Motor Car Accident At Lake

One young man was instantly killed and five others more or less seriously injured in a motor truck accident on the Silver Birch road at Christina lake at 11:30 on Saturday night.

The truck was driven by Everett Biddlecome, who was slightly bruised. The car missed a broad curve, and 51 feet from where it left the road it struck a stump and catapulted.

Roy Cooper, aged 20 years, was thrown against a log and instantly killed. He suffered a fractured skull and broken back. Marvin Bailey, a companion, who was also riding in the box of the truck, sustained head injuries, causing concussion, and is in in the Grand Forks hospital in a state. His condition turned serious late Sunday afternoon after he had entered the hospital early in the morning. He is suffering from cuts asd scratches and an injury to his head.

Following the crash, Bailey became confused and wandered from the scene. Despite an all-night manhunt, he was not located until about 5:30 o'clock Sunday morning, when he "came to" and made his way from the woods onto the road. He was conveyeyed to the hospital in apparently good shape, but late in the afternoon took a bad turn.

Three other companions, Lewellyn Price, Parker Freeborne and Arthur Morrison, suffered minor injuries, and all but Morrison were taken to the Grand Forks hospital.

Everett Biddlecome, driver of the truck, who was bruised and cut about the head, is held in the Grand Forks jail on a charge of manslaughter.

With Biddlecome in the front seat were Price and Freeborne. Young Cooper, Bailey and Morrison were riding in the small truck box behind the driver. The car was going down what is known as the Silver Birch road, when it suddenly left the highway on a curve. Indications are that the car skidded and the driver in righting the skid caused the car to jack-knife and jump into the air, to land upside down among a pile of heavy stumps and fallen logs. The machine was badly wrecked and rested with all four wheels straight in the air.

There were no eye witnesses of the crash, and when the less injured boys picked themselves up they found their chum, Cooper, dead beside a large log. Bailey was dazed, but informed his pals he was all right. The party then sought help, and upon their return Bailey had disappeared. He had been seen to walk into the woods.

Roy Cooper, the dead lad, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Cooper of this city, and was popularly known in the district as a member of the Grand Forks ball team. When thrown from the truck he apparently hit head first against a large log, and died instantly. He and Bailey had gone to Christina lake Saturday night to attend one of ehe dances. At about 11 o'clock they left the hall and joined Biddlecome and his companions for a ride in the truck.

Coroner's Jury Charges Gross Negligence

In the opinion of a coroner's jury composed of George Clark, foreman, E. C. Henniger, T. H. Chapman, Alfred Downey, Donald McCallum and George Mattocks, sitting here Tuesday, the auto accident at Christina lake Saturday night was due to gross negligence on the part of the driver, Everett Biddlecome, who is now held in the local jail on a charge of manslaughter. Police authorities are awaiting word from Attorney General Pooley before proceeding with a preliminary trial.

The text of the jury's finding was, "We, the jury impanelled to enquire into the death of Roy Wallace Cooper, find that the deceased came to his death by being thrown from a light truck while being driven by Everett Biddlecome. We are o fthe opinion that the driver of the truck was under the influence of liquor and used gross carelessness by upsetting the truck at the point where the accident happened."

New Forest Fires In Nelson District

Nelson, Aug. 11.—A new fire threatening the Mother Lode mill of the Reno Gold Mines on Sheep Creek a mile of progress made by the fire on the south side of the Kootenay River opposite Thrums and a lightning fire in the Kokanee area constitute the new forest fire developments of the past 24 hours in this district.

Besides the mill, a stand of crown by this fire. This morning 30 men left Nelson for Salmo, to join the timber up Sheep Creek is threatened Reno men in fighting it. It is figured it can be put out of business in a couple of days.

Up to Sunday night the Thrums fire, which originated between Big and Little McPhee Creeks, was fought by a large force of Doukhobors, who were protecting their timber and a small sawmill.

When it burned its way down to the River Flat and threatened adjoining property the Forest branch took a hand.

Is Russia Reverting To Capitalism?

LONDON, Aug. 11.—So development in Russia in years has caused more comment than the Soviet's apparent departure from the strictly communist level.

Russia's decision to pay workers according to ability is acclaimed in some quarters here as a return to the right of production and sale of goods on the "old-fashioned capitalist basis."

The decree, described as sensational, was issued jointly by the Sovnarkom (council of people's commissars) and the Tzik (central executive committee of the Soviet Union).

It is designed to overcome the problem of the scarcity of certain manufactured articles by reviving the stimulus of private profit and is linked with the intense campaign for a bumper harvest, being intended to provide goods which will encourage the peasants to do their utmost to produce food.

Hitherto the so-called cooperative artisan "artels" worked exclusively for the government on a basis of fixed prices and the strictesttofficial supervision.

The new decree removes these restrictions, reducing the taxes upon artisans and allowing them to buy their own raw products in the open market on the most profitable terms obtainable.

The Soviet government also promises not to interfere in the disposal of the capital thus acquired by the "artels" and Communist party officials throughout the nation have been ordered to obey the decree and encourage artisans to increase their productivity.

The largest share of Russia's needs before the Communist revolution was supplied by individual tailors, shemakers and other artisans. This decree evidently aims to restore such production because of the critical shortage of such goods as clothes and shoes.

Doukhobors Will Not Go To Mexico

PRINCE ALBERT, Sas., Aug. 9.—Canadian Doukhobors will not migrate to Mexico, it was stated definitely yesterday. Peter Veregin, leader of the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood, as the Doukhobor sect is officially known, has negatived the proposal from his jail cell here. Veregin is serving an 18 months sentence following conviction on a charge of perjury.

This information was made public by Peter G. Markaroff of Saskatoon, solicitor of the Doukhobor chieftain, and was confirmed by J. P. Shukin, vice-president of the Doukhobor organization.

The wholesale migration of Canadian Doukhobors to Mexico has been suggested recently following dissatisfaction in the Doukhobor ranks with the conviction of Veregin and the wholesale sentences imposed in British Columbia on members of the "outlaw" Eons of Freedom sect for parading in the nude. J. M. Hackney, international colonization agent from St. Paul, visited here recently and was reported arranging for the purchase of a tract of land in Mexico on which the Doukhobors could settle in the hope of securing greater freedom from governmental interference than they enjoy in Canada.

A few days ago Mr. Veregin had his first meeting with Hon. J. T. M. Anderson, premier of Saskatchewan, it was learned. At the Prince Albert jail Veregin has charge of a gang of prisoners whose duty is to keep the place clean. While superintending this work he ran into the premier by accident. Dr. Anderson was inspecting the jail, and chatted for a few minutes with Veregin. The premier later said there was no significance in the visit or the meeting.

Surround yourself with lots of good compay if you are a worrier. Then you'll forget to worry.

Grand Forks City Council Proceedings

The regular meeting of the Grand Forks city council was held in the council chamber on Monday evening. The mayor and all the aldermen were pesent.

The city clerk was instructed to notify all dog owners that dog licenses are now payable at the city office.

The water and light committee reported that H. L. Taylor and an inspector had inspected the new power plant and power line and had approved the same.

The city electrician was instructed to transfer the C.P.R. meter from its present location to a place in West Grand Forks.

Liberal Leader Hits Coalition Agitation

VICTORIA, Aug. 8.—T. D. Pattullo, provincial Liberal leader, scored talk of coalition at a feeting of Victoria Liberals Friday night.

"If this Tolmie government had given good administration so as to receive approval of the people, do you imagine there would be any agitation for coalition today?" he asked.

Recalling that the Province newspaper, which is now calling for coalition, had in 1928 urged the people to vote for the Tolmie government, Mr. Pattullo declared that the newspaper is today more concerned about its own position than about anything else.

"Talk of coalition is as seed sown on fertile ground because people are disgusted with the sinister influences of the present administration," he said.

"The position of the Liberal party is that we will not allow Toryism to receive tribute from the people while it remains in control," Mr. Pattullo went on.

"The Tolmie government has had a three-to-one majority, but they have not had the courage or the brains to do what they should do in interests of the people of British Columbia.

"And now I am asked to join with these people who have neither courage or brains to do the things they should know must be done for the good government of this province.

"It would be possible for the Liberal party to throw me down, but I will not throw the Liberal party down.

"I am no traitor."

Much interest is beinb shown in the provincial Liberal convention to be held on October 3, the leader said. Already nearly 300 resolutions and letters of suggestion had been sent in from all parts of the province.

Some Fishermen at Coast Enjoying a Wave of Prosperity

NEW WESTMINSTER, Aug. 11.—A harvest of silvery fish is being reaped by 400 Fraser river fishermen who are paid an average of 40 cents and a high of 50 cents for sockeye salmon, which are being keenly bid for by canners.

The price is considered exceedingly good, as only 30 cents a fish was paid at this time last year.

A marked improvement in the run of sockeye was noted Monday and Tuesday, but today they fell off slightly. The run of coho esalmon has started and springs are fair.

Owing to the good price for sockeye, which is attributed to optimism of canners in view of the imperial economic conference, fishermen are using a 5¾-inch mesh, in place of an 8½-inch mesh, which permits the springs to escape to spawning grounds.

Peak catches approximate 98 or 100 fish a day, which net the fishermen $50.

According to latest reports of authorities to the end of the first week in August, the salmon pack in District. No. 1, including the Fraser river, approximated 35,000 cases.

First Contingent Goes To Doukhobor Island

VANCOUVTR, Aug. 11.—The advance guard of the first contingent to Pier island, newly created Doukhobor penal colony, left Saturday morning on the C.P. SS Princess Mary.

It consisted of eight British Columbia penitentiary guards, headed by Keepie B. McDonald, who has seen eighteen years service at the penitentiarf.

All the eight are World war veterans.

Mattresses, provisions and equipment went along with the guards.

The buildings on Pier island, which is half a mile north of Saanich peninsula, are almost completed. The first shipment of Doukhobors will be effected soon.

When cream is not strictly fresh it sometimes will curdle slightly when poured into the coffee. This can be avoided by adding a pinch of baking soda to the cream before serving.

Interesting To District Farmers

JUNIOR CLUBS

The judging of the calves in the claf club and pigs in the swine clubs will take place early in September and members are urged to have their animals in the best possible condition at that time. The calves must be halter broke so that they can be shown properly in the show ring, and each boy or girl member are requested to see that this is done as soon as possible.

The poultry in the poultry clubs will also be judged in the near future, and club members are requested to have their record sheets ready to hand in at the time of the judging. The record forms for calf club and swine club members must also be hasded in at the time of judging.

JUNIOR POULTRY JUDGING TEAM

The coaching of the competitors for the junior poultry judging team is under way in the district. The following club members have tried out for team membership, but owing to the fact that some were under or over the team age limits, they had to withdraw:

Walter Madge, Rock Creek; Christine Brew, Kettle Valley; Gordon Roberts, Midway; James Forshaw, Greenwood; Crystal Mason, George Roper, Grand Forks.

The team will be composed of two members and will compete in the elimination contest at Armstron fair on September 22, the winning team to go to the Toronto Royal fair competition in November. Poultry team members will be required to judge one class of single-comb White Leghorns and one class of Barred Plymouth Rocks according to utility standard; also to one class of each of the above breeds according to the American Standard of Perfection. In addition, questions will be asked, (1) on the value of club activities, (2) on care, feeding and management of poultry, (3) on the value of records of production costs, (4) on poultry sanitation, and (5) on factors affecting financial returns from poultry raising.

A total of 600 points will be allotted, as follows: Placing four classes of birds, 200 points; oral reasons on four classes, 200 points; questions as above, 200 points.

STANDING FIELD CROP COMPETITION

The acre plots of potatoes in the Grand Forks standing field crop competition will be judged shortly. The jud ing is being arranged by H. S. McLeod, in charge of certified seed potato production in British Columbia.

Premier Tolmie Making Slow Trip to Victoria

VICTORIA, Aug. 8.—Premier Tolmie left Ottawa Sunday for Victoria. He is expected back in the city towards the end of next week.

The return of Premier Tolmie will expedite whatever action the government may decide upon as a result of the presentation of the report of the Kidd committee on provincial affairs.

Under the arrangement in which the report was received by the government, six weeks were set as the time required by the province to consider the matter asd print the report This time will expire on or about August 22, after which the Kidd committee would be at liberty to publish the report itself.

The government, however, has already announced its intention of publishing the report, after Premier Tolmie and all members of the cabinet have had an opportunity to peruse its contents.

Russian Leader Analyzed

"I would be willing to entrust my children to him."

That is the tribute Emil Ludwig pays to Josef Stalin, Russian dictator, in the September Cosmopolitan.

Stalin is a lonely man, not tempted by gold, pleasures or fame and even flattered by power, says Ludwig. Two traits that govern his character—patience, mistrust.

Here are some of the things he finds about the most powerful dictator on earth, who rules the destiny of 160,000,000 people.

1. He lives like a humble citizen, with his 28-year-old wife and two children in a little house outside the city of Moscoy.

2. He is sensative and melancholy by nature, cold and determined by vocation.

'. He has devoted his life to improve the lot of the working man.

4. Everything about him is heavy, his gait, glance, will.

5. Under the czar, he was imprisoned six times in 12 years.

6. Of the Russian leaders, Lenine, Trotzky, and Stalin, Lenine was mountain high, fiery and sensible; Trotzky, quick and brilliant.

Trotzky has Lenine's vigor. Stalin his patience.

Trotzky is the strategist; Stalin the tactician.

Trotzky inspires the masses; Stalin organizes them.

Trotzky has a biting wit; Stalin a dangerous sense of humor.

Trotzky is a prophet; Stalin a father.

"In history," says Ludwig, "the Stalins always follow the Trotzkys."

Stalin himself explains the new Russian policy that has abandoned equality. "The dead level is not Marxian teachings," he says.

"'Each according to his ability; to each according to his accomplishments,' so reads the Marrian formula for the first stage at Socialism."

Liberals of Province to Meet Oct. 3

VANCOUVER, Aug. 11.—A convention of the Liberal party in British Columbia will be held on Monday, Ictober 3, it was announced Wednesday morning by Hon. T. D. Pattullo, provincial leader, who was spending the day in Vancouver.

Place of meeting has not been selected definitely, it is inferred from the fact that it was not mentioned in Mr. Pattullo's announcement.

Following a resolution of the provincial executive, which met recently, the various associations throughout the province were asked for recommendations in respect to public policy.

A large number of replies have been receiver, Mr. Pattullo states.

Recommendations include the various matters which it has been publicly intimated have been considered by the Kidd committee, and many others not so mentioned.

"In a multitude of counsels there is wisdom.

"The tenor of responses from all parts of the province indicate keen appreciation of our various prob

Charges Bad Faith Over Kidd Report

VANCOUVER, Aug. 11.—That the government and the members of the Kidd commission explain why copies of the commission's report were placed in other hands than their own, although refused to the official leader of the opposition, was voiced in a statement today by Hon. T. D. Pattullo, provincial Liberal leader.

"The first fundamental of a real coalition is good faith,' he said, yith regard to press dispatches that the report denounced party politics.

Mr. Pattullo arrived in Vancouver this morning for a two days' visit.

"I notice that recommendations of the Kidd committee are being commented upon in extenso in the press," he said, "and definite statements have been made as to what the Kidd report contains. No copy of the report was furnished to me either by the Kidd committee or the govent.

"In response to requests from me that the government furnish me with a copy of the report, our sagacious attorney general said that I had my nerve, while the head of the Kidd committee told me the committee had disbanded and he was unable to supply me with o copy.

"The Province newspaper stated that the report contains a severe indictment of party politics.

"For weeks now a determined effort has been put forth to compel me to make a pronouncement in favor of a coalition government. I thing it will be generally admitted that a first fundamental of real coalition is good faith.

"It is up to the government and to the Kidd committee to explain why reports of the committee were placed in hands other than their own, while refused to me, the leader of his majesty's loyal opposition."

John McDonald of Union Mine Died Saturday Night

John McDonald, aged 58 years, died in the Grand Forks hospital last Saturday evening at about 8 o'clock, after suffering for some time with heart trouble. The funeral was help on Tuesday morning from the Catholic church. It very largely attended by the citizens. Interment was made in Evergreen cemetery.

The late Mr. McDonald was an old-timer of Phoenix and Grand Forks. He was one of the original locators of the Union mine, and during the past ten or fifteen years he has made his home in Franklin camp. He was a single man, strictly honest and honorable, and was well liked by everybody with whom he came in contact.

His brother James, of Seattle, arrived in the city four hours before JJohn passed away. Mr. James McDonald will probably remain in the city for a short time.

Government Will Distribute Liquor Profits Next Week

VICTORIA, Aug. 11.—Municipalities will receive their shore of liquor profits and motor licenses towant the end of next week, officials of the provincial department of finance have announced.

The distribution has been held up by omission of a number of school boards to supply statistics as to attendance at their schools, on which the distribution is based.

The last of the overdue figures have now been filed, and are being tabulated and analyzed by the accountants of the finance department.

Okanagan Growers Make Apple Pact

VERNON, Aug. 11.—Shippers have reached an agreement for the marketing of McIntosh and later varieties of apples.

The agreement embraces 20 shipping houses moving an estimated 90 per cent of the crop. An effort is to be made to get the other 10 per cent in.

There will be no price agreement, but those assenting promise to move onlf 40 per cent of the tonnage to the domestic market and to store or export 60 per cent.

Storage stocks are to be released from time to time, but the percentage of interest of each subscribing shipper to the storage or export portion is to remain constant.

The plan is to be under the management of an independent shipper.

Man has his troubles the same as woman, but he has less to say about them.

John Leslie Retires

1. John Leslie. 2. E. E. Lloyd. 3. L. B. Unwin. 4. E. A. Leslie.

John Leslie, Vice President of Finance and Treasurer of the Canadian Pacific Railway, after more than 58 years of service with that Company and its subsidiaries will retire from office under pension rules, on July 1st, according to an announcement made by E. W. Beatty, Chairman and President. Mr. Leslie will be succeeded by Mr. E. E. Lloyd, presently Comptroller of the Company. L. B. Unwin, Assistant Comptroller, will be appointed Comptroller and E. A. Leslie, Assistant Comptroller, will be appointed Deputy Comptroller.

"The Directors and myself desire to record our appreciation of Mr. Leslie's long, loyal and efficient service", Mr. Beatty said in announcing Mr. Leslie's retirement. Mr. Leslie has given a lifetime to railway work in this country. He became a railroader as a boy of 16, when in March, 1877 he entered the service of the Toronto Grey & Bruce Railway, as a junior clerk in their Toronto office. He became Vice President and Comptroller, Montreal in January 1926, and Vice President in charge of Finance, and Treasurer on February 10th, 1928.

Mr. Lloyd, who succeeds Mr. Leslie as Vice President and Treasurer commenced his railroad career with the Canadian Pacific at Winnipeg in December, 1887, when he became a clerk in the Stores Department. He became Auditor of Stores & Mechanical Accounts at Montreal, in December, 1904; and after holding different posts in that department, became Auditor of Disbursements in March 1918; Assistant Comptroller in February 1921, and Comptroller in February 1928.

Mr. Unwin, who succeeds Mr. Lloyd, was first a clerk in the office of the Assistant Superintendent at Chapleau, Ontario, in 1908 and served at Chapleau, White River and Schreiber until the outbreak of the world war. He early answered the call to arms by enlisting in the first Contingent. Mr. Unwin was awarded the Military Cross, earned his majority, being demobilized with that rank in April, 1919. On July 2, 1926, he was made Assistant Auditor of Miscellaneous Accounts, and on February 10th, 1928, he was appointed Assistant Comptroller.

E. A. Leslie, who becomes Deputy Comptroller is a son of John Leslie, and followed his distinguished father into the service of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. In 1912 he succeeded in winning a Canadian Pacific scholarship at McGill University, and became a student of transportation. He graduated in 1916 with a bachelor of science degree. Mr. Leslie immediately enlisted with the Canadian Artillery, and after serving in England and in France, was demobilized in May 1919 with the rank of Lieutenant. July of the same year found him back in harness with the Canadian Pacific as clerk in the General Managers' office in Montreal. Mr. Leslie was promoted to the post of Assistant Comptroller in February, 1928.

According to the North Shore Press, the election machinery in this province is being thoroughly overhauled in anticipation of a coll for action in the not far distant future. The paper continues: Premier S. F. Tolmie. it is reported, will leavt Ottawa for homo over the coming week-end and when he arrives at the Capital city,, it is expected that the politicol situation will be among the first issues placed before him for consideration. However, there is very little likelihood of an appeal to the electors of the province being made before a brief session of the legislature is held to put through a redistribution bill and the general opinion is that there is but little possibility of the octual vote taking place before the middle of October next. Indications are that a majority of the members of the cabinet and also a majority of the Conservative members of the house are in favor of the appeal being made to the electors. If the government decides to face another session without complete reorganization and no election is held next fall, it will be because Premier Tolmie has managed to overrule a majority of his cabinet and membership in the house. Although the majority opinion appears to favor a coalition, a redistribution and an early election, there is, of course, no definite decision that such a course will he followed. It is pointed out that Premier Tolmie may be opposed to the idea, but it is also known that if he is, he will likely have to face the prospect of severe cabinet resignations. In the meantime, the Liberal party is preparing its election campaign on the assumption that the appeal will be made during the fall. One candidate has been nominated and preparations are being made to proceed with the placing of other candidates in the field. It is almost a certainty that there will be a change in some election boundaries before the election is held. so some of the nominations may as a result be disarranged.

Bearing the title "The Trout and Other Game Fishes of British Columbia." a book written by Dr. J. R. Dymond, on the sport fish of Canada's Pacific coast has been published by the Dominion department of fisheries and is obtainable from the king's printer, Ottawa. It is bound in green cloth and is illustrated by color plates, showing various fish in their natural colorings, and by several black and white drawings. The illustrations were made from paintings and drawings by E. B. S. Logier, of the Royal Ontario museum of zoology, Toronto. The writer of the book is a member o fthe faculty of the University of Toronto and also holds the position of assistant director and secretary of the Royal Ontario museum of zoology. In the foreword Dr. Dymond points out that the text is based on studies carried out under the auspices of the biological board of Canada, a research body which operates under the control of the Dominion minister of fisheries. Two summers were spent by the author in British Columbia. The book is a valuable addition to Canadin fisheries publications, and it has the added merit of attractive appearance.

An ancient dungeon in which prisoners of early Delaware incarcerated and in which many were left to die, has been unearthed under the Kent county building on Dover Green. Between moulding brick walls, broken only by small slits to admit air, but constructed in such a manner to exclude light, workmen discovered a number of skeletons. It is believed they are the bones of prisoners of the early governors of Delaware—men who were "forgotten" after the cell doors clanged behind them. The discovery was made by excavators making ready for a new state building program. Early records of Kent county reveal that on this site the first jail was built in 1740. Old maps show the cells designed as "offices," laid out under the old county building. Later, between 1759 and 1763, James Hamilton. then governor of Delaware, and a number of citizens were designated as trustees and ordered to sell the jail and purchase another lot for a new prison. The building now moved was built on the brick walls of the old dungeon.

It is the feeble and ill-nourished mind that shrinks from knowledge of what has been and suffers from pessimistic dread of what is yet to be. It is only the mentally and spiritually hampered—prophesying of evil to come—who believe that all change in our day must be for the worse, and who long for the good old days.—Albert Shaw in Review of Reviews.

Dangerous and invisible rays of ultraviolet light produced by arc welding are absorbed by a special paint developed for the covering of walls in rooms where such work is done. It is an oil-type paint, gray in color, and dries in about two hours after applicaton.

Tons of hair at one time were used for packing between the plates of certain parts of English war vessels. Hair, being very elastic, alorded a good backing to metal.

An altar stone, used as early as 1675 in France, is in the crypt of St. Francis Xovier's church in St. Louis. The stone, brought to St. Louis by Father Marquette when he was tracing the course of the Mississippi river, is believed to be the oldest in America.

Disappointment That Led to Immortality

A son of Quaker parents, born in Penn's Wood. who painted historical canvases by the square rod for George III; one of the founders and second president (succeeding Sir Joshua Reynolds) of the Royal Academy, Benjamin West had two American pupils about a generation apart whose talens came to a head in invention—Robert Fulton and S. F. B. Morse. Morse had studied painting abroad about seven years and was a founder and president of the National Academy of Design when he applied to a congressional committee for a commission to paint (by the square rod, as West had for King George) a historical group for one of the four empty panels in the capitol rotunda. John Quincy Adams, ex-president of the eUnited States, on this committee, expressed his opinion that no American artist had talent enough for the job. and presented a resolution opening the competition to foreigners. A letter in the New York Evening Post scolded Adams harshly for his diffidence. It was attributed to Morse (the letter was written by James Fenimore Cooper), and Morse's name was removed from the list of eligible painters. Grievously disappointed, Morse turned his back on a career that did not promise to redeem itself after so many years of honorable effort and recognition, rolled up his sleeves and perfected the telegraph. Twelve years after the idea came to him in 1832 on the packet Sully and eight years after his disappointment, he sent his famous message, "What hath God wrought!" Morse's achievement supports the recent remarks of his present successor as president of the National Academy of Design, Cass Gilbert. who, apropos the successful investing of academy funds at a time (yes, 1920) when the run of investors were not so successful, said: "Artists are not quite the fools people think them, not half the idealists they are supposed to be, and only one-third the complete asses in practical matters tradition has made them." Robert Fulton, S. F. B. Morse, American portrait painters. and —here take a high leap—Leonardo da Vinci did pretty well when they too a turn at engineering. Artists can even be smart about money when they put their minds to it (they seldom do) as Cass Gilbert, member of the club as Fulton and Morse, has pointed out, with a touch of malice, perhaps.

Girl Heroines of the Bard of Avon

When we are girls we do not think much about what happy times we are having. But when we have become girls grown tall. since "hearts don't change much after all," we look back with all the enchantment which distance lends, and see the joy and gladness that we did not quite appreciate.

I remember an unusual girl friend whose name was Cora. She was a very practical girl and not much given to romance; but when it came friendship she was loyalty personified. She was what some eminent divine called an advocate of the absent. She could not listen to any disparaging criticism of any one without finding some good trait to mention until you felt the foolishness of your fault finding. She reminded me of Riley's "Let something good be said." So, lest we two forget the importance of our friendship for ealh other, she carefully wrote out in pen and ink an Oath of Friendship Eternal. I have forgotten the words o fthe document, but I remember signing it with great solemnity.

Perhaps you remember that "Anne of Green Gables' and her friend Diana had a similar inspiration, except that their vow of eternal friendship was made over running water, which Anne's imaginative mind christened the Dryad's Bubble, a title accepted by her kindred spirit, Diana.

It is curious what an insight into the hearts of girls was possessed by Shakespeare. It speaks well for his sweetheart and wife Anne Hathaway, of whom so little is known that she has not been appreciated by the world. With her life of sacrifice and waiting she seems to me like Imogen, "from every one the best she hath. and she of all compounded outsells them all." It is significaut that he bought the home at New Place, and had it fully repaired, though he did not live in it until he had abandoned the stage as a means of livelihood when he was 47 years of age. Anne Hathaway was his inspiration.

Whatever his inspiration, Shakespeare has given us many delightful portraits of girls. In "As You Like It," we find a clear-cut cameo of the friendship of Rosalind and Cella, who though cousins were more like sisters, having been reared by the same mother. Rosalind's mother having died when she was only four years old So, they had "slept together, rose at an instant, and learned, played, ate together, and wheresoe'er they went, like Juno's swans been coupled and inseparable."

Portia and Nerissa were the best of friends, Nerissa furnishing the humor for one inclined to be serious. Nerissa was not only a waiting woman to the Lady Portia, but a close companion and warm friend. Together the discussed the various suitors who came for Portia's hand, and Nerissa unconsciously absorbed some of the wisdom and charm of her mistress.

Helena and Dermia sitting on one cushion. creating one flower on a sampler, singing one song, "growing together, like a double cherry . . . two lovely berries on one stem," were the best of friends until the mischievous Puck tangled up the instructions of King Oberon and a lover's quarrel ensued. They descended to harsh words. calling each other painted maypoles, dwarfs, vixens and what not, language unbecoming to such friends. But "sleep that sometimes shuts up sorrow's eye" with the help of Puck restored their friendship.

Imogen. Perdita and Miranda seem to have had na particular girl friends; as is the case with some girls of today, they were alone in all their beauty. Beatrice with all her wit asd sparkle was a true friend to Hero. her amiable and fascinating cousin. Shakespeare's girls are so human that we could duplicate some of them in our own girlhood friendships.

POEMS FROM THE FAR EAST

JAPAN

THE OWLN

Yes! 'twas the hour when all my hopes
Seemed idle as the dews that shake
And tremble in their lotus-cups
By deep Tsurugi's lake—
'Twas then the omen said:—
"Fear not he'll come his own dear love to wed."
What thoug my mother bids me flee
Thy fond embrace? No heed I ta e;
As pure, as deep my love for thee
As Kiyosumi's lake.
One thought fills all my heart:—
When wilt thou come no more again to part?

BLOOD PRESSURE

The number of question coicerning blod pressure which come to the health service is evidence that a large of people are worried about high or low pressure.

For a number of years, in making an examination, hoctors have taken the blood pressure of their patients. The do tor is interested in the blood pressure becahse it is by putting together all his findings that he is able to determine the nature of any abnormal condition whish may be present in his patiennt.

The blood is always under pressure; Noeherwise it would not rirculate. In the same person blood pressure varies as the result of such things as worry, excitement, position of the body and the use of stimulants. It also varies with age, sex, wtight and general health.

High blood pressure is not a disease. It is the result of some cause which map be emotional. such as worry or excitement, but may be associated with some abnormal ondition of other parts, such as the heart or kidney. There is no use in guessing as to the cause; that is for the doctor to find out. Worry about blood pressure may be the one thing which is keeping it above the average.

It is a mistake to try to interpret your own symptoms or the results of some examination. If, for some reason, you havt an X-ray examination, you are not able to interpret the picture; very likely you have no idea that you can do so, and you are quite right. for it requires experience to enable the doctor to know the meaning of the lights and shadows whi h the picture shows.

Blood pressure readings appear so simple—much like reading thermometer—that many people seem to believe that they should be able to know the meanning of a blood pressure of 150 or some other figure. It is not with any idea of suggesting that there is something mysterious about the subject that we say quite frankly that the interpretation of blood pressure readings is not simple. It is not simple because the significance of the blood pressure is not found in the blood pressure itself. It is obvious that, if the average blood pressure for a man of 50 years of age is 130, a man of 50 who has a pressure of 160 is above normal. Such a condition should receive attention, but need not cause alarm. The condition itself means nothing; it may be only temporary, but, in any case. until the cause is known the significan e of the condition is obscure.

A few years ago people worried about uric acid; now it is blood pressure. Secure the advice of your doctor, follow his instructions, and leave blood pressure to take care of itself.

Questions concerning health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association. 184 College Street, Toronto. will be answered personally by letter.

FACTS THAT YOU MAY NOT KNOW

Eyebrows

The growth of eyebrows will be stimulated by mixing 2 ounces red vaseline, ½ ounce tin ture of cantharides, 15 drops oil of lavender, 15 drops oil of rosemary. Mix thoroughly and apply with a small brush every night until the growth is stimulated; then. not so often.

Edward Feuz (left) holds that "the climbing urge" is a heritage of all white races, be the objective high furniture for an infant; a tree-top for a schoolboy; or the pinnacle of success or the summit of a mountain for an adult. He ought to know, for he makes his living as a mountain guide in the heart of the famous Canadian Rocky Mountains, with headquarters at the Canadian Pacific Railway's hotels at Banff and Lake Louise. and has more "first ascents" to his credit than any other man in the country. His brother Ernst (right) is also an experienced guide and mountaineer. Both are natives of Interlaken, Switzerland, and have winter-homes in the little Swiss guide village of Edelweiss, in the Columbia Valley. They are shown scanning the peaks adjoining the Banff Springs Hotel.

What the Rural Weekly Press of B. C. Can Offer

THERE are fifty-five regular weekly newspapers in British Columbia. They are published in a widely scattered field in communities with populations of from 200 to 400 to one of 10,000. Sixteen are published in communities of less than 1000 population; fifteen in communities of 1000 to 2000 population; seven in communities of 4000 to 5000; four in communities over 5000 to 10,000. These weeklies appeal to 145,000 of British Columbia's population. The news in these newspapers is mostly all local, because that is what interests the readers, and the advertisements for the most part tell what local merchants are doing. The country editor knows the people he serves; they are farmers, lumbermen, miners, fishermen, prospectors, laborers, all. It is estimated that the average farm family spends $2000 every year for things which are not necessary to raise crops. The total sum that is spent by farmers in the United States for those things with which to live well is the appaling sum of thirteen billion dollars. Seventy-two per cent. of all automobiles sold go to people living in towns and communities of less than 5000 population. Using the same proportionate figures to estimate the buying power of the rural population of British Columbia served by the weekly newspapers of the province, and we have something like 70,000 automobiles purchased by residents of the province in towns and communities of less than 5000 population, and $6,000,000 spent every year by these rural families for things which are not necessary to raise crops. If one is inclined to think that only a few people, and an insignificant few at that, live in country communities served by the weekly newspapers let him study these figures or consult the last census statistics.

Southern California

A Travelogue

AREAS of southern California which are normally arid, have recently burst forth in a riot of colorful wild bowers due to the unusual heavy rains.

California has many showcases for the display of her diversified floral wares. In the high Sierras are the snow plants, peeping inqu ringly and a bit nervously through the snowcaps when the first warmth of spring moves the solid pack to mushy activity. Farther down the slope, lichens, mosses, sundry family groups of ferns, and many varieties of wild flowers merge into the wooded lowlands, where, especially north of the Tehachapi mountains, the live oak spreads its shapely limbs and often affords protection while adding beauty to the pasture land, where herds of fat herefords browse.

In the northern part of the state roses grow with little cultivation, but with the profusion of goldenrod in Pennsylvania. No mere bushes suffice for the wealth of blossoms. They grow on trees, often to a height of 12 feet or more, and curious results of intergrafted varieties are sometimes found in freakish but delightful array on a single tree. In Santa Cruz arbors cover the sidewalks of some of the streets, and over these roses. intertwined with geraniums, climb and rest in clusters.

Though the cultivated flowers which abound are beautiful and varied, all the way from the sand dunes, Scotch broom, and rhododendrons, of Crescent City, which is almost the last outpost in California before the Redwood highwap reaches the Oregon line. to Ramona's garden in San Diego, only a few miles from the Mexican border, it is to the "wide open spaces," the desert and mountain sides of the southern part off the state, which we turn in chief appreciationn.

One may see and study the snow plant under the dome of Shasta, dip into the wonderland of plant and flower life at the experimental farm of the late Luther Burbank, near Santa Rosa, or wander through San Francisco's Golden Gate park, where he finds practically every variety of flower and plant that will grow under a kindly sun.

The outstanding pride of this park is its thousands of rhododendrons. Himalayan varieties are in preponderance. followed closely bp natives of California, Oregon, Washington and the Carolinas. Especially conspicuous are the frabrantissimum, which attains a height of 7 to 10 feet, with flowers 4 inches in diameter and so fragrant that the odor can be detected from a modest group nearly a city block away.

One of the National Geographic society's exqeditions to Yunnan province, China, resulted in the addition of many hundreds of species of rhododendrons to the Golden Gote park collection.

Dons Party Dress in Spring

In the early spring California dons her party dress and looks her best. The winter rains have tinted hillside and pasture land o verdant green. In the citrus areas the delicate orange blossom fills the air with perfume and miles of trees stretch like milky ways as far as the eye may follow.

In other sections cherry blossoms stage an exhibition. The almond trees are indescribably lovely. The landscape is filled with color, while snowcapped peaks are seen through the tree tops.

This is cultivated loveliness; but one day, after a searching rain followed by warm sunchine, a mountain side suddenly bursts into flame—a veritable spontaneous combustion. Literally, all outdoors become one vast garden of flowers until it seems there is no end to the colorful panorama.

The "cup of gold," as the Spaniards called the California poppy, is the queen of wild flowers.

And the desert Who can look upon the desert in the spring and talk of a barren waste? Even Death valley, for ages California's bogy spot, a place to be spoken of in awed whisper, a death trap, now has tourist hotels and tent camps.

Desert vegetation exhibits its greatest growth and beauty between February and May. It includes the yucca and juniper, the creosote and mesquite, many varieties of shrub and herbage, an occasional Joshua tree, mixed with Inlian paintbrush (a member of the yucca family), monkey-flowers, lupine, prickly phlox, wild buckwheat, blazing-star, sunflower, barrel cactus bloom, ocotillo, and many others, giving for a season the impression of a flower-carpeted world. In this lush period the desert literally blossoms as the rose, although the rose does not ordinarily blossom in the desert.

The term "wild flowers" does not describe some of this desert flora. Occasionally they are savage flowers, capable of protecting themselves better than any man-made laws could possibly protect them. In magnificent color, in delicacy of texture of petal, the cactus flowers are perhaps the most wonderful of the California desert blossoms. But no one ever came home from the desert with a handful of cholla flowers or a bouquet of prickly pears. "Look and leave 'em" is the safest motto, for the cactus has a fiendish refense against all comers.

California motehrs no scenic symphony more marvelous than the Yosemite National park, with its mighty peaks, rugged canyons, goant trees, waterfalls tumultously spreading a protecting veil over the rocky outlines of naked clefts rising from the floor of the valley sheer a thousand feet or more.

In the giant sequoia, the sugar pine, the western yellow pine, the red and white firs, and the intense-cedar, we have in this Yosemite region one of the most remarkable groups of conifers in the world. It serves to give the park an interest and charm which gratifies the esthetic sense and stirs deeply the imagination.

A View of Contrasts

From Artist Point there is a fine view of the valley and its contrasts in height and depth, in verdurt and flora. Near the foot of Yosemite falls, the largest and most spectacular in the valley, the blueblossom, commonly called "blue lilac," grows in profusion, the soft coloring blending with the rainbow effects of the torrent, broken in its descent to the floor of the valley.

The Yosemite National park, which embraces 1100 square miles of "valley incomparable" and scenic mountains, offers a rich field for the botanist. So great is the range of natural conditions between foothills and mountain glaciers that one authority estimates that 1200 species and varieties of flowers, plants, and ferns are native to this area. Though most of these are typi al of the entire Sierra Nevada, many are exceedingly rare.

The fragrance of the western azalea is enhanced by abundant bloom. The delicate canchalagua, with its snowy clusters of bright, thick flowers; the taller collomia, with its dense heads of funnel-formed blossoms, almost salmon in color; the golden mimulus, or monkey-flower; ountless blue flowers, such as the light-blue pentstemon, with its whorls in tall stems; tall blue forget-me-nots; tiny dark-blue collinsia; the red Indian paintbrush; the brilliant scarlet pentstemon, with lance-shaped leaves and funnel-formed corolla, about one inch long; golden buttercups—all go to form the brilliant mosaic of large sheets

Mystery cruises, so popular out of New York, Southampton and other great ports, were ushered in on the British Columbia coast with the sailing of the coastal liner Princess Patricia, of the Canadian Pacific coastal service, to an unknown destination under sealed orders, recently. Close to 200 passengers were attracted by the trip.

Juicy, red, succulent buffalo steaks grilled to a nicety, greeted the Australian and New Zealand delegates to the Ottawa Imperial Conference as they entered the dining car of their special train over the Canadian Pacific Railway out of Vancouver recently. The Anzacs were particularly impressed by this menu and pronounced it better than any beef they had ever eaten.

Governor Franklin Delano Roosevelt of New York, Democratic Nominee for the Presidency, has for years been one of New Brunswick's most distinguished non-resident visitors, members of his family annually spending several weeks at the Roosevelt summer home at Campobello, one of the Grand Manan Island Group in Passamaquoddy Bay. He first came there as a mere lad back in 1895.

The ride required five days in all. Twenty American girls, summering at the Lake Windermere ranch, were among these taking part.

WHERE TO SPEND AN ENJOYABLE VACATION

Canada-This Year

SINCE the annual vacation has become a definite part of modern life, the decision as to where it will be spent is of considerable importance. Canada has a particular appeal to the vacationist, for it has an unusual variety of attractions, which may be enjoyed at reasonable cost.

Recreation Areas Easily Reached

For most people, the summer vacation is limited to a few weeks and is really shortened by the time used in travelling to and from the locality selected. Canada has an extensive system of good roads and excellent railway services which greatly facilitate travel between provinces.

Attractions Cover Wide Range

Canada presents a striking diversity of natural features—the rugged and picturesque Atlantic coast; the St. Lawrence river and Great Lakes, the world's greatest inland waterway; the Laurentian mountains, land of forest and stream; the prairies; the majestic Rockies; and the beautiful Pacific coast. Each of these areas has its own attractions of scenic beauty and opportunities for enjoyable recreation. Fishing, hunting, camping, canoeing, and mountain-climbing may all be enjoyed under ideal conditions, while golf and tennis may be played practically everywhere. Accommodation includes everything from camp site to luxurious hotel. Those to whom economy is a matter of concern may spend a pleasant vacation close to nature, at surprisingly small cost.

Travel Information Gladly Furnished

The National Development Bureau, Department of the Interior at Ottawa, has prepared a series of automobile road maps, showing the main routes from one province to another, also a number of interesting booklets, including "Vacations in Canada", which describe the tourist attractions of each province. These will be sent to any of our readers planning a vacation. Applicants should state the areas in which they are interested.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

That advertising through the printed page has the necessary attractiveness and efficiencp of performance that brings profitable results.

History has shown that continuous advertisers have found success, while non-advertisers have always been lagging behind.

Lack of advertising is killing many a business that should show increasing business instead of decreasing business.

Peple have been educated to the fact that well advertised products are the quality kind and thep won't buy any other.

Continuous advertising of quality creates a buying demand which assures the advertiser quicker turnover.

Anp business in this day and time cannot stand still. Progress and competition demand that it move ahead or go out of business.

Continuous advertising of quality and service builds and keeps the confidence of the public. Without the confidence of the public, no business can move ahead.

Continuous advertising is the modern way of building better business. It proves to the public that the advertisers are proud of what they have for sale.

Anything wodth selling is worth advertising.

Advertising is the most egective selling help that can be found, because continuous advertising paves the wap to bigger sales.

Every business having something to sell should advertise continuously so the public may know who they are, where thep are, and what they have for sale.

Power of The Rural Weekly Press

Listen to what John H. Perry, President of the American Press Association, has to say on the influence of the country weekly:

"The force that controls this country of ours, in the long run, is the rural editor. In his capacity as spokesman for hundreds of thousands who live and earn their living on the farms and in the villages and towns.

"It is not necessary to take the writer's word for it Ask any politician whom you know. He will tell you the truth. Ask any representative of the interests—big city bankers, for instance, or presidents of great railroad or industrial corporation.

"The politician. if he is above peanut size, will tell you that he worries little about what the city papers say; but let even half a dozen country weeklies in his home state or district open on him, and he pulls down the lid of his desk at the state capital and takes the next train hime to see what it is he has done to make the farmer sore.

"The Big Businessman, if he is big enough to be entitled to the designation, will tell you that his business is gold or bad depending on how the country people like the way it is run. and that what those country people are thinking he finds out by read ng or having others read for him, what the country papers are saying."

CHIRPINGS FROM ROCK CREEK AND DISTRICT

(From The Sun's Correspondent)

The passenger train Wednesday noon, coming from the west. started two bad fires which might have been very destructive when within six miles of Rock Creek. Spark from the engine falling on the parched, dried grass were soon ablaze. A stiff wind was blowing at the time. The flames rolled along at a lively speed. The section men were slow in putting in an appearance owing to their having only a hand speeder, which does not travel as fast as the gasoline speeder, but when they arrived they got to work very quickly with shovels.etc., and tried to stop the fire from going any farther. When within about 50 feet of the James creek sawmill they fortunotely put out the fire,, and the piles of lumber stacked there were saved. Down the Kettle river the fire was burning very fiercely, and suddenly it tok a leap across the river and started up the opposite bank. It at last was correlled in a gulley and was kept from spreading further, a guard being placed to watch it.

A good shower of rain came last night. which was badly needed for the potato crop and other vegetables that have managed to pull through the sweltering heat of the past two months. It is surprising how the vegetables have managed to keep alive and grow during such weather.

The wide variety of conditions, ranging from tha hot dry slopes of the brush-clad foothills to the bleak summits above timberline, the abode of glaciers and perpetual snow, gives to the flora an exceedingly diverse and interesting character. Innumerable springs, creeks, rivers, ponds, and lakes provide suitable habitats for moisture-loving plants. Rocky outcroppings, enormous cliffs, and gravelly ridges accommodate species adapted to such situations.

The irregular topography yields southward-facing slopes, which receive the full effect of the sun's rays, as well as the northward slopes, cool, moist and shady, where they are little felt. The altitude ranges from 2500 feet in the foothill belt to more than 13,000 feet along the crest of the Sierra Nevada.

It is probable that the first white men to look upon Yosemite valley were members of the Joseph R. Walker expedition of 1833, which descended the western slope of the Sierras. This expedition apparently did not go down into the valley, and the effective discovery was not made until 1851, by members or the Mariposa battalion while in pursuit of hostile Indians.

The first white men who frequented this Yosemite hinterland were miners, sheep herders, and cattlemen. Then came surveyors and soldiers to guard the mountain meadows and forests. And, lastly, the tourist, at first a little group at long intervals. but now in throngs, to see the glories of the mountains. The first systematic reconnaissance of the region was made by the California geological survey between 1863 and 1867.

Was a Major In Wrong Army

Major H. Reynolds of London, was registered on a liners passenger list. The purser, running over the names, assigned to the same stateroom a husky stockman of Panhandle, Texas. The cattleman protested to the captain. "Look here, Cap, I can't travel in the same stateroom with that Major Reynolds. I can't and I won't. Far as that goes, neither of us likes the idea."

"What objection have you to an army officer as a traveling companion?" the captain asked.

"None, generally," said the Texan, "only this happens to be the Salvation Army. That major's other name is Henrietta."

Hereditary

A caller was entertaining herself with little Muriel, age four, and the baby sister while waiting for their mother to appear.

Repeated efforts failed to get the baby, who was just beginning to talk, to say a word.

Muriel watched the visitor's attempts for a while and then remarked soberly:

"It's no use; Jane's awful 'trary; that's the daddy part of her."

Canoe Trips in Canada

Lakes and Rivers Provide Numerous Attractions

Opportunities for an Enjoyable Vacation Almost Unlimited

THE requirements for a successful and satisfactory trip by canoe; suitable water, picturesque country and an excellent summer climate, can be found almost anywhere in Canada. The innumerable lakes and rivers make the choice of trips almost unlimited. One can travel for hundreds of miles on any of the great rivers, journeying from lake to lake and portaging where rapids impede or heights intervene. Having decided upon the kind of trip to be made, whether one requiring much effort and experience, or one quite free from rapids and portages, the canoeist has only to select his route.

Easy of Access

Although railways and the automobile have provided a means of rapid transport, there are countless places in the quiet of the forest, out of reach of either. It is such places, approachable only by canoe, that invite the adventurer to partake of the wonders of nature. The railways and the development of good roads have however made the majority of canoe routes in Canada easily accessible, and one need not travel far from the majority of Canadian cities before reaching the embarking point of an enjoyable trip.

Forest Beauty

In certain parts one may follow the streams for a long summer outing and never see a village or dwelling, yet civilization lies so close that return is easily possible. Waterfalls, rapids large and small, lakes of singular beauty hidden deep in the forest, and islands covered with pine and spruce trees are among the interesting features encountered en route. In some places one may travel hundreds of miles without meeting obstacles of any kind.

There is a remarkable contrast between the conventionality of modern life and the full naturalness of life in the great forest, where one may relax, amid the beauty of natural surroundings. A strange appeal of imagination comes to one while following the routes of the historic explorers and contentment prevails amid the constant change of beautiful scenery.

Fish and Game in Abundance

Canadian lakes and rivers are renowned for the variety and abundance of their fish. Brook and lake trout are numerous, the latter often weighing from fifteen to thirty pounds while other species of fish are plentiful. Eastern Canada is well provided with waterways, well suited to travel by canoe. Canal systems, rivers large and small, rapids, falls, lakes, stillwaters and all the requirements for an enjoyable canoe trip, await the devotee of the paddle. Whether it be a cruise through a well settled region, or an adventurous journey through the wilderness, the canoeist will find an almost unlimited number of lakes and streams.

The waterways of western Canada, in days gone by, assisted materially in unveiling the mystery of the great country between lake Superior and the Pacific Ocean. Radiating from lake Winnipeg, are routes of romantic interest. Nestling among the mountains of the coast are many beautiful lakes, also streams that wind through the hills, where sport for the angler and hunter may be found.

Free Information

The National Development Bureau of the Department of the Interior at Ottawa, has prepared a series of four booklets entitled "Canoe Trips," copies of which may be had by our readers, free of charge. The series covers the Maritime Provinces, Quebec, Ontario and Western Canada. Further detailed information is available to those who require specific ...n on any particular trip.
