Letter Tells of Submarine Warfare

The following interesting letter to Miss Doris Lyall, from Private W. C. Bennett, who is in England, tells of the successful efforts put forth by the Allies for the capture and destruction of Germany's underwater pirates.

Canadian Con. Hospital,
Marks Horton, Kent

Dear Doris:

You will notice by the above address that I am still in the Old Country, and amongst the hop pickers.

Without a doubt this is a glorious part of the country, it cannot be beaten, and just now we are having some exceptionally fine weather, which helps to improve things generally. This place is within a few miles of the Canadian Base Depot (Shorcliffe) and about ten miles from Folkestone, twelve from Dover, and about seventy from London.

We have only about five miles to go to the coast, so you see we are living on sea breezes. I often took a run over to see Hill Inms, who was at Shorncliffe but did not happen to see any the rest of the Hedley boys. A. Freeman, Hill and I were to have met at Folkestone on Saturday evening, but the same evening the 48th struck camp, so A. F. was unable to get down there.

I suppose you know now that Hill is gone to France, what he is with I do not know as I have not heard from from him. We have had the Zeps quite close to us a rew times, but all they favor us with is the buzz of their engines. The raid of Aug. 20th, one passed directly over our camp, and dropped 19 bombs at Ashford, (8 miles away). However only one exploded and no damage was done. That was the time the Zeppelin was brought down and fell into the channel.

It was preceded by one of the areoplanes, as they usually are, just to the coast. The aeroplanes are like a fish nibbling at the bait, they won't come far inland, as soon as they have dropped about two bombs they beat it while going is good, and the anti air guns. don't trouble to fire at them, because they are sure to get it before they get back to their lines. However the Zeppelins come closely behind, at a great height, in fact they are usully too high for our air craft, and it is quite a job for the guns to touch them especially as it is so dark, and they won't venture across when there is a moon.

It is the same with their aeroplanes as with their submarines, the admiralty do not publish all the ones destroyed.

The channel is quite a scene of activity now. A submarine stands a very poor show. I heard it last night from a good source that about sixty-four of the German submarines have been accounted for, and what they catch in nets, they do not trouble to take out.

Without a doubt the steel net stretched across the channel accounts for a great many.

You see this net is down close enough to allow the vessels to go up and down, but the German submarines always travel submerged or they would easily be detected.

I will just tell you how they got one the other day, just about a mile out from Dover I was told this by a fellow who watched it from the shore. A trawler was out fishing as I said about a mile off Dover, when it was torpedoed. Of course there are Destroyers patrolling all the time, and as soon as they saw this, two of them rushed to the scene. One went to the sinking trawler and took off her crew, the other went to the spot where the submarine was sighted. (As you are aware perhaps, a submarine has to come nearly to the surface to fire a torpedo). This destroyer just kept going round in a circle as fast as it could go (which is somewhere around 40 knots). Two more destroyers came on the scene and circled around the other one. Then a mine sweeper came up and let down its grappling irons and very soon with its winch hauled up the nose of the German submarine. When it was a little way out of the water, one of the destroyers let go with her 5.7, and put her to rest. That is one way they are treating the submarine blockade.

Well Doris I don't know when we are going over, but I hope it is soon. We have been unfortunate. One of my brothers has been missing since June 20th, and I think there is very little hope. I hope all you people are well. Please remember me to all, and excuse this long letter and scribble.

Your Sincere Friend,
W. T. BENNETT

Fire Prevention-- Fall and Winter

Ashes placed against wood or in wooden boxes or barrels, defective chimneys, fireplaces, stoves, furnaces, or pipes figure prominently in the list of causes of fall and winter fires.

Such fires are, in the majority of cases, caused in reality by some one's carelessness. Furnaces and stoves are put into use without inspection or without proper protection. No provision is made for ashes or for the removal of rubbish in which sparks may alight and cause fires.

Ashes should not be placed against wooden walls or in wooden receptacles —metal receptacles should be clear of all wood.

Before the cold weather sets in see that chimneys, fireplaces, stoves, furnaces, and pipes are in good order and that the latter are properly supported. See that floors, walls and ceilings are properly protected so that overheating of stoves or pipes connot start a fire. A sound stove properly properly placed and protected cannot burn a house being overheated.

Boxes, crates, cartons, and paper are sometimes allowed to accumulate in basements of stores during summer and similar inflammable matter is often found in basements of dwellings. The furnace is started in a hurry without cleaning-up. Cleaning-up should be done in good time, before the furnace is started, so that sparks from the furnace or hot cinders accidentally dropped may not start a fire. All such inflammable material assists fire to spread rapidly.

Do not hang paper or clothes on the wall behind the stove-pipe. See that clothing which is being dried is so placed that it cannot be ignited. Fires caused by papers, clothes, or firewood left too near stoves are frequent.

Do not dry wood in the stove. Keep the wood-box where sparks cannot fall into it.

The fire loss in our municipalities during last winter from causes above referred to was about one-fifth of total loss reported.

Father Appreciates Kindness to Son

It is a long, far cry from Kent, England to Hedley, B. C. but the value of a kind deed can be felt and appreciated through all the lapse of time and space.

It is months since Charley Saunders left us to go home to enlist, and to many the sendoff he received has been relegated to the scenes of the past. But the story has been told and retold over in England and the few kind words have taken on added significance in the hearts of those who are near and dear to the young man who left us at the call of King and Country.

The appended letter will speak for itself:

September 17, 1915

Editor, Hedley Gazette,
Hedley, B. C.

Sir:—No doubt you will wonder who it is writing you and taking up your valuable moments, so permit me to introduce myself as a friend of your friend, Chas. Saunders. I had the extreme pleasure of being in the company of Charley's father a few days ago at Peckham, and was shown a paragraph from your very interesting paper dated July 27, 1915 in which was recorded a concert on behalf of a comrade who was leaving to nobly take up arms in defense of his beloved country, and it is on behalf of his father that I am now writing to thank you for the fraternal sendoff you gave his son. His heart, he states, is too full to allow him to express his thanks to Charley's old friends and pals for his sendoff. I promised to do so for him, hence my writing.

Sir:—Perhaps many of your readers and his friends, would like to bridge the distance between with a letter occasionally to him. I am sure it would greatly relieve the monotony of training if a friend of his would kindly do so, his present address you will find enclosed which I beg you will kindly publish, and, if you like, this letter of thanks from his father, who is deeply attached to him.

Charley, I am sorry to say, had rather a chequered career in his many attempts to join one of your own gallant battalions for he was many times told that he ought to have joined up in Canada, but with the true British spirit would not be done, so he joined up with the British Artillery and I am happy to tell you he is going great in this branch of the service, and I am safe in saying you will join with us in wishing him God speed and good luck.

Yours, etc. on behalf of T. Saunders

J. L. Jacombs, who enlisted to go to the front and was in training at Vernon for some time has received an honorable discharge. It seems Mr. Jacombs had an accident to his knee some time ago and although it does not cause him any trouble in ordinary times, the drill at the camp caused him so much pain that the doctors became suspicious and on examination refused to allow him to drill any more so he was discharged. He has a brother now in England if not at the front. Jacombs left Tuesday for Penticton where he expects to get work.

Thank Hedley Ladies For Needed Articles

A letter from Jack Howe, on behalf of the Hedley boys in the 54th at Vernon, voices the thanks of all of them for the articles sent by Hedley ladies.

Our ladies are doing a work of patriotism never guessed by the average person, and which is done without parade or ostentation whatsoever, but is all the more appreciated by the recipients on that account.

Following is the letter:

Vernon Camp, Oct. 3rd, 1915

To the Members of the Hedley Ladies Sewing Circle.

Dear Friends,

On behalf of the Boys from Hedley, I wish to thank you all for the kind gift of Towels and Wipers which I received and gave out to them, they were all delighted with them, and I may also add that we needed these very things more than anything else, it also cheers the Boys up wonderfully to know that the Ladies of Hedley are thinking of their comfort. Thanking you all again. I Remain,

Yours Truly,
JACK HOWE

MINING NOTES

The concentrator at Rosebery will commence milling ore Monday next. It is likely the force at the Lucky Jim will be increased at once.—Slocan Record.

The Rambler-Cariboo Mining Co. will pay 1c. per share, equal to $17,500, on October 15. This is the first dividend for some time. Another similar sum will be paid in December. The mine is at Three Forks, and produces lead-silver and zinc ores.

A 50-ton concentrator is to be built for the Silver Hoard mine, at Cedar creek, near Ainsworth, according to an announcement made recently by W. S. Hawley. The plan has been under consideration for some weeks but this is the first official announcement of it. Among other plans under consideration was one previding for the milling of Silver Hoard ore at the Highland mill.—Kootenaian.

A small crew of men are now working three shifts on the Emma mine, in Denoro camp, pumping out the water, of which there is some 200 feet. Some additional pumps will be added. The B. C. Copper Co. have made arrangements for the operation of the Emma and expect to commence shipments therefrom as soon as the mine is unwatered. It is also understood the same company is considering the shipment of ore from the dump of the old B. C. mine located in the same camp. --Grand Forks Gazette.

The increasing figures in the price of metals ought to do something towards bringing into actual productive being many mineral properties now lying idle in B. C. There can be no denying the fact that if many of the prospectors of this province had their opportunity it is now or in the coarse of next year, but unfortunately, as has been the case in past years, many a highly promising deal is being held up by the pig-headed obstinacy of one solitary pipe-dreaming "millionare". The time has gone by for ever when exorbitant figures will be paid for prospect pot holes, and the sooner the owners realize it, the better it will be for themselves and the industry in general.

THE WAR

War news during the week has been decidedly optimistic. Whereas no great advance has been made at any one point and some people seem disappointed because we hear nothing more from the Western front, the fact remains that all indications point to a much more hopeful outlook, although there never was any question as to the ultimate outcome of the war.

Within the last three days events have been coming pretty well to a crisis in the Balkan situation. That the Allies are not going to receive any aid from that source seems apparent, but that they have accepted the situation philosophically and with the determination of the truly great to swerve not one iota from the original purpose, is a matter for congratulation. The journey may be prolonged a little and be a little more burdensome, but the goal will be reached and then the victors, few indeed, will divide the spoil. The division will be a little easier with the troublesome factors of the Balkan States out of the discussion.

Meanwhile the mad men of Europe are battering their heads against the walls of steel so well constructed by the ever watchful Allies, and that wall is being pushed slowly, but surely nearer the heart of the Teutonic world, Berlin.

We desire to express our regrets that this edition should seem to be top-heavy with letters and communications but such are conditions under which an editor labors in a small weekly field. Our paternal government would fill our columns every week if we permitted it, but this of course we reluctantly refuse to do.

The various letters this week are of a nature to demand attention and we beg to state will reward one for a careful perusal.

A great many people discovered that they actually had a multitude of things to be thankful for and while all did not consider the same things of moment to them, all will agree that the thing we have most to be thankful for is the fact that we are British born, that we are part of the great empire which in the greatest crisis in the history of the world stood firmly out for principles of truth and justice. Right thinking people in every nation recognize that fact today.

Thanksgiving day passed very quietly in Hedley. The hotels had special menus for the occasion and the populace thoroughly enjoyed that feature of the day. A few went hunting but no record bags were announced.

There was quite a little excitement yesterday morning just a few minutes before the school bell rang. Mr. Wright's white rabbits were on the rampage and the boys and some girls joined in the chase. Needless to say it was a stern chase at all stages of the game and it was well on in the afternoon before bunny was finally captured and found a refuge in Mrs. Wright's arms.

READ-- Then Think!

Now that you have commenced to read this article, just keep right on to the end, and then you will have absorbed meat of the cocoanut.

What has this town ever done for you; It has fed you, and clothed you, and housed you, and given you employment, and kept the wolf from your door for these many years.

It has done more. It has furnished you recreation, and enjoyment, and has guided you safely over many of the stones that beset the pathway of life.

It has praised your good deeds and has thrown the mantle of charity over your questionable ones.

It has been, and is, YOUR HOME. But what have YOU done for the TOWN?

You are making you money here but where are you spending it?

Are your buying goods from the local dealer, who pays and otherwise contributes liberally to the upkeep of the community and your home, or are you sending your money away to some catalogue house that wouldn't lend you a five cent piece to save your soul from purgatory?

And now you have reached the point where we want you to stop and think, and think hard, and to a sane, sensible and patriotic purpose.

E. E. Burr, our genial artist of the hammer and anvil, has bought the Ford car brought to town a few weeks ago by Mr. George. Already Mr. Burr has steered the pesky thing round some of the curves and up some of the hills. And lo, all is well, evidently the worst is now over. Here's Success.

With the next service, Sunday, October 24th, Hedley will say farewell to Rev Griffiths, our popular pastor. He goes to Michigan City, Idaho, a much better parish and we ought to rejoice with him for the opportunity which he so richly deserves. At the same time there are a great many peo- in lower Similkameen who have profited by his ministrations who will certainly miss him very much. The Gazette voices the sentiment of very many of our citzens when we wish him success in his new field.

I'd very likely sing—
Gang forth an' fecht my bairns
For your Country an' your King.
It's weary, weary pinin'
A' by my lane at hame;
An' I think o' bullets whinin'
An' wonder which they'll claim.
But it heartens up a body
Tae croon a bit and sing—
Keep aye a stoot heart, laddies,
For your Country and your King.
There's mony and mony a mither
Has a hairt that's hurt and sair,
For a man, a son, or brither
That she'll see again nae mair.
But tho' her hairt's near broken
She'll quaveringly sing—
I canna grudge them deein'
For their country and their King:—

"The Carnivora as Destroyers of Game" is the subject of a thoughtful article by Edward T. Martinn in October issue of Rod and Gun in Canada published at Woodstock, Ont. by W. J. Taylor Limited. H. C. Haddon contributes a serio-comic Western tale entitled "The Desperado" while among the actual "been there" experience may be mentioned Sport in the Tomogonops: The Hunt for the Lost Moose in New Brunswick; Experiences at a Winter Camp in the Laurentians; A Trip by Motor Boat after Moose in Northern Alberta, and The First Day out the latter being an account of a day's shooting of partridges by "Bill and Billie" contributed by F. V. Williams who is also the designer of October cover. The regular departments are as usual splendidly maintained and and the whole issue is one that will make a strong appeal to sportsmen and lovers of outdoor life.

The Gazette will be pleased to publish letters from its readers on all questions of public interest, provided the writer gives full name and address. The letter may be published under a nom de plume if so desired. In no case will the editor be responsible for the opinions expressed and does not necessarily endorse them.

Dear Editor:

I have perused the article appearing in your paper under "Christian Science", and with all deference to the opinions of others, I think the Rev. Stewart has most ably defended his subject, and no doubt the votaries of Christian Science will continue to hug the false gods. Compared with everyday rationalism and the 20 century common sense. Christian Science is worse than virtuous humbug, suited only to a certain class of humans known as hypochondriacs, whose mental peculiarities are a source of revenue and amusement to druggists and doctors. To assinate the offending mental state in these cases is invariably the aim of the physician, hence the medical men really practice the same mental therapeutics and suggestion, but only in cases of mental troubles.

We all admit that the troubles of the soul must be healed by spiritual means, but who is foolish or weakminded enough to try and heal the natural body when diseased, by spiritual means. There is a vast difference between the meaning of Disease and Functional Disorder, the latter in many cases due to a discordant state of the mentality, in common words a troubled or worry laden mind. The worried mind state will develop malnutrition of the blood, which if maintained will injure the health, but this is not disease, merely functional disorder and can be rectified by assassinating the cause of the offending mental state, and replacing it by a state of mental harmony. There are various methods adopted to bring about mental harmony, but the surest way is to assassinate the cause of offending mental state. Now every offending mental state has a cause, and if the cause is removed the effect will cease.

In order to remove the cause of an offending mental state it is justifiable to make use of any humbug available.

This is just where so called Christian Science has overshot the mark. the certain amount of success claimed by them in the healing line, lay in the removal of the cause of offending mental states, and they applied the same treatment to the cure of actual Disease of the body.

To say that Christian Science is a huge imposter is putting the case very mildly indeed, especially when it is imposed upon a suffering natural body to the total exclusion of medical skill, it then comes well within the catigory of crimes, and is often penalised accordingly.

To suffer needless physical pain is a crime against nature. Given a good sized darning needle in my hand I can prove to any Christian Science gentlemen the reality of matter through the agency of their nervous systems.

I fail to see where they are intelligent for had not God considered it essential for the safety and protection of living bodies he would not have given them a nervous system to feel and warn them of approaching danger to the material bodies, hence the falacy of the "nothingness of matter."

Your last weeks correspondent refers to the obituary lists as proof of the inability of medicine to cure. He is just as well informed on this part of his subject as on the other. As a matter of fact no graduate medical man pretends to cure with medicine, physical ills. But the proper medicine at the proper time, will support the physical body and providing other things are equal, the mind being in harmony nature and not the medicine proceeds to effect a cure. Medicine is used to aid nature while she effects a cure.

I know one poor girl who when suffering from a high burning fever, was refused water to drink by her fanatical Christian Science father. He said you must keep affirming that there is nothing wrong with you, and so in the first absence of the misguided parent, the poor suffering creature drained the slop bucket, in order to obtain relief. The result was she contaminated her system so badly, that she has had heart disease to this day.

This inhuman religion is more cruel than the bayonets and shrapnel of war when forced upon the weak-minded, children and those under the influence or care of guardians. They cannot resist and are thus innocent victims.

All this affirming away matter just amounts to this i. e. if the Captain and crew of the Lusitania had affirmed away their part and parcel of this material planet, that torpedo would have gone right through them without doing any damage.

I have tabulated many cases ranging from humbug to crime and shall willingly name them privately.

Taking the name of Christian Science, is like drawing a poisoned arrow ingeniously covered and disguised with many beautiful flowers and scents and aiming it at the whole fabric of the Orthodox Christian Church of today, makes us shudder for our children's sake.

Hence every uncatering minister of the gospel who fearlessly preaches the Truth is justified in denouncing this wolf in sheep's clothing.

Editor Hedley Gazette:
Hedley, B. C.

Dear Sir:

I have been interested lately by some letters regarding Christian Science, which have been printed in your paper, and the last one of Sept. 21 has raised two or three points in my mind which I should like to make some observations on with your permission.

At the outset I wish to say I am not well acquainted with either the Bible or the Christian Science textbook, the latter I read through but failed to find interesting as, to me, it seemed senseless and inane but let me hasten to add, that because I found it empty, would be no reason to say there was nothing in it. As Mr. Greenwood would say the fault probably lies within myself, and if Christian Science has helped to develop some people spiritually, and to realize and bring to the fore their latent goodness, let us give Christian Science the credit belonging to it. It seems to me the clergyman is at a disadvantage as he cannot put aside for the moment and for the purposes of discussing dispassionately, the attitude of mind he naturally has through holding a belief in a personal God.

I should like to know the Christian Science definition of real though I do not like any satisfaction in defending evil as real, it has certainly seemed very real to me at times and Mr. Greenwood in speaking of Christendom having failed to prevail over the "evil" that is in the world, makes one think, even to Christian Scientists, evil must have some reality; for to prevail over things we must have things to prevail over. It is said, of course, that material organisms are subject to constant change, and granted that good will in end prevail absolutely and is infinite, to teach the unreality of the finite human body and evil, would reasonably retard the consummation of that end; though we may be merely atoms, here for a day as it were, what concerns us, even for a day must be considered and dealt with as reality inasmuch as it retards or developes our growth.

If Mr. Greenwood knows human nature at all, he must know that what draws a great many to Christian Science is the idea of gaining relief from a sick body, I have talked with numbers and that has invariably been the one and only reason of their being in the Christian Science church. Though physical healing may not be the primary mission of the church, one cannot be blamed if one gets the idea they treat the human body as of first importance.

As to the Scriptures sustaining every statement of Christian Science, it is said, I have heard even clergymen admit it, that one can find in the Scriptures statements sustaining any teachings in the world. When Jesus healed the sick it is said by some that he seemed to do it reluctantly, and only to show and prove that He came from God.

So Christian Scientists never have cause to have obituary lists in the papers? In my limited knowledge of human beings I know of two women who died while taking Christian Science treatment and one healer a very good woman died in the prime of life.

What is the Christian Scientist attitude toward other forms of mind healing? New thoughts, mental suggestion and hypnotism? Plain hypnotism has been tried among criminals.

Mr. Greenwood says how can evil exist if God is in every place? Did he never hear of the dualty of human nature? Or to be more plain and concrete of the angel and the demon that go to the makeup of most personalities? Did he never see one and the same person act nobly one time and another time much the reverse? It would seem good and evil can exist side by side.

There is a school of thought which explains, and very reasonably it seemed to me, how it is dangerous to some minds to allow another mind to gain an entrance there through any form of hypnotism as once one allows oneself to come under the conscious influence of another mind, it opens the door to evil suggestion from without, as well as good.

E. J. Patch, the genial end man of the Daily News, came in on Saturday's train, bringing his clock along. E. J. said things about our train service that would not look good to print and certainly would appeal to Jim Hill, if he could only hear them. However, when he left he was willing to allow that there are worse places than Hedley to be hung up in.
