AROUND THE NICKEL PLATE

Many Evidences That Mark a Great Mine

HUGE ORE CHAMBERS OPENED UP

Getting Ready to Operate From Lower Tunnel—Taking Down the Backs In a Few Places.

The Gazette paid a visit to the Nickel Plate last week and was in some of the workings that we had not seen for a considerable time. The changes that had taken place were in many cases surprising, and to stand in some of those chambers and see the huge subterranean caverns that have been hewn out, the immensity of the whole thing begins to dawn on one. But of course we must remember that the production in the short time that the mine has been working has been great—about $2,500,000 in gold bullion—and as it is not claimed that the mine is high grade except in places, this must mean the taking out of a large tonnage of rock.

The pillar and chamber method of mining has been employed which is generally that adopted in low grade mines where the ore bodies are of immense size and the ground firm and good.

In the neighborhood of the old original Nickel Plate glory hole they are breaking down the backs, which, we understand is being allowed to accumulate as a big reserve of broken ore. Also they are breaking out ore in the bottom of this old glory hole which is now connected with the ore chutes in the mine and sending it down along with the backs that are being broken down alongside the glory hole.

The lower tunnel is being got ready for operations, and in all probability next year will see it not only used for the ore that will be extracted from this tunnel and its stopes, but will be used to take out much of the ore in the level above that now has to be hauled up inclines in order to be handled from the old working tunnel. And this lower tunnel is the one which was condemned and stripped of its trackage.

The glory holes on Sunnysides Nos. 4, 3 and 2 were each in turn visited, and each had its own surprise for the amount of work done and being done, especially Sunnysides No 3.

The work to be seen in the various openings, and the shape it is in explains effectually why Mr. Jones who has been responsible for it, is chosen to take direction of the whole concern by men who are capable of judging it and have had the opportunity of doing so which they have had. "Handsome is as handsome does" is a wise old adage. Mr. Jones has done.

Important changes in mechanism to increase the efficiency of the tram may also be expected. This, however, is not in condition to talk about yet.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE

Chief Engineer Hogeland Has Come and Gone But Nothing Definite as to Building Beyond Princeton

So far as fresh indications looking towards active building operations beyond Princeton, is concerned, there appear to be none. It is true Mr. Russel's party is still in the field working on the revision of the line from the Summit to Otter Flat, but that doesn't necessarily mean anything. Survey parties were in the same locality all the summer of 1906, and still there is no building there. The time that has elapsed since Mr. Hogeland's visit and the sphinx-like silence that has been maintained is ominous to say the least, and people are becoming apprehensive.

County court is on to-day before Judge Brown with several cases on the docket.

FINALLY TAKEN OVER

The New Owners of the Nickel are Now in Full Possession

Last Wednesday telegrams came from New York advising representatives on the ground that the final payment had been made and forthwith the final order was posted by the late manager in which he took a fond farewell of the crews and staff in the customary patronizing phraseology which has characterized his numerous proclamations and promulgations; for in this respect the mantle of Washington Irving's Immortal Wilhelmus Kieft or "William the Testy" seemed have fallen on his shoulders. But in this particular proclamation there seems to have been a "knock in the push" and the erstwhile Hoosier barrister had apparently not understood all the legal bearing of the situation for the "proclamation" was afterwards retouched as to certain parts of its "innards" and a sentence dealing with the cessation of responsibility of the old company was scratched out.

This, however, is immaterial, the main point being that the new owners are in full possession and Mr. Jones the new manager as general superintendent of mine and works is directing the operations. Mr. T. Walter Beam, stock-holder in the new company, who has been looking after the company's interests both before and since the sale was made in August, is still on the ground and will give Mr. Jones the benefit of his counsel for a little longer, and will remain at all events until after a visit from Mr. I. L. Merrill, the president, who is expected along shortly.

Meanwhile there is already evidence on all sides that the policy of the new company will be one of progress, but of the judicious kind and changes will be effected when they can be done most economically and effectively. Mr. Jones is getting hold of details in connection with the working of the mill and lower works and in a few weeks will have matters at this end as well at his finger ends as he has up at the mine and on the tramways. These have always been under his direction and to his planning and inventive genius is due mostly the efficiency with which they are now working. Mr. Jones is not the man to make changes for the sake of changing. When a change is made it will be because it is needed and can be bettered, not because somebody else had it one way and that therefore it should be some other way.

The present time may not be opportune to take in hand some of the improvements contemplated, but it is safe to say that another twelve calendar months will not pass by until the power question will be in different shape from what it is at present and the annual shortage of water in Twenty-mile will not have the same terrors that it has had in the past five years.

RICHES OF SUMMIT CAMP

Some Pointers on This Noted Camp in the Cascades

Charles Connell, the veteran prospector, arrived in Rossland on Tuesday from the Hope Summit of the Tulameen from what is known as the Summit camp, which is a great mining centre in the making. Mr. Connell had with him a number of samples of ore from the Celtic Chief group, which he has been developing for the past eleven years. The samples are galena carrying high values in gold, silver, copper and lead. Assays show that this ore runs a little over $400 to the ton. The ore was taken from a blind ledge, running east and west and was encountered while driving a crosscut in a northerly direction to tap the main lead, which runs east and west. The ledge from which the ore was taken is six feet wide, with a paystreak of twelve inches the balance being concentrating ore. The main lead is seven feet wide and carries ore similar in character to that of the lead from which the ore was taken. In the Celtic group owned by Mr. Connell there are four claims, the Celtic Chief, Celtic Chief fraction, the Blue Bird and the Black Bird.

KINGSTON LOOKING WELL

Attention Now Being Given to Both Kingston and Metropolitan

FINE NEW SHOWING ON FORMER

Metropolitan's Many Ore Faces — Fat Dumps of High Grade Taken Therefrom—New Opening on Metropolitan Also.

It is scarcely two months since the Gazette last visited the Kingston and in that brief spell several mile-posts seem to have been passed in leaving the prospect stage behind. This is particularly so with reference to conditions now to be seen on the Metropolitan, which is no longer a prospect and neither should it be referred to any longer as a "mine in the making."

If anyone had ventured the opinion a year ago that twelve months hence there would be seen, a few yards over across that little gulch, such workings, such ore dumps and such ore faces as are now to be seen there, and that it would be accomplished in such hard rock with so small a crew of men and with nothing but hand steel, people would have laughed at him, but there it is to-day. From the outside all that is to be seen is two openings and three ore dumps. One of these openings is a shaft collar surmounted by only the old fashioned hand wind-lass, no fancy steam hoist nor even a horse whim; but there below it is a nice big dump of ore which was taken out in sinking the shaft to a depth of some 47 feet and a drift at the bottom of 25 ft. The other opening is a tunnel mouth on the steep hillside away below it. This latter was driven about 100 feet mostly in hard andesite to a point nearly under the bottom of the shaft. The muck from this makes a waste dump. Then the ore was encountered; the tunnel was forked and up-raises from the end of each fork to the shaft above. The result of these workings is a big ore dump alongside the waste dump and in it is considerable ore that will go over $100 per ton.

A more pleasing feature still to see is the numerous ore faces from which good pay ore may be mined, the ore being broken into, apart from that which was moved in making the connection by drifts and up-raises with the drift and shaft above.

Over on the hill-side in a westerly direction about 100 yards or so, is another shaft collar and another unpretentious hand windlass suggesting the fact that they were going ahead in the same matter-of-fact simple way to repeat the former experience. The new embryo shaft is down about 12 feet all in ore, when the men were taken off to follow up a new clew discovered on the Kingston.

This new clew is an ore body underlying an andesite dike that seems to be cutting into the mountain almost at right angles with the dike which was explored last winter. Mr. Pollock is pleased with the indications here and looks forward to permanence of the ore body, the values of which appear to satisfy him. If this ore body behaves the way he hopes and expects it will, he will in all probability go back later on and direct his work so as to investigate the point of intersection of the lower porphyry dike and this andesite sheet. When he does, some hair-lifting values are not at all improbable.

We have heard no more concerning the company or it intentions. No matter how the property improves under Mr. Pollock's magic touch, the company remains the same—that awful inert same.

OLD TIMER PASSES AWAY.

Word comes of the death of Mrs. R. C. Armstrong of the lower Similkameen which occurred on Friday night October 1st. Deceased had been ailing for over a year. She was one of the oldest settlers in the valley. The bereaved husband and family have the sympathy of all.

STATION SITE LOCATED

Arrangement Made is Eminently Satisfactory to the Town — Hedley Appreciates the Concession

When Chief Engineer Hogeland was in town last week, he and Mr. Kennedy took up the matter of location of the station with the representatives of the Hedley Gold Mining Co., and fortunately for the town Mr. Beam stood out for the thing that the town wanted most, which was to have it located as far up towards the Twenty-mile bridge as possible.

This of coarse meant heavier grading for the railway company than they cared about undertaking and it also interfered somewhat with their plans for running the spur up to the reduction works, but these were not insuperable difficulties and when Mr. Beam showed them that both the town and the Hedley Gold Mining Co. would prefer it that way they agreed.

Altogether it was a gracious act on the part of Messrs. Beam and Jones and the town appreciates it, and neither should we forget the courtesy of Messrs Hogeland and Kennedy in the matter. This sort of thing beats "working at cross-purposes" all to pieces. Everybody is satisfied and now let us get to work to fix up the way to the station as it ought to be fixed, and try to make things look as attractive as possible so as to impress visitors to the town as well as those passing through on the railway, for first impressions count.

SO ENDS THIRD DYNASTY

F. A. Ross, late general manager for the Daly Reduction Co. and Yale Mining Co. completed his reign on Wednesday last at twelve of the clock, noon, and on Friday morning took his departure. Mr. Ross had been three years at the helm, and if he were not as popular as he might have been, he had himself to blame for much of it; but there would be no good purpose served by dwelling on any details as to why we believe this to be so. Suffice it to say that he has been "allowed his little space to monarchise be feared and kill with looks," and is now gone out of our lives and out of our ken. Nevertheless he had many good points which he often showed to those who knew him best. He was a good organizer, had an orderly mind and was an indefatigable fusser with a penchant for detail, and that is often a very important thing to have. It was by attention to detail that Wellington licked Napoleon. Mr. R. had mastered the vocabulary of every known calling under the sun and was in fact,

"A creature of so varied parts that he seemed to be
Not one, but all mankind's epitome."

Those who may think he was not a capable man are very much mistaken in their estimate. His value will all depend upon the line in which he may be engaged. As head of some manufacturing concern which had been well established and effectively equipped it would be difficult to find a better head than he, but mining was not his line and he was apparently not suited to it either by training or disposition. Mining requires the judicious optimism born of a stout tum-tum and reinforced by the necessary training both technical and practical. But of all things the saving quantity of optimism must be there. If it is not—well, nuff said. So far as Mr. Ross is personally concerned, the Gazette wishes him all success and hopes he may find the particular niche in which his best powers may have full scope.

TRAGEDY ON KEREMEOS CREEK

Mrs. Billy Coon Is Found Dead on Roadside

About the end of last week a tragedy occurred which resulted in the death of one person. Billy Coon and his wife, both of whom it is said had been indulging too freely, started to drive home. They were met by one of their neighbors who noticed their condition and later on Mrs. Coon was found by the roadside dead, her neck having evidently been broken by the fall from the buggy. Coon was found afterwards by the road incapable from over indulgence in drink.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS

One of the commendable things which Bruce, of Saturday Sunset, has been advocating and which the Chief Commissioner of Works appears to regard favorably is a trunk wagon road through the province clear from the Pacific ocean eastward to Alberta. The proproject would not be one half so difficult as might appear at first sight for by far the greater portion of it has already been built. All that is required is the connecting up of the route in various places and improving existing portions of it where required. Touring by auto is now a favorite pastime of the monied class and this they can't do without distributing a certain amount of their wealth in the districts through which they travel. And this although considerable in itself is of small importance in comparison with the opportunity it would afford them to become acquainted with the country and see the chances offered for profitable investment. To show how feasible is the task it is only necessary to follow up the route from Hope eastward. There some building would be required in order to get into the Similkameen, but after that is attained there is a long sweep of 200 miles or more of existing road, before another halt is called at Christina Lake. From the Similkameen Valley either the roads through Richter's lower pass or by Fairview might be taken and in a few years hence this would land the tourist in what may then be the very garden of the province around Osoyoos Lake. From there the new road built this year from Osoyoos to connect with rock Mountain roads, would fit in, with the alternative route of the old road through Camp McKinney. In fact all would then be clear sailing all the way to Christina Lake when provision would have to be made to get over on to the Arrow Lakes in order to take advantage again of the roads in the Nelson district and on into East Kootenay and through to Alberta. The project would result in giving the province a most valuable asset.

THE PARTIES AND THE TARIFF

Editor Willison in the Toronto News Thus Sizes up the Question

Ottawa, Sept. 30th.—A demand for a convention of the Conservative party has recently been made by the Toronto News. It follows up this by urging the Conservative party thoroughly to consider its attitude to the tariff.

"It is denounced," says the News, "as the party of high protection, while certainly as much protectionist support goes to the Government as to the Opposition. There is reason to think that Liberals are decisively in the majority in the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. In its whole attitude towards the tariff the Government, not, perhaps, so much through the statements of Ministers as through the utterances of its journalistic mouthpieces, is an organized hypocrisy. The design of these newspapers is to hold the low tariff element for the Government, while the Government itself legislates for the support of protectionists."

After alluding to the history of the Liberal party on the tariff question, the News continues: "It is manifest that in Canada we can have only a moderate tariff. Generally the West is opposed to extreme protection, and there is still a certain low-tariff sentiment in the rural constituencies of Ontario and in the Eastern Provinces. These facts Conservatives understand, and they know that if their leaders should secure office at the next election there would be no general increase of duties. There probably would be a reduction of duties equal to any that will be made by representatives of the Liberal party.

CANADA AND THE POLE

The Inquiry of Sir Gilbert Party Brings the Question Forward

Ottawa, Sept. 27th. — The Peary-Cook controversy has a special interest for Canada owing to the fact that Commander Peary has held views regarding the North Pole which implies a territorial claim on the part of the United States. The attitude of Canada long has been that she claims all land lying to the North, and the indefatigable and expensive Captain Bernier has found time during the consumption of the stores for which the steamer "Arctic" is famous to hoist the Canadian flag on sundry northern islands. Commander Peary's claim thus is viewed with a good deal of interest here and the Cabinet has been discussing the matter.

As often happens when the Cabinet discusses matters outside of immediate party policies, it has been stirred up from Great Britain. A Conservative member of the British House of Commons, the Canadian born Sir Gilbert Parker, asked a question on the subject; and the Canadian Government forthwith began to consider. We are given to understand that its answer was a reassertion of the Canadian claim to all land between the northern shore of the continent and the North Pole. It also is given out that the circumstance that Commander Peary says that the Polar regions are occupied by a deep ocean relieves the situation, national ownership of course being concerned with land surface.

Ten years ago the matter would have been merely of academic importance, the Polar regions not being susceptible of exploitation by the means of travel and transportation then known to mankind. But perhaps the most extraordinary feature of the alleged double discovery of the Pole is that the event has come just as the older methods of exploration are about to become obsolete. We are on the threshold of the conquest of the air. We can with perfect sobriety expect, ten years from now, to see the airship and the aeroplane so improved as to make a visit to the pole a matter of ease, and the close exploration of the whole region merely a matter of interest and energy. The Klondyke gold fields remind us of the riches which may lie in the inhospitable north; it is already known that deposits of coal exist under the Arctic ice; so that while it would be absurd to count upon the extraction of riches from the very far North, it would be extraordinarily foolish to assume that the district has no value. The matter is one for an energetic assertion of the Canadian claim to all the Northern regions.

Jack Neill sold his ranch on Sterling Creek to a local syndicate.

It is reported that Mr. M. K. Rodgers is expected in on a visit shortly.

Rev. Mr. Kinney will preach here on Sunday evening. Service at 7:30.

J. P. McLeod, barrister, of Greenwood is in town to-day attending Comit Court.

S. F. Chamberlain, teller in the Bank of B. N. A. went out on Thursday last bound for the coast on a two weeks' holiday trip.

Mrs. Frank Logsdon left on the 29th ult. on a visit to Mr. Logsdon's home at Davenport, Wash., and after that she may go on to California to visit her own people. She is accompanied by her daughter, Mildred.

Mr. L. G. MacHaffie, local manager of the Bank of B. N. A. returned on Thursday from the coast where he spent his holidays. While there he met Mr. E. A. C. Studd, who is recovering from a painful accident which he met with recently from an exploded shell.

H. B. Mausette, of Keremeos, will be in Hedley on Monday, October 11th to attend to anything in the line of general tinsmithing. He is well satisfied with the amount of work in stove lining that was turned in to him, and the people are well satisfied with the work he did for them.

The Webster street bridge is nearing completion, and the grading of the approaches at either end has been done. All that remained to be done was the placing of the truss which could not be finished up until the iron was to hand. That, however, came in on Monday evening. Some who have been looking at the old foot bridge state that it is anything but safe, and if this be so, it would be a good act to demolish it right away, for as long as it remains standing it will be a trap that may let some one down.

Mr. and Mrs Bradshaw of Fifteen Mile returned on Saturday from their visit to the A. Y. P., Vancouver and Spokane. The outing was a celebration of the anniversary of their silver wedding as well and it is the first time they have been out of the Similkameen for many years. In Spokane they narrowly escaped getting mixed up in a street car accident, and they are no doubt satisfied to get back to the quiet of the Similkameen again.

Just now when the public are trying to make up their minds as to who discovered the North Pole and who didn't the anti-Cookites are attacking the credibility of his claim to have gone first to the top of Mount McKinley Henri Rousseau, of Hedley, who was in the vicinity of Mt. McKinley at the time has some positive views on the question. After what he saw, no one can make him believe that Cook went to the top of Mt. McKinley, at the time he claims he did.

Rev. A. H. Cameron held service in Hedley on Sunday evening. The change made by the presbytery in working Keremeos with Hedley instead of with Fairview will make it much easier for him than heretofore when the long drives over the mountain proved very trying, especially in the winter season. Mr. Cameron has been on the firing line in the mission field for the past thirty years and watched the construction of the C.P.R. from the north shore of Lake Superior through to the Pacific coast and after that was completed spent many years on the outposts of the church s work in Manitoba and the territories before he came to British Columbia.

BRUCE SEES CAMP HEDLEY

Spends Four Busy Days Examining Properties and Pencil Shoving

J. P. McConnel, the hustling fearless "Bruce", of the Saturday Sunset was a visitor in Hedley for several vigorous days. He is the first newspaper representative of any publication outside the district to visit the camp with the single desire to see what there is to be seen and give it a square show; the first one of the bunch to come leaving the proverbial mitt at home.

It was facts he was after with which to cudgel the Rip Van Winkles of Vancouver out of their long snooze, and show them what they have been losing and will lose for all time to come if they don't wake up; and of facts it is safe to say that he bagged a tidy supply. Whether it was crawling over big ore boulders in a mine stope or in taking short-cut headers down a steep mountain side, he was ready to follow where led, whenever there was a mine or a "mine in the making" at the end. He had opportunities to converse with all and sundry and to pick up impressions and pointers. The only trouble was that he could not spare the time to get additional tramps over the hills and see more properties; but nevertheless he saw enough to get a fair idea of whether or not we have a camp here that is to be a winner. May his visits be frequent and long for Camp Hedley can stand all the inspection and criticism that any one may wish to give it.

His railway crusade is a winner and all Yale and Similkameen say "more power to his elbow."

PAULINE JOHNSON ENTERTAINMENT

Entertainments that run more than ordinarily into the realm of intellectuality are not as a rule, so popular in places of limited population as something in somewhat lighter vein, nevertheless, a fair-sized audince greeted the entertainers in the Johnson-McRaye performance on Friday night last. Pauline Johnson has for years past been recognized as a writer of no mean order, and no collection of Canadian poems is complete without contributions from her pen. At first when she took up the role of public entertainer and went on tour, her share of the entertainment was almost wholly made up of public recitals of her own poems, but later while still adhering to her own writings she has added to the poems some clever character sketches. She prides herself on her Mohawk blood and is herself an example of the degree of intellectuality attained by individual members of the Indian race. She disclaims any pretentions to elocutionary skill and yet her through grasp of real poetic sentiment and the natural alertness of her race gives a naturalness to whatever gesture she employs. Mr. McRaye also in his interpretation of the late Dr. Drummond's quaint poems has been forced to adopt in them a style of elocution unhampered by the rules of forensic technique, and wholly born of a careful study of the habitant himself for he has him down to the life. The part taken by Mrs. McRaye (nee Miss Lucy Webling) who has been off the stage now for a number of years owing to ill-health, was somewhat of a minor role, but nevertheless she showed some of her old-time skill in Shakspearian acting when in the little comedy adaptation of Friday night's performance she had to impersonate Ophelia for a few moments. Years ago Miss Webling was a very talented Beatrice and took other Shakspearian characters with marked success.

HIBBERT—LANCASTER

(Keremeos Chronicle.)

Rev. R. W Hibbert arrived in Keremeos from Phoenix on Tuesday morning, and on Wednesday went to Penticton by stage. On Thursday he was united in marriage to Miss Hazel Lancaster, only daughter of W. D. Lancaster of Penticton. The happy couple left on a honeymoon trip to the east, in the course of which they will visit Mr. Hibbert's aged father at Port Williams, N. B. On their return they will take up their residence at Phoenix where Mr. Hibbert is now stationed. His many friends and former parishioners in Keremeos and in the adjoining districts which have been the scene of his labors, will join in extending hearty congratulations, and in wishing him and his bride long life and happiness.

Mr. Connell says the first claim staked in Summit camp was in 1891, and by J. L. Sutter, for Terre Haute, Indiana, syndicate. A little later Robert Stevenson, a well-known Similkameen prospector, made several locations there. Dan Ross, another prospector of that section, at a later time, also put down some stakes in claims there. Mr. Connell was the fourth and took up the Celtic Chief group 11 years ago. Two years since Andy Jensen staked the east extension of the Celtic Chief and has some valuable properties showing ore from the surface.

The ledges are found on a contact between lime and porphyry and are strong, continuous and well defined, running east and west.

The owners of the several groups in the camp have done considerable work on their properties and there are eight different claims from which shipments can be made at once, so advanced is their development, provided transportation was afforded. The surveyed line of the V. V. & E., over the Hope mountains, which are a portion of the Cascade range, is within eight miles of the Summit camp. The road will be completed to Eagle creek, eight miles from Summit camp, within the next year or two, as the Great Northern has promised to build over that route in order to open up the Summit and other mining camps in that vicinity. There is as large a mineral area as the Slocan to be opened up, and it is considered to be even more valuable than the Slocan as the ore is of a higher grade.

Mr. Connell has great faith in the Celtic Chief group and will in a short time return and resume develapment of it.

In the Summit camp, half a mile from the silver-lead properties, Mr. Connel also owns a group of copper-gold claims, consisting of the Empress, the Summer Star and the Red Light. The ledges are from 8 to 9 feet wide, as far as developed, and the ore in the ledges runs as high as 12 per cent copper with high gold values. He intends to give these his attention next year, as he considers them valuable, in view of the coming transportation facilities.

UNDIPLOMATIC MR. HARRIS

The Successor to W. T. R. Preston Gets into Trouble for Talking too Much

Those who will carry their recollections back to a year ago when the Dominion elections were in full swing will remember Duncan Ross's lieutenant, the elongated gentleman whom Bro. Wright of the Star connected with a baloon factory, and who afterwards was rewarded for faithful services by receiving the appointment in Japan formerly held by W. T. R. Preston. During the campaign he was credited with sundry indiscreet sayings and doings; but his latest indiscretion bids fair to make more trouble for him and should show him the impropriety of doing too much talking. His latest slip of the tongue is told in the following news despatch.

Ottawa, September 20.—In regard to the statement attributed to Canadian Trade Commissioner Harris, in Japan, in a letter to Hamilton business men that goods should not be shipped direct to Japanese merchants, because they were not to be trusted, the Deputy Minister of trade and Commerce, Mr. O'Hara, said this morning that Mr. Harris's views did not represent the department nor the Canadian Government. Mr. Harris is likely to be asked for an explanation as to his reasons for writing the letter. Mr. Harris comes from Vernon, B. C., and is a brother to Mr. Lloyd Harris, Liberal M. P. for Brantford. He was appointed to succeed Mr. W. T. R. Preston as Canadian Trade Commissioner to Japan last Spring.
