A WARM MEETING

Aldermen Become Heated Over the Salary Question.

The council meeting last night, notwithstanding the chilly condition of the weather outside, was a warm one, "hot air" being quite effective in the result of that body's deliberations.

Mayor Burrell presided, and all the aldermen, excepting J. L. Manly, who is absent from the city, were present. A letter from the Attorney-General, re the jurisdiction of Judge Johnnston, showing that the matter had been taken under advisement, was read. J. H. Murray of the Hotel Winnipeg asked for reduction in water and light rates. Laid on table.

City Electrician White stated that he had another position in view, and would like to resign on the 1st of August provided the city secured a capable man to fill his place.

Ald. Cusson translated a letter from Clemenc Clerc, in which the writer complained that the water from the Spokane slough drainage ditch was washing away her lots on Third street, and asking that the ditch be continued to the river. No action was taken. This morning Clemenc Clerc sent THE SUN word requesting it to notify the city council that unless the request was complied with inside of ninety days legal proceedings would be institutod against the city.

Permission was granted Mr. McCloskey, who had the misfortune to lose his sight in a premature blast in Phoenix last year, to run a lemonade and ice cream stand in this city on the 1st and 2d of July.

By-law No. 9 (hotel rebate) was reconsidered and finally passed.

A protest was read from the transfer and livery men against the city granting licenses to non-residents during the Dominion Day celebration.

An extension of 15 days from the time fixed by resolution recently was granted consumers of city water and light to pay all arrears before the same would be cut off.

E. Barron was given permission to use 150 feet of the old 2-inch water pipe for irrigating purposes, proved he brought the same back when the city needed them.

Ald. McCallum reported that he had interviewed Mr. Graves, of the Granby company, in an endeavor to obtain a better rate for the city for its light, but up to the present no satisfactory conclusion had been arrived at.

The consideration of Ald. Cusson's by-taw, providing for remuneration of city officials, was then taken up.

Ald. McLellan said he would certainly vote against the by-law.

Ald. McCallum said if the by-law was thoroughly ventilated it would perhaps be unnecessary to go into committee of the whole.

Ald. Cusson made a lengthy speech in support of the by-law, the trend of which was that no one should be asked to work for nothing. He wanted what was right for the work performed by the aldermen. During the past three years the members of the city council had drawn salaries.

Ald. Gaw had not intended to donate his work when he was elected. Perhaps it was different with Ald. McLellan and McCallum, who, for all he knew, might be millionaires in disguise. Other people who worked for the city drew salaries. Why should not the aldermen do the same?

Mayor Burrell attempted to pour oil on the troubled waters by making a long and characteristic speech. The gist of his remarks was that while no one should seek office for the money there was in it, still every public officer should be recompensed for services rendered. He had made his views on this point, he said, clear during the campaign.

The remarks in the council last night made by Councilman McCallum, in speaking on the proposal to vote salaries to a portion of that body were of a forceful character. He carefully avoided personalities, but poured in argument and eloquence that no one could assail. He pointed out that the question of salaries to members of the city council was not so perplexing a question as the means of paying important obligations which are at present agitating the public mind. He said there was a precedent for paying a salary to members of the council and that precedent was confirmed by the late council, but he didn't think the constituents expected them to pin their faith and stake their judgment on the example of the late council. He was quite willing to fall in line in voting a salary if he could be shown it was the proper course, and he fully realized that members of council in a young city like Grand Forks earn more than the city can to afford to pay them, but they should consider that before they undertake the responsibility and offer themselves as candidates, as the woods are full of competitors for these positions, who are willing to give their time for the reward of honor. He didn't know that any of them needed the emolument any more than he himself did, but he couldn't over look the fact that the corporation is coming face to face with the problem of a difference between revenue and expenditure of several thousand dollars on the wrong side of the ledger, and to meet the emergency they must resort to retrenchment and economy and cut down the expenses to the equilibrium of the city's revenue. And to be consistent with the principle of economy and within their oath of office, they must begin at Jerusalem and set the example of economy in the council. He thought that as the tendency this year has been for general reform, they should set an example for future councils by taking a little financial reform themselves, and wiping out the iniquitous practice of paying salaries to councilmen in a city that is struggling for an existence, and they should inaugurate a principle by which the office will hereafter seek the man and not the multitude seek the office. He said he had always been opposed to paying salaries in a young city under such circumstances, and referred to trouble that occurred in Rossland by voting a salary to members of council in opposition to the wish of the ratepayers.

Ald. McClellan followed Ald. McCallum in opposition to salary by-law in a straight-from-the-shoulder speech. Our reporter was unable to get a verbatim report, but the principle points are given below. He said: "This is a bylaw that I have tried to keep out of the city council ever since I became a member of this body. Outside of Rossland there is not another town besides Grand Forks, in British Columbia, paying wages to their City Dads. It is a well known fact that Grand Forks is notorious on account of its former 'graters,' but little did I know when I came into the council that I would be among such grafters. The people, when they elected this council, thought they had got rid of all such men. What has this city council done for the people this year? Done nothing. They have not got five cents to do any public work of any kind with. All they have to do is try and hold what they have. As to Alds Cusson and Gaw, they didn't tell the people on the platform that they wanted wages. They knew better. Both Mr. Gaw and Mr. Cusson are old members of the council, and they knew what work was required of them, and if they did not want to give a little time to the city why did they not stay at home. Mr. Gaw voted against wages last year but this year he wants wages. Instead of this council setting a good example for the guidance of future councils it is following in the footsteps of past councils. If past conncils were so short sighted in this respect it does not follow that we should taint our record with like questionable action."

Ald. McCallum moved an amendment to have the bylaw read a third time eight months hence. Yes—McCallum, McLellan; No—Gaw, Peterson, Cusson. Mayor Burrell asked that the first clause which relates to his salary, read $200. For—Gaw, Peterson, Cusson; against—McCallum and McLellan.

Mayor Burrell moved, seconded by Ald. Peterson, that the chairmen of Board of Public Works and Water and Light Committee be allowed $150 each. Yes—Burrell, Peterson and Gaw; no, McCallum and McLellan.

Moved by Ald. McCallum, seconded by Ald. McLellan that committee rise without reporting. Amended by Burrell that committee rise and report. Same vote as above.

Report adopted.

McLellan objected to third reading of bylaw, which delays its adoption two weeks, and in meantime it may "die a-bornin'." Anyhow, the Mc's declare they have other torpedoes up their sleeves designed for that obnoxious bylaw.

TUESDAY, JUNE 23, 1903

From general public expression today it may be judged that those members of the city council, Mayor Burrell, Alds. Cusson, Peterson and Gaw, who sought last night to pass a salary bylaw, find that such action falls far short of commendation. At a previous meeting of the council the bylaw had passed its second reading in blank form, having originally been introduced by Ald. Cusson. Last night the bylaw was under consideration in committee of the whole, when the proposed swoop on the city treasury was fixed by the promoters of the descent as follows, Ald. Cusson in the chair: Mayor Burrell moved that his own salary be allowed in the sum of $200, and the chairman of the Board of Public Works, J. L. Manly (Ald. Cusson acting in his absence), and the chairman of the Water and Light Committee, Ald. Gaw, be each allowed $150. On the Mayor's motion the vote stood: Ayes, Alds Cusson, Gaw and Peterson; nays, Alds. McLellan and McCallum. The bylaw provides that one-third of these sums may be drawn June 30th, and the remaining two-thirds the 31st of December. The objection raised in committee delays the final passage of the bylaw, if it passes at all, beyond June 30th, so Ald. Cusson is out of it, so far as salary is concerned; and Ald. Peterson, when he gets his ear down to the ground and hears the roar of coming protests will probably change his vote at the next meeting, especially as he is not in the favored salary bunch. Undoubtedly, Mayor Burrell's best supporters will be painfully surprised by the position he took in the matter, while the course taken by Alds. McLellan and McCallum will be heartily commended by the ratepayers.

In classifying the interior newspapers of the province politically, the Nelson Tribune lists the Rossland Miner as a supporter of the "Big Mit" party." We are wondering if our down-town contemporary is not waiting for a "call" from that party? It probably remembers that one-half of itself got down on the wrong side of the fence at the last provincial election, and cost Mr. Mackintosh $600 to get it over where it belonged. Perhaps it would like a similar contract at the same figures this year, and does not yet know the right from the wrong side of the fence.

There is very little safety in forecasting the result of the next provincial election predicated on the vote of the last poll, as the new order of things in the political field and the shifting of population will effect surprising changes; then the Socialist vote is liable to cut deeper than ever before into the ranks of both the old parties.

The Montreal Star bewails the fact that the absence of rain in that section seriously affects the city milk supply. There's candor for you, the assumption being the drought has caused the wells to go dry.

BOUNDARY MINES AND SMELTERS

The Granby company, whose iron supply from Phoenix, for fluxing purposes, is somewhat limited, has had an expert on Shamrock mountain near Fife, recently, it is reported, looking for a deposit of that mineral.

G. M. Miller, interested in the Amazon claim on St. Thomas mountain, in developing the claim, is taking out free milling gold quartz that experts, in the absence of an assay, predict will disclose, upon test, values from $500 to $1,000 per ton. A nine-mile wagon haul is necessary to land the ore at Bonanza siding.

The Jessie F., a valuable gold property on Norway mountian, is about ready to begin shipping. This claim, as is the Cascade, another valuable property, is located near the celebrated Bonanza mine.

G. K. Stocker and Dick Darrow of Cascade, were up in Burnt Basin a few days last week, and brought out 100 lbs. of ore from the Tin Cup claim, which will be tested for values. The property is owned by a New York company.

Development work is progressing at the Athelstan, the mine having been recently unwatered.

A spur to the Oro Denoro in Summit camp, was surveyed last week by C. P. R. engineers.

Rails are soon to be laid to the Brooklyn and Stemwinder mines in Phoenix, as supplies are arriving in that camp for the work, the roadbed being already constructed.

Morrison mine will shortly be tested on a somewhat extensive scale, as the B. C. Copper Co. is calling for tenders for hauling a quantity of ore from that claim to the Deadwood spur, whence it will be shipped to the Mother Lode smelter in Greenwood.

Fresh Hood River Strawberries, with whipped cream, served daily at the Clarendon Restaurant.
