

FRIDAY, MARCH 25, 1904

FOR fifty or sixty years large numbers of agricultural immigrants from European countries were attracted to the United States. This was in consequence of the opening up of large districts of the most valuable lands in that country. It is believed that the best lands of the United States have now been settled upon, and Canada's turn has undoubtedly come. The total number of newcomers to Canada for the year 1903 aggregated 128,000.

THE construction of new railways through Canada—particularly that portion known as Western Canada—will make markets of easy access for the quick sale of farm products in every district. Whatever may be the experience in other countries, settlers who are now locating on Canadian farms will reap an immense advantage over those who come later.

THE Nelson News today prints a long article on "a small corner in eggs." There are no small corners in the eggs the Boundary hens lay. They are round.

THE last gasp of winter has been in our midst for the past four weeks, and he is still in pretty healthy condition.

BUSINESS AND PLEASURE

"And you asked her father for her hand?"

"Yes."

"Was he violent?"

"Very. He said I was an idiot to think of such a thing."

"What did you reply?"

"I told him that, of course, he knew his own family better than I did, but that I was willing to take my chance."

Better leave your order for a box of Spies at Donaldson's. They will soon be all gone.

Anecdotal

Andrew Lang tells this story illustrating the rigorous and ascetic life of the Scots. "It seems that a laird, in the year 1765, set out to join the Pretender, taking with him his son, a youth of sixteen or so. One night this laird and his little troop were compelled to sleep in the open, though it was snowing, and snow lay deep upon the ground. Father and son kept together, and together they prepared to turn in for the night. The son, having wrapped his plaid about him, made himself a pillow of snow, and was about to lay his head on it when his father kicked the little cold white mound away. 'This is too soon, truly,' he growled, 'for you to indulge in luxuries.'"

A well-known theatrical manager, who is distinguished rather for his business ability than for his knowledge of literature, was visited not long ago by an aspiring playwright. He had with him, he explained to the manager, the manuscript of a play based on one of Edgar Allen Poe's stories, which he was sure was destined to make a sensational hit on the stage. The manager consented to hear the play, and listened with increasing interest as the playwright read from his manuscript. He was enthusiastic when the end was reached. "That's fine!" he exclaimed—"fine! Now, I'll tell you what I'll do: You and Mr. Poe come in to-morrow and we'll talk this thing over."

Count Tolstoi does not bear a very kindly attitude toward the many curious admirers who besiege his Russian home in the hope of getting a glimpse of the great novelist. A party of visiting American tourists who called not long ago to pay their respects were not, therefore, very cordially received. Tolstoi refused to meet them; but he reluctantly consented to stand on his doorstep and let himself be seen. One of the visitors, however, could not resist the temptation to speak to the great man. "Oh, Count Tolstoi," she exclaimed effusively, approaching the author with outstretched hand, "I enjoyed your last book so much!" "You refer, I suppose," replied Tolstoi, "to 'Dead Souls'?" The lady assented joyfully. "Um," remarked the novelist, "Gogol wrote that."

A Southern clergyman had married a pair of negroes. After the ceremony the groom asked, "How much yo' charge fo' dis?" "Well," said the minister, "I usually leave that to the groom. Sometimes I am paid five dollars, sometimes ten, sometimes less." "Dat's a lot ob money, pahson. Tell yo' what Ah'll do. Ah'll gib yo' two dollars, an' den if I kin' I ain't got cheated, I'll gib yo' mo' in a monf." A month later the groom returned. "Ah's yere, lak Ah promised, pahson." "Yes," said the minister, expectantly. "Ah tol' yo' dat ef it was all right, Ah'd gib yo' mo' money, didn't Ah?" "You did." "Well, pahson, as dis yere am a sort of spec'lation, Ah reckon yo' owe me about a dollah an' eighty-five cents, an' Ah come ter git it."

That Sir Henry Irving is quite capable of maintaining his dignity under somewhat trying circumstances is shown by the following anecdote which is told of the tragedian by Mr. C. R. Kennedy of the "Everyman" company. On one occasion Irving's company, having been called to the theater for rehearsal, found upon their arrival that they were considerably ahead of time. As Sir Henry had not yet arrived, one of the actors in the company, who was noted for his accomplishments as a mimic, proceeded to give a lively and elaborate imitation of Sir Henry's highly characteristic acting. As he finished his demonstration, a well-known voice came from the depths of the darkened auditorium: "Very good," it said. "Very good indeed! So good, in fact, that there is no need for both of us in this company."

Lincoln's greatest legal triumph was the acquittal of an old neighbor named Duff Armstrong, who was charged with murder. Several witnesses testified that they saw the accused commit the deed one night about eleven o'clock. Lincoln attempted no cross-examination, except to persuade them to reiterate their statements and to explain that they were able to see the act distinctly because of the bright moonlight. By several of the prosecuting witnesses he proved the exact position and size of the moon at the time of the murder. The prosecution there rested, and Lincoln, addressing the court and the jury, announced that he had no defence to submit except an almanac, which would show that there was no moon on that night. The state's attorney was paralyzed, but the court admitted the almanac as competent testimony, and every witness was completely impeached and convicted of perjury. The verdict was not guilty

GOOD SERVICE is composed of two elements—excellence of the work and promptness in the execution. Bad work executed promptly is not good service—good work delivered behind time is not good service; but the two combine to make one of the most necessary, but hardest to obtain and often most expensive, requirements of the twentieth century business man. That we have learned the lesson in theory we have shown. Our customers will testify that we have also learned it in practice.

DAILY NEWS

AND THE

GRANDFORKS SUN

...FOR ONLY...

$2.25 PER YEAR

A radical change from old methods and prices has been made by the Toronto Daily News. The eyes of the newspvper world have been upon The News for the past few months, during which time several departures have been made which have given that paper a widespread reputation for enterprise and originality. This latest move is to place The News at the price of $1.00 a year by mail. Only a deep-founded belief in the future success of The News could lead the publishers to make such a reduction in price. But just as the dollar magazine has taken hold of the people, so, we venture to predict, The News will secure a vast and ever-increasing circulation, based not only on the popular price at which it is sold, but mainly upon the intrinsic merits of he paper.

We have arrangements concluded which enables us to club the Toronto News with our own paper at $2.25 a year in advance. Such a combination presents many unique features —our semi-weekly giving you all the home and district news, and the big 12-page daily keeping you in touch with events all over the world. Send us your subscription to The News, or if you would like to see the paper first, write us and we will secure a sample copy.

A certain small village, far remove from the noise and bustle of commerce boasts a female preacher, and the lady's duties are many. One day she may visi the sick, another attend a funeral, an the next baptize a baby. One afternoo she was preparing the sermon for th following Sabbath when she heard a timid knock at the parsonage door. An swering the summons she found a bash ful young German standing on the ste and twirling his straw hat in his hands.

"Good afternoon!" the preacheress re marked. "What do you wish?"

"Dey say der minister lifed in di house, hey?"

"Yes, sir."

"Yess? Vell, I vant me to kit me iet."

"All right; I can marry you," she said The lady's hair is beginning to silve and the German glanced at it. Then h jammed his hat on his head and hurrie down the path. "What's the matter she called after him.

"You gits no chance mit me," he call back. "I don't vant you; I haf got me girl alreaty."—"Modern Society."

A Lesson in Tact.

A few weeks ago, says James MacA hur in "Harper's Weekly," I quot some passages in these columns from correspondence between the Browning in the days of their early acquaintanc on Carlyle's strong dislike of poetry. have just heard of a new story on th same theme which is told by Professo Goldwin Smith. It appears that Profe or Smith was once a visitor with Ca lyle at Lady Ashburton's house wh Tennyson was one of the circle at "T range." Tennyson was asked to re one of his own poems aloud, but, to t surprise and disappointment of his ge e hostess and her company, he refus a thing he was never apt to do. Loo g across the room, Professor Smith a e cause of the difficulty. Close to T yson sat Carlyle, who was wont make a universal sweep of poetry in i lation to common sense when arous the proximity of the Muse. Prof r Smith, devoting himself to the pu e good, and, we may add, in courteo onsideration of his hostess, crossed th oom, and invited Carlyle to take troll in the grounds. The Sage accept he invitation, and, during the stroll, t oet brought off his reading.

Good Listening.

Good talking is largely depend on "good hearing." The fact that a man is able to do his mental powers j ustice of brilliant expression may l lue to the presence of some recepti mind, ready to invite and appreciat Wits may clash to the point of deafenin themselves. The sympathetic and silen listener is the buffer between.

Ruskin is said to have been excellent company. He spoke in a tone of "gentle and playful earnestness." He had floods of thought and knowledge to pour forth, if only he could get the right hearers. But there were the barren occasions when listeners were absent.

One day a friend gave a little dinner for him. Doctor Jowett and Dean Stanley. But no sooner had the dinner begun than the host realized his mistake. He had provided no setting for his jewels, no junior men as hearers. "They wanted to meet one another," he said. "It should have gone off brilliantly, but the soup came, and the fish followed, and they simply would not talk. At last I said some stupid thing to Stanley about the architecture of Westminster Abbey, and that drew Ruskin and started us all off. Then all went well. But I shall never make the same mistake again."

An Irish Miracle.

"And is it swimming you mane?" observed the O'Flaherty. "By Jabers, thin, ye should see the little divils of South Say Islanders! Sure, and they run down to the beach and dive into the water long before they can walk at all, at all."

Deduction.

Miss Cutting—Then you are an agnostic? Cholly Smallhed—I never said so. Miss Cutting—No; but you said you only believed what you could understand.—"Judge."
